Maurice Richard Went On Trial Today For Fiery Outburst At Boston

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BATTLE IS JOINED!

The chips are down—the die cast. One Michael J. Reddan, and this department have ceased to remain on speaking terms; Max Jaskson, Kedden Hesteman, and vice-president in charge of statistics, has got himself a brand new tabulator, two secretaries, and spare fixings for his vocal cords.

The pre-playoff prognosticators, most of whom are wondering how wrong they could be, have purchased new crystal balls, and hired a few swamis and yogis to do their gazing for them. They should have done that in the first place.

The raisains of the new calculating machinery of the dozen statistician and his figure magician dawn Reddenville way can scarcely be interpreted as a paean of victory. For it will reveal that the Goodyears won four against the Maroons in schedule play, lost three and tied one. The Goodies won two games at home and two away, while our side scored two victories in Kingston, one here and played the tie game on home ice. But, as this department has always insisted, schedule statistics, while they provide a lot of pastime and hope for those who enjoy rambling around with figures, don't mean a tinker's road-block in a chips-down series.

In any event it should prove a red-hot series, with all the old rivalry, bitter and otherwise, that has been more or less dormant since that eventful series of two years ago, being revived by the playoffs flame. Traditional rivals over the years in all phases of sport, Kingston and Belleville have always fought each other to the last ditch—and this series should be no different.

While this department is doing no limb-crawling regarding the outcome of the Kingston-Belleville series, it might wager a small sum that the representatives of this group, will, as in the past two seasons, cop the title. If necessary serves us correctly, Kingston was not too hard put to win the bauble from Woodstock two seasons ago, while last year the Oshawa Generals had a fairly easy time, as finals go, in disposing of the Simcoe Gunners.

The winners of this group will hop into the provincial semi-finals against the victors of the Stouffville-Orillia series now underway, with last reports saying Orillia was leading 2-1. Stamford and Dundas are playing for the Niagara title, with the teams thus far splitting two victories, while Sarnia and Woodstock started their series last night. Stamford or Dundas will play off with Sarnia or Woodstock and the winners will take on the Kingston-Belleville, Orillia-Stouffville victors for the Ontario crown. So said Billy Hanley, of the OHA, and the gentleman should know whereof he speaks.

SOCCER

Soccer lovers of the city and district are in for a "treat" next Friday prior to the annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Football Association. A full-length motion picture film of the Scotland vs. Hungary soccer game will be shown under the auspices of the Ontario Minor Football Commission. There is no admission and minor players are especially invited to see this epic of soccerdom. The annual meeting of the association will be held immediately following the showing of the film at the Kiwanis Centre starting at 7.30.

And while on soccer, Secretary Fred Jones announces the annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Football League is slated for the YMCA here Friday, March 25. All amendments to the constitution should be in the hands of the secretary by March 12.

HITHER AND YON—

A hockey team representing the Montreal Northern Electric Interdepartmental league, will be the guests of their Belleville counterparts here next Sunday in a two-hour session in Memorial Arena starting at three o'clock . . . The local N.E. annual banquet is tabbed for the Golden Acres this Wednesday evening. . . . Point Anne and the Marmora Millionaires tangle in the second of their best-of-three OHA intermediate "C" series in Marmora Saturday night starting 8.15 . . . Kingston minor hockey teams were all eliminated in the second round of the OMHA playdowns . . . . Add Red Face Dept: "Marss" Cec Perdue, Peterborough scrivener who picked Hal Connell and Whitby as finalists in the district senior "B" group . . . . A hockey fan cannot recall 2,000 at a game in Memorial Arena. Frankly neither can we, although it seems something like that when the Trenton Flyers final here in 1937 . . . . Crowds of between 2400 and 2600 attended the district league finals between the CNR Diesels and Northern Electric while Johnny Dell says 2800 watched a playoff game between Kingston and Belleville some years ago when he was club secretary.

MEMOS' BOOSTER CLUB

Prizes awarded to the Memo hockey stars during their semi-final six-game series with Cornwall were donated by the members of the Belleville Memo Booster Club. Three stars and the most valuable player to the team in each game were selected by a city hockey expert not connected with the press or radio.

Goaltender Tony Parisi and wingman Keith MacDonald headed the prize winners list, each receiving four of the awards while Red Doran and Bob Mosey had three apiece. Bob Wilson, Pete Jones and Edwin Duncan were named twice, while single presentations went to Vern Geyer, Ted DeGray, Arnie Dugan and Dave Jones.

This policy will continue in the group finals with Kingston.

Gavilan, Dykes Fight Tonight

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Former champion Kid Gavilan goes after his 190th ring victory tonight against cagey Bobby Dykes of Miami, who came within a few jabs of lifting the welterweight crown from the Cuban hole specialist in this same room on Feb. 4, 1953, when Dykes.

Gavilan won a split decision that night, thanks to the vote of a Cuban judge, Eddie Cocco. Cocco man voted for Dykes and Judge Mark Erwin called it for Gavilan by a one-point margin.

This time Cocchman won't be the third man in the ring and Erwin will not be a judge. Neither will there be a Cuban judge.

The Miami boxing commission agreed to a request of Gavilan's manager, Irish Columbia, that judge Jerry Sherrard because, it was claimed, they are "too friendly with Dykes."

Winger Left Hospital Ward To Attend Full-Dress Hearing Before National League Prexy

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice (Rocket) Richard goes on trial today before National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell for his latest fiery outburst—the Sunday night incident at Boston Gardens.

The temperamental Montreal Canadiens' right-winger was scheduled to leave a hospital bed to attend the full-dress hearing in NHL offices and Campbell was expected to pass judgment almost immediately.

The hearing was scheduled for 10 a.m. EST.

What happens to the Rocket for his outburst—swinging his stick on Hal Laycoe of the Bruins and slugging linesman Cliff Thompson—rests solely with Campbell. Richard was still in Laycoe's stick before going to work.

THOSE ON HAND

Scheduled to attend the hearing were Laycoe and representatives of the Bruins, officials in the Sunday night game, referee-in-chief Carl Voss, and coach Dick Irvin and Ken Reardon, representing Canadiens. General - manager Frank Selke is out of town.

After telling his side of the story, Richard was scheduled to return to hospital where he was ordered Tuesday after reporting for practice suffering from severe headaches and an upset stomach.

For a while there was speculation that the hearing might be postponed, but this was discounted by Dr. Gordon Young, the Montreal club's physician, who said he saw no reason to prevent Richard from attending the hearing.

Dr. Young examined the Rocket Tuesday night and called it a "routine examination we make for all head injuries."

DOCTOR'S ANSWER

Asked if the specific injury to Richard was from Laycoe's stick, the doctor replied:

"Well, Richard wasn't in a train wreck."

Richard underwent x-ray examinations Tuesday and was to undergo more today.

Coach Irvin, who spotted the Rocket looking "pale and strained" at practice, said Richard told him he hadn't slept all Monday night.

"He had the headaches on the return Monday from Boston but he hadn't said a word about them" Irvin said.

Four of the 12 regional entrants in both men and women's divisions were eliminated after two days of bowling five games. The remaining eight in both divisions begin finals play today.

Other qualifiers included: Hal Reibel, Kitchener, 2,368; Cord Burnie, Orillia, 2,345; and Bob Gallagher, Oshawa, 2,327. Those eliminated included John Train, Kingston and Pete Dowes, Sudbury.

Vi Ward of Toronto led the women's division with a 10-game total at 2,224. Other qualifiers: Ruth Grant, Chatham, 2,208; Grace Kaiser, Guelph, 2,216; Doris Dunphy, Kingston, 2,216; Rea Ellen, Oshawa, 2,207; and Lois Jewel, Gravenhurst, 2,092.

Teepees Goalie Out of Action For Opener

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Rudy Pilous of St. Catharines TeePees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series said Tuesday night goaltender Mary Edwards will be out of action when the final playoffs get underway today.

TeePees meet Toronto Marlboros in St. Catharines in the first game of a best-of-seven series. Pilous said Edwards suffered a fractured cheekbone in a practice Monday in St. Catharines.

"He'll be out of action for some time," he said. "It looks as if we'll have to go after a replacement."

VOWS NO GAG

Last week Edwards was said to have had an attack of chicken pox that would have kept him out of the finals but it turned out to be the flu. Pilous vows that the cheekbone injury is no gag.

"Our sub goalie Roger Day will be in the nets against Marlboros tomorrow night," he said.

Edwards was hit on the left side of his face by a hard shot from TeePee captain Hank Ilesia, Jr. last week and suffered the injury.

"My left eye is closed and I'm having a painful time—chewing," Edwards said at his home.

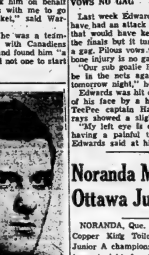
Noranda Meets Ottawa Juniors

NORANDA, Que. (CP)—Noranda Copper King Toilers, Gold Belt Junior A champions, travel to Ottawa tonight for the first game of a best-of-seven Memorial Cup quarter-final against Ottawa Shamrocks. Shamrocks earlier won the Ottawa district junior A title.

The Toilers moved into the cup playoffs last week after disposing of the New Liskeard Cubs in five games of a best-of-seven set. They lost the fifth game but bounced back to take the next four straight.

Noranda played in two leagues this year. They saw little action in the eight-game Gold Belt junior A league but led the league in playing in the northwestern Quebec Intermediate A League.

It was enough to keep two coaches busy. The Fortin brothers, Phil and Al, their eyes on the Memorial Cup, think they have the team that can knock out the Shamrocks.



TOP POINT GETTER

Big gun for the Toilers is Andre Morrissette, who plays with Val Mitchell and Frank Butler on the team's top forward line.

Morrissette was the leading point - getter in the Gold Belt League and placed eighth in the intermediate loop with 54 points. He played the last two seasons with the senior B Quebec Citadels.

In intermediate play Mitchell garnered 49 points while Butler came through with 36.

Noranda manager is Wilf Cude, former goalie with Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League. At present Cude is a player scout for the Wings.

Boxing Brass Bears Down

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The Pennsylvania athletic commission Tuesday ordered all persons connected with boxing and wrestling in Pennsylvania to submit their fingerprints before receiving a license.

At the same time, the newly appointed Democratic commission changed the licence applications to require that notation be made of any criminal charges levelled against the applicant anywhere.

All boxers and wrestlers will be required to take accident and death insurance before each bout under another ruling.

National League Prexy Wants Rule Enforced

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — President Warren Giles of the National League Tuesday issued a bulletin to league officials, managers and umpires that the league will "liberalize" the rule requiring catchers to remain in the catcher's box until the ball has left the pitcher's hand.

Giles sent the directive through his office in Cincinnati. Two or three catchers have complained to Giles that they are hampered by the rule and cannot catch their normal game.

The catcher's box is 43 inches wide and the catcher is not permitted to leave it until the ball has been delivered, making intentional walks more difficult. If the catcher leaves the box, a balk will be called.

The ruling originally was intended to deter the intentional base on balls. Giles instructed the umpires to "bear down" on the rule when an intentional base on balls situation arises.

Giles directed that when it appears the catcher might walk the batter intentionally, the umpire should notify the catcher and advise him to stay in the box for that one batter, or be penalized.

Giles stipulated that it is up to the umpire to determine if the intentional walk is coming up.

Penticton Vs En Route Home Get Warm Montreal Welcome; "Play Next Series in Canada"

MONTREAL (CP) — The Penticton Vs were flying across Canada to their Okanagan home today, bearing gifts and plaudits from Montreal, where they stopped briefly on their flight from Britain.

Shrinet visitors in the world hockey championships in which they retrieved the title from Russia, the Vs received a rousing welcome from 700 persons who met them in a downpour at Dorval airport Tuesday night.

Backs were pounded, hands were shaken time and time again, the people cheered, speeches were made, and Mayor Jean Drapeau presented watches to all the team during the two-hour refuelling stop. Flash-bulbs popped all the while.

The Vs then took off at 12:40 a.m. EST by Trans-Canada Air Lines land. They are scheduled to arrive at Penticton late today.

Goalie Ivan McClelland parted with the team here, travelling to his home at Timmins, Ont.

Playing coach Orant Warwick, meanwhile, had a bit of advice regarding the upcoming Washington-Penticton clash—won 5-0 by Penticton—because "I just didn't feel like it.

something that was intended," said Warwick. "We are very glad to be back in Canada and I think the best plan is to let him come over here" for the next champion ships.

The games actually are scheduled for May in conjunction with Olympic trials but the suggestion that they be moved to Canada—backed by the Vs—apparently was heard from several sources.

Mayor Drapeau—in an informal civic reception in an airport restaurant—told the Vs "all Canada is proud of you." He presented each of them with a specially designed and engraved "Penticton watch" on behalf of Montrealers.

"Our stay will be long remembered," said Warwick, adding:

"Every goal we scored over there, means a lot to each of the players."

Veterans Mike Shabazz and Bill Warwick, brother of Grant, were among Vs renewing acquaintance with a bevy of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League who met the plane.

Shabazz, who speaks Slavic languages, told a reporter he didn't speak to much Russian during the clash—won 5-0 by Penticton—because "I just didn't feel like it."

Claim Lions Are Being Slowly Wrecked

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Lions—most prosperous team in the National Football League—are slowly being wrecked by retirement, the armed services and Canadian football.

The Lions already have lost seven players from last year's team, and the number likely will increase to a dozen or so by the start of next season.

It is an alarming situation for the Lions, who last season led the league in money-making and have high hopes of doing th same the next few years.

Latest to leave the team is quarterback Tom Dublinski, who finally tired of operating at Bobby Layne's shadow and Tuesday signed a 1955 contract with Toronto Argonauts. Layne rates as the Lions' No. 1 quarterback. In Toronto, Dublinski will rejoin Gil Mains, Lion tackle who jumped north of the border earlier in the year.

Three other Lions—all key players in last season's drive to third straight western division title—Shabazz, who speaks Slavic languages, told a reporter he didn't speak to much Russian during the clash—won 5-0 by Penticton—because "I just didn't feel like it."

Canada Tied for 12th Place In Pan-American Tournament

MEXICO CITY (CP)—A young Canadian sprinter who collects jazz records and wants to be a dentist today faced a task at the Pan-American Games considerably tougher than pulling teeth.

Bruce Springett of Vancouver easily qualified for the finals of the 300-metre dash Tuesday along with five speedsters from the United States, Trinidad and Brazil. But his time was the slowest of the lot.

Springett and Jack Smyth of St. Boniface, Man., entered in the hop, step and jump, were Canada's main hopes to win a gold medal today.

So far the United States has grabbed most of the honors. Tuesday the Americans won three of the four championships in track and field and two in weight lifting to boost their unofficial team point standing to 220, far ahead of runner-up Argonauts. Layne rates as the Lions' No. 1 quarterback. In Toronto, Dublinski will rejoin Gil Mains, Lion tackle who jumped north of the border earlier in the year.

Canada was tied for 12th place with Colombia, each with six points. Of the 22 countries competing five have yet to show on the scoresheet.

Of the 20 championships decided so far, the United States has won 14, Argentina four and Cuba and Panama one each.

Tuesday young Parnell Sowell of Pittsburgh upset Olympic champion Mal Whitfield in the 800-metre run. Sowell, just 19 and skinny as a reed, put on a tremendous spurt in the stretch to clip teammate Lon Spurrier in 1:49.7, a Games record. Whitfield faded badly and finished fourth.

Fortune Gordien, the world's record holder in the discus, and Rev. Bob Richards, greatest of the modern pole vaulters, captured their events to give the U.S. eight of the 10 men's track and field championships to date. The American finished 1-3-3 in the pole vault.

The only man to crack the U.S. superiority was Oswaldo Suarez, the Mexican Argentine who added the 5,000-metre crown to the 10,000-metre championship he took Tuesday. Suarez won a stirring stretch duel with Horace Ashenfelter, the U.S. Olympic steeplechase champion, in 15 minutes 30.6 seconds.

Argentina also won the team foils fencing championship, with the United States second.

Canada's only point winner Tuesday was John Ivan Pavelich of New Westminster who placed sixth in the discus with a throw of 123 feet, 7 inches.

Gordien won the event with a toss of 174 feet, 3½ inches, and Parry O'Brien, the new Pan-American shot put king, was right behind him with 167 feet, 6¼ inches, both bettering the Games mark of 160-4 set at Buenos Aires by Jim Fuchs of New York.

The women basketballers, Vancouver Blues, lost their second straight game Tuesday night, 32-46 to Chile, and their chances of qualifying for the double round-robin tournament among five countries were dim.

The U.S. and Chile lead with two wins against no defeats.

Mechanical Brain Says Willie Mays Top Ball Player

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A mechanical brain swallowed statistics Tuesday and decided according to a formula provided by general manager Branch Rickey of Pittsburgh Pirates that Willie Mays is the National League's top offensive baseball player.

The result surprised few persons. It seemed a lot of trouble to prove again the worth of the New York Giant who was named the senior loop's most valuable player in 1954.

Rickey, who has a scientific approach to the game, devised the formula some time ago. But it hasn't been given much use primarily because it takes a mathematician to understand the formula and for speed it takes a brain such as that used Tuesday.

CATCHES DIDN'T COUNT

The Giants' centrefielder was give a Rickey-brain rating of 1.116. And that took into account only his offensive feats as his .345 batting average, and not his sensational throwing arm or his spectacular catches.

And the brain agreed with most baseball men as other top players in the National League though not necessarily in the same order. Brooklyn centrefielder Duke Snider was rated second at 1.075, Ed Mathews of Milwaukee Braves was 1.042 and Stan Musial of the Cardinals was 1.038. They batted .341, .290 and .330 respectively last year.

Panther Pitchers Will Be Back

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener Panthers of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League announced Tuesday that their three top pitchers last year, righthanders John Malovan and Preston Elkins and southpaw Bill Allen, will be back this season.

Maldovan, whose home is in Buffalo, posted a 9-3 won-and-lost record last year with an earned-run average of 2.34.

Elkins, 28-year-old native of Hershey, Pa., won seven and lost five last season.

St. Catharines-born Allen is 24. Last year he won six and lost two, chalking up an earned-run average of 2.68.

Canada Retains Pairs Crown Trails Badly in Other Events

REGINA (CP)—Canada retained the pairs title but was trailing badly in three other events to be decided today at the North American figure skating championships.

Frances Dafoe, blithe 25-year-old, and Norris Bowden, 26-year-old insurance agent, captured their second straight North American pairs title by defeating four other entries, three from the U.S.

Miss Dafoe and Bowden, both of Toronto, put on a dazzling display of split jumps, stag lifts, spread eagles and axle jumps, adding the variations which earned them their second world title at Vienna last month.

Tenley Albright, 19, of the Skating Club of Boston and 21-year-old Hayes Jenkins of Colorado Springs, Colo., were far ahead in the singles, the main events. Both are world champions and are defending North American honors won in 1953, the last year the championships were held.

Carol Jane Parchi, 17, of Ottawa, the sole Canadian entry in women's singles, was last on the basis of points after completion of the compulsory figures counting 60 per cent of possible points. Charlies Snelling, 18, of Toronto, Canada's senior champion, was third in men's singles.

Carmel and Edward Bodel of Orlando, Calif., were leading on completion of compulsory dances. Free skating in singles and the dance will be held tonight.

Miss Dafoe and Bowden received first from each of the six judges. They had a low mark of 8.4 of a possible 10 in contest of performance, half the pairs competition. For performance they received a range of 8.6 to 9.5.

Mr. and Mrs. Bodel received four firsts from the six judges.

Geraldine Fenton and Gordon Crossland, Oshawa, were fifth in the dance.

Gallinger Clears Way for Club

KITCHENER (CP) — Don Gallinger, manager of Kitchener Panthers baseball club of the Intercounty Baseball League's senior circuit, Tuesday cleared the way for operation of his team during the coming season.

He paid $3,000 of back debt the club owed the Kitchener park board over last year's activity.

Gordon Schlarsch, park board secretary, said Gallinger still owes $2,000. This will be paid on the basis of $100 a game in addition to the regular rental of $150 a game.

WINS YACHT RACE

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — The squatting little Hoot Mon of Miami a so-called "ugly duckling" yacht racing, outsailed its archrival, the Flaisterre, and 25 other boats to win the 284-mile St. Petersburg - Havana yacht race race Tuesday.

OBA to Meet In Cobourg

COBOURG (CP) — The Ontario Baseball Association will hold its annual meeting here March 18-19. Among issues to be discussed will be a demand by the Lakeshore League that the intermediate club be given a bye into the OBA-playoffs if the club, given a chance to affiliate with a local league, fails to do so.

NAMED PRESIDENT

CHATHAM (CP)—Wilf Johnston of West Lorne Monday night was named president of the Western Counties Baseball Association for the second year.

Lindsay's Injury Not Serious

DETROIT (CP)—Officials of the Detroit Red Wings said Tuesday Ted Lindsay, veteran leftwinger and team captain, may be back in action for Thursday's all-important game at Montreal.

Lindsay was injured in a collision with a Chicago defenceman in last Saturday's National Hockey League game, which Detroit won 3-2. Doctors said at first he would be out of action for 14 days.

It was feared at first that Lindsay had suffered torn shoulder muscles, but doctors reported the muscle was only bruised.

IT MAY BE YOUR LIVER

If life's not worth living it may be your liver

It's a fact! It takes up to two pints of liver bile each day to digest the food you eat. If this bile flow is sluggish, your food may just decay . . . give you indigestion, gas and constipation. You feel miserable and life has no zest. You've lost that happy days are here again! Don't suffer this way. Ask your druggist for Carter's Little Liver Pills today. They help bile flow freely. Get Little Liver Pills at once. Only 49¢ at your druggist.

GUEST SPEAKER

Guest speaker, Dr. R. Potter of Belleville, described Dr. McMullen as the greatest figure in the country doctor. In humorous and serious vein he related incidents that marked the doctor's long years of faithful service. He mentioned Dr. McMullen's prowess as a football player for the University of Toronto during his college days; Karl Austin of Wooler thanked the guest speaker.

The climax to the evening that will ever be remembered by Dr. McMullen came as a closing feature and colleague. Dr. G. G. Cronk of Belleville, presented him with a gold-headed cane on behalf of the Frankford doctor's family.

During the evening a friend, Henry McColl of Wooler, recalled one of the many experiences Dr. McMullen encountered at the time before snowplows had been introduced to country roads.

According to the story the popular country doctor arrived at Mr. McColl's front door soaked to the waist after his snowmobile had broken down on the road in a three-hour trip over the eight miles separating Wooler from Frankford. Dr. McMullen, still in cheery spirit, related Mr. McColl, phoned to the sick person's home to see if he was still needed then plunged back into the stormy night to answer the call.

Mr. McColl's story is only one of many known by residents of the community familiar with Dr. McMullen's loyalty to his patients and profession. In public stories that have declined the name of Dr. McMullen is the well-known legendary in the Frankford-Wooler district.

Dr. David McMullen was born March 15, 1883 near Petrolia, Ontario. He completed his elementary and high school education in Petrolia. Following this he attended medical school at Toronto. He then taught public-school from 1906 to 1910. During this period he was very active in football, getting his start with the Petrolia high school team. He continued with the Sarnia Imperials. He played with the Petrolia Hard Oils and in 1911 this team won the Ontario and Dominion championships.

ENTERED UNIVERSITY

In 1910 he entered the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Toronto. In 1913 he played interfaculty football and was a member of the Muloek Cup championship in 1914 he played with the U. of T. team which won the intercollegiate championship. He graduated in 1915 with his Medical Bachelor's degree and was among the 36 students to be qualified as a Lieutenant in the Canadian Army Medical Corps. However, due to an old duodenal injury he was ineligible for active service.

Following graduation he took post graduate work at the Riverdale isolation Hospital and received his certificate in communicable diseases. In 1916 he joined the employ of the International Nickel Company at Copper Cliff. Dr. McMullen was married September 1, 1916 to Miss Vera Lennan, Reg. N., an honor graduate of the Toronto Western Hospital. He remained with the International Nickel Company until 1921 at which time he moved to Frankford.

Since that time Dr. McMullen has been and still is a busy practitioner who has served on the community well. In the early days he made calls by horse and cutter, later, he acquired a snowmobile which enabled him to reach the more inaccessible places. He performed many a home delivery and has brought an estimated 5,000 babies into the world. He has been Medical Health Officer for the Township of Sidney and village of Frankford from 1921 to the present time. Since 1934 he has been company doctor for the Bata Shoe Company.

While in Copper Cliff Dr. McMullen was accepted into the Masonic Lodge and maintains his membership with that Lodge.

Dr. McMullen has two daughters. The eldest, Jean, attended Western University and is now married to Mr. William Rose) and resides in Belleville. Her younger, Monica, attended Queen's University, graduating with a B.A. in 1946 and obtaining her M.D.C.M. in 1952. She is married to Dr. M. Murdoch and lives in Kingston. Their mother passed away in 1930.

MANY PRESENTATIONS

Presentations from various organizations punctuated the proceedings which followed the generous serving of turkey with all the trimmings. Among them was an illumined plaque from the Women's Institute; an oil painting from the Bata Shoe Company presented by company vice-president Anthony Cekota, and a lounging chair, wrist watch and Masonic ring from the village of Frankford presented by Reeve George Montgomery. The oil painting from Bata is by Kousal, a leading painter of Canadian scenes.

Able Master of Ceremonies for the program was Herman Morrow, former Reeve. The address of welcome came from Mr. Smit, minister of the Wooler United Church. A toast to the doctors was proposed by Harold Haggerty of Wooler. Dr. Forrester of Belleville responded. A vote of thanks to the Women's Institute was proposed by Fred Ward, K.C., of Picton. Dr. J. Hartt introduced the guest speaker.

Providing the entertainment were Leila and Donna McCausland; Mrs. Lloyd Bell, piano soloist; Anna Redcliffe and Dianne Anderson, vocal duet.

The sponsoring committee included Mrs. Herman Morrow, Mrs. Herman Morrow, Mrs. Henry McColl, Mrs. Percy Gooding, Mrs. Robt. Redcliffe, and Mrs. Mac Anderson.

250 District Residents Honor Dr. David McMullen At 70th Birthday Celebration

TRENTON — (Special)—People, from all walks in life gathered at the Wooler United Church last night to pay tribute to Dr. David McMullen of Frankford who was honored at a special testimonial dinner after 34 years of service in the communities of Northumberland and Hastings Counties. The Sunday school rooms of the church were jammed to capacity with 250 colleagues, friends and patients in attendance.

Dr. McMullen's daughter, Dr. Monica Murdock, M.D., C.M., with the Cancer Research branch at Kingston, was seated beside her father and conveyed words of appreciation to the gathering for him. On Dr. McMullen's left was Nurse M. E. Silles who has worked with him for the past 24 years.

Among those who came to honor Dr. McMullen were prominent members of the Medical Association from Trenton and Belleville.

The members of the Women's Institute of Wooler who sponsored the dinner decided that the auspicious occasion should fall on the doctor's 70th birthday. It so happened that Dr. McMullen had gained his Bachelor of Medicine degree in 1915, 40 years earlier.

GUEST SPEAKER

Guest speaker, Dr. R. Potter of Belleville, described Dr. McMullen as the greatest figure in the country doctor. In humorous and serious vein he related incidents that marked the doctor's long years of faithful service. He mentioned Dr. McMullen's prowess as a football player for the University of Toronto during his college days; Karl Austin of Wooler thanked the guest speaker.

The climax to the evening that will ever be remembered by Dr. McMullen came as a closing feature and colleague. Dr. G. G. Cronk of Belleville, presented him with a gold-headed cane on behalf of the Frankford doctor's family.

During the evening a friend, Henry McColl of Wooler, recalled one of the many experiences Dr. McMullen encountered at the time before snowplows had been introduced to country roads.

According to the story the popular country doctor arrived at Mr. McColl's front door soaked to the waist after his snowmobile had broken down on the road in a three-hour trip over the eight miles separating Wooler from Frankford. Dr. McMullen, still in cheery spirit, related Mr. McColl, phoned to the sick person's home to see if he was still needed then plunged back into the stormy night to answer the call.

Mr. McColl's story is only one of many known by residents of the community familiar with Dr. McMullen's loyalty to his patients and profession. In public stories that have declined the name of Dr. McMullen is the well-known legendary in the Frankford-Wooler district.

Dr. David McMullen was born March 15, 1883 near Petrolia, Ontario. He completed his elementary and high school education in Petrolia. Following this he attended medical school at Toronto. April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — We can always do more than we realize. And when we meet emergencies we can usually handle them in skilled fashion that we anticipate. So reason things out, then don't hesitate to act.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Begin the day with a smile, and keep on smiling! There is always useless opposition for the congenial one. And don't be cynical!

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Here is an opportunity to advance some minor but useful interests. Be agreeable to those who deserve it — and even to those who don't. It may help them.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Even if you are planning to do things in your own way, at least consider others' suggestions or opinions. Yours may be a better way, but it may need improvement right now. Keep an open mind.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — This is a period for good will, aiming to assist others to a better understanding of the finer things in life. There are many who are worse off than we are — to whom we owe an humane obligation.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Think, then speak. Start the day with a prayer of gratitude, and don't be unduly disturbed when calm and poise are prize possessions. This can be a big day for a big you.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — There are more small things that can bring pleasure than one realizes. If you happen upon any of them don't pass even one by quickly. It's the "little" things in life— you know!

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Here is a time for deeper thought than most days. Display your best disposition, and you will reap top rewards—even though they don't come through immediately. Stress logic.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Distinctiveness, accuracy, and the knowledge of when and where to stop in both speeds and action, are "musts" on this generally good, but also mixed day. Start with prayer, and smile.

You learn today have more talents than you realize. Get busy, make them all work for you. You could have a remunerative hobby during spare hours. Never downgrade your possibilities or advantages. Don't mind irritations, the errors of others; stride forward in a hopeful, cheerful manner, and you will have an enjoyable life, doing much to help others even if you don't know it. Pray for guidance always, and believe in those prayers. Enjoy the best in everyday life about you.

Phony Doctor Hunted Spots On Nude Women

GLASGOW (AP)—A phony doctor who liked to examine women in the nude aroused little suspicion because people here "are so schooled to self-cividism," a crown attorney said.

"They are hesitant to challenge credentials," said J. W. Gibb, prosecuting Charles Fraser, 36, on 22 charges of indecent behavior.

Gibb said Fraser, carrying a shiny briefcase, went around calling housewives he was an inspector in the city health department. He asked women to undress so he could examine them for scarlet fever spots.

A great many did.

Fraser was held for sentencing by a higher court.

Truce Chief Ready to Place Blame on Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— The United Nations Palestine truce chief was reported ready to place full blame today on Israel for the recent Gaza battle in which 36 Egyptians and eight Israelis were killed.

Informed sources said the Canadian head of the truce supervisory organization, Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Ottawa, also would call on the UN to strengthen his group's machinery for its watch on the tense Arab-Israeli borders.

Burns was reported ready to give his personal report on the Gaza incident and his recommendations at a meeting this afternoon (3 p.m. EST) of the 11-member Security Council.

The Canadian general arrived in New York Tuesday after conducting a personal investigation of the Feb. 28 clash at Gaza, on the Egyptian — Israeli border. He brought with him a resolution adopted by Egyptian-Israeli mixed armistice commission holding Israel responsible for the incident.

FAVOR STRONG PATROLS

Western diplomats also have been busy working on a resolution which, it is reported, would condemn Israel and call for stronger border patrolling.

Israeli delegate Abba Eban was prepared to deny the accusations against his country and to counter with a charge that Egypt started the clash by sending a military unit across the border.

The UN observer of the Arab-Israeli truce, about 30 miles southeast of Tel Aviv, is Major Gen. Vagn Bennike, one of Toronto's most socially and professionally prominent lawyers, who is away in England on business.

Burns is the highest ranking Canadian in the UN Security Council. He is considered a military expert in the Canadian army.

TORONTO (CP)—Hours of fear which followed the kidnapping of a little girl for $25,000 and her father's wealth ended here with the youngster being freed almost on her doorstep, the ransom unpaid.

Jailed as the abductor of eight-year-old Alice Nesbitt, daughter of a millionaire barrister-stockbroker, was Philip Rodenga, 35, of Penetanguishene, Ont., himself the father of three children.

Police said they had obtained a full confession from the plumbing and heating contractor that he abducted Alice as she was walking home from school for lunch Wednesday and held her captive in his station wagon for four hours, stopping only to telephone ransom demands to her mother.

The case broke when the little girl, the kidnapper and a young ster unwittingly playing errand boy for the abductor turned up before the Nesbitt home in the suburban Forest Hill district.

MAN VANISHES

Before police staked out in the neighborhood realized that the little girl was Alice, or that the man who let her out of the station wagon was her abductor, he was gone.

Odessa was picked up at gunpoint about two miles south of the Nesbitt home by Constable Fred Tonolo. Police said he knew the Nesbitts, who have a summer home at Penetanguishene, and described him as being "up to his ears in debt."

The confession report was made by detective Ted Brook of the Forest Hills police.

Mother and daughter embraced when detectives escorted Alice to the doorstep. Tears flowing, the little girl cried: "I thought I was scared!"

Alice's father, W. Rankin Nesbitt, one of Toronto's most socially and professionally prominent lawyers, is away in England on business.

Alice, the youngest of two daughters and the only boy in the Nesbitt family, was enticed into a station wagon at noon as she walked home from Bishop Strachan School. The school is near the family's large stone Tudor house in the heart of Forest Hill Village.

Municipalities Shoulder More Education Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — The municipalities, not the provinces are shouldering an increasing share of the rising burden of education costs, the Canadian Teachers' Federation says.

Dr. Douglas Ayers, federation research director, estimated in a 130-page survey report just released that the proportion of provincial tax dollars allotted to education has shown virtually no change since 1945, but that the proportion of municipal expenditures on education has jumped to 35 per cent from 25.

George G. Crookery, federation secretary-treasurer, said at a news meeting on the report:

"It becomes increasingly clear that education costs on the municipal level are reaching a point where greater assistance must be obtained from the senior administrations, the provincial and federal governments."

The federation said the average Ontario municipality allotted 35 per cent of its 1953 expenditures to education, up from 30 per cent in 1946, but the proportion allocated by the province declined to 20 per cent from 22.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Although temperatures tonight will fall as low as they did Wednesday night in Ontario the effect will not be nearly as chilly, as the winds should be out of light or calm. Skies will be cloudy mainly clear, except for a few local snowsqualls, but late tonight they will become generally overcast in the southwest of the province. The thickening cloud will be followed by some snow or rain during Friday in southern Ontario. This poor weather is expected to result from the approach of a low pressure area located Thursday morning in Kansas.

NON-CONFIDENCE MOTION ADDED BY CCF PARTY

Opposition Demands Quick Aid for Jobless

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF motion of non-confidence in the government demanding immediate federal acceptance of responsibility for all able-bodied jobless has been added to the extended Commons debate on unemployment.

Erhart Regier (CCF — Burnaby-Coquitlam), presenting the motion Wednesday, said the government is able but unwilling to deal with the unemployment problem.

His motion was added as an amendment to a Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion during the fifth day of the debate which began March 1.

Today the House sets the debate aside for the budget speech since it began and resumes consideration of general legislation. With neither the Conservative or CCF motions voted on, the unemployment discussion could continue at a later date.

LONG-TERM PROGRAM

The CCF motion demanded a long-term program of public investment and tax policy designed to stimulate employment.

Mr. Regier said industry has no responsibility for what unemployment should not be blamed. The government alone was the only authority competent to deal with the situation.

Tom Reid (Conservative (SC — Lethbridge) repeated demands for immediate action to relieve the unemployment policies and said creation of new money is necessary to provide purchasing power to absorb the output of goods.

Gordon Graydon (PC — Charlotte) said social welfare services of the Liberal government have been overwhelmed by unemployment. The government was making an honest effort to achieve a fair distribution of the country's wealth.

He added that the government's records should recognize their responsibilities for care of unemployed instead of relying on Ottawa.

Seaway Project Contract Signed For AFL Workers

TORONTO (CP) — A master contract covering all AFL union workmen on the St. Lawrence seaway project was signed today by the union and contractors, it was announced today.

The contract was negotiated through Labor Relations Associates Inc. of the St. Lawrence Seaway. The association is composed of unions, contractors and Ontario Hydro officials.

Toronto wage rates were accepted by the AFL unions as a basis for rates on the project. They call for receiving one dollar an hour less than workmen employed by the Toronto Builders Exchange.

Placed in the various occupations, they will work a 44-hour week for time-and-four days and one eight-hour day.

To Buy Equipment

WINDSOR (CP) — City council Wednesday approved the spending of $4,000 to purchase equipment to fluoridate the city's water supply, as soon as Premier Frost makes public the preliminary study of the effects of the scheme.

Fluoridation of water has been supported by many medical authorities as a means of combating tooth decay.

Publication of Yalta Papers Fails to Still Controversy

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Publication of long-secret Yalta papers has failed to still the controversy that has raged for a decade over the wartime Big Three meeting.

The half-million-word American record of the historic session was made public Wednesday night by the state department. The publication was reported to have been over the objection of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, but the British government was informed in advance that the papers would be released.

State Secretary Dulles had said Tuesday that the 834 pages of documents would not be made public at this time.

The papers disclose Stalin had made a veiled threat of "ultimate" in taking Russia into the war against Japan unless President Roosevelt agreed to give certain concessions.

Roosevelt did agree, giving Russia new strategic positions in the northwest Pacific and a powerful hand in Manchuria.

The conference was held at a time when, with victory in sight in British-American combined chiefs of staff—who at this time would have known about plans for the use of the atomic bomb—had estimated that it would require 18 months more to defeat Japan.

LONG-TERM PROGRAM

The CCF motion demanded a long-term program of public investment and tax policy designed to stimulate employment.

An IJC announcement Wednesday night said the aims of the plan are to keep lake and riverside property holders, improve navigation on the lake, help power production on the river and to help provide other benefits on the lake that apply chiefly to the Canadian just above the seaway project.

The Canadian section of the commission, which regulates the use of boundary waters, worked out its plan at a three-day meeting in Montreal that ended Wednesday. It would approve the plan the commission approved tentatively in 1952.

Before it is put into effect, it will undergo public hearings starting April 18 at Rochester, N. Y., and April 14 at Toronto.

The commission's long-study of the problem arises partly from expressed fears of Lake Ontario shore property holders in Canada and in the United States that the damming of waters to provide 2,200,000 horsepower for the seaway below Lake Ontario would raise the lake level.

U.S. property owners about two years ago filed against the Canadian government suits aggregating $10,000,000 for damage alleged to have been caused by its navigation dam in the Galop Canal at the outlet. The dam has been removed and the Rapide Plat dam has been withdrawn.

Major part of the IJC plan for Lake Ontario is that fluctuations in its water level would be restrained by controlling its outlet in conjunction with controls on the seaway section. There is a series of regulating and power dams and canals extending to Montreal.

The lake level has fluctuated as much as 6.6 feet between high and low levels. The commission would hold this to four feet by keeping down top level and raising the low level mark.

The 1952 peak of 249.3 feet above sea level would not be higher than the maximum. The low of 242.7 feet in the 1930s would be held to 244.

Saskatchewan Members Trade 'Liar' Epithets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Saskatchewan cabinet minister and a member of the opposition called each other liars Wednesday at a meeting of the crown corporations committee.

Herman Danielson, Liberal member for Arm River, said a government counsel was following cabinet orders when he recommended a civil suit instead of criminal action against Harry Wilks, a former employee of the government-owned sodium sulphate plant. Wilks later was charged with impropriety in dealing with government funds.

Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines jumped to his feet and called Mr. Danielson "an unmitigated liar."

"He knows nothing about the law," he said, "and very little about anything else."

Mr. Danielson replied: "There are just as many liars in here and I'll prove it."

The committee moved on to other business after Opposition Leader A. N. McDonald said he would have an adjournment unless things cooled off.

PLANE KILLS CHAUFFEUR

NEW YORK (AP) — A 14-foot scaffolding plank fell like a gigantic spear from the roof of the Piccadilly Hotel Wednesday. It pierced the roof of a limousine and killed the chauffeur, George Neth, 34, the police department said. Neth, a married man, lived in Brooklyn. He was employed by Mrs. O. O. McIntyre, widow of the widely syndicated newspaper columnist.

Control Lake Ontario Level With Seaway Dams Is Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—A method of holding down property-destructive water levels in Lake Ontario and easing flood troubles on the St. Lawrence river will be one of the devices being proposed by the International Joint Commission.

The installation plan would go into effect with the start of operation of the St. Lawrence seaway-hydro project about three years from now.

An IJC announcement Wednesday night said the aims of the plan are to help lake and riverside property holders, improve navigation on the lake, help power production on the river and to help provide other benefits on the lake that apply chiefly to the Canadian just above the seaway project.

Finnish Tanker Will Not Enter Dangerous Waters

HELSINKI (AP) — Owners of the Finnish tanker Kuru, carrying 13,000 tons of jet fuel for Red China, refused today to reveal the ship's destination after it left Antwerp announcing that she would not be in Communist waters.

Authorities in Ceylon who said they have been in touch with the Arabia reported her heading for Singapore. The ship now is in the Indian ocean.

The seaman's union in Helsinki said Wednesday that the Arabia was fearful of being mined or embroiled in a war action, had refused to sail beyond Singapore.

Unconfirmed reports in Helsinki today said the Neste Shipping Co., owners of the Arabia, were negotiating to sell the kerosene cargo so that the tanker would decide the ship's destination.

Tax Conference Postponed 5 Days

OTTAWA (CP) — The two-day federal-provincial tax conference, called for April 21, has been postponed until April 26, it was learned today.

Prime Minister St. Laurent and provincial premiers originally agreed to meet on the new date, following letters by at least two premiers that it would be inconvenient for them to be here April 21.

WORLD CAPITALS ARE DISMAYED BY YALTA PAPERS

Seen Creating Tension, Damaging U.S. Prestige

BY REUTERS NEWS AGENCY

World capitals reacted with dismay today at the Washington disclosures on the wartime Yalta conference of President Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

Today's London morning newspapers listed the facts but presented no editorial opinion to a people who held Franklin D.-Roosevelt in the highest esteem.

While surprise at the behind-the-scenes deals and concessions to Russia was registered throughout Europe, the governments of Nationalist China and Japan emphasized their countries from anything agreed in the conference.

Political circles in London said the Yalta documents, published by the United States state department against the British government's advice, ignited the clearest evidence yet of mounting strain inside of Britain's Empire policy.

FEAR NEW TENSIONS

In Paris, the anti-communist evening paper France-Soir says publication of the documents "might lead to new tension in Anglo-American relations." It says: "Many people in Britain and France and Germany on the ratification of the Paris agreements."

The Soviet Union has been silent close to the colony's administration said privately the documents would "do incalculable harm to United States prestige in the Far East."

On Formosa Nationalist China's foreign minister George Yeh said in a prepared statement that "China was not represented at the Yalta conference. Nor was she consulted before or during the conferences or any of the understandings reached between the participating powers."

Russia's Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu said the provisions of the Yalta agreements giving the Kurile islands and southern Sakhalin to Russia "in which Japan was not party to" do not affect her entry into the Pacific war was not binding on Japan.

Rebel B.C. Chief Will Attend PC Conference

VANCOUVER (CP)—A meeting of national officers of the Progressive Conservative party in Ottawa next week will be attended by Deane Finlayson, rebel B.C. leader.

Mr. Finlayson said Wednesday he is confident all differences between the PC association and National Leader George Drew will be settled at the meeting.

"The aim is to have a united party affairs, federal and provincial, in B.C. to go into the next association's election campaign," he said. "I believe the national officers will see their way clear to do this."

Guided Missile Tests Started

OTTAWA (CP) — The air force has started tests of Canada-guided missiles at the $30,000,000 weapons range at Cold Lake, Alta., it was learned today.

A series of tests is being conducted, by scientists of the Defence Research Board and RCAF technical officers from the central experimental and proving establishment detachment at Cold Lake, 150 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Yalta Documents Just U.S. Version Churchill Says

Even Extracts in Press 'Disclose Serious Mistakes'

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP) — Britons were shocked and angered today by disclosures in the Yalta papers, especially President Roosevelt's suggestion that Hong Kong be turned over to China.

The foreign office and British press generally consider Washington's publication of the papers a diplomatic blunder. Many persons were boggling mad at some of the inside manoeuvring at the conference.

Disparaging references to Franklin D. Roosevelt as a politician could be heard among Britons who almost universally have revered the late American President as a great statesman, regardless of their political leanings.

Release of the Yalta papers may have an impact on the Churchill-Eden philosophy of diplomacy, too. Both are staunch advocates of informal confidential meetings of heads of state.

One of the first questions following publication of Yalta to the public was what effect this would have on Churchill's plans to get together again at the highest level.

When Churchill first proposed a top-level meeting he always stressed that the conference should be composed of a confident number of powers and persons possible, and that they should meet with a minimum of publicity and a still greater measure of privacy and secrecy.

There is no indication that publication of the papers will have any effect on Prime Minister Churchill's own political fortunes at home. Churchill went to Yalta as head of a wartime coalition government and is believed to have kept cabinet ministers informed.

FREED ON CHARGE

HAMILTON (CP)—Percy Smith, 37, Tuesday was acquitted of a charge of armed robbery after a preliminary hearing. Magistrate Beamer Hopkins said there was no evidence to connect the accused Smith to trial. He was alleged to have robbed a man of $3,200.

The prime minister did not deny making the remark. He claimed that the quotation as presented gave an erroneous impression.

"I do not at all accept the suggestion which was made," Churchill said, adding: "I think our record through the war and at this period will show with what deep interest we have striven for the welfare of Poland and conditions under which they were treated after the Yalta conference was over."

Victoria Dean Is New Bishop Of Kootenay

NELSON (CP) — Very Rev. Philip Rodger Beattie, 43-year-old dean of Victoria's Christ Church cathedral, will be consecrated May 1 as the new bishop of the Kootenay area.

Dean Beattie was elected here Wednesday from nine nominees for the diocese to succeed Bishop F. P. Clark, who died last December.

Dean Beattie was ordained to Victoria in mid-July, 1932. With only a brief break he served the Church of England, he is one of the youngest officials to be elected to the post of bishop in recent years.

Richard's Suspension Will Not Be Appealed by Club Says Selke

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank Selke, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, said today there will be no appeal from the suspension of Maurice (Rocket) Richard for the remainder of the National Hockey League season and the playoffs.

The suspension was ordered Wednesday by president Clarence Campbell of the NHL after hearing evidence on a fist and stick-swinging episode in a game in Boston Sunday. Campbell said his ruling could be appealed to the NHL board of governors.

Selke said in an interview that Senator Donat Raymond, president of the Canadiens, and Hector Dandurand, executive vice - president, were "annoyed and surprised" at Richard's conduct but they felt he was harmful to the hockey club.

However, the club felt there was no particular point in an appeal to the NHL board of governors, made up of representatives of the various clubs. In any appeal it would be a question of the severity of the judgment on another club. This was unfair to the clubs and to the president of the NHL.

Asked Why Yalta Papers Released, Angry Dulles Refuses to Answer

Dulles angrily refused to answer and stalked away when a reporter asked why he released the secret Yalta papers at this time.

Dulles flushed, took a couple of steps toward Clapper and thrust out his jaw.

"I'm not going to stand here at this time (to) make a statement about Canada and have a question like that shot at me."

With that, he stalked away toward his waiting plane.

An official who declined to permit use of his name said Wednesday night that the documents were released because at least one newspaper reporter already had obtained a copy. There also were reports of heavy pressure from Republican members of Congress.

Richard Sentenced to Jail

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice (Rocket) Richard was sentenced to jail for three months and fined $1,000 Wednesday for striking a linesman in the face with his hockey stick.

Richard, who was also suspended for the remainder of the National Hockey League season and the playoffs, was found guilty of assault causing bodily harm.

Magistrate Recorder Nicholas Hartland imposed the sentence after hearing evidence from Richard and linesman Hugh Mackell.

Richard was charged with striking Mackell in the face with his stick during a game between the Canadiens and Boston Bruins in the Montreal Forum March 13.

Richard was also fined $500 for striking linesman Cliff Thompson during the same game.

Richard's lawyer, Frank Common, said he would appeal the sentence.

Richard was suspended for the remainder of the season by NHL president Clarence Campbell after he had heard evidence on the incident.

Richard was also fined $500 by Campbell

CampbellfordMan Hurt as Plane Crashes in Field

A Campbellford pilot, J. M. Clarke, escaped with minor injuries Wednesday afternoon when his light plane struck the top of a tree as he came in for a landing at a field five miles east of the Trent Valley hydro town.

Clarke was knocked unconscious when the light private plane flipped as it struck the treetop, then landed on its wheels. Stanley Shelley, who lives nearby, ran to the scene just as Clarke recovered consciousness and climbed out. His light plane was wrecked.

The crash set off an alarm that alerted provincial police and Campbellford doctors who raced to the scene. Search and Rescue at Trenton Air Station was alerted and the search sent out a plane to scout the area.

When the plane crash was first reported it was thought that an aircraft may have been from Trenton as the crash scene was in an area where the airforce does considerable low flying.

MRS. JOHN McCABE
(Lindsay - Belleville)

Mrs. Catherine McCabe, 81 James Street, Lindsay, widow of John McCabe, died Wednesday, March 16th, in Lindsay hospital, after an illness of six weeks' duration. She was in her 72nd year.

The deceased was born in Lindsay, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Feenelly, and in 1904 was married to Mr. McCabe, coming to Lindsay five years ago.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Leah Hodges, Gaskin, Lindsay; Mrs. Thomas Hodges, Belleville; two sons, Edward and John of Toronto; a sister, Sister Mary Claudine of St. Joseph's Academy, of Lockport, N.Y.; a brother, Martin J. Feenelly, of Fort Arthur, and five grandchildren. She was predeceased by her husband, John McCabe, in 1946.

The deceased was a member of the Sacred Heart Church and was a lifelong member of St. Michael's Catholic Women's League.

Resting at the Funeral Residence, Lindsay, giving numerary evidence, said the Robertson home had been entirely furnished real hours on a Saturday night about two weeks ago during which time traffic was seen going to and from the house at a late hour. The officer produced sales slips showing the amount of beer and liquor sold to the Robertson household in a month's period.

In pronouncing sentence Magistrate Jackson said that the amount of liquor was more than would probably be used in the household in the period mentioned, but did not indicate bootlegging in a big way. A default of payment Robertson will serve two months in jail.

For illegal possession of liquor Robert Moore was assessed $213.50 fine and costs, while on a like charge John T. Carson, Stanley Street, was assessed $113.50 fine and costs.

On a charge of "joyriding," John Wilson was fined $15 and $15 costs, or 21 days in jail.

Belleville Rink Makes Good Showing at Spiel

If this city had a curling rink they would have been present in Ontario bonspiels, and other events, who would not need to take a back seat from any of the curlers men in the province.

On Wednesday a rink composed of Claude D. Tice, lead; Bob Farquharson, second; Bill Gault, vice-skip, and Jack McArthur, skip, threw a score into three good ones in the Belleville Curling Club spiel, that will continue until Saturday, the remainder of all rinks coming in and staying for the entire spiel, sixteen rinks having entered each day for two days, from which the two top rinks and the two consolation rinks come back on Saturday to engage in the final matches for the beautiful prize offered, donated by the Whig Standard trophy, the primary cup of the spiel. Prizes are also offered for each day's play at all rinks win its way into the finals each day must win the three games played. If the rink does not win three it must win the next two to qualify for the consolation playoffs on Saturday.

The Belleville rink got away on the right foot in the opening of the first game against the Gananoque entry skipped by R. E. Cliff by a 12-7 score, but against Pete Barnet, of Kingston, who eventually went on to win three games the Belleville rink was four up at the end of the seventh end, but the roof fell in in the eighth, when the Kingston rink tacked up a big five end and lost 10-9. In the third game the locals met another Kingston rink.

The Belleville players were handicapped in that they were in against the best in the eastern part of the province, who have been curling all winter, so they think curling 30 ends without getting in condition to do it is easy, try it some time. Practice is an absolute essential in curling and the locals regretted the inability with their good play.

All the rinks had by all. There is no finer comradeship in any sport than curling and it is to be hoped that Belleville will soon be able to join the great fraternity of curlers in the province by having a new and modern curling rink.

Triplet Heifers Born to Cow Near Frankford

Said to be extremely rare in bovine circles, the birth of triplet calves, all heifers, is reported by a Frankford district farmer.

James Bird, R.R. 3, Frankford, 4th concession of Sidney township reported a Holstein cow among his herd of milkers gave birth to the triplet heifers about a month ago. Mr. Bird is a member of the Quinte District Cattle Breeders' Association and the cow which gave birth to the triplets was artificially inseminated.

Dr. J. M. McLean, manager of the association said that triplet heifer calves were extremely rare. The fact that the mother of the triplet calves was artificially inseminated should have no bearing, he said.

Red Cross Drive Near Objective Of $12,500

Belleville's Red Cross campaign appears to be nearing its objective of $12,500.

The funds drive of the local association, which started Tuesday, now is only $1,000 short of the final goal."

This morning at noon a definite figure could be quoted on campaign results, chairman of the drive, J. Gordon Platt, optimistic that it would reach a successful conclusion.

"As far as our figures are concerned we are approaching $12,000," he said.

"And I might add how grateful the local association is for the work of the volunteer canvassers despite having to contend with inclement weather conditions."

Tuesday night a curtain of heavy rain fell on the campaign's opening of the campaign. However, a special truck to lend moral support, about 300 volunteers canvassed the residential area of the city.

They carried on and produced upwards of $5,000 on Blitz Night on door-to-door canvassing," Mr. Grills said.

Earlier in the day some forty workers covered the business section. Their donations ranged in cash and money still is being received at campaign headquarters at Bridge and Coleman streets today.

To anyone who was missed in the canvass can still make a donation by telephoning campaign headquarters (phone 2171) and we'll have it picked up. Or they can deposit it at any bank. Receipts will be mailed out to them" Mr. Grills said.

"If everyone contributes whom we hope will contribute, we feel confident that Belleville will reach its objective of $12,500.

"The work of the canvassers and the response they received make proof of the community spirit of Belleville," Mr. Grills concluded.

Accused Given Benefit of Doubt In Tire Case

An Amelasburg man, Holmes Burton Swetnell, was acquitted on a charge of receiving stolen property in county magistrate's court this morning before Magistrate R. C. Jackson of Madoc.

Evidence in the case had been heard previous with the case being laid over until today for judgment.

The charge against the Amelasburg man was laid by provincial police following the theft of tires by Cecil Carroll of Stenbro, who reported the tires to Swetnell. The two truck tires valued at $345 had fallen from a highway transport and were picked up by Carroll. Carroll was charged with theft in the matter and was given two years suspended sentence.

In dismissing the charge against Swetnell Magistrate Jackson said definitely some doubt that the accused man knew the tires were stolen, but that he accordingly giving him the benefit of the doubt.

Police Blotter

Three car radios from cars stored at a building at the Belleville fair grounds were reported to the Belleville Police Court Company to have been stolen. The theft was discovered yesterday but the actual date of the disappearance of the radios was not known. Thieves entered the building through a window.

Last C.N.E. week at the rear of Sharland's service station on Dundas street a car was broken into the night. Police said the hasp was found broken from the door but it was not known at present time if anything was taken.

Earlier in the week complained to police that her nine-year-old son had been badly frightened by a man who had lured the boy from a scout cub meeting at Bridge Street United church and then closed doors and no details were released.

Later controller Ford Brand urged immediate civic priority for a $5,000,000 public works program at the city's works committee meeting. He said Premier Frost had committed his government to pay 50 per cent of the cost as an unemployment relief project.

The program will have to be approved by city council.

Canadian Wheat Acreage to Be Sharply Reduced

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian farmers have reported they intend to reduce their 1955 wheat acreage by 873,600 acres to a 16-year low of 23,583,300 acres.

If these intentions are carried out, it would be the third consecutive drop in wheat acreage.

Last year farmers planted 24,457,200 acres to wheat but bad weather and rust reduced production to less than 300,000,000 bushels from the near-record 614,000,000 bushels in 1953. In 1953, farmers planted 24,512,600 acres to wheat and 25,985,000 in 1952.

Mother, Children Burned to Death

BRIDGEPORT, N. Y. (AP)—A mother and her three children were burned to death Wednesday night when fire, believed to have started in the kitchen, wrecked their house. The husband and father was burned critically.

Bernard Brockway, about 42, struggled with firemen as they pulled him from a second-story window. "I tried to help them but I couldn't," he sobbed, as he was led to an ambulance.

The dead were Mrs. Clara Brockway, 37; her daughter Elaine, 9, and her two sons Donald, 11, and James, 15.

Frost Meets Board

TORONTO (CP)—Board of control Wednesday had a no-board conference with Premier Frost of Ontario on unemployment relief, but the meeting was held behind closed doors and no details were released.

Later controller Ford Brand urged immediate civic priority for a $5,000,000 public works program.

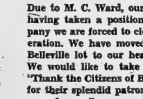
Railways Cannot Afford to Run Losing Services



CHICAGO (AP) — A Canadian rail executive said yesterday "railways can no longer afford to operate services that do not pay."

N. R. Crump, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, told members of the American Railway Engineering Association the roads may "have to upgrade some services in order to retain or regain profitable traffic."

But if they can't, he said, they had best let the services go to competitors and concentrate on "high density" traffic.

He advocated a policy of railroads substituting their own trucks and buses where needed "to protect the interests of the railway as a low-cost carrier."

Jelke Jury Hears Pat Ward Name Her Customers

NEW YORK (AP)—Names of well-paying customers for Pat Ward's charms are popping out of two address books as the ex-call girl, at the Mickey Jelke trial, bares the bedroom secrets of her love-for-sale career.

She already has named a score of men she says had relations with her, paying anywhere from $50 to $200 apiece. And she was called back to the witness stand today to reveal more names in the state's case against the 25-year-old sheepmargarine heir.

The 31-year-old Miss Ward spent her second day on the stand Wednesday testifying against Jelke, charged with recruiting her for prostitution.

The prosecution is using a big black leather book it identified as Jelke's telephone book, and a small red leather book it identified as Pat's.

Pat testified she and Jelke compiled the directories when he allegedly was starting her out in the vice trade in 1951 and 1952.

Not all the men whose names were read from the books were customers, Pat said. Some were only listed as prospects, and she knew them.

She gave more details of her testimony that Jelke, with whom she lived for a time, co-operated as a procurer and even gave her the key to his apartment to entertain men who had no other place to take her. Manhattan hotel rooms and other rooms, Pat said, sometimes were used as trysting places.

Among the men Pat named were Jack Sullivan, Harry Odzer, Peter Abbott, Max Ausnit, Fred Freed, Frank Levin, Sidney Mazne, Lou Smith, Carl Shapiro, Sid Milon, Jack McGregor and Max Ketjper. She did not identify any of these men beyond their names.

No Cash Relief Labor Minister Tells Delegation

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Daley Wednesday told a large delegation of unemployed workers that money collected by the provincial government comes from the taxpayers and "if you spend it on cash relief you can't spend it to try to create jobs in a public works program."

The minister said he was sorry for the fellow who is suffering in the meantime and would discuss with the government means to help these cases.

"We have been doing everything we could," he said.

Somewhat of Record

TORONTO (CP) — A new Vis-Count passenger aircraft, purchased by Trans-Canada Air Lines from a British firm, flew from Winnipeg to Toronto in two hours and 36 minutes Wednesday night.

Dennis Barclay, TCA regional public relations director, said the time was "somewhat of a record" for the route.

TCA, first airline in North America to fly the Viscount, has bought 30 of the propeller-turbine planes.

Therapy treatment is of vital importance to the crippled child. To ensure all of Ontario's crippled children receiving the treatment they require, the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, in association with more than 300 service clubs, is conducting its annual Easter Seal Campaign, which lasts until April 30 and has an objective of $550,000. In Belleville the campaign is sponsored by the Rotary Club.

Province's Service Clubs Linked in Easter Seals Campaign

Like units of a province-wide army dedicated to a never-ending war for the right of every crippled child to have treatment and a chance of self-dependence, there are groups of men in more than 200 Ontario communities who carry out a year-round voluntary program of helping others.

These men are the members of the service clubs that are the foundation of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. Belleville Rotary is conducting the campaign here. Every year these service clubs conduct the Easter Seal Campaign, through which the services provided for the more than 9,000 handicapped youngsters, including surgery, therapy, appliances, special schooling and training, summer camp vacations. The revenues from their campaigns are divided equally with the Society, one-half retained for local needs in the individual club's area, the rest used by the Society for the services it provides for the club's beneficiaries, or for children not aided directly by the clubs.

Locally, an individual club undertakes quite a program. Its members visit many prospective children and report to the Society, the club assumes a direct duty in seeing that every handicapped child is brought to the attention of the health officials and the Society. The club assumes the responsibility for treatment provided locally, plus provision of appliances such as braces or splints.

If a child requires special treatment, such as surgery, at a distant hospital, the club's transport committee arranges transportation for the youngster to that hospital. When, each year, local children are selected for a summer vacation at one of the Society's five specially equipped camps, the club transports them to and from camp. It has many extra activities, usually such as seeing that the boy or girl has the clothing needed at camp and so on.

Railroad Files Suit Against Two Unions

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Louisville and Nashville Railroad filed suit Wednesday against two groups of unions for a total of $1,290,000 for alleged damages resulting from a strike which began Monday.

Action was taken in Jefferson circuit court shortly after the railroad cancelled all of the approximately 60 passenger trains on its 14-state line. The company, however, said freight operations were continuing at "30 to 75 per cent of normal."

Earlier in the day, the L and N. lost a court battle to force train crews to cross picket lines set up by 25,000 striking non-operating employees of the railroad.

Circuit Judge Stuart E. Lampe said it was a "mistake" on his part Tuesday in granting a temporary order directing operating crafts to cross the picket lines. The railroad said it will appeal the decision.

THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1955

CLARIFICATION IS NEEDED

Attorney General Dana Porter has introduced in the Ontario Legislature 57 revisions and amendments to the Ontario Municipal Act.

Among these amendments is a section which would permit municipalities, without consent of the electors, to borrow money for purchase of land for flood control, parking lots, industrial sites, civil defence purposes, primary schools, public libraries and parks set up under agreement with another municipality.

There was a day when the consent of taxpayers had to be obtained before a municipal body could borrow money for practically any capital expenditure.

Today we are approaching a situation when municipal councils may borrow money for almost any project without receiving the approval of the taxpayers.

It was unquestionably true that, in the past, necessary and desirable projects were blocked by ratepayers who refused to recognize the need.

That, however, does not mean that there are no matters on which ratepayers should be given the opportunity to express an opinion before they are saddled with a debt which will run well into the term of office of the council which authorizes it.

The list of projects which the Ontario Government now plans to empower municipal councils to undertake without a vote of the people would appear to include some regarding which ratepayers should have a direct vote.

Actually, though, the decision in such matters rarely, if ever, rests with municipal councils. The Ontario Municipal Board is the body which decides whether a vote of the people should be taken. One of the first reasons for applications to the Municipal Board for approval at the polls necessary was a decision that the Municipal Board should have the right to approve construction of schools without a vote. There was a sound reason for this decision. There have been times in the past when penny-pinching ratepayers have threatened to deprive children of their right to an education, by refusing to loosen their purse-strings. Even when beginning of public school areas in which the Municipal Board makes the decision regarding votes by ratepayers with respect to a wide variety of projects. Where common construction work is involved, as is generally the case, the Board's approval is required for two different by-laws, a construction by-law authorizing the municipality to proceed with the project and then, after it is completed, a debenture by-law authorizing the issue of debentures to pay for the work.

Although the report on the proposed amendments to the Municipal Act did not make the point clear, it would appear likely that the Municipal Board will exercise supervision over borrowing money for the purchase of land and that it will be possible to borrow money without a vote of the people only when the Municipal Board approves.

The Municipal Board has thus become the supreme arbiter in the field of capital expenditures by municipalities. This is a situation not without its advantages. It safeguards the ratepayers of every municipality in Ontario from spendthrift councils, while at the same time preventing these ratepayers from refusing to provide the funds for projects which are absolutely essential to the welfare of the municipality. But, if the situation has advantages, it also has disadvantages and they are grave. Today no municipal council and no municipal official, can say with any certainty just what project can be undertaken without a vote of the people. This uncertainty often greatly hampers councils in their work.

Would it not be possible to divide the various types of projects commonly undertaken by municipalities into three classes—those for which no vote of the ratepayers is required; those for which a vote may be ordered by the Municipal Board; and, thirdly, those for which a vote is always required? Such a classification, based on the nature of the project and the amount to be spent, would greatly clarify the situation. Moreover, it would tend to eliminate long delays sometimes felt by ratepayers when an important project is undertaken without a vote being taken.

HOME-MAID!

Mrs. Francis Love, a middle-aged London housewife, wrote to the London Evening Star that she had the most "ideal husband" in Britain, because:

1. He gives her breakfast in bed before going to work.
2. He lights the fires daily and polishes the floors.
3. He peels the potatoes, cooks dinner if she is away, and does the shopping.
4. He washes the dishes and the family clothes.

In Canada, Britain's "ideal husband" would be called a maid.

With rayon, nylon, dacron, teryiene, vinyl and polythylene plastics dominating the textile industry you can sell an old-fashioned dresser by his knowledge of wool, cotton and linen.

The return of Penticton V's from the European version of the world hockey championships prompts us to extend some non-political, non-diplomatic congratulations. Hurray!

ST. PATRICK

Well, here's St. Patrick's Day
Again,
When prayers are said in churches dim
And streets are filled with marching men
To honor and remember him.

A servant of the Lord was he,
A humble and a gentle heart,
Who never dreamed a day would be
To keep his memory set apart.

We come with birth, with death . . .
. . . we go.

But with earth's final duty done
Even St. Patrick couldn't know
How far his journey here . . .
would run.

. . . He served with faith and courage strong.
With joy obeyed his Maker's will.
Though dead he's been for ages long
The good saint leads his followers still.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 17th., 1935

Wallace H. Robb has received at Abbey Dawn, Kingston, per express, two wild geese, male and female—from Jack Miner's sanctuary.

Mayor Geo. O. Tice is back on the job at the city hall after an absence of nearly two days through illness. Ald. T. Y. Wills acted as deputy mayor during the mayor's absence.

Mr. Arthur Looker, late of Montreal, has come to this city to reside.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Miller, Cedar Street, an enjoyable euchre party was held under the auspices of Belleville Independent Order of Foresters. The prize winners were: ladies first, Mrs. Fox; second, Mrs. Horrigan; third, Mrs. Eugene Donnelly; men first, Mr. Fox; second, Capt. Strachan; third, W. J. Wood. The rooms were very attractively decorated in keeping with St. Patrick's Day and the supper was highly enjoyable.

The four public schools and the collegiate institute will resume on Monday this evening session at estimated cost of $6,400. This announcement was made by Mr. Ketcheson, chairman of the Board of Education by Charles H. Eyre, the chairman of the committee on repairs.

March 17th., 1925

In the absence of Mayor W. C. Mikel the chair was occupied by Ald. A. Robinson at a meeting of the city council last evening. The tender of A. S. Large for the market tolls this year was accepted. A petition signed by 214 citizens asking that the old burying ground on Dundas Street be made a public park was presented. As the council is considering purchasing the property to be used as a tourist camp the petition was filed. Present at the meeting were the following aldermen: G. W. Morton, C. J. Foster, Ald. A. Graham, Phil. Harrison, A. H. Ketcheson, Robert Goudy, J. J. C. Manley, W. H. Patterson, W. J. Parrish, A. Robinson, G. A. Button and R. A. Trevithick.

Mr. R. D. Arnott was home from Osgoode Hall Law School, Toronto, to spend the week - end.

Mr. and Mrs. M. McMullen, Hillside Street, have left to spend a few weeks at Sweetburg.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A HORSE RACE

A horse race is but a modification of the human race. It has all of its characteristics. I am of the opinion that the horses enjoy the contests of speed over their riders do. But the maddest of all of the of horse racing are the ones who ride them.

For the last half mile or so there is a contest between the boy who can yell the loudest and the other boy. You see antics that only a close horse race can produce.

About once a year I witness a horse race. I like any kind of athletic contest or sporting event. All except those in which cruelty is involved, like a bull fight. But I can see no excuse for either.

But in a horse race so much enters into the event. First, its the blood of the horse, his pedigree and his past performances. Then there is the skill of the jockey who rides the horse. To see the contestants coming on to the field for the race is an inspiring sight—beautiful horses, nicely trained. Difficult to take a pick from the lot. But when the race is on, its blood, experience and courage that wins! The same in the human race as the horse race!

Blood, speed, endurance, courage—how essential in a horse, but just as essential in a man. How could learn from the training of a horse. Horses are bred to win! How few of the human race are thus trained! We would have few mess-age journals if our young sters got the same training as the young horse.

We can all learn something to our gain, no matter where we may go, if we will but put our minds to work and use our eyesight intelligently and alertly. Even the horse race can teach us a great deal!

Strength for the Day

PASS ON SPIRITUAL GIFTS

In writing to the Corinthian, Paul spoke of God who comforts us in order that we may be able to comfort others.

Most of us would look upon comfort as an end in itself. When we receive it, we are glad. It's our possession. Not so, says St. Paul. It is given you in order that something greater than your comfort may be achieved. To be sure your comfort is important, but so is the comfort of others. God comes to us that we as a great friend and brings quietness and peace to the troubled mind. But then we have heard this sweet music of God's abiding love, we are to sound it and sing it out to the comfort of others.

If we try to hoard spiritual treasure, a mysterious moth and rust soon corrupt it and take it away. Our comfort must be a means to helping other people toward comfort. Those who have suffered much know how to help those who are now suffering. We are to receive God's comfort we clutch it to our breasts and keep it just for ourselves, its sweetness turns to bitterness and we find ourselves at last suffering from the ailment of an old vice.

In the living world, things grow by the division of cells. The growth is in the spiritual world. Spiritual joys deepen and their quality become more significant only when we pass them on with eager hands to others.

Country Needs Bill of Rights

(MacLean's Magazine)

We hold to the belief that this country badly needs a bill of rights and that parliament which up to now has been extraordinarily timid in the matter should assert itself without delay.

At the moment there is no federal law that plainly states the rights and liberties of Canadians. As a result, whenever a provincial government encroaches on rights that most people consider inalienable, Ottawa can escape the blame. If a provincial premier, for example, abridges the common freedoms of religion and of expression in his province, the federal government can wash its hands of the whole thing and look smug.

We strongly suspect that this is one of the chief reasons why we haven't got these fundamental guarantees. The federal power does not exist to disallow provincial laws but Ottawa hesitates to use this power in obvious reasons of political timidity.

Well, we think that parliament could, and should, accept responsibility as this timidity would work both ways—that a provincial oppressive government would find it equally alarming to act or not to act in the face of the clear infringing of Jehovah's Witnesses in Quebec.

If we had a bill of rights the federal authorities would have its defend their civil liberties. The burden of proof and the spotlight of publicity would be on them and that's where it ought to be.

The commonest argument against a Canadian bill of rights is that it would restrict three respected members of parliament —from three major political parties—believe that Mr. Diefenbaker has for years been urging a simple bill of rights. The critics say that such an act would transfer power from parliament itself, let alone the provinces, to the courts. Two provinces, Mr. Diefenbaker's and Saskatchewan, have already enacted bills of rights. Premier Douglas Campbell of Saskatchewan, a Liberal, has declared that this objection can be met by a draft amendment to the British North America Act. The critics claim that such an amendment would limit provincial rights and that the provinces would have to consent to a request for this amendment by the British parliament. This would involve considerable delay. Duplessis to petition Westminster to make his own padlock law unconstitutional—and he didn't.

We admit these high obstacles but we still think Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal ought to be on the statute books. Granted that parliament is sovereign and cannot, if it pleases, be, can overrule it. But at least it will mean that the parliament in the position of having to defend itself whenever there's a clear and flagrant encroachment or attack on his basic human rights.

Last March Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal ought to be on the statute books. Granted that parliament is sovereign and cannot, if it pleases, be, can overrule it. But at least it will mean that the parliament in the position of having to defend itself whenever there's a clear and flagrant encroachment or attack on his basic human rights.

Last March Mr. Diefenbaker introduced his Canadian Bill of Rights and Citizens' Security Measures Act. Perhaps parliament doesn't really intend it to be used, months later we are still waiting for a single into jail without charge and bold them incommunicado for several weeks. Or let's look at the Postwar Emergency Powers Act. Perhaps parliament doesn't really intend to use this law to forbid Canadians of Japanese origin from returning to British Columbia where they had been deprived of their property.

It we had had a bill of rights the federal government might still have the legal authority to do these things. But at least it would have had to explain why it took such action in the face of the intent of parliament as expressed in a declaration of rights.

As for the infringement of civil liberties by the provinces, Ottawa doesn't need a constitutional amendment to act. The federal Ottawa needs is a little more courage.

They Confess Authorship

(Philadelphia Inquirer)

The United States information agency recently came up with this story from a Czechoslovak reporter:

As professor of literature asked a student who wrote "War and Peace," one of Tolstoy's greatest novels.

"I don't know," the student replied nervously, "but I can assure you I didn't."

The professor told a friend about the student's reply. The friend remarked, "Well, I didn't write it, either."

To a member of the secret police the professor related the story about both the student and the friend. The secret policeman merely jotted down the names and addresses of the student and the friend.

A few days later the professor got a telephone call from the police official:

"Don't worry about that problem or your friend. We arrested them both yesterday and they confessed."

Low Autos Are Hazard

(Sudbury Star)

Automobile design which puts the emphasis on low-slung vehicles, with a resulting limited vision on the part of the driver, is now being blamed as an important factor in the rising traffic accident toll.

Writing in the magazine, Civil Engineering, C. J. Posey, chairman of civil engineering at the University of Iowa, says that the height of the driver's line of sight has been steadily lowered. Consequently,

For example, the drivers of two model "T" Fords, approaching the intersection of streets with a radius of 2,000 feet, will see each other when still 330 feet apart. Two approaching low-slung models, with lines of sight only 48 inches above the pavement and the car tops not more than eight inches high, are given a "sighting" distance for the driver of 280 feet.

The tremendous increase in danger of collision which is here represented that the model "T" Ford never reached more than 45 miles an hour in open traffic modern cars are likely to be driving upwards of 60 miles an hour.

Highway engineers in the United States follow modern specifications which say that an approaching car at the sight distance will not fall into certain minimum. But, unfortunately, the driver's overall height in motor vehicle design dictates the safety factors incorporated by the highway engineers.

Mr. Posey asserts that the accident rate for trucks is about one-fourth that of passenger cars. He suggests that the seat height for trucks could be the reason for the difference because the latter has proved perspective.

This is also said to be the reason that bus drivers and transport truck drivers are able to move their huge vehicles at high speed ways with a minimum of accidents. Well, we think that parking vehicles with precision even though they do not have the flexibility to manoeuvre in the possession of the car driver.

The rising tide of highway traffic accidents is opening up many avenues of study that have not previously been investigated by those interested in highway safety.

Will Holiday In South USSR

(Christian Science Monitor)

Associate Judge William O Douglas of the Supreme Court of the United States has a way of doing things well fall at any age. Ago he climbed the mountains of Iran. Some years ago the Himalayas. Last March he and some companions hiking the 189 miles along the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

This summer he plans to drive through the Soviet Republics, republics of Armenia, Azerbaijan, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Russia, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan.

He isn't going as a government delegate, a lecturer, a writer or a businessman. He is going as Justice Douglas. Perhaps accompanied by another walker, Robert F. Kennedy, counsel to the Senate Government operations committee.

Mr. Justice Douglas hasn't been very popular with the communists. They called him chief of a "gang of spies" when he was ramming his views on individual rights down their throats. Now he is returned any favor. Yet the visa has been granted.

Izvestia and Pravda, Inc., will have to get busy and assign propaganda writers to make something out of the record of this visitor:

Mr. Douglas is a journalist who worked his way through college by selling fruit with migrant laborers.

Wall Street tool who, as chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission, back in 1936 raised a ruckus over stock exchange ethics.

A prominent nonconformist who will go on the bench of America's highest legal body.

For the propaganda mills this record will be grantie.

Meanwhile Mr. Justice Douglas and his companions will drive along the hot, dusty roads of Azerbaijan, looking for signs of evidence of Soviet strength or weakness but for the mountains and the steppe and the Caucasus. And for people.

The visiting writer will not know what the Supreme Court is all about, nor the Constitution over which it broods.

They may not even know what a nonconformist is. But through the fine sense that slavery quite sharpens they may feel that here are the kind of people whom tyrants cannot breed. The kind of men who love the earth as though they own it, with their hands in their pockets and grins on their faces.

Pawning One's Future

Instalment buying has almost eliminated pawnshops in England. A Yorkshire man says foolish people pawn their future instead of their clothes. Even in the Yorkshire dialect, there's something to what the man says.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

AS WELL CONK YOUR NO GGIN' WITH A MALLET

Dr. Brady

Acetyl salicylic acid, acetanilid, barbiturate taken straight or in combinations of two or more drugs under a dizzying trade name have no remedial value in any illness that purports to be called a "cold". These drugs merely dull the victim's consciousness of illness, discomfort, ache or pain or lull natural anxiety about health and safety for a few hours.

Whisky has no more medicinal value in such illness than it has in anaesthetic or surgical shock.

Alcohol, like acetanilid, barbiturates and the numerous nostrums containing one or more of these drugs, make the victim "feel better." In the ordinary sense of the words—actually it means the victim doesn't sense as well as he should, because he is more or less doped.

That is true whether the victim is just a poor soul who drops into the corner drugstore and treats himself to a snifter of acetanilid at the soda fountain or a smart client of the well known American housewife who knows how to use the little glass stick when one of the children comes down with something, telephone the trick specialist what the temperature is, and feed the unfortunate child pills as ordered by the long distance diagnostician who doesn't like to get off his lachiai, tuberculosis or flu with a barber coat to visit a sick child, as long as the child's parents can be strung along with the "cold" delusion.

About to release the forgoing without further comment I submitted it to my editor and occasional ghost writer, who observed that although it might be all right for old readers, new readers might get an impression that this column is conducted by a—

All right, all right, I'm telling you what I believe is the truth. If I had any such indisposition or illness I'd go to bed for a day or just sit around, but certainly I would not take any of the drugs mentioned, because we have already said, none of them has any medicinal value.

Isn't that clear enough, stupid?

Philosophy Is No Help

(Portland Oregonian)

The man who kneels beside a busy highway can count the passing cars—at least one every second, 3,6000 of them in an hour. And each and every one of them has four tires, 14,400 tires—14,404 counting his own—and his 14,404th tire, his the only flat one in the lot.

If he heard, the man who kneels beside the highway can turn on his car radio, and perhaps pick up the calm words of a cheery philosopher who could explain that his plight is neither an exceptional one nor important in the grand range view.

Tires go flat every day of the year on every manner of road and highway. Thousands of others among the nation'sh 70,000,000 motorists are perhaps kneeling simultaneously along thousands of roadsides. And every year, it is a fact, there are fewer and fewer flat tires as science works to solve the problem it created in the pneumatic tube age of rubber.

But it is a fact, too, that such philosophizing will fail at any of his tire for the man by the side of the road.

Giving Kick To Tobacco

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

The inveterate pipe smoker thinks that cigaret smoking is sissy stuff. He scorns cigaret smokes fit for women only, and even doctors his own tobacco so that he can get more kick in it than the manufacturer put. North. Carolina farmer named Walter Dale Hodges has made an attempt for modern tobacco thus: Today's pipe is overrated. They weakened all types of tobacco so ladies could learn to smoke. Still they make a mild pipe tobacco, head dust. Take a tea f and simmer it with heat. Then keep on going until you've got a tobacco that packs a punch. Then weigh it out in the right amount in the right range view.

Hodges is for real. He's been at it a few days, to crush it is a plug. To soak the bowl of his pipe in rum instead. Place the end of a match in the mouthpiece, pour the rum in the bowl and leave it there overnight.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It may impress some of the regular readers of this small and permanbulant little daily column to learn that I have been present, in the spring of 1954, at the San Francisco Conference when the charter was written and the United Nations were born. And this writer was thought to have let down, if not betrayed, his newspaper because, after about ten days of the conference, I gave up conclusion that whatever good the United Nations might do, it was going to be a reward-demanding platform and a giant soundingboard for communist propaganda. As early as 1945, with the war not yet ended, the Russians eagerly scampered up onto the band wagon and the long procession of tub-thumping fruit with migrant laborers.

Well Street tool who, as chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission, back in 1936 raised a ruckus over stock exchange ethics.

saloons about ten oclock at night. It is true Molotov, that autocratic-jawed mapper of invective, did not employ such words as "the street warmongers at the San Francisco conference," but they were every evidence, in what was said, that should have warned us to start looking, right then, for a special breed of brawler amongst the emissaries from Russia, and to the commies, and find, in English, French, German, Italian and Spanish, and not Russian, the vocabulary suited to the occasion.

Received such a welcome, to best describe both the personalities and opposite the Russians in the United Nations, we have behavior over the past ten years. Whenever you see a Russian, or a gentleman happens to be passing a street brawl, with loud, abusive language profaning the air; when he finds himself inadvertently at the end of a party just as a story of ungentlest characters comes reeling out; or is collared down at the docks by a bunch of the boys, what should he do? Should he say nuffink or run away?

As a rule he does.

'Purchasing, Control of Stores' Interesting Address at W.H.A.

Mr. L. Burfoot, purchasing agent for the Belleville General Hospital, spoke to the members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary at their March meeting on the subject of "Purchasing and Control of Stores."

Prior to Mr. Burfoot's instructive talk, a business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. J. Lemoxe Smith, at which time encouraging reports of the Coffee Shop and Opportunity Shop were given. Mrs. L. B. Fonger, convener of the latter, expressed the need of spring clothing for the shop. She told of one morning when there were 13 spring hats for sale. Within an hour, only two were left. Friday evening hours for the shop are now 7-9 p.m. and not 6.30 to 9 as formerly.

Mrs. W. C. McCutcheon suggested that anyone who was unable to help in the Coffee Shop might like to donate some home-cooking. In fact if members or their friends cared to provide something even once during the year it would be of great help. These contributions will be called for, if requested, by Mrs. P. T. Seibert or Mrs. W. A. Campbell.

GREAT SUCCESS

The Fashion Show was deemed a great success, and the president thanked her conveners, Mrs. J. E. Buchan and Mrs. Fred Dobson, and the many others who contributed to its most satisfactory accomplishment. She also expressed thanks to the members who had supplied food for the reception at the home of Mrs. J. H. Forrester.

Last month, the Hospital Auxiliary assisted at a tea given by the hospital to representatives of the Blue Cross who were visiting Belleville for Blue Cross Week, at which time Mrs. D. McCabe and Mrs. J. H. Forrester poured tea, Mrs. J. L. Smith supervised and the wives of the members of the Board of Governors acted.

Representatives from other organizations present at the regular meeting were as follows: Mrs. C. W. Thompson and Mrs. William Kent, Orange Lodge; Mrs. L. B. Fonger, St. Julien Chapter IODE; Mrs. E. Buchanan, Business and Professional Women's club; Mrs. R. E. Burley, St. Michael's Division, Catholic Women's League; Mrs. E. E. Folwell, Kinette Club. New members present were Mrs. T. Irving and Mrs. G. B. Lumgair.

Mrs. McCutcheon announced that the members of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, who are furnishing a room in the new wing of the hospital, are holding a dance at the Club Commodore in April.

HOME-MAKERS' SHOW

Notice was given of the St. Julien's Chapter, IODE's coming home-makers' style show at the collegiate in April.

A sum was set aside for Miss Dickens and her committee to use for Easter projects in the hospital.

All members of the auxiliary will be interested in a letter, which has been received recently from Pakistan from the former director of nursing, Miss Dorothy Peto. Miss Harriet Stevens plans to read this over "Conversation Piece," on Friday morning.

Mr. Burfoot, who was introduced by Mrs. Forrester, spoke of the numerous duties of the purchasing department of the hospital. His department is responsible for the purchase of supplies for all parts of the hospital. The budget which is submitted to the board of governors each year can only be ascertained by careful organizing of purchases.

LOCAL BUYING FAVORED

This entails many interviews with travellers. His policy is to favor buying locally whenever possible, and thus avoid cost of freight, express and delay. Cooperation of doctors is given in ordering medical supplies.

It was interesting to learn that some instruments can be reconditioned by the original dealers.

Quantities of supplies for nurses as compared to those quoted from a report of the original Women's Christian Association hospital, emphasized the extensive growth of the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Burfoot closed by saying he would welcome any of the members to visit the store room and have things explained more fully.

Harley Morton

Mr. Scott F. D. Taylor, C.L.U., Provincial Director, State Farm Agency (Ontario) Ltd., Toronto, announces the appointment of Mr. Harley Morton as manager for the East Central Ontario district.

Mr. Morton was formerly an agent in Toronto and is a member of the 1954 Leaders' Club. He will be responsible for development of business for the three State Farm Insurance Companies —State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, State Farm Life Insurance Company and State Farm Fire and Casualty Company —in this area. Mr. Morton will make his headquarters in Cobourg. (advt.)

Campbellford Rebekahs Visit Sister Lodge

Beauty is a Queen and her court on Tuesday night was Quinte's Rebekah Fall, Grace at on her right hand and Humility was her footstool. Three candidates got the initiation, as exemplified by the visiting Campbellford sisters of Loch Lomond No. 248 might well have been defined. Led by their capable and talented Noble Grand, Sis. McMillan, and under the guidance of Staff Captain Sis. Hogle the familiar ceremony took on new significance while the rich grace of Campbellford Sis. Towles' lovely voice joined the whole in a ritual of compelling beauty.

GIFT PRESENTED

Sisters Verna Oliphant, J. P. N. G. and Annie Rose, P. N. G. introduced Sisters McMillan, N. G. and C. McNaughton, V.G. of Loch Lomond to Quinte's Staff Capt. Sis. Dorothy Harwood, P. N. G. introduced Campbellford's Staff Capt. Hogle and her degree team. A gift to Campbellford Lodge was presented to Sis. McMillan by Sisters West, Oliphant and Large as Quinte's gesture of gratitude, and to commemorate their visit to Belleville.

At close of Lodge all sisters were invited to the upstairs hall where Sisters Gliss, White and Helen Brenton, with their assistants had prepared a banquet to which everyone did justice. On the tables the lodge colors were represented in the pink and green candles and serviettes while daffodils in the candlelight gave touches of spring.

After votes of thanks by guests and hosts all joined in "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and another link in Odd Fellowship and Rebekah-hood was forged in the district.

A royal welcome was conceded Quintena Rebekah No. 133 when they journeyed on Thursday last to Ganaoque to confer the Rebekah degree for Harmony Lodge No. 11 on initiates there.

A delightful banquet had been prepared for the Belleville sisters and to further enhance the evening Sis. Mary Plumpton, N. G. brought away with her Harmony's gift to Quintena to commemorate the occasion.

Senator Wilson Still Receives Letters Addressed 'Dear Sir'

OTTAWA (CP)—After 25 years in the Senate, Cairine Wilson still receives letters addressed "Dear Sir."

But she doesn't mind this so much as she did early attempts by her colleagues to call her "Madam Senator" or "Senatress" she said in an interview. The Senate Speaker stopped these forms of address soon after her appointment in 1930 and she has always been known as "Senator" Wilson.

Senator Wilson (L—Ontario) celebrated her 25th year in the Senate Feb. 15 without any special ceremonies.

"When Prime Minister Mackenzie King was alive I used to send him a plant on Feb. 15 to commemorate the day he appointed me," she said. "But since his death I haven't paid any particular attention to the date."

FLOODS OF CALLS

Canada's first woman senator recalls that it was different when she was appointed. Then, there were floods of calls and messages.

She also recalls that a friend told her afterward that Mr. King suffered a few embarrassments when he asked her to join the Senate.

"He told my friend that it was his first experience at proposing" she said.

Senator Wilson was the only woman in the Senate until Senator Iva Fallis was appointed in 1935. There now are five women in the upper house.

She thinks there are few women in politics "because we, as women, expect a great deal more of our women representatives."

BAD DIFFICULTY

"Perhaps it is one reason women have had difficulty in getting nominated—and women perhaps are a little afraid of the preliminaries of election."

Senator Wilson said she is very disappointed that Canadian women on the whole don't take a greater interest in affairs of government.

She said they haven't taken their responsibility as seriously as they ought to, but for that matter not too great a proportion of men are really interested, either.

Senator Wilson said she was appointed to the Senate because she was credited with the organization of the National Federation of Liberal Women in 1928 two years after women were enfranchised. She was also prominent then, as now, in social welfare work.

She is the wife of Norman Wilson, Ottawa valley lumberman, mother of eight children and grandmother of 12. She is the daughter of the late Senator Robert Mackay.

REJECT APPLICATION

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie actress Linda Christian's application for United States citizenship has been rejected by the immigration and naturalization service. Miss Christian, estranged wife of actor Tyrone Power, was born in Mexico, the daughter of a Dutch oil executive. Albert Del Guercio, acting district director of immigration, said Tuesday that the actress had not completed five years of uninterrupted residence in the U. S.

The regular meeting of Welcome Lodge was held recently in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Front St., with a good attendance.

Lodge was opened in due form with Worthy Mistress, Sister Ruby Collins and Deputy Mistress Sister Elsie Hartley in their respective chairs.

The Director of Ceremony, Sister Mary Oxtoby, brought Right Worshipful Sister Billy, Grand Director of Ceremonies of Ontario East, before the altar where she was given Grand Lodge honors and escorted to a seat on the dais.

Worthy Mistress, Sister Bennett and several Past Mistresses from Trenton and Belleville were also introduced.

INITIATION CEREMONY

The degree team of Trenton Lodge, performed the initiation degree in a most impressive manner. Those initiated were: Sis. Ewleen Taylor, Sister Phyllis Christie, Sister Irene Bennett, and Sister Joan Kimmett.

Interested business then took place followed by some pleasing remarks from the new candidates and sisters of Trenton and Belleville.

Worthy Mistress, Sister Bennett, and Director of Ceremonies, Sister Robinson, of Trenton Lodge were escorted to the altar where, on behalf of Welcome Lodge they were presented with gifts by Past Worthy Mistress, Sister Edith Cronkhite, Chaplain, Sister Ruth Taylor, for which they thanked the members.

On Monday, Welcome Lodge No. 1236 celebrated its 8th anniversary by journeying to the New Queens Hotel. After spending a social hour, a delicious chicken dinner was served to the members in the lounge, which was enjoyed by all.

A few pleasing remarks were given in regards to the welfare of the lodge, after which the members decided to make this an annual event.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BY ALL MEANS, WRITE THIS BOY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

This past week, our club sponsored a party and dance, and while they were in town different families were asked to have them stay at their homes. There was one I liked specially, and he asked me for a date. After they went away, I received a letter from this boy thanking me and my family for such a hospitable time. I really do like him, and would like to answer his letter, but I don't know how he would feel about it, because, after all, it was just a "thank-you note." Still, if I don't write, I am afraid I will never hear from him again. — G.P.

Dear G.P.:

I can't see any harm at all in your dropping a note to this boy, if you would like to do so, to tell him that you all enjoyed having him with you and hope he will come and see you again. The fact that he was "thoughtful and considerate" enough to write you the thank-you note shows that he is the right sort of boy, and I am sure he would not misunderstand your writing him. In fact, he would probably like it very much indeed.

Naturally, you're not going to bombard him with letters, or keep writing to him if he doesn't answer. But to let him know that you like him enough to want to see him again is a perfectly proper thing to do, provided, of course, you keep your note friendly and casual and don't go overboard in a sentimental way.

"SHE THINKS SHE'S "OLD ENOUGH." BUT SHE'S NOT!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am old enough to know what love means, and I have been in love just about a year with a boy I've seen four times in person. He's on TV every night, and I see him then.

A few days ago, I met another boy in my home town who is just like the young man I've been so much in love with. He asked me for a date right away, and we went out together. Then he asked me for another date, and I accepted.

These two boys are the same age—25—and they could pass for twins any time. I am sure I love this second boy the best. Do you think it could be love at first sight? And do you think he feels the same way about me as I do about him? He said: "I think you are the most wonderful girl I ever met. I'm just crazy about you." — D.

Dear D.:

There is just one thing I can say to you, and that is, that everything in your letter shows quite clearly that the statement you make in the beginning of it is quite wrong. In other words, no matter how much you may be in years, it's perfectly plain that you're a very long way from being old enough in maturity to have the faintest idea in the world "what love means."

I advise you to stop daydreaming and get down to reality, and to learning about people and life, by taking an active part in all the things that are normal for your age, whatever it may be. At present, your problem is that you are wasting a lot of time building up childishly romantic fairy tales.

GOOD-LOOKS SUGGESTIONS FOR CAREER GIRLS

Every girl who works realizes that smart appearance is a part of her stock in trade. The Big Boss seeks efficient employees, but he also wants them to look efficient.

Her hairdo should be neat and tailored; no scrambled effects. If you please, or flowing tresses. Fingernails can carry polish but it should not be gaudy. Lipstick is worn by all, Rouge and mascara should be applied lightly.

The career girl must keep fit if she is to carry on, be in line for promotions. She should have a hearty breakfast. A few nibbles of toast and a cup of coffee are not enough. She should have fruit and protein in some form. A soft-boiled egg will supply enough.

A luncheon, consisting of a sandwich, a green salad and a glass of milk, will supply various food elements that are required for well-being. Shopping is more fun that eating—to some girls any-way —but that is being unfair to oneself. The body must have proper fuel to make up for the wear and tear of the day's activities.

The girl whose eating habits are not what they should be is often a victim of four-o'clock-itis. Along about that time of day, she is as tired as can be. Feeling fatigued, she is in no condition to enjoy dinner. The result may be malnutrition, nervous exhaustion, a pale complexion and a sense of just dragging through the days.

Fresh air and exercise are necessary for healthful living. She can at least devote fifteen minutes each day to simple calisthenics that will do much to help her retain a pleasing figure. All bending exercises are excellent, as is tennis twisting. It is in the mid-section that muscles go slack, wherever the nifty waistline thickens and hip-spread will eventually develop.

Melt-in-Your-Mouth Meat Pies

By Mary Moore

Nobody mentioned any Irish ancestors to me so I shall soberly wish you a merry St. Patrick's Day and may the memory of you be green a century hence.

So that you could cook with an Irish theme I poured on the green coloring yesterday. Did it hit you in the eye?

Have you ever become so engrossed in doing some urgent thing for someone else's children that you forgot about your own temporarily? and then suddenly are brought up with a start realizing that they could do very well with the same kind of attention?

Something similar happened to me. I know another food columnist (the woods are full of them) who wanted all of the material I could scrape up quickly on the making of sensational mouth-your-mouth individual meat pies. I even made a batch for her adding some new touches to make them the same extra good. I handed the whole over to her and forgot all about the whole thing—until I saw the small airfried thin pie envelope, returning my file copies with thanks.

Then the dawn broke over my slow wits. If her readers liked it so much why the heck don't I give it to mine? Enough said. Here they are. They are really slick.

TENDER INDIVIDUAL MEAT PIES

FLAKY PASTRY

Three cups unsifted pastry flour, 1 cup best quality shortening, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 6 1-2 to 7 tablespoons ice water. Cut shortening into flour and salt with pastry blender. Sprinkle ice water over, 1 tablespoon at a time, cutting in a little with a knife as you sprinkle. Do not overwork but barely enough to pack the dough together between the palms. Chill the dough thoroughly. It could be left in the refrigerator overnight to advantage, but it must be well-wrapped. Remove from refrigerator 2 hours before rolling out. Roll out half of the dough to use for bottom crusts and cut into rounds the size of your individual pie tins, and line sides and bottoms with the rounds, having cut edges come right up to the top. Roll out second half of the pastry and spread half of it with 1 tablespoon soft butter. Fold unspread half over buttered half and fold ends of pastry to centre, then fold once more. You will have eight layers. Carefully roll out evenly. Repeat the buttering and folding and rolling once more. The second time roll out the dough to 9-10 inch thickness and cut out in rounds to fit top of your pie tins, making a slash or leaf pattern at centre of each. Then put into pastry-lined tins and

FILLING

Cut cooked meat into 1-2 inch cubes and measure 2 cups. Cooked beef, veal, pork and chicken are all good. Half and half beef and pork are good also half and half chicken and ham. In 3 tablespoons butter gently saute 3 tablespoons minced onion until transparent but not brown. Stir in 3 tablespoons flour and when blended 1 1-2 cups boiling water (or in the case of chicken hot skim milk), stirring until thick. Add 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 teaspoon monosodium glutamate, and if desired 1 tablespoon each chopped parsley and cooked green peas. Stir in the cubed meat. Spoon this into the pastry-lined pans, but do not fill them too full. Moisten edges of pastry and seal on upper crust. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for first 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 400 deg. Fahr. for another 10 or 15 minutes, or until golden and bottom crust is baked.

After you have tried these I think and hope you will add the recipe to your cooking file, and know where to find it.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

FIVE-THIRTY AWKWARD HOUR FOR WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are planning to be married in our church at five-thirty in the afternoon, and then my parents would like to invite our closest relatives and friends to an informal reception at our home. But we cannot afford anything but the simplest of refreshments. At this hour would it be quite all right to serve only the wedding cake and punch and coffee? — R.McL.

This is an awkward hour to plan for, particularly as concerns refreshments. If it is the custom of your community to dine at 6:30 or 7 or 7:30, this would mean that the serving of these refreshments would have to be very hurried, and that the guests might even take it for granted that at least a buffet dinner or supper would be served. I would seriously wish that you could plan to have your wedding at least an hour earlier, and then the wedding cake, punch and coffee would seem to be entirely appropriate.

NEVER MAIL ANNOUNCEMENTS BEFORE THE CEREMONY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are having just our families, three of four very close relatives, and three or four very close friends at our wedding in my home on a Saturday afternoon. Therefore we will not, of course, send invitations. However, I am planning to send formal, engraved announcements. We thought we could use these announcements to inform our other relatives and friends, who live at a distance, that the wedding is to take place on that day. Wouldn't it be correct under the above circumstances, to mail the announcements before the wedding-date? And if so, how soon before? — Bride-to-be

No! Under no circumstances is it correct to send marriage announcements before the marriage ceremony has taken place. These announcements announce that the ceremony has taken place, and it certainly would look ridiculous to have a person receive, say on May 20th, an announcement that the marriage ceremony has been performed on May 20th!

GODPARENTS SHOULD BE INVITED TO SERVE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should we, the parents, ask a friend to be godmother and another friend to be godfather to our child? That is, we don't know if we should do the asking, or if friends should offer their service as godparents. — H.R.

It is you and your husband who should decide on whom you wish to the right of asking you and your invite to be godparents to your husband for the privilege of being a child. A friend would not assume godparent to your child.

IVANHOE — Mrs. W. J. Tanner hosted her spacious home Wednesday afternoon for the Ivanhoe Women's Institute. There were 19 attendance 29 ladies and five children.

The meeting was opened by the president, Miss Jayne Gay, who read a poem entitled, "Happiness" and gave a hearty welcome to all visitors. Mrs. G. Wood presided at the piano.

Bills that were presented were moved paid, on the president request that all reports of the standing committee be prepared for the next meeting.

The sick committee read letters of appreciation from those who had received cards, flowers and fruit.

Mrs. W. French reported a successful card party that was held in the Hall last week and it was decided that the next card party be held on the first Wednesday of April in the Hall.

Miss E. Tanner, convener of Home Economics and Health, took charge of the program.

The motto "Bring to the Table a Happy Smile", was prepared by Mrs. M. Shaw, and given by Mrs. J. McInnor, which contained much food for thought.

Mrs. W. J. Tanner gave a reading prepared by Mrs. J. B. Hagerman under the heading of "Good Health is Above Gold, Rubies, or Diamonds."

Mrs. E. Colden rendered a solo, "The Dear Little Shamrock," which was enjoyed by all.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. J. McInroy introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. A. W. Cunningham, who chose for her subject, "Cancer". Her timely talk was instructive, and she also offered her assistance to all those who had sickness in their home and felt the task was beyond their knowledge.

Miss Tanner expressed thanks to Mrs. Cunningham for her talk.

Mrs. A. Wood conducted a contest while the hostess and her assistants, Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs. A. Fleming and Mrs. W. French served refreshments.

A social time was enjoyed by all.

FOXBORO

Mission Band, W.M.S. Hold Annual Dinner

FOXBORO—The joint Mission Band and the W.M.S. annual dinner of the Foxboro United Church, was held in the Sunday school hall, recently, with a full house of children and parents, to partake of the delicious repast.

The W.M.S. women did everything to have the children enjoy themselves.

The collection amounted to $40.40.

After the tables were cleared away the children delighted the assembly with a fine program, with Mrs. R. Darke, superintendent and Miss June Hamilton, as leader.

The meeting opened with all singing the Mission Band hymn and the roll to worship given by Stephen Cawker. Prayer was given by Carol McKeown. The Scripture lesson was read by Frederick Darke, Tommy Wall gave a lovely reading entitled "The Little Lost Sheep." The offering was received by Jim Johnson and Keith Hamber and dedicated by Joyce Hollinger.

A quiz was conducted by the leader on the Mission Band story and the prize won by Ronnie Purvis.

After the business part, Mrs. Darke gave them a missionary story, A Mother Goose Temperance play was put on by some of the children after which Mrs. Darke gave a reading to the missionary mother members.

W.M.S. MEETING

At three o'clock the president, Mrs. Wilson, opened the W.M.S. meeting.

On account of the late hour, just a short business meeting was conducted. Mrs. Simmons called the roll with 20 members present. Twenty sick calls were reported. The invitation given to the Auxiliary to attend an open meeting at Cannifton on March 31st was accepted, also the invitation given by the Tabernacle W.M.S. to join them in May. The devotional period will be looked after by the president, Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Wilson read a paper on the "Presbyterial to be held at Picton" on March 24, to which Mrs. R. Darke will be sent as delegate.

The thank-offering meeting is to be held at Mrs. H. Shetler's in April. Mrs. McCurdy and Ann Rombough are to prepare the program.

Belgian Rifle, Expected to Be Adopted by Commonwealth Armies, Getting Fire Baptism

By ADRIAN HALL

LONDON (Reuters) — The Belgian FN .300-calibre self-loading rifle, expected to be adopted by all the Commonwealth armies by the end of this year, is having its baptism of fire in Malaya and Kenya.

British troops in both colonial trouble spots are using the rifle as part of extensive trials to which the light Belgian weapon is being subjected.

The adoption of the Belgian rifle has meant the parting, for the first time in 50 years, of the British soldier and his "best friend"—the short-magazine Lee Enfield .303.

While these active service tests are taking place, Australia, Canada, New Zealand and South Africa are staging their own tests of the weapon.

PLAN MANUFACTURE

To date, three countries have adopted the FN .300-Belgium, Britain and Australia. Canada, New Zealand and South Africa are expected to follow when their own trials are completed.

Britain and Australia have announced their intention of manufacturing the rifle and Canada would undoubtedly do the same.

There are also high hopes that the FN .300 will be adopted by the United States and other countries in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, following a decision of the Atlantic council, in December, 1953, that the calibre for standard rifle ammunition for member countries would be .300 inches.

Antony Head, minister of war, has said in the House of Commons there is a "very good chance" of the United States adopting the rifle.

It is acknowledged here, however, that there is still a strong preference in sections of the U.S. Army for the T-44, another .300-calibre gun. The U.S. is testing both weapons and military officials here do not expect a decision for some time.

U.S. WELL-STOCKED

These circles say the United States is well stocked with the Garand M-1 semi - automatic and doesn't need to make a speedy decision. Britain, on the other hand, has been in urgent need of a really modern rifle.

The FN .300 can be used as an automatic, or for single shots. As an automatic, it is capable of firing between 650 and 700 rounds a minute. Adjusted for sniping, a trained soldier using single rounds from 20-round magazines can fire 60 aimed shots a minute.

Reloading from five-round clips, he should be able to fire between 35 and 40 aimed shots a minute, or more than double the rate of rapid fire expected of the average soldier with the present bolt-action .303.

Tests have shown the FN .300 is accurate to a range of 1,093 yards. Safety - wise, the rifle is claimed to be almost foolproof. It cannot be fired until the breech block is locked, and the breech block cannot unlock until after the bullet has left the barrel.

In its present form, the FN .300, without the magazine, weighs nine pounds, three ounces. Its overall length is 41½ inches, and the barrel 21 inches.

EASY TO HANDLE

It is well balanced and easy to handle, which is not surprising since its makers, Fabrique Nationale d'Armes de Guerre, produce some of the world's best-known sporting rifles and shotguns.

The FN's magazine holds 20 rounds and weighs 8¼ ounces when empty, and 25¾ ounces when full.

When mass produced in Britain, it is expected to cost about £20. The Belgian metric measurements already have been converted into inches so that it can be produced here and in Australia, as well as in North American if necessary.

The FN .300 was selected by the present British government in preference to Britain's own new E.M. 2 automatic rifle after tests. Impartial observers found little difference then between the weapons, although they felt the Belgian rifle was easier and quicker to make and maintain. Instruction in handling was also considered easier and speedier.

The political controversy which followed its choice has all but died now, although some Labor members of Parliament still maintain that the FN .300 is longer and heavier than its British rival.

Disturbing Elements Seen In Stock Market

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON (AP)—A CIO official and aWall street banker told the Senate's stock market inquiry in testimony prepared for today that there are disturbing elements in the 1955 market.

Secretary - treasurer James B. Carey of the labor organization declared there is evidence the Eisenhower administration "has conspired to boost stock prices" until they have soared far out of line with the rest of the American economy.

Carey said Treasury Secretary George Humphrey's recent take-it-easy caution to the Senate banking committee was a confession that the administration's economic policies "are built on a will-of-the-wisp."

DAMPER ON FRAUD

In other testimony, Investment banker Ferdinand Eberstadt said nobody can say for sure whether stock prices have gone too high.

"More disturbing than the present market level," Eberstadt said, "are security frauds and sales of securities which, while not technically fraudulent, are so worthless as to have the same effect on the buyer."

He said the committee's investigation, which he called timely and useful, already has put a "distinctly perceptible" damper on such practices.

President Eisenhower told his press conference Wednesday he knew of no instance in which the stock market inquiry had gone beyond proper bounds. But he said it is necessary to proceed with caution where public confidence is involved.

WAS WITH GLOBE

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Kirk Stocks, 71, with the Globe and Mail for 33 years, died Tuesday. Advertising manager of the old Globe for several years, he later became classified advertising manager of The Globe and Mail. He retired in 1951.

Voices Hope Indian Reserves Will Vanish

OTTAWA (CP) — Citizenship Minister Pickersgill says he is looking forward to the day when the present system of Indian reserves will disappear—with the agreement of Indians themselves.

The government is working toward this goal, he said Wednesday, in its program of having more and more Indian children go to school outside their reserves with white youngsters.

Canada has some 153,000 persons considered to be Indians. Their rights are covered by treaties, some more than two centuries old.

Indian rights would not be interfered with except by agreement, he said.

FAVORS ADVERTISING

The committee also discussed the work of the government in helping foreign - language immigrants become Canadian citizens. Mr. Pickersgill said he is thinking of asking for more money to advertise in Canada's foreign-language press.

He said that $15,000 set aside in the current fiscal year for advertising is being well spent.

Mr. Pickersgill also elaborated on his Tuesday statement that there were "disgraceful" delays in Toronto and Montreal in processing citizenship applications, where New Canadians had to wait a year or more to obtain citizenship papers.

He said perhaps his statement had gone too far. There was no intention of reflecting on the government or courts of Ontario or Quebec who were performing a service which in fact was a federal function.

That was why the federal government had decided to provide additional facilities in Toronto after April 1. The same thing would be done in Montreal as soon as possible.

Ontario Outlay on Education Equal to Total 1944 Budget

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's expanding education program now has a budget almost equal to the total amount of money spent in running the provincial government 11 years ago, the legislature was told Wednesday.

After Education Minister Dunlop described the new era of education in Ontario, Premier Frost drew attention to what he considered most significant evidence of the province's contribution to education.

"Just 11 years ago today I rose in this House to present a budget for all governmental costs of $100,000,000," said the premier. "That was the figure we proposed providing for every departmental need.

"Now today we see the amazing scene of one department, this department of education, presenting its budget, a budget for education alone in Ontario, of $98,300,000."

TWOFOLD OBJECT

Dr. Dunlop said the new deal had a twofold object: providing university training for more students and offering training in technical skills for those who wish to enter industry.

Establishment of a new junior college at the Lakehead is the first step toward a new university centre in the area, he said. Also to be started this year was a $1,000,000 construction program at Ryerson Institute in Toronto.

The Lakehead junior college will replace a technical institute the department has operated at Port Arthur since 1946.

"I'd like to pay tribute to the people there," Dr. Dunlop said. "Councils of Fort William and Port Arthur each have contributed $10,000 toward this project and the public generally have raised another $175,000."

PLAN SUMMER COURSE

The minister said the department this summer will conduct a 10-week course for students who have a bachelor of arts of equivalent university degree.

The bachelor training courses are designed to meet a shortage of high school teachers in the province and will be held at the Ontario College of Education.

Premier Frost welcomed back Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar who had been ill 3½ months. Mr. Dunbar, Progressive Conservative member for Ottawa South, was greeted by traditional desk thumping by opposition and government members.

Earlier in the day, R. M. Myers (PC—Waterloo South) told the legislature committee on education that Ontario industry is discouraged from fostering training programs because labor unions are insisting on too high a rate of pay for apprentices.

At a meeting of the travel and publicity committee, Fred Edwards, (PC—Perth) said some resort operators in the province are "fleecing tourists." Some operators in the Port Elgin, Southampton and Lake Huron resort areas had different rates for tourists and residents.

They also agreed to ban programs before 9 a.m. weekdays and 2 p.m. Sundays—to save housewives the worry of competing with TV for their families' attention at breakfast time.

British TV Screens Blank At Bedtime

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's rival television networks have agreed to have their screens blank for an hour every night next winter so parents will have less trouble getting their children to bed.

They have also agreed to ban programs before 9 a.m. weekdays and 2 p.m. Sundays—to save housewives the worry of competing with TV for their families' attention at breakfast time.

"Fleecing tourists." Some operators in the Port Elgin, Southampton and Lake Huron resort areas had different rates for tourists and residents.

REDS SENTENCED

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—The Thai criminal court Tuesday night found 9 persons guilty of plotting to set up a Communist regime in this strategic Southeast Asian country. All 49 were sentenced to 30 years in prison, but the sentences of 40 were reduced to 13 years and four months each because of good behavior since they were rounded up in November, 1952.

SEES SERVICE FAILURE

TORONTO (CP) — A United Church minister said Tuesday ministers could get much closer to their congregations if they discontinued Sunday evening services and went out among the people.

Dr. John Short, minister of St. George's church, told a meeting of the Toronto-Centre presbytery alarmingly few persons attend Sunday evening services.

KIDNAPPER HELD

She was let out of the station wagon at 3:35 p.m. Word she was kidnapped came to police about 1:30 but was not printed or broadcast until she was known to be safe.

"He made me get in the car," Alice said, "I couldn't run away. I wanted to go home for lunch but he wouldn't let me out of the car and he wouldn't give me anything to eat.

"We drove out of the city and into the country. We drove around and around. Once the man got out of the car to make a telephone call or something—but he didn't bring me anything to eat.

STOPPED THE CAR

"At last I knew we were getting close to home and he told me I would see my mummy and daddy again. He stopped the car and said "You can get out now."

Mrs. Nesbitt said she received a telephone call about 1:30 p.m. She said the kidnapper threatened to kill Alice if she called police.

Despite the threat, Mrs. Nesbitt telephoned Forest Hill officers. The man called again shortly after 3 p.m.

Mrs. Nesbitt said the kidnapper told her he would have a "messenger at your house to pick up the cash and five minutes afterward Alice will be home."

The kidnapper enticed a 13-year-old boy to act as his messenger. He was Jimmy Edwards, who said a man in a station wagon asked him if he wanted to make $5.

GAVE BOY MONEY

The abductor gave Jimmy $2 for cab fare and agreed to meet him afterward to collect the parcel. As the taxi stopped at the Nesbitt house and Jimmy walked towards the door, the kidnapper passed the scene in his vehicle and freed the girl about a block away.

Police spotted the move but weren't sure if the driver was the man they wanted or if the girl was Alice. They jotted down the station wagon's licence. The car was stopped shortly after.

Police also credited an unidentified seven-year-old girl at Bishop Strachan school with helping in the case. The girl remembered a man asking her what time school was out and described the car he was driving.

HAD MONEY READY

The family had the money ready and was ready to pay ransom if necessary. But police had surrounded the home and were waiting.

The Edwards boy said that as he approached the house, he became suspicious.

"The station wagon was driving in front of us all the way," he said. "I wondered why he didn't deliver the message himself if he was driving there anyway."

English Paper Opposes Hiding Record of Yalta

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters)—The Manchester Guardian says that the foreign office is "making itself slightly "ridiculous" by standing in the way of the publication in the United States of the record of the Yalta conference.

"It is, of course, only following the old stuffy rule which attempts to hide all documentary facts from the historian until 50 years after the event," The Guardian says.

"It is a rule that has been frequently broken, as with the previous diplomatic documents. To apply it to Yalta seems indefensible. For Yalta, a conference of 1945, has been described in considerable detail by the chief actors and it is hard to believe that much that was significant has not been told.

"The result of the foreign office's attitude is to create suspicion where there need be none."

United Church S.S. Tries New Methods

FOXBORO—It has been noticed in many of the Sunday school reports in the paper that their attendance has been low owing to the severe cold weather through out the winter. On the two coldest Sundays this winter the United Church Sunday school roll had marked the highest attendance of the year, due in part to the superintendent, Mr. Wilson, changing the order of opening the school, from the junior boys and girls up to the senior classes, each class took its turn in conducting the devotional period. What an interest each class took as its turn came causing it to appreciate the important part it had to fill as well as that of superintendent.

In the Bible readings and stories the class learns how the young man, Jesus, did when He went among the elders preaching and talking to large crowds, teaching them of eternal life.

Last Sunday was Missionary Sunday, conducted by Mrs. F. Pringle who gave an interesting paper on "The Helpers to Dr. Mary", after which Mrs. Bill Rombough sang a solo "There's Work to do for Jesus".

CNR Seeking To Abandon Line

COLLINGWOOD (CP)—An application by Canadian National Railways to discontinue its passenger service between Beeton and Collingwood and to abandon an 18½-mile stretch of line between Alliston and Creemore went before the board of transport commissioners here yesterday.

The proposal is expected to face stiff opposition from municipalities along the 45-mile-route of the line, which stretches from Beeton, 35 miles north of Toronto, to Collingwood, 40 miles west of Owen Sound. Alliston and Creemore are 18½ miles apart on the Beeton-Collingwood line.

Wild-Eyed Hab Fans Pop Off After Campbell's Sentence

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Death threats, swearing and cursing and promises to bust Clarence Campbell in the face were the immediate reactions Wednesday to the National Hockey League president's suspension of Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

The hockey idol of Montreal was tossed out by Campbell for the rest of the season, playoffs and all.

When Campbell's decision became known—almost within seconds—around the hockey-mad city wild-eyed fans popped off in an unbelievable verbal outburst that outdid the Rocket's physical rampage in Boston. One fan threatened to blow up Campbell's office.

Literally hundreds rushed to telephones to call the National Hockey League office. They wanted to talk to Campbell. And Campbell wasn't talking to them.

The fans gave vent to their opinions and threats to anyone that answered the telephones. Long after the meeting, with only one or two employees still in the office, with three phone lines rang without a letup.

It got so that those left in the office answered only one in every 25 calls or so—just to find out the reaction. It was bitter, to say the least. Only a few persons spoke with restraint or said they knew Campbell had a tough decision and perhaps he had done what he thought best.

One caller shouted over the phone: "It's too bad for him. When I find him I will kill him."

From a woman: "He will get killed. He doesn't show his face at Thursday's game."

Another, on a different slant: "He's not there? Well, you tell Campbell for me we are going to blow up his office." This caller said his name is "Gordon Richard."

The first threat came Wednesday. A man telephoned saying "If Campbell suspends Richard you can be sure Campbell will be dead before the end of the week."

So electrifying has been "L'Affaire Richard" that at least one Montreal radio station—CKAC—went on the air inviting fans to phone in their opinions of Campbell's decision.

The response amazed station officials. The switchboard was jammed with calls and finally the station had to appeal over the air to the fans to stop calling.

The fans were asked to give their names, but registration was broadcast. The calls came from lawyers, lawyers, business men and the ordinary fellow with a job.

The station reported that 97 per cent of the fans said Campbell's decision was too severe although they agreed Richard should be some punishment. The other three per cent agreed with Campbell, some going even further and saying the suspension should have been for life.

Marlies Defeat Teepees 4-1 In Opener

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Toronto Marlboros maintained their surprising playoff pace Wednesday night as they trimmed the defending Memorial Cup champion St. Catharines TeePees 4-1 in the opening game of the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association junior A finals.

Marlboros, who had to come up through the quarter- and semi-finals, marked up their sixth consecutive win in eight playoff games. They lost only one, to Galt Black Hawks in a four-game quarter-finals, and eliminated Guelph Billmeyers in three straight games in the semi-finals.

Barry Cullen gave St. Catharines a one-goal lead to protect early in the first period when he knocked his own rebound behind Dennis Riggin, playing what may be his last game in the Marlboro nets.

TIED TEMPORARILY

That lead lasted until 12:46 of the second period when Mike Hykoluk tied the score on a breakaway while Marlboros were shorthanded. Gary Collins added another in the middle session and Gary Collins and Ken Girard scored in the third period to account for Toronto's goals.

TeePees played a defensive game, concentrating on protecting their rookie netminder, Roger Day. Day was replacing Marv Edwards who had suffered a fractured cheek bone in a practice session earlier this week.

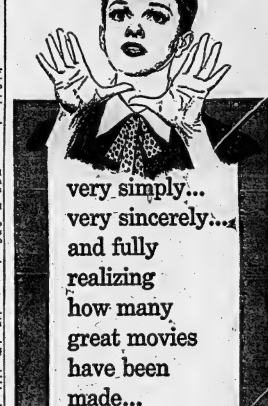
Riggin, Toronto goalkeeper in the last four playoff games after regular netminder John Albani was laid up with an attack of measles, handled 23 shots on goal. Day was touched with 30, 15 in the third period.

Real Donnybrook At Long Last

DONNYBROOK, Ireland (AP)—After all these years there is going to be an official fight in Donnybrook.

For a century Donnybrook—the name of a Dublin suburb—has been the slang word all over the world for an impromptu street fight. The origin of the slang is obscure.

Principals in the legal battle May 27 will be Ray Famechon of France, European featherweight titleholder, and Billy Kelly of Northern Ireland, the British and Empire champion. The fight will be for Famechon's title.



AT THE CAPITOL — Mickey Rooney and Robert Strauss star in "The Atomic Kid," Republic comedy romance which introduces Elaine Davis (Mrs. Mickey Rooney). It opens at the Capitol Theatre tonight. On the same program John Wayne in the action-packed thriller, "War of the Wildcats."

AT THE McCARTHY — Chill Wills and Marjorie Main team their comic talents for the first time in Universal-International's hilarious "Ricochet Romance", a story of the wide open spaces that has starring Alfonso Bedoya, Pedro Gonzales and Buddy Valles. 2nd. Feature is "Smoke Signal", in color by Technicolor, starring Dana Andrews and Piper Laurie.

AT THE BELLE — This is the scene in M.G.M.'s "Beau Brummell", in which Stewart (Beau) Granger shocks the Prince's birthday guests by wearing black pants-at-the-bottom trousers for the first time. If the Beau hadn't invented long pants 150 years ago, the men of this city might still be showing their legs in long stockings and knee britches — pink ones, perhaps!

CAMP BORDEN, Ont. (CP)—Jorma Ahopelto of Sudbury scored a second-round technical knockout Wednesday night over favored Don Wallace of Barrie in the main event of an amateur boxing card.

Wallace took a solid right jab to the head in the dying seconds of the first round and failed to answer the bell for the second.

Semi-final bouts saw Jack Houle of Sudbury win a decision over Gerry Durette of Toronto, and Paul Kenny of Barrie win a decision over Bob Gourley of Hamilton. Both were five-round bouts.

Rocket Suspended For Season By NHL President; Montreal 'Explodes'

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

WE AGREE

N.H.L. President Clarence Campbell suspended hockey's brilliant star, Rocket Richard, for the season following his explosive incident in Boston. We go along with the rest of the sports-writing fraternity in backing Campbell. We believe the sentence was enough—but could have been more severe. Let the Montreal fans explode. It is only natural. But, Richard, voted the world's best, man, with his fiery temper and explosive action, cause the permanent disability or maybe death of another player. And none would be more sorry than the flaming Rocket. So why not nip it in the bud?

SOFTBALL

Cy Barriage, newly elected president of the Belleville and District Softball Association, has called a general meeting for this Monday night at the Metro Street firehall at 8.00 p.m. This will be the association's third meeting of the fast-approaching season but the first under the new executive.

Main topic on the agenda will be the naming of a delegate to attend the annual O.A.S.A. convention being held in Peterborough on Good Friday, April 8th. All teams wishing to participate in the league schedule are also asked to have a representative in attendance to file their entries. Other general business will also receive attention in an attempt to clear the way for an early schedule opening.

SPORTSMEN ALL!

While it appears the loyal Cornwall fans, officials, players and writers were more or less stunned at the elimination of the Colts by the Memos in the senior "B" semi-finals series, they took the affair in sportsmanlike grace—and offered no alibis. Here is what Gord Higgins, Cornwall sports editor had to say about it:

"The loss to Belleville in the semi-final series was a shock to the Colts as it was to all of us. Cornwall ended the season in first place; the Memos occupied the fourth and last playoff spot. Colts took the first game in Belleville and the next two games, one in Belleville and one at home; then they rallied in overtime at Belleville to take a 5-4 decision and knot the round at two games apiece with two of the next possible three games in Cornwall. They seemed to be over the hump and Colts' 4-3 loss here last Thursday was a climax. Ahead three games to two in the series, the Memos got Colts no chance of a Sunday reprieve as they swamped the 2-1 to the round Friday evening with a decisive 6-2 victory. Tizzy was all the fizzle which team won that last till. Four goals is a wide margin.

"Frankie Mario has little or nothing to say about the playoff disaster and we don't blame him. Frankie would rather talk about golf or some such unrelated topic. About the only comment we could squeeze out of Frankie last night was that, 'We were beaten. We have no excuse to offer.' Mario was the first to offer a word of praise to Frank Boucher, the coach of the Memos. He thought that the Belleville club played great hockey during the series and wishes them well in their coming tussle with either Kingston or Whitby.

"There would be little point served by this writer conducting a post mortem over the now dead Colts. We feel that Colts ran into a club that played a style of hockey which was calculated to hobble them. Had Colts succeeded in disposing of the Memos we don't think they would have had no much trouble with Kingston (Mr. Rodden, please note) or Whitby. Perhaps that is just idle talk. The Belleville team deserves a great deal of credit for its hard earned win. It was a team effort all the way. Veterans such as Hub Maxey, Red Doran and Vern Geyer were tremendous. Kids such as Davey Jones came through with wonderful efforts. Tony Parisi was a tower of strength in the nets. Coach Boucher handled his club in admirable fashion. His lines were nicely balanced; his team had the necessary desire; he had a definite strategy and stuck to it.

"We have stated this before but we might as well say it once more. The Colts were beaten by checking. The Memos did a terrific job of checking. Nothing is calculated to play havoc with a fast skating offensive club than a heavy checking barrage. The Memos had their sticks in so many places at once it seemed at times as if each of them was carrying two hickorys. We thought that their most deadly weapon was their success in checking Colts in the Cornwall end of the rink. That is only our opinion, of course. Frank Mario doesn't agree with us on that point. He feels that his men were getting the puck out of their own zone all right but were failing down on their offensive attempts when they crossed the Belleville line."

THIS IS DIFFERENT!

As we expected, the statistical machinery of Kingston's pair of figure filberts swept into staccato action yesterday and from what looked like a bubble-bath of addling-machine paper emerged the tiresome statistics that were published in this column yesterday. However, Mr. Rodden added:

"Kingston Goodyears' thrilling victory in Whitby last night suggests that the Douglasmen have reached the final round in the Ontario Hockey Association eastern senior "B" group race in finest fettle and fully prepared for all eventualities. Their opponents, the swift Belleville Memos, command respect but with the odd game in seven allotted to the Community Memorial Centre Goodyears rate favoritism to advance into the next round.

"Goodyears showed their mettle when they won 4 of 6 tests against the Dunlops who actually were the remnants of the defending champions who operated last season under Oshawa jurisdiction. The Douglasmen outscored the Tiremen by 26 to 23 whereas the Belleville Memos trailed the Cornwall Colts 22 to 12 in the other round, although they matched Goodyears' feat in winning four games."

Mr. Rodden indirectly admits the series might go to seven games, but his statement that the fact that the seventh game will be played in Kingston makes the Goodyears favorites is so much wishful thinking. The Memos had the best "away" record in the entire senior group, and as far as playing the seventh game on "foreign" ice is concerned, we refer the estimable M.J.K. to the recent Cornwall-Memos series. The Memos made sure there would be no seventh game by winning on Cornwall ice. And we see no reason why history should not repeat itself.

Verdict Shatters Star's Dream Of Records, Lush Prize Money; 'Conduct Won't Be Tolerated'

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the greatest scorer in the history of hockey, today faces the bleakest era of his colorful career after 13 years of unparalleled achievement, unprecedented courage and a destructive mercurial temperament.

By edict of president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League, the fiery Rocket is barred from the remaining three games of the schedule and from participation in the Stanley Cup playoffs. The severest punishment Campbell has ever given followed Richard's wild outburst Sunday night in the Boston Garden when he bludgeoned Hal Laycoe of the Bruins with a stick and punched linesman Cliff Thompson in the eye with his flying fists.

FANS ENRAGED

For Campbell, a man worn and haggard from a day of closed hearings and soul-searching deliberation, the decision late Wednesday set off an explosive outburst from thousands of Montreal fans enraged, resentment; plain hotheaded cussedness and wrathful death threats.

For Richard, the decision virtually shattered his prized dream of leading the league's point-getters for the first time. In that alone he will lose the $1,000 prize money which he likely could have won.

It is possible he will also suffer in the voting for all-star right-winger, another $1,000 plum.

The decision was also a sickening blow for the Montreal crowds may lose the neck-and-neck race for the league leadership and fall quickly by the wayside in the playoffs.

MAY BE BACK

What the Rocket will do no one knows perhaps not even the Rocket. He has threatened on retirement. And again the 33-year-old fire wizard may be back next season, with all the flames and flair that is his and his alone, to add to the 422 goals he has scored, 99 more than anyone else. No presentday player is anywhere near him.

In passing judgment once more on the Rocket, Campbell faced an unenviable task. In recent years he has fined Richard $500 for deciding a referee in New York hotel lobby and $250 for a stick-wielding job on a player. That was the bludgeoning performance, in 1947 when Bill Ezinicki, then of Toronto, was the victim. Richard was also given his only game's suspension. It was a one-game Saturday night.

Only this season—and Campbell made pointed reference to it in his statement Wednesday — Richard was fined $250 for slapping a linesman in the face.

DEFIED CAMPBELL

Last season Richard's by-lined column in a weekly newspaper criticized and defied Campbell. The Rocket had to apologize and pay a $1,000 bond as assurance there wouldn't be a recurrence, ghostwriting or not.

In all, Richard has forked over about $2,500 to the league. The amount included automatic fines ranging from $25 to $100, for penalties imposed during play.

There was no fine this time. In his 1,200-word decision Campbell said "the time for probation or leniency is past."

He went into detail of the Boston outburst and cut from under Richard what defence was offered.

He outlined the report of the game's officials—that Laycoe had high-sticked Richard, cutting Richard's head; that the Rocket went berserk with stick-swinging on Laycoe; that Richard punched linesman Thompson two hard blows in the face.

NOT DENIED

It was not denied that all the blows were struck by Richard as reported by the officials, said Campbell. It was contended that Richard didn't realize what he was doing because of the blow on the head he had suffered. It was contended also he mistook Thompson for Boston player.

But Campbell said even the blow on Richard's head "cannot account for his conduct in persisting in breaking away from the officials, finding other sticks and renewing the attack twice more."

As for mistaking the linesman for a Boston player, Richard "had no difficulty locating Laycoe when he was making his attacks."

Campbell said the evidence showed the attack on Laycoe "was not only premeditated but persisted in the face of all authority. . . ."

ALMOST IDENTICAL

The president reviewed Richard's earlier outbreak this season, when he tangled with Bob Bailey of Toronto Leafs in Toronto. Campbell said Richard's conduct then was almost identical with that at Boston. The Rocket was warned against further such outbreaks.

"It is very regretable that in teammates had not been as successful as in the previous episode and it is even more regrettable that his teammates did not assist the official instead of interfering with him."

CANNOT BE TOLERATED

In concluding his statement Campbell said: "Whether this type of conduct is the product of temperamental instability or wilful defiance is the question in the games does not matter. It is a type of conduct which cannot be tolerated by any player—star or otherwise."

The hearing itself lasted from 10 a.m. until 1:35 p.m. Those attending were Richard and Laycoe; coach Dick Irvin and farm director Ken Reardon of Canadiens, Reardon representing managing director Frank Selke who was out of town; general manager Lynn Patrick of the Boston Bruins; referee Frank Udvari and linesmen Thompson and Sammy Babcock; referee - in - chief Carl Voss and Campbell.

Curious office workers in the building and even persons from the streets converged on the sixth floor, where the NHL offices are located. They arranged themselves along the corridor walls. Finally they were ordered away by the building superintendent.

RICHARD TIGHT-LIPPED

Richard was pale when he arrived; he flushed and fluttered but tight-lipped when he left, smiling once when reporters made some remark. Laycoe left an hour before the hearing ended, hustling from Campbell's private office—the hearing room—grabbing coat and hat and hurrying for a taxi. He had to catch a plane for Boston to play in Wednesday night's Detroit-Boston game.

The Rocket returned to hospital where he has been unsupping x-rays and other examinations for the head injury he suffered in the Boston incident. He went there but is expected to return to hospital sometime today.

All left without comment on the hearing. Campbell went without lunch, working alone in his office, writing his decision in longhand. Sheet by sheet it was carried by Voss to a stenographer in another room for typing.

Once he had left, Campbell could not—be reached Wednesday night. He made no comment on the threats against his life, telephoned by boiling mad fans. Most of the calls came after he had gone.

It is believed Campbell was disdainful of any police protection or bodyguard, a move suggested by one NHL official, but such a step wouldn't have been for the NHL president.

Last year after the Richard editorial outburst and also a stiff suspension to Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion for a stick-wielding affair, Campbell had police protection at the Forum when he attended a game.

A couple of fans who smuggled in "Down with Campbell" signs were hustled out.

Dutchies Whip Windsor Bulldogs; Win Senior Title

KITCHENER (CP)—Jack Hamilton, strapping 24-year-old centre for Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, rapped in two goals 41 seconds apart Wednesday night to give the Dutchies the Ontario Hockey Association senior A championship for the second time in three years.

Kitchener, who won the league title and then went on to take the Allan Cup in 1952-53, defeated Windsor Bulldogs 4-1 in the fifth game of a best-of-seven series. They lost the fourth game in Windsor Sunday, missing the chance for a clean sweep of the finals.

Hamilton will now meet the winner of the northern Ontario hockey association senior loop, Sault Ste. Marie leads that best-of-five set 2-0 over Iroquois Falls Abitibi Eskimos.

TIED IT UP

Hamilton combined with his wing mates Jack McKenzie and Jim Logan to tie the game 1-1 at 15:22 of the second period after Windsor had opened the scoring early in the first period. The three got together again at 16:06 for Hamilton's second and winning marker.

Lethwinger Carey Orr at 17:53 scored two clinchers in the final three minutes of the game to round out Kitchener's scoring. His final goal came on an open net as Bulldog netminder Hal Harrington was taken out for a sixth attacker.

Windsor, knowing they couldn't afford a setback, started out fast and early. Frank Battagale scored on Dutchman Brodeur on a long shot from the blue line before the game was two minutes old.

But the pace may have been their undoing. Brodeur, who suffered a leg injury Saturday, had to leave the game after trying to stop Battagale's shot.

HELD THEM OUT

From then on Keith Woodall, Kitchener goalkeeper on the 1952-53 Allan Cup team, took over and although he handled 24 shots, not one passed him. Harrington turned away 22 sipht.

Kitchener outscored the weary Bulldogs over the five-game series 23-11 and Hamilton scored five of those goals. Logan and McKenzie were the leading playmakers, each getting six assists in the five games.

For Windsor, Battagale was the only counting three goals in the series, all in the final two games. Jim Pappin also scored three times in the series.

Rocket Had Trouble, Fame, NHL Clubs Back President

By MEL MORRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Trouble and fame have gone hand-in-hand for Maurice (Rocket) Richard in his 13-year career with the Montreal Canadiens.

But never has he been punished so severely for his fiery outbursts as for his run-in with Hal Laycoe and Linesman Cliff Thompson in Boston Sunday night. National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell Wednesday set him down for the rest of the season and the playoffs for the stick - swinging melee.

Although he has paid more than $2,500 in fines into the NHL coffers, the suspension was only the second for the Rocket.

But it was for from his first brush with NHL opponents. He once clubbed Bobby Dill, backman of the New York Rangers, twice in the same game. Other tough boys he has bloodied with his clubs Bill Juzda, former New York and Toronto player, Hal Morcombe of Toronto and now Chicago, and Ted Lindsay, the scrappy little captain of the Detroit Red Wings.

"TOO BRITTLE"

Once almost abandoned as a prospect because he was too brittle Richard has seemed anything but that the players around the league circuits Bill Juzda, former New York and Toronto player, for Morcombe of Toronto and now Chicago, and Ted Lindsay, the scrappy little captain of the Detroit Red Wings.

"TOO BRITTLE"

Once almost abandoned as a prospect because he was too brittle Richard has seemed anything but that the players around the league circuits will testify.

Richard, a son of poor parents, was a daredevil even as a youngster in the Bordeaux district of Montreal.

When he started playing hockey with Verdun Maple Leafs of the Quebec Junior League, his willingness to throw his body in front of shots were his only assets. Hockey fans scorn him as a stiff and awkward player, with none of the catlike grace that later marked his NHL career.

Richard graduated to the Montreal Canadiens of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, a farm club of the NHL Habs, and quickly gained a reputation as a brittle player. He broke his ankle one season and his wrist the next, missing most of his team's games.

TEMPORARY REPLACEMENT

Dispersed for talent at the time, the NHL Canadiens decided to bring him up anyway but looked on him only as a temporary replacement until they found a better player.

After 16 games in the 1942-43 season, he again broke his wrist and the Canadiens stood gave up on him.

He came back the next year, however, and hurtled his way onto the team with his training-season performance. That year he scored 32 goals and was on his way.

A moody, silent man off the ice, Richard takes defeat hard.

But sometimes the tweens his tangles with officials and opposing players, Richard has managed to get just about every NHL record. His 422 goals are almost 100 more than Nels Stewart's old mark of 324. He also is the leading point-getter ever to play in the league and its leading scorer in playoff competition. He has been named the first all-star team six times and the second all-star team five times. He is almost certain to win a berth on one of the teams again this year.

What Canada Did

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Women's 50-metre low hurdle preliminaries — Gwen Hobbins, Toronto, set a Games record by winning her heat in 11.8 seconds.

Hop, step and jump—Jack Smyth St. Boniface, Man., finished fifth, 200 metres — Bruce Springbett, Vancouver, finished fifth in final.

Wrestling

114-pound class—Henry Hudson, Montreal, won his preliminary match by decisioning Eduardo Asam of Mexico.

TRY ITALIANS

ROME (AP)—Two lanky Italian baseball players, stars on Italy's European championship team, left by plane Wednesday for two months of training with the Washington Senators. They are Angelo Rizzo, a 24-year-old mechanic who catches for Roma's Lazio team, and Franco Lino Tenzi, 28-year-old insurance clerk, who plays centre field for Bologna.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Officials and players of National Hockey League clubs—those that remained—agreed Wednesday night that NHL president Clarence Campbell's suspension of Maurice Richard for the remainder of the season was not the most severe sentence that might have been imposed on the Montreal Canadien star.

Coach Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings, in Boston for a game against the Bruins, said Campbell "couldn't do anything less" to punish Richard for his stick-swinging outbreak at Boston last Saturday night.

"I had thought Richard might be suspended until Jan. 1 next season."

Ted Lindsay, the Detroit captain, who has had his own troubles with the league officials in the past, said Richard is lucky the suspension wasn't for life. Richard, football almost or anything else that much would be considered automatic."

TERRIFIC BLOW"

At St. Louis, where New York Rangers played Monday, Ranger captain Dean (Bones) Raleigh termed the suspension "a terrific blow to the Canadiens' chances of playoff hopes", and added that it probably will help Richard the league's scoring leadership.

Coach Frank Eddolls of the Chicago Black Hawks commented:

"Terrific blow"

Walter Brown, president of the Boston club, said: "That's the least they could do." And Boston forward Ed Sandford commented: "Too bad for the game, but the Montreal fan he had it coming to him."

Hal Laycoe, the Boston player whom Richard tangled with during his outburst, had no comment.

Fleming Mackell, Boston centre, said: "If they'd given me Richard at Richard in 1947 when he cut Bill Ezinicki and Vic Lynn, he might have stopped him and he might have become an even greater hockey player because of it."

SMYTHE SUPPORTS IT

Conn Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs, said he is behind Campbell all the way.

In a telephone interview from his Palm Beach, Fla., hotel where he is vacationing, Smythe said the suspension is good for hockey in general and for the players in the NHL particularly.

"Our own players know what the rules are and they govern them and so do nearly all the other players in the league and the suspension of Richard will protect the players in the future. It also showed that the NHL and hockey is bigger than the biggest star and that all players, star or run of the mill, must abide by the rules."

At Toronto, Clarence (Hap) Day general manager of the Leafs, said he had no comment to make "either way."

Joey Giardello Found Guilty

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joey Giardello was under an assault conviction today which will immediately force up to the Pennsylvania athletic commission, an Appeal Court and Carl (Bobo) Olson, the man he'd like to succeed as middleweight boxing champion.

Giardello was found guilty Wednesday night on charges he attacked a gasoline station attendant with a crutch during a row last Sept. 30. He was released in $1,000 bail.

The attorney for the top 160-pound contender announced he will appeal to a higher court and sentence was deferred by Judge Edward V. Little. Giardello faces a maximum penalty of eight years and a $3,500 fine. The minimum would be a period of probation.

Olson declined to give Giardello another crack at his title while the assault trial was pending. Whether Giardello's conviction would wipe out any chance at a title fight remains to be seen.

The athletic commission had no immediate comment.

An appeal could drag out for as long as a year and the state commission may permit Giardello to box in the meantime.

Americans Grab All Skate Titles But Pairs

REGINA (CP) — The United States swept all but the pairs competition in the North American figure skating championships which ended here Wednesday night.

The championships are held every two years. Except for the dance competition, there is no change from 1953 champions.

World Utilitz Tenley Albright of Boston and Hayes Alan Jenkins of Colorado Springs, Colo., were far ahead of other skaters in winning the men's and women's singles.

Miss Albright, out in front Tuesday after completion of the compulsory school figures, increased her lead in the free skating Wednesday night despite two falls.

Jenkins had a 63-point lead after compulsory figures and received near-perfect marks Wednesday night.

Carol Jane Peckl of Ottawa, 17-year-old Canadian senior champion was last in women's singles, trailing three Detroit skaters. Charles Snelling of Toronto, 17, Canadian senior champion, was third of four entries in men's singles.

Canada's only first was taken by world titlists Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden of Toronto.

Carmel and Edward Bodet of Ontario, Calif., won the dance event. Two Canadian entries in bober, Jeffery, Lodon, Ont., and brother, Jeffery, Lodon, Ont., and Geraldine Fenton and Gordon fourth and fifth.

Tumultuous Reception Given World Champion Penticton Vs

By AL MAKKLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — Triumphant whoops and cheers continued to ring out-in this Okanagan valley city today as hung-weary fans paid homage to Penticton's world hockey champion Vs.

The tumultuous homecoming welcome given the Vs here Wednesday night was something both the travel-weary players and more than 23,000 fans will long remember.

The parade, reception and banquet were almost anti-climactic after the hero's welcome originally forced upon the welcoming crowd.

The Vs had been expected early in the afternoon but didn't arrive until nearly 8 p.m.

ALL THE TRIMMINGS

After their plane touched down, a line of open convertibles, headed by a police escort, began their slow, convoy of fans through town and to the ice arena.

Thousands of screaming fans flocked to the streets when Grant Warwick came into view. He sat atop the back deck of a car, looking slightly stunned by the crowd but waving and calling to his friends. The most exciting fan fare was 13-year-old Grant Warwick, who long before the plane arrived kept telling the crowd "Daddy is coming home."

When the World Cup, a band and a float went past, the crowd was pushed back to the arena for the dance event. Two Canadian entries in bober, Jeffery, Lodon, Ont., and brother, Jeffery, Lodon, Ont., and Geraldine Fenton and Gordon fourth and fifth.

Then the whole procedure of pushing, squirming and whistling was repeated all over again.

The fans, on the rooftops and hanging from windows, kept up a steady cheer going from the time

Penticton Cats Honor Champs

PENTICTON, B. C. — (CP) — It may be nothing but coincidence, but the day the world hockey champion Penticton Vs arrived home a kitten was born, while with a grey "V" on its forehead.

Owner John Bowen Colthurst said he had no alternative. He named it Grant, after Grant Warwick, playing coach of the Vs.

Grant Warwick went past to the very end of the parade.

At one point the Pentictonites gave visitors an idea of what hockey night is like here, starting to "Go Vs Go" chant that rolled up one street like a wave.

RCMP, who estimated 22,000 people were in the city, said it was twice as bad as the night Vs won the Allan Cup.

A new sign greeted the Vs when they walked onto the sawdust-covered ice.

It said: "Home of the Penticton Vs, 1953 western Canadian champs, 1954 Allan Cup champions; 1955 world champions."

Acting-Mayor Joe Titchmarsh opened the ceremony, and was followed by C. L. Jones, MP. Highway Minister A. V. Gaglardi, hockey officials Mel Butler and Frank Grimston, and others.

When Grant Warwick stood to speak, 88-year-old Grant Warwick, he'd known a great.

It was Penticton's night for a party—a big one.

Dances were open to the public in every hall, and parties were in every house. Thousands roamed the streets, joking and laughing.

Leafs' Lumley Takes Lead Without Stopping a Puck

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins clashed Wednesday night, Detroit won, Boston lost. Both helped Toronto Maple Leafs, who lose.

And one of the happiest fellows around the National Hockey League was Harry Lumley, Leaf goalkeeper who moved back into the lead for the Vezina Trophy by one goal without stopping a puck.

Red Wings edged the Bentonvers 5-4 before 13,095 fans at Boston. Netminder Terry Sawchuk held a three-goal lead over Lumley in the dash for the Vezina and $1,000 prize money before he faced the Bruins. It was every point out but he found himself in second spot again, Bob Sawchuk and Lumley, who has allowed 132 goals this season, have two games left.

Leafs also cashed in a bit on the Detroit victory. They still are one point ahead of Bruins for third place for the third Stanley Cup playoff berth. Bruins have one game to play in the regular 70-game schedule. Leafs have two.

RANGERS-HAWKS TIE

In the only other engagement Wednesday night, the Rangers and New York Rangers and last-place Chicago Black Hawks fought to a 1-1 tie at St. Louis. Both are out of the playoffs.

The victory sent Detroit into a first-place tie with Montreal Canadiens. However, the Montrealers have a game in hand.

Lightning Fleming Mackell rammed the Rangers' goal in the first period for a high stick and three assists. Rollins of the Hawks grabbed but couldn't hold. Chicago matched him in the middle frame when veteran Bill Mosienko slickhandled through three Rangers and fired one shot into the corner of the cage.

Rush Seats At Arena

Three hundred rush seats will be available at the south end of the Memorial Arena on Lowbrow night, it was announced today. They will go on sale at the arena box office tomorrow night at eight o'clock.

Bobby-Dykes Whips Gavilan; Seeks Olson

MIAMI, Fla. (AP). — "We're going after Bobo Olson and his middleweight title," was the word today from the camp of a jubilant Bobby Dykes.

The lanky former Texan who fights out of Miami whipped Kid Gavilan, the former welterweight king, in a rousing 10-rounder at Miami Stadium Wednesday night and his handlers immediately called for a bout with Olson.

Dykes, 23, was the verdict of referee Patsy Sarrus and both judges before 4,457 spectators and uncounted television viewers.

Sharp rights and lefts to the Cuban's head earned the nod for Dykes who fought a long range while Gavilan frequently tied him up and pounded his ribs and midsection.

Gavilan, from Camaguey, Cuba, appeared to have lost much of his steam and never once threw his famous "hoio" punch.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, March 18, 1955.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Some self-imposed restrictions are good for all of us occasionally and the present period is best suited to try these. Handle all tasks, duties quietly and without complaint and you will have a good day.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — The stars offer little opposition to your general interests but, nevertheless, sensible caution is urged; avoid useless extravagance. The good judgment.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—This is not a day in which to expect that you will easily achieve or be pushed toward success. Work, study and plenty of patience will be essential. But you can advance some.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Today will be responsive to all who do their best without fuss or fanfare. Returns from efforts will compensate for the patience and industriousness one puts forth. You can achieve.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Never a better time than now to make improvements in yourself, your work, in the quality of any endeavor in which you are engaged. You may have to use extra patience and skill in some matters but they will return dividends.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—If you have any unfinished tasks that should be cleared away before the week-end today will be ideal for doing so. It is also friendly for starting new undertakings or at least getting them ready for action on Monday.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Familiar matters, occupational duties, home and all personal matters are under stimulating rays. Finances ask very careful handling as do property and important business transactions.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — Today's influences tend to soften undue aggression or dispositions toward irritability and pessimism. Work agreeably with these good influences; show your keen mentality.

November 23 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — If necessary and possible, clear away unfinished tasks, make ready for a restful week-end, and a quickened, more productive Monday and week ahead. Good rays.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — You may be the one to inspire others to do their best, to initiate activities that will insure a pleasanter day for all. Go ahead dutifully with planned program, too.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) —"A little with contentment" won't be today's answer. Rather it should be "more than expected from forthright endeavor." You have a "good tail wind," so speed along —but carefully.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Heed advice to Sagittarius. The tempo you strike should be consonant with day's demands. No need to overdo but, at the same time, the day can be filled with productive action—and pleasant, too.

You born today have ambition tempered with sensible calmness and restlessness usually modified by wise caution. If true to your finer instincts you will calmly consider all aspects of an undertaking or project, the background, how things stand generally, before you take important steps or make weighty decisions. You do not want your ideas to fail, but here is an admonition: do not hesitate too long or you will lose advantages, offerings. Don't regret past mistakes; improve so not to repeat them. Stride forward, seeking God's help always.

Minister Asked To Withdraw Word Witch-Hunt

OTTAWA (CP)—A cabinet minister Wednesday was called by the Speaker of the Commons to withdraw the words "witch-hunt" used in a reply to an opposition question about this session's controversial "entertainment" case.

Revenue Minister McCann inferred Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg, North Centre) that the federal government had no direct contracts from 1940 to 1954 inclusive with a construction company which maintained a luxurious country home to entertain public officials prior to contract negotiations.

He concluded by saying:

"I think it will be seen that the witch-hunt that was put on to attempt to show that here was a scandal has been entirely futile."

CALLED TO ORDER

Speaker Rene Beaudoin rose immediately and called the minister to order. He said the comment had no connection with supplying the answer to the question asked by Mr. Knowles.

Pressed by Mr. Knowles, who said it is unparliamentary to refer to a member's question as a witch-hunt, Mr. Beaudoin said:

". . . I do not think he (Dr. McCann) would want the words to remain on the record if it would please (Mr. Knowles) to have them withdrawn."

Dr. McCann said the term was not applied to an individual. If he had wanted to do so he would have included persons sitting not far from him. This was an apparent reference to Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton), who sits almost opposite the minister, because Dr. McCann added:

"I shall have occasion on some future date to take up the demand for my resignation."

OPPOSITION QUERIES

There have been numerous opposition questions this session about what dealing, if any, the government had with the construction company, On.Jan. 13 Mr. Fleming said in the House that the case had "all the earmarks of a major scandal" and he suggested that Dr. McCann consider resigning because it arose in his department.

Existence of the residence and its purpose was disclosed Jan. 8 in a judgment of the income tax appeal board.

The case created a storm in the Commons and Prime Minister St. Laurent said outside the House he would go the legal limit to get all the facts. Later, Dr. McCann reported the government knew of no federal officials, including cabinet ministers, having been entertained by the contract-seeking company at the palatial resort, believed in Quebec's Laurentian hills.

FOUR DIE

MANISTEE, Mich. (AP)—Four small children, members of a Negro family of 12, died in a fire that swept their home at Freesoil a half mile east of here Wednesday.

PUBLICATION

At Yalta they grappled with great political issues, including the future of Germany. The record shows they agreed on "dismemberment" of Germany in principle, but not on how it should be cut up.

But the overriding problem from the American point of view and perhaps from the Russian one was Russia's prospective entry into the war against Japan.

Russia agreed to come in once Germany was defeated. The war in Europe ended May 7, 1945. Russia entered the conflict with Japan Aug. 9, 1945, three days after the United States dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima. Japan surrendered Aug. 14, 1945.

The agreement between Roosevelt and Stalin on Russian entry into the Pacific war has produced years of political controversy in the United States.

Many Republican senators and others denounced Roosevelt's concessions as an unnecessary grant of position and power to Stalin. Roosevelt's defenders have replied it was the price he had to pay to assure Russian military action against the Pacific enemy, as his military advisers were urging.

State department officials are understood to have hoped publication of the record would bring the long dispute to an end. It appears, however, that the record may simply furnish more ammunition for it.

In addition a question has been raised as to whether the published record was complete in all details. The state department itself said some sentences had been made for reasons of national security or elimination of repetitious material or to avoid "needless offense" to foreign countries or to individuals. Thus, the controversy is expected to extend beyond the confines of Washington politics.

Two elections were made ar- the request of Churchill. Adjacent paragraphs indicate they concern Churchill's ideas of France's post-war position. Even with these and possibly other omissions, Churchill had declined to agree to the publication.

There were no major disclosures. The chief results of the Yalta conference have long since been known.

Revenge-Crazed Montreal Fans Go On Rampage

Tear-Gas, Bottles, Tomatoes Tossed in Seven-Hour Riot

By MEL MORRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Thousands of revenge-crazed hockey fans went on a seven-hour rampage of destruction and looting Thursday night in the worst demonstration Montreal has seen since the anti-conscription riots during the Second World War.

The fans, fired up to a fury of hate against Pat Kelly, Detroit Hockey League president Clarence Campbell, smashed windows, looted jewellery stores and beat up innocent bystanders as their rage flared on long after a game between the Canadiens and Detroit was called off at the end of the first period. The Red Wings, who were ahead 4-1, were awarded the game.

The trouble started as a noisy protest against Campbell's action in suspending Montreal's hockey idol—Maurice (Rocket) Richard—and grew until persons walking along busy St. Catherine street cowered in fear of the frenzied demonstrators.

Streetcar passengers, trapped in the immobilized cars, fled to the Forum, lay on the floor as bottles and chunks of ice came smashing through windows, scattering glass and panic.

100 IN CUSTODY

Police estimated they had more than 100 persons in custody as a result of the demonstration. Many had their pockets jammed with looted jewelry when taken into custody.

The mob went completely out of control, despite the efforts of hundreds of police and firemen. Five demonstrators pounced on a taxi driver for no apparent reason and pummelled him with punches and kicks.

The mob toppled some corner newsstands and set fire to others. More than 20 stores had their windows smashed and a number of cars were overturned. Many people were injured, but none seriously.

Inside the Forum, there was a deliberate hysteria after a demonstrator tossed a tear-gas bomb into a passageway near the entrance, sending spectators choking and screaming to the exits. Forum officials said only the calm of fans in the upper part of the rink, who remained there while those near the ice battled their way out, prevented a major disaster.

Chilean Vessel With 200 Aboard Grounds off Horn

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A ship's radio reported today that the 2,000-ton Chilean steamship Villarrica, with 200 passengers, went on the rocks in the Straits of Magellan off the tip of South America Tuesday, but that those aboard were rescued and "a relief ship is on the way to take off the remaining 100 or more passengers."

Les Byrnes, radio officer of the S.S. Mormacgulf which picked up some of the passengers, said the Villarrica, bound for Valparaiso, Chile, went on the rocks on a vacation cruise. A lighthouse tender took 80 passengers aboard.

"Last night (March 17) we picked up some passengers and will take them to Valparaiso," Byrnes radioed here. "The ship has a huge hole in the bottom but the stern is well up on the rocks and the emergency generator evidently is keeping the remaining passengers warm."

'Haunted' Cave Blamed for Tale Of Captive Child

GALT (CP) — What at first seemed a promising clue in the three-week-old mystery of Canada's missing Judy Carter, today was attributed to the wild tales of three local girls in "spooks," Judy Allard, 12, Margaret Thurber, 13, and Carole Duncan, 14. Thursday were hiking north on the west bank of the Grand river when they thought they saw a man in a cave holding his hand over a small girl's mouth.

The three, who had read reports of abduction of the Toronto eight-year-old, rushed to their city homes and told parents who started out on a search of the area on foot. Police questioned other city families to find if a man and a small girl had been seen in the district.

Searchers examined Devil's cave a dark rock cavern in a small creek where the girls reported seeing the couple, but found no evidence of recent occupancy. They believe the girls may have gained their impression from long-standing belief the cave is haunted by spooks.'

Guided Missiles Oust 2,000 Indians From Happy Hunting Ground in West

OTTAWA (CP)—Test firings of guided missiles have forced some 2,000 Indians from a 1,000-square mile happy hunting ground in northern Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Citizenship Minister Pickersgill said Thursday his department is faced with a tremendous problem in finding a new trapping area where the dispossessed Indians can find a similar livelihood.

He told the Commons estimates committee about the loss of trapping grounds in the Primrose Lake range, straddling the Alberta-Saskatchewan border northeast of Edmonton, at about the same time the RCAF was announcing the start of construction of a new guided missile range.

Under test is the new air-to-air guided missile—not yet in production—intended to be used as armament on RCAF interceptor planes in home defence.

Mr. Pickersgill said the Indians moved from the Cold Lake range depended on sale of furs for a livelihood. They are now preparing to find them new trapping grounds. New areas were scarce.

He said the main question of compensation with defence ministry officials before the Indians had been found.

The estimates committee also discussed the citizenship department's policy of trying to make citizens out of Canada's native people reliant. An undetermined number now live on reserves as government wards.

Mr. Pickersgill, answering a question, said the government's policy is to close its Indian schools as quickly as public schools are able to absorb the Indian pupils. The government paid for Indian children attending public schools.

MUNICIPALITIES TO GET BROADER GRANTS BY BILL

55 Corporations Will Be Added by New Law

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill which would double the number of municipalities receiving federal grants to compensate for an above-average amount of tax-exempt government property has been placed before the Commons.

Finance Minister Harris said Thursday that between 45 and 55 municipalities will be added to the 46 now receiving federal grants in lieu of taxes on government property.

He also outlined changes to broaden the base of payments and said grants in the 1955-56 fiscal year will increase to about $2,000,000 compared with $1,270,000 in 1953-54.

Seventeen members from all parties joined the debate on a resolution preliminary to introduction of the bill. Most welcomed the move and some said it should have gone further. Nearly all were anxious to know whether municipalities in their home ridings would benefit under the complex terms of the federal grants.

NOT ENTITLED

Mr. Harris listed no municipalities but said that under the bill no municipality would get a municipality full tax rates on federal property. Assessment is pending two per cent of total property assessment in a municipality.

Another 10 per cent, or 75 per cent of taxation on federal property would be paid per cent of total assessments.

The latter range would base grants on the normal mill rate instead of the somewhat lower mill rate applied to federal property.

He said the combined effect of the changes will be to calculate the grants at the full real property.

The increase, to be effective Jan. 1, 1955, would apply to the five years of municipalities starting on or after that date.

Jet Crashes Through Ice Of Lake Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — The RCAF reported today that a Gimli-based T-33 Silver Star jet trainer crashed through the ice of Lake Winnipeg late Thursday night seven miles east of Winnipeg Beach.

It was not known if the NATO pilot aboard the plane parachuted to safety.

The pilot was practising beacon approaches at 6,000 feet when he crashed at the time of the accident. In this exercise the pilot comes in on a beacon at 6,000 feet.

A search Dakota spotted a huge hole in the ice of Lake Winnipeg today with unidentified objects cluttered around the ice.

A RCAF spokesman said a board of inquiry has been formed to investigate the cause of the crash.

Attack on Canada Would Bring U.S. Action Says Dulles

OTTAWA (CP)—Any attack on Canada would be acted upon by the United States as an attack on the U.S. itself, John Foster Dulles is reported to have told Canadian parliamentarians.

The U.S. state secretary spoke for 35 minutes Thursday and then replied to questions for another 35 minutes before a special private meeting of the Commons external affairs committee. About 200 commoners and senators attended.

Persons at the meeting said Mr. Dulles skirted around a question whether the U.S. wants to station aircraft squadrons in Canada.

He said that is a military matter. Even if he could reply, he would not like to do so on security grounds.

Mr. Dulles outlined U.S. policy on Formosa but informants said his stand was the same as given by him and President Eisenhower previously—that the U.S. will not say definitely whether it will fight for the Chinese offshore islands.

However, the U.S. would defend, if fight for Formosa and the neighboring Pescadores, as well as Indochina, the Philippines, Japan and Australia.

Mr. Dulles also was reported to have told the believes the Chinese Communists intend to invade Formosa and that their declarations of this intention are not bluff.

If the U.S. decided to defend the offshore islands—chiefly Quemoy and Matsu—it would not undertake defensive warfare only. Attacks on targets on the coastal Chinese mainland, at least would be necessary.

Dealing with trade, Mr. Dulles was reported to have said the U.S. administration wants to make trade between Canada and the U.S. as free as possible. However, there were special interests in the U.S. concerned with.

He is scheduled to end his three-day Canadian visit Saturday.

West Germany Has Completed Ratification of Paris Pacts

BONN (CP)—The West German upper house today approved all the Paris treaties for rearming the republic, thus completing the ratification process in Parliament.

Immediately after the historic vote, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer declared: "This decision sets aside finally the agreements of Yalta."

With this vote, he added, the spirit of a "Big Coalition" was "buried."

The vote on the key accord to end the Allied occupation of West Germany and permit rearmament was 38 to 29. Parliaments of lower house, the Bundestag, similarly voted 244 to 191 almost three weeks ago on the same pacts.

With Bonn's action today nine countries, including Canada, now have completed parliamentary ratification of the Paris treaties to rearm West Germany. Another six, including France and the United States, have yet to finish the process.

The Soviets have gone through the French lower house and will be debated by the upper house in Paris next week in what is considered the final test of whether they will be ratified.

In a brief session this morning, the Bundesrat approved the series of treaties, including the controversial Franco-German pact to "Europeanize" the industrial Saar territory. Before the vote Adenauer's forces beat back a last-minute move by the opposition Social Democrats to block ratification of the Saar pact until further negotiations had been held with France.

Such an amendment, if accepted, could have caused weeks of delay in the whole complex.

No direct vote on the Saar pact was necessary, but rejection of the amendment to put it back in the slow-moving parliamentary mill constituted approval.

The upper house coupled three related bills in approval of rearming.

They demanded four-power talks on reunification of divided Germany, emphasized the temporary nature of the Saar agreement and urged removal of all remaining "occupation discriminations" against West Germany.

The last referred especially to West Germany's freedom of action in negotiating for recovery of its foreign assets seized by the victorious powers after the war.

The reunification resolution said that putting the divided country together again by peaceful means is the "highest national duty." It asked the Western Allies to get together with the Russians to work out a way of doing it through free, east-west elections.

DECISION RESERVED

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP)—Decision was reserved Thursday by the board of transport commissioners on an application of Canadian National Railways to abandon an 18-mile stretch of tracks between Alliston and Creemore. Reeve J.R. Peterson of Nottawasaga township told the board if the railroad was abandoned the district would return to the "black days" of 70 years ago before the railroad came.

NATURAL GAS PIPELINE WORK DELAYED YEAR

Company Fails to Get Federal Financial Aid

OTTAWA (CP)—Alberta's cheap natural gas will be delayed a year or more in reaching consumers between that province and Montreal.

Attempts to get federal aid for the company planning a $350,000,000 pipeline have fallen through and the company has deferred its construction plans for one year.

Meanwhile, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., will keep on pulling out about $500,000 a month from the pockets of backers—as it already has done to the tune of some $6,500,000—while it makes a new try at financing the world's largest single project.

Breakdown of negotiations between Trans-Canada and the government was announced by the company's president, Grant Glazebrook, Thursday night.

TAKE OVER CONTROL

The company said that the terms under which federal aid would have been extended for the 2,200-mile line called for giving the government power to take over voting control of the Canadian and United States-based concern.

It said some of its gas-supply companies in Alberta balked at selling to a government-dominated firm, so that it could not get enough gas for market.

Result of this outcome of a long series of top-level discussions between government men, bankers and officer executives of the biggest schedule for the laying down of gas lines in Canadian points now looks like this:

Winnipeg, late 1956; Toronto and other Ontario points, late 1957; Montreal, some time in 1958.

IMPOSSIBLE NOW

The original schedule, calling for each of these a year earlier, was dependent on a construction start this year, which Trans-Canada president Nathan E. Tanner of Minneapolis said was not a possible now.

He said the company will apply for a year's deferment on all permits that were aimed at a 1955 construction start.

This money-raising is one of the greatest private financing jobs in Canada's history and has seen Trans-Canada signing supply contracts in the West and sales contracts in the East. About one-quarter of the supply contracts have been clinched.

Word of the strike was disclosed Thursday when a doctor was called to attend the elderly woman.

Mrs. Dookhobor, spokesman for the group said the parents and some grandparents are fasting in protest to government action in taking away their children and putting them in a residential school.

Youths Raid Stores, Defy Cops In Hockey Madness

Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Fear walked the streets of Montreal Thursday night as a frenzied mob took control of the city's main shopping centre and went on a rampage of looting and destruction.

In an angry protest at the suspension of their idol, star hockey player Maurice (Rocket) Richard, they streamed down St. Catherine St. with police in their wake, smashing windows, looting indiscriminately and littering the streets with broken glass from streetcar windows.

It will be "days before anybody knows the full extent of the damage but it will run to tens of thousands of dollars. Looters cleaned out watches, cameras and jewelry from more than a dozen store windows and escaped with a total of a score of others.

The trail of damage covered 15 blocks. One owner of a jewelry store on a quick check put his losses at $10,000.

It was the end of a night that started apparently as only a noisy protest against Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, for his decision today in banning the Rocket for the rest of the season and the playoffs. Mr. Richard's temper flared after the complaint was lodged with the NHL chief.

Hours before the game demonstrators bearing placards paraded in front of the Forum calling for the return of the Canadiens star.

The demonstration became a riot after the Canadiens had been thrown inside the Forum at the end of the first period. This caused

Yalta Publicity Has Done No Harm Dulles Declares

Will Not Make Diplomacy More Difficult He Says

OTTAWA (CP)—U. S. publication of the Yalta documents will not make diplomacy among the free nations any more difficult, John Foster Dulles said today.

The U. S. state secretary told a press conference that the documents were published in the normal course of processings of the state department which periodically published records of diplomatic events.

"Why should they not be published?" he asked.

He said all the essential facts of the Yalta conference on the Russian Crimea in 1945 were already known through the books of Prime Minister Churchill, former U. S. state secretaries Byrnes and Stettinius.

From their accounts, there didn't seem to be any reason why the state department should not publish the Yalta papers at this time.

DENIES ATTACK

He added that he knows of no U.S. intention to denounce the Yalta treaty under which concessions were made by Roosevelt to Stalin for entry of Russia into the war against Japan.

Mr. Dulles answered all questions on the Soviet Union's properties. He showed no trace of hesitancy. He was asked why the state department had made public the papers at this time.

He said each nation must be free from time to time in the interests of public knowledge and historical accuracy to publish diplomatic papers. However, the full picture probably would not be obtained unless other governments published at the same time documents dealing with the same event.

On Far Eastern policy, Mr. Dulles said he would not be pinned down on whether the U.S. would definitely fight for the Chinese off-shore islands in event of an attack on them by the Chinese Communists. That was a matter for the president to decide.

He said the U.S. would deem an attack on the off-shore islands of Quemoy and Matsu a preliminary to an attack on Formosa. Mr. Dulles said that would seem to be the case at the moment but would not necessarily apply at some future date. Defence of Formosa power was not going to make up his mind in advance.

CANADA INVITED

The U. S. does recognize the right of the Communists to claim Formosa, Mr. Dulles said, the right to take it by force.

Similarly, U.S. recognized the right of South Korea to govern all of Korea, but that did not mean South Korea had the right to use force to obtain this end.

The U.S. does recognize China because the Red regime refuses to abide by the accepted standards of international relations. It had been branded as an aggressor, it has violated the Korean armistice and was uttering the most violent propaganda attacks against the U.S. and other countries.

U.S. recognition of Russia did not carry with it a measure of approval, Otherwise, it would not recognize the U.S.S.R.

Mr. Dulles said U.S. recognition of the Chinese Communists would encourage the Soviet Union and other "highly malevolent regime" which now are trying to undermine possible to destroy and injure the legitimate interests of the U.S. in Asia.

Campbell Denies He Will Resign As NHL Prexy

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said today "I have no intention at all of resigning."

He made the statement in an interview with The Canadian Press after reports circulated that he planned to resign because of riotous demonstrations set off by his appearance Thursday night at the Montreal Forum.

Urge Churchill Release British Version of Yalta

LONDON (AP) — As anger mounted in the British press, members of the House of Commons today called on Prime Minister Churchill to set the record straight on Western policy at the time of the Yalta papers.

Labor member Emrys Hughes wanted to know if Churchill "now proposes to publish the British version of the Yalta papers."

Other questions demanded details of consultations between Britain and the U. S. before publication of the papers and "what was the nature of British representations" to Washington about the release of the documents.

'Y' Residence Newly Decorated

"A 'home away from home' would be a suitable title for the Y.M.C.A. Residence," stated Mr. Gilbert Scott, chairman of the Properties Committee of the Y.M.C.A. "Residents are now enjoying all the comforts of home life in re-decorated single rooms and under the motherly supervision of Mrs. J. Eadie, matron of the residence. We are grateful to the members of the Y's Men's Club and of the Parement's Club for decorating the rooms," continued Mr. Scott.

A TV set, on a meter basis, has been installed recently in the residence lobby and has already added to a social atmosphere, fellowship and entertainment of the "Y" residents. Friendships are being formed as the men gather around the TV each evening to chat, and to listen to their favorite programs. "Y" residents have also access to the gym, the swim pool and the other physical departmental facilities.

"The 'Y' residents are a part of the total 'Y' membership," concluded Mr. Scott, "and we are happy that it has been made possible for us to add to the comfort. Young men coming to a new city are always faced with problems of adjustment. The local 'Y' is actually meeting a real need in helping the newcomer with a number of problems."

Men residing at the 'Y' these days represent a variety of professions and trades. Some are office and store clerks, others are construction men, travellers, some are visiting relatives in town, while local industries such as the Hydro, Bakelite and the Northern Electric are as always well represented.

Mayors of Belleville, Kingston Have Little Wager on Series

The mayor of Belleville could reign over Kingston for a day if this city's hockey Mecca win the Eastern Ontario Senior "B" championship from Kingston Goodyears.

In any event the last laugh of the group playoffs this year will be a horse laugh.

Belleville's Mayor Jack Both has offered the lead Kingston's Mayor George Clarke Wright, mounted on a horse down Belleville's main street for six blocks if the local hockey team loses the group championship.

The offer, accepted this morning by Mayor Wright, includes a proviso that if Belleville wins the best-of-seven group finals Mayor Both, mounted on a horse, will be led down Kingston's main street by Mayor Wright.

The mounted mayor, in switching the city hall will be asked to make a speech.

The terms of the agreement are to be made public at the first session the first Saturday following the end of the hockey series.

Mayor Wright, as are all the citizens of Kingston, is confident of winning the challenge. So is Belleville's Mayor Both. Both can't be (W)right.

The series starts tonight in Belleville's Memorial Arena, which has been sold out for both days. The second game will be played in Kingston Community Centre Saturday night. It, too, has been a sellout since Kingston eliminated Whitby Monday evening.

Official acceptance of the terms of the challenge will be sealed tonight at CHOV-TV, when both mayors will appear on a television program. A. O. Drysdale, secretary-manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, will accompany Mayor Both in Kingston tonight. The president of the Kingston Chamber will appear with Mr. Wright.

Kingston, Ontario, Senior "B" hockey champions for years, there is so confident of winning the series that the Goodyear players have agreed to act as a guard of honor for their mayor's triumphal entry. Each player will wear a band have also been secured.

The idea for the mayor's contest originated with the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. President Ken McGrath secured the co-operation of Mayor Both and issued the challenge to the mayor of Kingston through the Kingston Chamber.

St. Patrick's Day Play Enjoyed by Large Audience

(BY HARRY MULHALL)

A noble family, played the fool with gusto running the gamut of GREEDY, and was ably assisted by the audience for the hard work he obviously put in on his characterization.

CHARMING GAMIN

As Peg, the Irish cousin of the family, a brush of a girl who'd always wound up in the soup in her naivete, Miss Whelan was a charming gamin, playing her part gracefully.

Barbara Chappelle as the vinegary Ethel, daughter of the family, gave a comfortable portrayal. The haughty Lady Chicheard was well conveyed, in appearance if not in voice, by Mary McDougall.

A limp characterization was turned in by Jeremy O'Sullivan as Monigomery Hawkes, family lawyer. Mr. O'Sullivan missed a fine opportunity as Hawkes in character a contrast in comedy, as Ay Jerry, the guardian, Gerald Cooper also failed to hit the mark.

Bernard Mascaro, playing the playboy Brent, allowed his character a little too much leeway and gave it more confidence.

Other parts were adequately taken by Ted McDonough and Margo Poirier.

A generous fault among the cast was the lack of voice modulation.

The direction of Catharine Darlington of Catharine Darlington Productions of Toronto made full use of the stage.

The entire company was not overly aided by the facilities available to them on stage. Lighting was poor with shadows continually being cast on the features of the players. Mary Mosely's setting are to be commended since they turned the meagre facilities to advantage.

St. Michael's possesses a good stage and auditorium and it is a pity the producers were given so little to work with.

Overall production was what it should have been—entertaining.

Theatre Guild Hears Address On Stage Scenery

The history of stage scenery and settings was the subject of an address by Cecil Tanner, to members of the Belleville Theatre Guild at a meeting Wednesday in Queen Victoria School.

Mrs. Tanner illustrated her talk with film strips prepared by Richard Southern, English theatre historian, whose exhibition was a feature of last year's Stratford Shakespearean festival.

The talk outlined the evolution of stage settings from the theatre of 300 years ago when there was no proscenium arch or curtain through the use of "flats" and "wings" to modern three dimensional settings and properties.

Illustrations included some of the trick settings of the Victorian era when portions of scenery would open to reveal visions and "cutout" sets, which, when lit, from below, gave the illusion of moonlight.

A. S. Robb, president, announced during the business portion of the meeting, that the Theatre Guild would attempt no more public presentations this season. He gave notice that certain amendments to the Guild's constitution would be proposed at the annual meeting in April 1955.

Members appointed to the nominating committee are: Miss Peggy Blaiklee, Frank Deacon and Bert Simpson.

Dairy Supply Salesman Killed, Train Hits Car

Robt. Anderson, 54, of Perth, dairy supply salesman, was instantly killed early Thursday afternoon when his car was struck by a westbound Canadian Pacific railways freight train at Lonsdale, 18 miles east of Belleville.

Anderson, who had been visiting customers in the district for his supply firm, apparently failed to see the approaching train until it was too late and was believed to have froze on the controls of his auto. His car was carried some distance down the track as the freight ground to a stop and Anderson was thrown from the wrecked vehicle.

Provincial Police Corporal Ray Hall investigated the accident said there would be no inquest.

Give Farmers Equal Voice With Buyers

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Thomas said Thursday amendments to the Farm Products Marketing Act are designed to give producers an equal voice with buyers.

A government bill amending the act was given second reading in the Ontario legislature and today will be up for discussion before the legislature's agriculture committee.

"It forces nothing down the farmer's throat," Mr. Rather. It sets up the machinery for paving a wide road to stable markets, a road the farmer can use at his own discretion," said Mr. Thomas.

He described the bill as providing strength for existing farm marketing legislation and granting wide powers to farm groups to set prices and control marketing of their products under collective schemes.

Napanee Farmer Trussed Up, $280 Stolen from Strong Box

Confronted by two masked men as he went to the barn to do chores, Lincoln Brown, 70-year-old Napanee district bachelor farmer was trussed up in his barn Thursday afternoon and robbed of $280.

The robbers who smashed open a strong box in the Brown home to get the cash, were said to have overlooked close to $10,000 in bonds.

After trussing the elderly farmer up to a post with a rope, the two men went into the house and smashed the safe. Then they went back to the barn, released Mr. Brown by cutting his bonds with a knife they brought from the kitchen and walked away.

Napanee town police joined with Ontario Provincial Police in an effort to round up the two robbers after the alarm was given but although road blocks were set up the hunt was unsuccessful. It was believed by police that the two men may have hopped a freight to get out of the area.

Mr. Brown told police that it was dark in the barn and he was unable to give any said to identify the robbers although he said he thought the two men were young. When the robbers released him Mr. Brown was told to stay in the barn, for at least one hour after 15 minutes he went to the home of a neighbor and phoned police.

Brown was uninjured by the robbers but suffered rope burns as he attempted to pull himself free and was treated by a doctor.

"Hawaii—Crossroads of Pacific," Delights Capacity Film Audience

"Hawaii — Crossroads of the Pacific" is likely the loveliest colored travel film ever shown. Smith's technicolor tour of this mid-Pacific playground delighted a capacity audience at the Belleville collegiate last evening. His picture was the last in the current series of Kiwanis World Travel and Adventure films.

Mr. Smith's Hawaii proved to be a land of strikingly beautiful contrasts. Here are found the spectacular sights of extinct volcanoes to rush tropical valleys, from sugar cane plantations to tourist playgrounds. Every facet of Hawaii's business, social, political and agricultural life was touched on in Mr. Smith's film.

Striking pictures of expert surf board riders travelling 30 miles per hour before slow down waves drew gasps from the audience. Luxury hotels, multicolored orchestras, shops, company towns, sugar and pineapple plantations, a forest of 40-foot high ferns, native hulas, costume parades, underwater spear fishing and hair-raising tree age sports of sliding down a mountain side and high diving into the ocean captured the rich and varied life of Hawaii in exciting colors.

UNUSUAL PICTURES

Unusual pictures included panoramic views of Hawaii's grand canyon, the seared and crusted interior of an extinct volcano, and a herd of black, lava sand. Other features included scenes of a Buddhist wedding ceremony, cattle raising on a 500,000 acre ranch with Mexican cowboys twirling lariats, and the Hawaiian leper colony of Molokai made famous by Father Damien, the leper priest.

Everywhere were brilliant flowers and trees captured in all their splendor at the peak of their bloom.

Mr. Smith's polished narration included a wealth of historical and statistical detail that gave Hawaii a new meaning for its magnificent weather and story — book scenery. A new carbon arch projector, used last night for the first time, did justice to Mr. Smith's brilliant technicolor.

Aerial and underwater pictures gave the picture welcome variety and pace.

"Hawaii — Crossroads of the Pacific" is a must for those who described the islands, is truly, "the loveliest fleet of islands anchored in any ocean."

Belleville Man Caught in Office With Safe Open

Found by police standing in front of an open safe in the office of the Belleville Driving Park on Dundas street, Frank Dudley Wilband, 26, of Belleville and Pembroke St., was arrested shortly before midnight last night and charged with breaking and entering with intent to rob.

During his night patrol P. C. Keith Kimmett noticed a window broken at the rear of the Selberling office. He called for police reinforcements and with Sgt. Roy Milligan and Constables Hall and Waring surrounded the building. The office was then entered and Wilband was found standing beside the open safe. Police said that only records were in the safe. Wilband was held in custody for court appearance on Tuesday.

IN MEMORIAM

LANGABEER. — In loving memory of Albert Langabeer, who passed away March 18th, 1954.

Sadly missed in my hour of trial,
With whom I'll never part,
Lying in my hand he died,
I have him in my heart.

Memories are sweet, but it is ever near
Those I love who are in heaven
Until the day we meet them
In that bright and happier clime,
It's just when we need to say
"Thy will be done" in the morning
At the dawn of a beautiful day.
Always remembered by his wife Ada. M18

Sadly missed, but not forgotten,
His weary trials and troubles are past,
He suffered his cross and bore it
Till God called him home to suffer no more.
Always remembered by son Harold, Buddy and Johnny. M18

LANGABEER. — In loving memory of a devoted husband and loving father, Albert Langabeer, who passed away March 18th, 1954.

Always a smile, instead of a frown,
Always a kind word, never a cross,
Always a friend to cheer you down,
Always kind.
What a wonderful memory he has behind.
Loved and cared and ever remembered by daughter Thelma, son-in-law Bill and grandchildren Billy, Judy, Gail, Donna, Doreen and Bruce. M18

A beautiful memory, dearer than gold,
Of a father whose worth can never be told.

And whispers, don't grieve, death cannot divide.
Deep in our hearts his memory is kept
Of one we loved and cannot forget.
As long as our hearts can beat we pray for you,
We will always be thinking, dear Dad, of you.

Seamen's Unions Plan to Unite

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's two major seamen's unions pledged Thursday night to unite in a single body.

The announcement came a few hours after Capt. H. J. McMaster, president of Local 136 of the maritime division of the United Mine Workers of America, CIO-CLC, was expelled for alleged irregularities.

Following a snap meeting with Hal Banks, Canadian director of the powerful Seafarers International Union, Capt. McMaster announced he will bring his 1,000-man membership into union with 5,500-member SIU.

Capt. McMaster said the expulsion notice was forwarded to him Thursday by telegram from Irving A. DesRoches, UMW regional director for the eastern Canada.

The maritime chief said the telegram accused him of charging exorbitant dues and initiation fees and levying assessments on members without authority.

The telegram also said Capt. McMaster has held no union membership meetings for the last four years, and has failed to negotiate collective labor agreements under regulations laid down by the parent body.

Y's Men's Club Hears Address On Gas, Sees Film

Regular meeting of the Y's Men's club here last night was highlighted by a film, "Gas for Home and Industry," presented by the Merchants' Gas company.

The film was introduced by company representative Don Maxwell, who also delivered an address on natural gas.

Today gas is coming into its own and will undoubtedly become an important a fuel as oil, if not more important, Mr. Maxwell said.

"In the fields of commerce and industry there are literally thousands of applications, ranging from the simple baking of a loaf of bread to the best treating of metal and firing of glass and china. Gas serves in over 20,000 industrial processes", he said.

Commenting on the projected trans - Canada pipeline Mr. Maxwell claimed one failing a certainty.

"The east needs the natural gas of the west, and the west needs the markets of the east, and if Trans-Canada pipeline can't link the two, some other company will. It is not widely known, but there are other firms ready and willing to do the job, should Trans-Canada fail to start operations."

U.K. Labor Party Wins By-Election Despite Split

WREXHAM, Wales (Reuters)—The Labor party retained its parliamentary seat in a by-election here Thursday and despite the current rift between the right and left wings of the party it slightly increased its percentage of the vote.

The Conservative candidate in today's result, Guthrie Jones, polled 12,457, a third candidate, Welsh Nationalist Elystan Morgan, received 4,372 votes.

Composition of the 625-member House of Commons now becomes: Conservatives and allies 322; Labor 292; Independent Labor 2; Liberals 6; Irish Nationalists 2; Irish Labor 1. This gives the Conservatives a majority of 18, since the speaker, a Conservative, does not vote.

Rev. R. D. MacLean Inducted As Minister at St. Andrew's

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church has a resident minister for the first time since November.

He is Rev. R. D. MacLean, formerly of Huntingdon, Que., who last night was inducted into his new ministry at St. Andrew's.

Rev. MacLean succeeds Rev. J. G. Hornsby, now of Picton, to the resident ministry, who resigned from his Belleville call last November. Then Rev. R. C. McLean, Trenton, has been acting as interim moderator.

Former minister Mr. Hornsby preached the sermon during the service, taking as his text, St. Paul's second epistle to Timothy, chapter two, using the quotation, "The Word of God Is Not Bound."

Once Paul, as Saul of Tarsus, was a student who specialized in mysteries of his people, the Hebrews. He knew his people had been led step by stage into the full awareness of what God was and what was due that awareness. After the many sad and weary experiences the word of God had remained steadfast and had not been affected by changes that marked the nation's development. Saul recognized this and regarded Christianity as ah attempt to change the Word of God.

"So he became its persecutor and for a time things went very well.

"Saul worked very hard for the funeral of the Christian church. Then the tide turned and it reached its high watermark on the road to Damascus where Saul met Christ Himself."

Then Saul found that the word of God could not be bound by the Hebrew theory.

Mr. Hornsby also pointed up the example of seventeenth-century England's John Bunyan, who steadfastly refused a stop preaching in the face of continued imprisonment.

SPREAD THE WORD

"Try as you will you cannot bind the word of God", Mr. Hornsby said.

He emphasized the necessity of spreading the Word.

"If you have a faith let it be known."

"There is nothing whatsoever in the workings of the Christian Faith that you and I need be ashamed of."

"It is still the truth that can lead to salvation," he said.

If one is faithful in living by the Word of God, practicing it and propagating it then a great benefit will rest upon our spirits, much good will be done the Church and great honor to the name of God, he concluded.

Interim moderator R. C. McLean then narrated the steps in securing the new minister to Rev. H. V. Walker, supervised the induction ceremony.

Rev. M. C. Young, Gananoque, delivered the charge to the newly-inducted minister and a congregation of the opportunities, duties and privileges of a minister.

"The task of the Christian minister is in many ways the most trying of all tasks," he said.

At times it can be discouraging, but the privileges of the calling far outweigh any temporary discouragement. He reminded the new minister what a congregation expects of him. Important were the qualities of sincerity and mental alertness.

It is the duty of the minister to hear the Word of God and to tell the people what the voice of God has to say.

Today "the people are frightened. People are looking to the Word of God."

"You are called as a prophet to speak the word of God to our people," he said.

The charge to the congregation was delivered by Rev. S. Dunn, RCAF station, Trenton.

"If you are a Christian you have a job to do," he said.

THREE DUTIES

A Christian has three duties to perform: (1) he has to give worship publicly and privately; (2) He must give witness, and, (3) He must labor in Christ-like deeds.

The new minister closed the service with Benediction.

Afterwards a reception was held in the Sunday School Hall, where members of the congregation met with their minister. Chairman of the reception was W. V. Fairbairn.

ON EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS

The Montreal Gazette publishes a letter from four Ottawa citizens regarding the dismissal of Charles J. Woodsworth as editor of the Ottawa Citizen. They express the view that "such actions as the dismissal of Mr. Woodsworth should not take place without public objection."

Sentiments like these, of course, can always be depended upon to raise a cheer in the editor's den, however frostily they may be received in the publisher's sanctum. Our original enthusiasm, however, was considerably dampened by noting that Mr. Woodsworth was dismissed, according to the letter-writers, because of his editorial views. "The suggestion that a publisher has no right to dismiss an editor with whose views he disagrees bears an unfortunate resemblance to the contention of some letter-writers that editors have no right to refuse to publish their epistles. "Don't you believe in freedom of the press?" they will query indignantly and the heat of their anger is only increased by the patient explanation that we certainly do but that does not mean by freedom of the press in the right of the owner to publish whatever he likes, within the limits of the laws of libel, and not the right of every person to have his views broadcast, hates and peeves published free of charge. Most newspapers publish most letters they receive—but this is a courtesy they extend to the letter-writers, not a duty which they owe to the public.

Similarly in this country an editor has the vested right to freely express his own opinions in the editorial columns of the newspaper. These editorials are supposed to express the opinion of the newspaper, which means the opinion of the publisher. If publisher sometimes instruct editors to voice opinions with which they do not agree it is because they are being courteous to their editors, either because they feel sorry for the editor or because they do not know where they would pick up another editor for the same money if the present one left in a huff. Or, perhaps, the reason behind the latitude given editors may be not so much courtesy as that tired feeling which must descend on publishers when they endeavor to get editors to say exactly what they, the publishers, think. As editors know so well in their everyday dealings with men, there is nothing quite so soul-trying as endeavoring to get another person to write a piece exactly as you would write it if you were doing it yourself.

Most of the editorials you see in your daily newspaper are neither the opinions of the persons who wrote them nor of the person who owns the newspaper in which they appear. They represent a compromise. The editorial writer tries to make his own opinions appear as much as possible like the opinions he thinks the publisher holds, without at the same time ceasing to be himself. Allowance to the writer's opinions. The publisher attempts to enhance the resemblance to his own ideas without going to the trouble of rewriting the piece entirely. This system, which may appear cumbersome in theory, works very well in practice. Sometimes, though, the opinions of editor and publisher are so diametrically opposed that a compromise is impossible. In such cases the editor is a sure loser. Most editors regard this as inevitable and not unreasonable.

What about intellectual honesty? It is simple. If the publisher wants something printed with which the editor does not agree, he just tells the publisher to get somebody else to write it. Most publishers take no offence at such a request. Of course, if it happens too often the publisher may feel it necessary to dismiss the editor, or the editor may decide that it is necessary for him to resign. This is apparently what happened in the case of Mr. Woodsworth and the Ottawa Citizen.

The Ottawa residents who wrote to the Montreal Gazette say that "in these days of challenge to democratic institutions, there is a danger of pressure toward conformity on all those willing and able to argue publicly issues." This suggests that editors are more likely to be characters than are publishers. It is an erroneous belief which the letter-writers share with many readers of editors, however, are either earnest young men of the most orthodox habits of mind or former hard-drinking reporters who have somehow managed to stop wrestling with the bottle. Both types are highly conventional. But pub-lishers—Hah!

You will note that the fact that this editor has been able to make this comment about publishers is conclusive evidence that publishers are courteous enough to permit editors to advocate opinions which are at variance with those of the publisher—or that publishers do get too tired to bother blue-penciling all the stuff that editors toss on their desks.

TO THE GUILLOTINE!

France will build a hydrogen bomb.

Premier Edgar Faure says she must be in the same class as those "aristocratic" nations that have the weapon.

Maybe the "sans culotte" nations will some day devise a guillotine capable of dealing with the new aristocracy.

If the United States stops exploding atomic bombs what will we blame for the weather?

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 18th, 1935

Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P., gave a highly interesting and informative address on trade relations and tariffs at a meeting of the Trenton Young Conservatives' Club in Canniton. Mr. Fred Mitchell, the president, occupied the chair. Reports on the recent convention in Toronto were made by the delegates, Mrs. Bell, Bruce Martin, the past president and Herb Scollan.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Marshall of Fort Erie, Ontario, are visiting friends here.

Miss Jean Holland and Miss Kathryn Henley were the hostesses at the Badminton Club party last evening.

At the A. L. I. officers' bi-weekly party, Major T. G. Weeks, C.A., and Mrs. Sword, Capt. W. C. Morgan, M.C., and Mrs. Morgan and Lieut. Jack Morgan were the hosts at a delightful gathering in the officers' mess and lecture room. A four-piece orchestra supplied pleasant music during the evening and an excellent buffet supper was enjoyed at midnight.

March 18th, 1925

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eggleton of Holloway, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding on March 17th. Mr. Eggleton is 73 years of age and Mrs. Eggleton has reached the age of 69 years. They have spent the greater part of their lives in the Holloway district. Many friends called at their home during the day to extend congratulations and in the evening a party in their honor was held at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett. The bride and groom of fifty years ago received many handsome presents.

Mr. John Elliott of this city won the Canadian championship, which was St. Patrick's Day, and addressed the members of the Iosic Chapter R. A. M. His subject was Ireland and the Irish.

40 YEARS AGO

March 18th, 1915

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farley, Trent Road, celebrated the 40th. anniversary of their wedding yesterday. An enjoyable evening was passed by friends and neighbors who gathered at their home to offer congratulations and to express good wishes. A feature of the evening was the presence of three persons who were present at the wedding 40 years ago; they were the bridesmaid, who is Mrs. Rose of Bayside, Trent Road, and Mrs. McMullen, Commercial Street, Belleville, a sister of the groom of forty years ago and Mr. Manley Farley, a brother of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Dr. Speer of Toronto is a guest at the Tabernacle Parsonage, Church Street.

Maple syrup is selling at 40 cents per quart.

A group picture of the members of the Board of Education is to be placed in the public schools and the Collegiate, a roll of honor giving the names of former pupils now serving at the front overseas is to be prepared and placed in the Collegiate.

From our file copy at this time in 1935: Mr. Thomas Hanley of this city, who has the contract to rebuilt St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, which was destroyed by fire, is getting material on the ground.

50 YEARS AGO

March 18th, 1905

At a meeting of the pupils of the Belleville High School at which Mr. E. F. Milburn, M.A., the principal, presided, Miss A. Monaghan of the 4th. form read an address on behalf of the pupils to Mr. J. T. Lutol, who has resigned as a member of the teaching staff to accept the position of principal of the Chesley High School. Following the address Wallace Robb made the presentation of a handsome clock to Mr. Luton as a slight token of the pupils' appreciation of his great services to them during the time they were under his instruction.

The police weighed bread produced by local bakers yesterday and found all samples up to the required standard.

Two Can Play At This Game

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

An annual student boycott of "dead and incompetent" university professors was recently recommended at a meeting in Hart House. It was not the brainchild of any campus cut-up group but was proposed, and seconded in earnest, by Anthony Frisch, a Pickering College English teacher.

In a statement that no university teaching practices be likened to "dead professors' chairs, cluttered living off carcasses" and charged that college courses stifle, rather than encourage, creative art.

Massey Report recommendations, he maintained, will only waste taxpayers' money producing theses no one reads. Massey funds for promoting culture would be "fraudulently misappropriated" he said, it used to expand scholarly analysis and commentary on literary works.

Criticizing professors as the only profession where no check is ever made on their performance, he urged a "Cut Crummy Classes" day and, by way of adding weight to his argument, polled his student audience on the number of "dead" professors they must endure. (His listeners felt rigor mortis had settled upon 56 of 132 teachers listed.)

If Mr. Frisch was only indulging in a little harmless ragging he succeeded admirably, drawing a page-wide grin from the gleeful pontoo newspaper. No doubt his little address has enhanced his popularity rating with his student body.

However, the primary duty of college professor, or indeed teacher, is not to entertain. A poll of teachers rating the proportion of their students who fail to graduate would prove equally revealing.

Eliminating those not hired from the previous night's fun to absorb the lesson, the woolgatherers, and those simply killing time until the next diversion, would probably reduce the classroom congestion considerably.

The latter prove to "Cut Crummy Classes" day would doubtless be in order.

Shoulder Line Stops Crashes

(Watertown Times, Connecticut)

Dr. John V. N. Dorr, internationally famous metallurgical engineer, has put on a one-man campaign to end a particular type of auto accident.

Dr. Dorr, a resident of Westport, Conn., whose wife suggested that she was having difficulty staying on the right side of the road, when blinded by the glare of oncoming headlights, Connecticut highway officials install a white shoulder line on an experimental stretch of highway near Greenwich. She became an advocate of the device behind the entire Merritt parkway in Connecticut was recently treated.

More substantial support was given Dr. Dorr's white shoulder line by Greenwich police following the address Wallace Robb made the presentation of a handsome clock to Mr. Luton as a slight token of the pupils' appreciation of his great services to them during the time they were under his instruction.

The police weighed bread produced by local bakers yesterday and found all samples up to the required standard.

Absentminded Snaffle Pens

(Detroit Free Press)

Post office officials blame "absentmindedness" for the disappearance of thousands of steel pen point pens from public desks in Detroit and other cities. They "expect" most of the pens will be returned when patrons discover they have them in pockets or purses.

This attitude aptly illustrates the difference between government operations, where it is easy to think of things being "free", and private enterprise, where management is held strictly accountable because nothing is "free".

Banks and other institutions have found that a simple chain attached to ball point pens, or other easily removable properties, cures most people of "absentmindedness."

Meanwhile, we'll have to resign ourselves to using those scratchy old Post Office pens and watery ink, which no one is absent-mindedly about, or remember to keep the old-fashioned inkwells pen filled and in our possession when we go to the post office.

Never That Bad

(Edmonton Journal)

Things are never as bad as they are painted, says the proverb; which is reassuring to know when looking at some modern art.

On Opening Windows

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Some people feel they cannot go to sleep unless they have their bedroom windows as wide open as possible, no matter what time of the year it is or what the weather is like. Others don't like the windows open more than an inch or two, and others strike a sort of happy medium.

According to the United States Public Health Service, it is really a matter of individual liking. Some people they assert, find more noise and threat irritation during when cold, moist, nightime air is let in. Others find the same air invigorating. There is nothing really unhealthful about sleeping in a closed room, the doctors add; the average house leaks in enough air to provide a plenty of oxygen for all occupants.

Loud Frog

(Rotarian)

A Texan, hearing that a factory in Ohio was interested in buying bullfrog skins, wrote that he could supply any quantity up to 100,000. Needing the skins badly, the factory wired him to send the entire 100,000.

About 10 days later a single dried frog skin arrived with this note: "Genta: I'm sorry, but here all the frog skins there were. The rains sure fooled me."

Navy Studies Fishy Chatter

(Atlanta Constitution)

A great deal of the fighting of World War II was done under water, and it is inevitable that history in the future partly will depend upon the mastery of the underwater detection devices.

It is therefore consoling to read that the navy has established a research into such things as currents, temperatures and the living creatures of the sea.

One of the great technical advances of World War II, and certainly one of the least known to the general public, was in underwater detection devices. Fingers of sound explored the black depths near the ships and submarines of the air and many a hidden enemy was discovered. Listening devices, complicated mechanical ears, always were on the alert for sounds that might mean a hostile vessel was near by.

Underwater shapes and noises were made to register on the devices. Many a whale was depth charged into oblivion and many a crew came to general quarters because of the noises of a school of fish.

Some species of fish are quite chatty, and their strange conversations worried many a sonar operator during the first half of the World War II. The navy began research on fish noises then, and recently announced that more than 200 kinds of fish have been auditioned. Their sounds have been recorded and analyzed by oceanographers, so that in the future they will be able to spot a noisy group of snapping shrimp, croaking cod and not bring the skipper roaring from his warm dry sack to the bridge.

Democracy With a Zing

(Christian Science Monitor)

Maggie and Mr. Bean should pass each other on the British social escalator sometime soon. Maggie is a typical Cockney, a flower girl, and Mr. Bean is trying hard to lose his British Isles brogue.

Maggies is a roan shorthorn of unknown parentage; Mr. Benn is a Ashbey Forest bull of unknown parentage.

There the two popped into the news simultaneously the other day, and it was apparent they prove as well as anything that democracy has lost none of its zing on John Bull's island.

First take Maggie. Her pedigree is unknown, but her admirers insist her bovine ancestors as unknown. She should have been just another Guernsey cow, but somehow got a prima ballerina. But Maggie overcame the right side of her parentage by winning the supreme championship of the Scottish Dairy Show at Glasgow — a title never before taken by a cow of other than Ayrshire breeding.

Now glance at the down escalator. Mr. Benn is the duke who is eventually to inherit his father's title of Viscount Stansgate, wants no part of it. He has a job in the House of Commons. As Viscount Stansgate he would be a scribing young fellow sitting somewhere in the invidious Lords, End of democracy.

Whatever the outcome, we hope that Mr. Benn's case and that of Maggie have been noted by those who see Britain as flounder-ing hopelessly in the twin whirlpools of aristocracy and socialism. And Britons — and British cows — have long known that only in a vigorous democracy could a cow call become a queen and a lord-preamplifive struggle to remain an unfilled socialist.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OUR LIKES AND DISLIKES

Our whole personality is made up of likes and dislikes. And the more pronounced they are, the more interesting and striking is the personality. Nonentities in the pictures on our walls the books in our homes, and in all that we buy, are our likes and dislikes displayed or recorded.

We are the influence of us all who have pronounced likes and dislikes. No one is left out. Everyone with whom we come in contact is left something of which we are, unconsciously we keep giving ourselves away to a greater or lesser extent. Even those likes and dislikes of our we would like to hide and disinteresting. Everyone would! Cleveland that people loved him because of the enemies he made, but what they loved him for was actually his likes and dislikes, his personality and his independence. In a democracy people can think as they will without fear of being shot for their opinions.

Its the way we assemble our likes and dislikes that makes up all the character we own. At any rate, they should help gain in being charitable toward all. Even one to his own taste and to his own right.

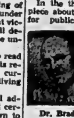
Mistress in My Own

(Le Droit, Ottawa)

In the constitutional debate on immigration Mr. Jean-Francois Pouliot, member for Temiscouata and volunteer of the R.C.A.F. said something true that should be heard even on the banks of the Thames. The right of immigration into Canada is a privilege which the Canadian nation accords to whom it pleases. It is not a right which a foreigner has on establishing himself in Canada may demand. There is a well-known proverb: a man is master in his own house.

Shortage of Gov

(Edmonton Journal)



Shortage of Government employees is the latest headache for Ottawa. Civil service commissioners are finding it difficult to fill vacancies in the public service. Many of the jobs are highly specialized, and require university training. Others require a high degree of skill. Salaries are not attractive enough to lure the right people away from private employment.

PAINFUL TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR

In the third paragraph of the piece about breast pang released for publication here Tuesday, Feb. 15, I said: "Nitroglycerin (prescribed as trinitrate, glonoin) or sodium nitrate or other vasodilator prescribed for angina pectoris is harmless."

Dr. Brady

I tried to explain parenthetically what vasodilator means, and when the piece was printed it came out like this: "vasodilator (dilator or relister of blood vessels)."

This might puzzle or confuse any one. I was puzzled when I saw what a botch we had made of it. What I tried to say is that vasodilator means dilator or relister of blood vessels, particularly the smallest terminal branches of the arteries, properly called arterioles, not capillaries.

Contraction, constriction, spasm of the muscle coat in the wall of the blood vessels narrows the calibre of the little vessel, so that less is scarcely visible to the naked eye. Such narrowing restricts the delivery or blood (oxygen) to the bit of functioning tissue or the group of cells in the heart supplied by the arteriole. Hence the distress of angina pectoris or coronary occlusion or thrombosis.

This typographical error hurt me more than it did your nerves or souls, I hope. But there is some consolation in the belief that correction of the error may bring to many more readers knowledge of the tremendous relief available to countless subjects of heart find angina pectoris. I would have to make regular use of nitroglycerin, too.

Unfortunately there is a reputation in some communities prohibiting sale of nitroglycerin tablets without prescription. But from what numerous readers have told me I infer that they have a relative or friend who works in a drugstore or maybe a standing order given by a doctor, so they can get a hundred tablets when ever they need 'em.

Nitroglycerin is almost instantly absorbed, whether given hypodermically or by mouth. Within seconds after a nitroglycerin tablet is put in the mouth, under the tongue, the face and neck become flushed, the heart pounds, and you feel throbbing and fullness in the head—and if you do not know about these common effects you may be frightened, disturbed, or faint. In any case the effects are soon over—in from two minutes to half an hour—and the novice will be less distressed if he takes the test dose lying down and quiet, and wait at least ten minutes.

The immediate effects occur in five or ten minutes try doubling the test dose. If still no effect, in the same way continues quadruple the test dose. If still no effect, the tablet is inert—the nitroglycerin has volatilized. Get fresh tablets which have not been exposed to the air, and put one to the test to make sure your emergency medicine is not just make-believe.

HOMES—ANCIENT AND MODERN

The peoples of the Orient have certain customs and customs by the means of which they graciously pass compliments.

One set of these compliments has to do with thanking a host or hostess for a meal. After dinner it is customary for Arabian-speaking people to turn to a hostess and say "dem," which means "always," or "may it always be thus." And the reply of the hostess is "sahtain," which means "good health to you."

Hospitality is the outstanding virtue among Orientals. Under certain circumstances bitter enemies, even, in a blood feud, would nevertheless extend hospitality to each other, declaring a truce during this time. To violate hospitality is among the Orientals, the most despicable of all vices.

Hospitality was a great virtue also among the Jews in the old Testament days, and when more people lived in tents than in houses. Tents were held, what long visits to relatives, friends and the like changed. We live in little bird cages and shake our food out of paper boxes, or dip it out of cans. Living rooms become boudoirs and couches are transformed into beds. There are hundreds of thousands of married couples in this country who live in one room which, when a few buttons are pressed becomes living room or bedroom, or dining room, or kitchen.

Progress! Progress! We wonder.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my neighbors, from his front steps, can see, a block down the street, the white-painted post of the bus stop.

Sometimes, as he steps out the door, he sees the bus at the stop now or just leaving the stop. But most times, he sees only two or three of his neighbors waiting there.

Invariably, on emerging, he closes the door behind him, consults his fly, takes the cigarette packet from his pocket, selects one, puts the packet back in his pocket and then proceeds to light up.

Down the steps he walks without haste, and, without haste, but hearty, strolls off towards the bus stop.

If the bus arrives when he is half-way there, he does not break into a run. He doesn't even leapthus his self. He has arrived when he's seven three-quarters or four-fifths of the way, he still makes not the slightest change in his stride.

"Buses," he says, "are sometimes one or two minutes late. Occasionally, they are even a minute ahead of schedule. Clocks and watches are normally a minute or two fast or slow. It is therefore no use trying to remember the schedule to the minute. And anyway, the bus comes by here every six minutes.

"In years past, I have done a lot of fussing over trying to meet bus schedules. I have run to the bus stop by radio time signals each day, I have pestered everybody in the house to keep the clock wound, and the hands corrected. In the years gone by, I have had a lot of sprinting to catch the bus. I've given my self heart attacks, my self a bit of sudden jolts by bursting instantly into a run to catch a bus that appears at the stop. It has been ridiculous, waving my arms to stop buses that were not yet in sight.

"But now, I just light a cigarette as I come out of the front door, And I walk along enjoying the cigarette. If I get there ahead of the bus, I arrive at the stop in a nice smoke. If I miss a bus by twenty-five yards, I still have the nice leisurely smoke, waiting for the next one."

Part of Landmark Is Property Of C. N. Railroad

TRENTON, (Special) — It was brought to council's attention this week that Trenton's most famous landmark and one of its claims to fame is the property of the Canadian National Railroad. The railroad contends they own between two and three acres at the north end of Dufferin Avenue including Mount Pelion in the centre of the town. They produced records to show they have been paying taxes to the town on this piece for the last 30 years.

It was from this height of land that the great French explorer Champlain first viewed the Bay of Quinte and planned a portage for his party to Lake Ontario across the narrow neck of land separating Northumberland and Prince Edward counties.

To make the situation more complicated the town fathers, part of the Dufferin Public school grounds and private homes at the foot of the mountain are located inside the boundary considered town property since the Central Ontario Railway was stopped using the mountain as a gravel pit a half a century ago. Meanwhile the Board of Parks Management has been striving to preserve the mountain as a permanent beauty spot. The reservoir for Trenton's spring water supply was built at the summit of Mount Pelion when early planners believed the land belonged to the town.

Champlain according to local historians travelled to the west end of the bay by canoe stopping there at high noon. The story goes that the famous explorer named that part of the locale Trenton O'Clock Point. Later he found a trail to the east that afterwards became known as Carrying Place because it was the shortest overland route between the lakes and the bay used extensively by the Indians as a portage.

Before the turn of the century a captured Russian cannon presented to the town as a gift from the government was hauled to the peak of the landmark and there stands like a lonely sentinel with muzzle pointing out across the Trenton harbor. Stones were not sturdy enough to pull the ancient artillery piece up the steep incline so a huge elephant that was in town at the time, was employed to do the job.

For years Mount Pelion has been a favorite rendezvous for amorous sweethearts and persons out on a Sunday walk. From that vantage point one gets a wide-vision panoramic view of Trenton and the surrounding district.

Council detailed town solicitor H. Ramsay Park to search titles at the registry office in Belleville in a hope that the railroad has made an error in claiming ownership.

Hastings Farm Forum

Recently five forums met: River Valley (14) at Gerald Brooks; Melrose (18) at Leslie McLaren's; Harcan (13) at Durwood McCoy's; Foxboro (15) at Vernon Harris's, and Brooklake (11) at George Burkitt's. The topic was "Education for Farming."

(1) As to how far young people planning to farm should go to school. Two forums suggest two years in high school, another says till they are 16 and the other two as far as circumstances permit. Agricultural courses were suggested such as the diploma course at Kemptville.

Hazards says "Successful farmers must be expert-in more lines of work than any other class of worker and the education of farm youth should be planned to make them just that."

Foxboro says: "It used to be that a farmer had to be a man from the neck down, today it is from the neck up."

Brookside says that attending high school a pupil keeps his agricultural interest by being home nights. They also say "a college course educates the pupil away from the farm—once away from the farm he rarely comes back. Also that some of the subjects in high school of no bearing value such as algebra and geometry; train the mental processes—make people able to think."

(2) What special agricultural training is necessary for modern farming?

Special training should prepare them for the type of farming they want to follow. Some of these are: Vocational courses, Junior Farmers, 4-H Clubs Conferences, Short Courses, Calf Clubs, Garden Clubs, Swine Clubs. Knowledge of soil chemistry, livestock management, conservation, crop rotation, bookkeeping, farm mechanics. One forum thought keeping records in the club was a course in bookkeeping. Clubs teach community spirit. Learning by experience from father and reading farm papers which have a wealth of information.

(3) All forums agreed that the present high school curriculum does not contain enough agricultural instruction for practical farming. This is too bad because production of food is the world's most essential and important industry and the education of its workers should not take a back seat. Only in schools is theory is taught rather than the practical.

Conditions are all presumed ideal and this is rarely true in real life. Agriculture should be on the curriculum of high schools and instruction should be given in agricultural science, farm bookkeeping methods and farm mechanics.

Mr. J. Bird, Codrington, chairman of Ontario Farm Radio Forum will be guest speaker at the Hastings County Spring Round-up on Wednesday evening, Mar. 30 in River Valley school house.

Each forum bring (a) one number for program; (b) their yearly plan; (c) other interested people (d) refreshments.

No Justification Laying Charge Against Chief

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Porter of Ontario said today an investigation has shown there would be no justification in laying charges against police chief Jack Truaisch of Kingston over a traffic accident March 8 involving the chief.

Mr. Porter said Inspector D. V. Whitely of the criminal investigation branch of the Ontario Provincial Police made a full investigation and interviewed all available witnesses.

The inspector reported that the accident occurred while the chief was driving his own automobile west on Johnson street in Kingston at 9 p. m.

The report quoted the chief as saying that, while he was pulling over to his right to meet an approaching car with bright lights, his car's right front fender struck the left rear fender of a parked car and caused slight damage. The chief immediately reported the accident to a magistrate.

"As a result of the full and independent investigation of Inspector Whitely, there would be no justification whatever for laying charges against the chief constable as a result of this accident," Mr. Porter said.

Three reporters said Monday they had received anonymous telephone calls suggesting they ease up in their coverage of the story.

YOUTHS RAID

the departure of the NHL president from his seat, where he had been pulled with everything from pennies to rubbers, and struck by a youth who pretended to shake his hand.

It also brought forfeiture of the game to the visiting Detroit Red Wings. Many of the fans joined the hugs thrung on St. Catherine street, which became an unruly mob.

Pieces of ice and other missiles were heaved at the Forum. Four of five persons suffered face cuts and were taken away in squad cars. Police pushed the crowd to the far side of the street after streetcars were subjected to a barrage, and their windows broken, while the passengers crouched on the floor.

Police denied reports shots were fired.

60 FIREMEN ALERTED

Although the crowd did not attempt to get into the darkened Forum, about 60 extra firemen were on hand ready to play hoses on the mob if necessary.

At the east end of the building a hard core, seemingly all youths, experimented with lighting fire-brands made from the tops of public telephone booths.

Police at first concentrated on picking off the obvious troublemakers and holding the rest in check. But they moved in fast when a group set a news stand on fire. Within minutes five fire trucks arrived.

A few fights broke out but police hustled troublemakers off to jail.

Gradually the mob was pushed east. Then the remnant broke, with some running ahead to vent their anger on whatever came in their path.

50 STORES ATTACKED

More than 50 stores, including a downtown restaurant, a sheet music shop and a florists, were attacked. Clothing stores came in for their share of attention, but looting was largely in jewelry and cigar shops.

Only one large department store was damaged, but hardly a jewelry shop escaped. One shoe case in Maguire, one of the city's best-known jewelry establishment—was stripped.

At one point five men trapped a taxi driver and pummelled him.

As the crowd fled east its numbers thinned.

Of the 100 or so suspects brought in and held on charges of disturbing the peace, assault, robbery and other charges, almost half were juveniles.

Recent Strike Test of Strength Says Minister

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Daley told the Ontario legislature Thursday night the 109-day strike at Ford of Canada was a test of strength between the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) and the automobile industry.

Mr. Daley said it was apparent from the start the UAW was set on a test of strength with the industry and "Ford happened to be chosen as the battle-ground."

Attorney-General Porter said the legislature will hold three night sessions next week, Monday, Wednesday and Thursday. Afternoon sessions will begin at 2 p.m.

Richard Hearn, chairman of the Ontario hydro commission, told the committee on government commissions that Hydro is studying means of getting power from nuclear fission. Canadian engineers are working with both the United States and Britain on nuclear power plants, he said.

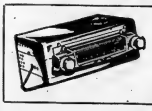
Hon. W. K. Warrender, minister of planning and development, said housing starts in the province will decline to an estimated 43,000 but completions will probably increase due to a heavy carryover from last year.

There were 46,382 residential housing starts in Ontario during 1954 with 41,085 completions, said Mr. Warrender. There were 24,000 units under construction at the beginning of 1954 as compared to 27,941 at the end of the year.

Mr. Warrender said Ontario's flood control projects completed and underway represent a total cost of $12,856,000.

He said 31 watershed surveys had been made by the branch and, as a result, flood control projects were completed or being carried out at Fanshaw and Ingersoll on the Thames, Conestogo and Luther marsh on the Grand, Delcro on the Moira, Brampton and Long Branch on the Etobicoke, and Port Franks on the Ausable.

...insure everybody else but themselves



Naturally you want to be insured against the cost of damage to other people's property and persons. But who's going to pay your damage if you smack a tree or skew wolf? Without collision insurance, it's just too bad if you get the smell end of the stick.

Moral: If you want to keep from holding the bag yourself, call us on our telephone. We've got the know-how to that end.

TRY TO END WAR

Holy Rosary C.W.L. Holds Attractive St. Patrick Tea

Little cutout shamrocks and garlands of green adorned the windows and tables of the Holy Rosary Hall, Donald street, yesterday afternoon for the St. Patrick's Day tea sponsored by the Catholic Women's League, to which many friends and patrons found their way, who were most graciously welcomed by the receptionist, Mrs. A. Eves, president of the League.

Here and there one noticed little pots of shamrock, without which the day would have been bereft of its meaning; one of which graced the table of the smiling treasurer, Mrs. Bradder, while another on a little table just inside the assembly door, added its charming touch. The homecooking booth and that of the candy were each adorned with one, and displayed a lovely array of homecooking, and delicious candy.

ATTRACTIVE HOMECOOKING

The homecooking booth, convened by Mrs. E. Schrieder and Mrs. M. Walsh was attractively arranged with chocolate squares, luscious looking apple pies, fruit cakes topped with shamrock leaves on white icing; jelly tarts in red and green centres; Irish looking layer cakes with green icing; tea biscuits baked a golden brown; cocoanut loaf cakes white as Eskimo igloos with their cocoanut toppings; taffy tarts, maple walnut cakes enhanced with whole nut meats; cherry drop cooking delicious juices and many other delectable dainties.

The candy booth, in charge of Mrs. R. Donovan, Mrs. R. Loveless, drew the eye with its fine array of maple creams, chocolates, jelly beans, red and white striped humbugs, nutted fudges and fruit creams. These were displayed attractively in little green decorated cups, silver boxes, and other fancy containers.

Between the homecooking booth and that of the candy, was a large angel cake frosted with white and green icing in charge of Mrs. J. McHugh. This would become the property of the holder of the lucky ticket, which chanced to be Mrs. J. Anton of Belleville. The floral centrepiece was won by Mrs. B. McQuaid, Belleville.

Golden Wedding Day Marked By Fine Gifts

MARMORA — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cole, of Madoc Street, Marmora, took on a festive complexion on Tuesday evening as from over a wide area, relatives assembled to offer tender congratulations to this well known and highly respected couple on their golden wedding anniversary.

The evening was spent in music and singing and a mock wedding added to the entertainment. The principals were:

Bride, Mrs. Tony Owens, Madoc; groom, Clayton Cole, Cordova Mines; bridesmaid, Mrs. Ernest Goddard, Havelock; best man, Harry Steenburgh, Cordova Mines; bride's parents, William Steenburgh and Miss Ruth Cole, Cordova Mines; minister, Mrs. Harold Lloyd, Bannockburn.

Included in the presentations made by Fred Bell, Vanalcik Settlement, were an electric stove, a purse of money, two bouquets of roses and individual miscellaneous gifts.

Both made neat speeches in response after which refreshments were served.

It was on March 15th, 1905, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Ellis, situated about three miles south of Cordova Mines, that their daughter, Margaret, become the bride of Frederick Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cole, of Lake township. The late Rev. F. H. Howard, then on the Cordova Mines charge of the Methodist church, was the officiating minister.

The attendants were Mrs. Floyd Steenburgh, senior, and the late Floyd Steenburgh.

The bridegroom, who travelled about eight miles to claim his bride, recalls that it was a driving out winter. On his wedding day, he said, "one could walk on a hard crust of snow and drive over the top of fences. Why, there was four feet of snow on the level in the swamps."

At that time he was working at the Deer River stave mill, taking out bolts, heading and stave bolts. Previously he had worked in the shanty for the Rathbun Company, among other foremen under whom he worked were Albert Beamish and Oliver Garneau, the latter still residing at Trent Bridge.

Later, until moving to the village seven years ago, he farmed on Lot 2 in the first concession of Marmora and Lake township.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole, who are enjoying good health at the present time, have three sons, Clayton, Cordova Mines; Howard on the old homestead, and Chester, Belmont township.

IN FASHION SHOW

Mrs. George Drew, (left), wife of the national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, and Mrs. Paul Martin, wife of the federal health minister, make identical adjustments as they appearing in a fashion show at Ottawa under the auspices of the Red Cross Society. (CP Photo).

Another draw was that of the dressed quilt, a lovely piece of handicraft, made by the members of the C.W.L. This was in white squares with separating bands of pink, and convened by Mrs. R. Brown and Mrs. C. Daniels. The winner of this was Mrs. M. Trumpour, Belleville.

PRETTY TEA TABLE

The tea table, which occupied the central portion of the assembly room was prettily appointed with an English lace cloth in fine design, centred with tinted moon'mums in Irish green, mingled with golden daffodils, and interspersed with sprays of British Columbia huckleberry and little pipes fashioned from loops of green satin ribbon in the form of shamrock leaves. Flanking this were tall green and white candles rising from tri-branched silver candelabra. Completing the picture were silver dishes of green and white after dinner mints and trays of tiny sandwiches centred by a mound of parsley from which rose toothpick spikes holding silver and slices of sweet pickle, while other trays contained the enticing little cakes.

The little guest tables which surrounded the tea table were appointed also with white cloths, cream and sugars, and an ornate teapot of generous size from which the guests might pour for themselves 'the cup that cheers but not inebriates.'

REPLENISHING

Those who replenished plates, were Mrs. D. Huffman, Mrs. C. Turpah, Mrs. R. Mossman, Mrs. V. O'Neill, Mrs. L. Farrell, Mrs. V. Baker; while those who served included Mrs. H. Lyons, Mrs. L. Jarrell, Mrs. J. Snider, Mrs. J. Hogan, Mrs. B. Thompson, Mrs. M. Boyd and Mrs. J. O'Grady.

A new feature added this year was the nursery upstairs, where the tiny tots could play while the mothers enjoyed a social chat with distant friends. Those in charge of this place of relaxation with lly many toys were Mrs. J. Ellard, Mrs. McGuigan, Mrs. S. Bolston, Mrs. R. Fralick and Mrs. Tugnett.

Those who helped in the kitchen included Mrs. F. Bedard and Mrs. S. Barrage.

Mrs. G. Brennan had a fine assortment of colorful cards, appropriate for birthdays, wedding anniversaries, and cards of sympathy, in pretty floral designs, and nice wording.

Mrs. M. Waller was the tea convener, to whom much praise is due for its attractiveness, and also to those others who helped so willingly to make it one of success.

Women's Institute

MOUNTAIN VIEW W.I.

The March meeting of the Mountain View Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ross Fairman, Huff's Island. There were 26 in attendance. The chairman Mrs. S. Barber, presided, and after a lengthy business discussion, the convener for community activities and public relations, Mrs. R. Barber, gave a paper on the status of women in the law of Ontario and also of Quebec. This proved most enlightening.

Mrs. Clarence Sprague, who is convener for citizenship and education, gave an excellent paper pertaining to these subjects.

A number of Irish songs were sung and also "Happy Birthday" for Miss Lillian Anderson, who was celebrating a birthday.

After the meeting closed, the hostess served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. E. Hall thanked the hostess for her hospitality.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. V. Nightingale, Huff's Island.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(HOW YOU CAN WIN YOUR PARENTS OVER, GRADUALLY)

Dear Miss Fairfax: . . .

I am a girl of 14 who has a couple of problems.

The first is that when I was in the eighth grade I was rather popular, but now I'm in high school and not doing so well. My friends are allowed out on dates, have parties, have boys over, and go places. I can't do these things, and I feel so left out.

The second problem is that there is a boy I like, and I think he likes me but is just too bashful to say anything. How can I get him interested in me? — R.J.

Dear R.J.:

In regard to your first problem, I assume that the reason you can't share the activities of your friends is because your parents feel that, at 14, you are a bit too young yet.

While I, myself, don't believe in too much evening activity for a girl your age, it certainly think she should be allowed a reasonable amount of fun. There is a big difference between taking part in these activities normal for teen-agers, and trying to push things by wanting more freedom than a young teen-ager should have, and I think it perfectly natural that you should be permitted the former. Perhaps your parents feel that a too great mix of your friends are allowed to do more than they should at their age, and they may be afraid of that, if they permit you to begin going around with all those things, you will be teasing to do more and more.

Why don't you try asking just once in awhile if you may go to some specific event, and see what happens? Something may be coming up at school to which you'd like to go. Perhaps you might ask for permission to attend that one thing. Then let some weeks go by before asking for another. Gradually, as you approach it that way, little by little, you may get to do at least more than you are able to do now.

As for how to get a boy interested in you, I know of no better way than to let him see that you are a girl who is friendly, kind and considerate with everyone; not always looks attractive, and who is interested in all that goes on. Remember that the girl who has lots of friends is the girl who is constantly attracting more of them.

PERHAPS SHE DIDN'T QUITE UNDERSTAND

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Recently you advised a young lady of 21 who was interested in a married man of 36 that she might consider marriage only if he had become single. I believe this is poor advice.

Don't you believe a young girl of 21 can do better than to marry a man 36 who is already married and possibly a father? A young lady should be advised to marry a single man who is not 15 years her senior and already married.

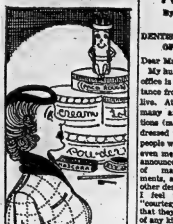
I read your articles daily, but this time my friends and I cannot agree with you. — A.R.

Dear A.R.:

You are entirely right that, as a general rule, a young woman of 21 could "do better" than to marry a divorced man 15 years older than herself.

At the same time, one cannot always put it that way. There are a young woman who is convinced she is deeply in love, as was the one to whose letter you refer.

Therefore, since, to my mind, there wasn't a chance in the world that the man in the case had any intention whatever of getting a divorce and marrying her, it seemed wise to me, and more likely to influence the girl, if I suggested that she adopt an attitude through which she could very easily find out whether or not he was actually sincere. I felt sure that, if she would follow my suggestion the whole thing would blow up quickly.



Does this make my advice sound more reasonable to you?

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

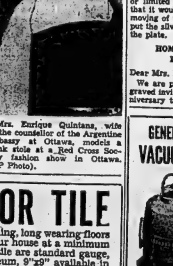
LIPSTICK TIPS

Specialists in the beauty industry who instruct their clients in the application of make-up deplore the fact that women are not as careful as they might be when using lipstick. Every mouth, they say, has individual characteristics that must be taken into consideration. In nearly all cases, lips have slight curves that make them harmonious with other features.

There is a tiny spot to the bow of the mouth that should be accented. After placing lipstick in the center of the upper lip, it should be pressed gently toward the ends. Special care must be taken to form clear-cut border lines. The pigment should be blotted into the little creases.

A woman with a full face, heavy jaw lines and large features, should select a lipstick of light coloring. It is only the girl with small, delicate features who can get away with a vivid or gaudy application.

If the upper lip is thin and fairly straight, push upward gently when using lipstick and endeavor to round out a suggestion of a Cupid's bow. If the lower lip is fuller than the upper one, the application there should be lighter to throw it into a shadow. This will make the lower lip appear less full.



Lipstick is the favorite item in the make-up box but it should be used with descretion. Making lips too bold and vivid will detract from the charm of beautiful eyes. In the perfect make-up scheme, no one feature outshines the others.

When rouge is used on the cheeks, it is important that it should belong to the same color family as that applied to the lips.

GOOD MANNERS

DENTIST'S ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband is a dentist, and his office is in the "big city" some distance from the suburb in which we live. At his office he receives many announcements and invitations (mainly announcements) addressed to him alone. Most of the people who send these I have never even met. The majority of these announcements are announcements of marriages, birth-announcements, addresses of new offices of other dentists, and so forth. He and I feel that these are sent as "courtesy gestures" to him, and that they don't call for any replies or any kind from us. Do you agree?

— Dentist's Wife

In general I do agree . . . particularly that these announcements from people you don't know, don't call for any acknowledgment from you. But still I do think that there would be quite a few announcements that your husband would feel that he should acknowledge, and that from a social-usage point of view and a professional-courtesy of view.

USE NAME AS OWNER USES IT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the engagement-announcement date is definitely decided on, we are going to send a formal notice to the newspapers. We are sending to the local newspapers. We are wondering about the use of the initial in my daughter's fiance's name. He dislikes his first name so much that he uses an initial for this, and has always used his middle name as his "real" name. How should we give his name in the engagement-announcement? — W.R.

In the announcement you give his name exactly as he uses it . . . for example, H. Stuart Brown. As a matter of fact, this is not at all an unusual form of name for a man to use.

HER ESCORT RIGHT ABOUT FIRST DANCE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm just beginning to go to dances, and last evening I went to a dance with a boy I like very much. He hadn't mentioned our having the first dance together, so when we arrived and another boy came up and asked me to dance I accepted. My escort was furious, saying that I should know that a girl always is expected to dance the first dance with her escort. Was I really wrong to do what I did? Or was I right in thinking (and saying) that he was simply jealous? — Rita R.

I hope you grow up soon and pleasantly . . . so that you don't find yourself overly-sensitive on someone else's "jealousy." Your escort was absolutely right . . . you should know that a girl is expected to dance the first dance (the last one, too) with her escort. However, if you didn't happen to know this, you should have been straightforward about admitting you didn't know, and should have apologized in your most charming manner.

QUESTION OF THE UNUSED KNIFE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm never sure about this: If at luncheon it so happens that the luncheon knife is not needed or used at the meal, should it be laid back and place it on the plate with the fork? Or should I leave it at the side of the plate on the table? — D.

If there is service, you leave the unused knife at the side of the plate on the table. If there is no service, for limited service, and you see that it would be helpful in the removing of the plate-and-silver, you put the silverpieces side by side on the plate.

HOME ADDRESS ON INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are planning to send out engraved invitations to a wedding anniversary to be held in our Country Club. We would prefer, of course, to have the printer omit the address of the host and hostess rather than to the club. Is it correct to include this address after the "R.s.v.p."? — M.N.

Yes, this is the thing to do. For example:

Please send reply to:
123 French Street

WHEN MOTHER WRITES NOTE TO TEACHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My little daughter is a pupil in a not-very-large school town, and this school demands a note explaining each absence. She has so far had only one absence, and after that absence I just wrote a rather formal note. This is to say that Joan's absence on Tuesday was due to a cold. Mrs. Henry Brown."

After that I was informed by the school that this note explaining an absence should be addressed to the child's room reacher. Will you please suggest the correct form for such a note? And should I sign this note a t s o "Mrs. Henry Brown"? — MOTHER

A correct form for this kind of "explaining" note is:

Dear Miss Martin,

Because of the storm on Tuesday and the fact that Joan had a slight cold, I thought it wise to have her stay at home Tuesday and Wednesday. Will you please excuse her absence?

Sincerely yours,
Mary Hall Brown
(Mrs. Henry Brown)

(Important: Never sign a letter or note "Mrs. Henry Brown". Your direct signature is your informal name . . . Mary Hall Brown (or Mary B., Brown, or Mary Brown). Then, for identification or information, write your formal name in parentheses below your direct signature.)

Rednersville W.A. met at the home of Mrs. Roy Wannamaker recently, with Mrs. Stafford presiding.

Scripture was read by Mrs. T. Thompson, with Mrs. Stafford reading the theme for the day.

The committees gave their monthly reports and the corresponding secretary read the correspondence. The W.A. received an invitation from the Albury community to join them on April 1st at their church for an entertainment to be given by the Albert Bridge choir, at 8.00 p.m., also at their church on April 6, at 2.00 p.m. Miss Copeland will give a talk on "African Violets."

The usual business period followed and a quilting is to be held in the church hall through the Easter week.

The birthday party for the month of March will be sponsored by Mrs. Landley, Mrs. Clifford Jillman for the week of the 28th.

Mrs. H. Adams took charge of the program. Mrs. Horabeck favored with a solo; two contests were given and first prize was won by Mrs. Horabeck, and the consolation by Mrs. Anderson. Mrs. Williamson won first in the second contest, and Mrs. Anderson low.

The hostess, Mrs. Wannamaker, assisted by Mrs. N. Thompson, Mrs. MacKay, Mrs. McLeod and Mrs. Leon Ward, served refreshments.

REJECT IDEA

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Nathan Phillips' proposal to hold a world-wide competition for design of a civic square was rejected Wednesday by board of control. The board decided having three firms compete for the design was sufficient.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

This is a long overdue letter of thanks. . . . I have enjoyed reading your column for several years. I appreciate you consistently giving us recipes that are appetizing, nutritious and reasonable in cost. . . . from time to time you devote a column to lunches which must be carried. . . . It has occurred to me that lunches for children who come home are often slapdash affairs . . . hot dogs, bologna sandwiches, store cake and cookies and maybe part of a glass of milk. . . . what about things that could be cooked right after breakfast: macaroni and cheese, homemade soup, applesauce, stewed prunes and custard, baked rice puddings, Spanish rice—any number of things which with celery, carrot sticks and milk would surely "stick to the ribs" better than the sandwich cookie deal. . . . do be a lamb and give us a few hints on this subject. . . . I must mention a book which I think should be in every home and used and referred to daily. . . . it is a basic aid to the doling out of calories—"Vitality Through Planned Nutrition" by Adele Davis at any book store. It contains a number of the things that you have written about. . . . thanks for listening. Marianne and Pete with us—Anne Mackett.

ANSWER:

Since your own children are grown and married Anne it is very thoughtful of you to be asking for lunches for school children and I have been remiss in not supplying them sooner.

Lunchtime is often the best meal the children. Pediatricians and dieticians agree on this. The mothers of the children know it too, for the children come in from play or school at noon hungry for the best kind of food, to eat anything that is put before them.

Two ideal lunches are as follows: (1) Tomato Juice, macaroni and cheese (see recipe), carrot and celery strips, baked custard, milk. (2) Homemade Split Pea Soup or Vegetable Chowder (see recipe), Toasted Whole Wheat Tomato Sandwich, Ripe Banana, Date Oatmeal Cookie, Milk.

MACARONI AND CHEESE

(Amount for six.)

Two cups scalded milk, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 cup uncooked macaroni, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine or bacon fat, 1-4 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup grated cheese, 2 tablespoons wheat germ. Topping: 2 tablespoons breadcrumbs and grated cheese. Add onion to milk and scald in double boiler. Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and rinse in cold water. Cream flour, fat and seasonings together in a bowl. Add to milk. Cook and stir until thick and smooth. Add grated cheese and wheat germ. Remove from heat. Mix sauce and macaroni. Place in greased casserole —about 1 1-2 quart size and cover with topping. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 25 to 30 minutes until topping is golden.

VEGETABLE CHOWDER

To make this more nourishing ground or chopped leftover meat in small amounts may be added.

One-quarter cup barley, 3 cups boiling water, 2 tablespoons diced onion, 1-3 cup butter or bacon fat, 1-3 cup chopped celery, 1 cup each diced carrots and potatoes, 1-3 cup diced turnips, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoon finely chopped parsley, 3 cups milk (this may be reliquefied with milk powder). Stir barley into boiling water and cook for 40 minutes. Brown onion lightly in hot butter or fat. Add to barley. Add celery, carrots, potatoes, turnips and seasonings. Cook for 30 minutes. Add parsley and cook ten minutes. Add milk. Heat and serve. If you do not have leftover chopped meat to add and want this more nourishing pass finely grated old cheese to sprinkle over top or garnish with sliced hard-cooked egg.

Crease-resistant linen is the fabric selected for one of those popular dress and jacket ensembles now a firmly-entrenched fashion. The dress has a deep scoop neck and is sleeveless, the banded neck made with two tabs at one side is lined in contrasting color. It has a modified peg-top skirt. The jacket has fairly large, rounded collar. It hangs to just above the waist and is gently shaped to fit.

Sunday School Lesson:

Select Own Inhibitions

By ROY L. SMITH

Probably because of a mistaken understanding of some things the psychologists have said (which were well-reasoned statements originally) a considerable element of the public has jumped to the conclusion that an inhibition is a bad thing.

As a matter of fact, an inhibition may be a virtue. Indeed it is — an extremely valuable achievement. It protects us from dangers, unnecessary suffering, and terror.

There are three inhibitions, of course, which prevent us from doing and becoming our best. The young and inexperienced public speaker, for example, who suffers from stage fright never achieves the success to which he aspires until he has rid himself of that particular inhibition.

The glorious advantage of life, however, is in the fact that everyman can choose his inhibitions, destroying and eliminating those which prevent him from achieving, and encouraging those which stand guard over his welfare.

DISCIPLINE REQUIRED

Miss Atwood, the internationally famous figure skater, is reported by her trainer to have spent thousands of hours on the ice building up within her mind the habit of a great set of inhibitions which stand guard and prevent her from making mistakes, with the result that she is one of the greatest artists in her profession, of all time.

The Uniform Sunday school lesson for March 20: "Christian Living (Temperance)." Acts 20:17-35; Romans 6:12-14; Ephesians 5:1-21; Colossians3:1-11; I Thessalonians 4:1-8; I Peter 1:13-16; I John 2:1-17.

Committees that engaged the great Paderewski for piano recitals report that the great artist was accustomed to stipulate that a grand piano should be waiting for him in his room at the hotel on the moment of his arrival, so that he might be able to spend from three to five hours in finger exercises, practise, and preparation in anticipation of his performance. Maintaining his inhibitions.

There are no great championships which have not been won at the cost of the greatest kind of self-discipline. It has often happened that the difference between two possible champions has been the difference between their willingness to discipline themselves.

HE CHOSE WISELY

Glenn Cunningham, one of the greatest athletes the United States has ever produced—an Olympic champion—was terribly burned in a fire which trapped him on the second floor of a farm house. The doctor said he would never be able to walk again. But by utter determination, and at the cost of incredible pain, he forced himself to walk, then to run, and then to win. And with equal determination he pledged himself, like Daniel of old, that he would not defile himself with either alcohol or nicotine. By a process of selection his inhibitions he became world famous.

LIFE BELONGS TO DISCIPLINED

Life does not belong to the spenders, the care-free, and the dissipated. It is denied to those who are unable to govern their passions, their appetites, and their whims.

The drunken, the debauched, and the dissolute get into the headlines, but they do not get into the future.

He who seeks life at its best must offer himself at his best. He must invest himself to the limit, and must learn to live the focussed life, every motive and talent or which is brought under the control of one purpose.

CAMPBELLFORD

"Supervised Summer Playgrounds" Subject Discussed at H-S Assoc.

CAMPBELLFORD—The regular meeting of the Campbellford Home and School Association was held on Wednesday evening in the kindergarten room of the public school.

The president, Mrs. Ted Peake, convened the meeting. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved.

The roll call was taken and it was found that Mrs. Simpson's class had the largest attendance and won the banner.

HOCKEY CREST'S PRESENTED

Mr. Hector MacMillan, on behalf of the Rotary Club, presented hockey crests to the winning Juvenile hockey team, the "Red Sox", and also to the "Black Hawks," the runner-up.

Mrs. Peake introduced Mr. Charles Weir, district representative of the community programs of the Department of Education at Belleville.

The subject of Mr. Weir's talk was "Supervised Summer Playgrounds." He explained the three fundamentals which get up a supervised summer playground: — budget, facilities and leadership.

PANEL DISCUSSION

A panel discussion followed with Mrs. Peake acting as moderator. Members of the panel were: Mr. Allan Taylor, Chief George Rose, Mrs. Ernie Irwin, Mrs. Chris. Newman and Mr. Weir.

A question was raised: "Is there adequate recreation for the children in Campbellford?" Chief Rose was of the opinion that there is not. During the past year, 74 charges had been laid against juveniles from 12 to 16 years of age. It was felt that by bringing the children together under supervision, that they are being taught citizenship, Children get the feeling of belonging, they seek adventure, they have competition, they learn a skill and expend energy.

TRAINING COURSE AVAILABLE

Mr. Weir informed the group that a Leadership Training Course is available to anyone who is hired to be a program leader by the community. The course takes one week of constant study and costs $15. During this course the leader learns to plan a program for the whole summer.

Mr. Weir stated that most of these playground budgets were provided by the council. It was felt that the Town Council, having already drawn up a budget, would not be in a position to help this year, but if a playground could be financed by local organizations for this one year, that Council might be prepared to help later.

Representatives of the various organizations received the information on playgrounds with interest, as the majority had already been helping with some form or recreation.

Y. M. C. A. SERVICES

In the discussion of teen - age recreation, Mr. Weir was asked if Y.M.C.A. services could benefit the town. Experience has proven that even a town of 7,000 was unable to finance a Y.M.C.A. Usually the high school has planned enough activity that the students would not need to be involved with any other interests. Mr. Weir said there was no answer to the teen-age problem; that trouble usually occurred in the group who had left school early and were cut off from people of their own age.

Mr. Newman suggested that one answer could lay with the home. If the hope belonged in all members of the family, and each one was allowed to bring friends home for evenings of fun, there would not be a great need for community recreation in the teen age group.

Mr. Allan Taylor informed the group that the school was trying to assist by using the macadam surface of the school playground for badminton courts and other games.

A representative committee of various organizations was set up to study the ways and means of getting playgrounds under way this year. Chairman of the committee is Mrs. Chris. Newman. Members are: Mrs. Joseph Smith, Mrs. Morley Horsman, Mr. H. MacMillan, Mr. George Rose, Mr. William Rothwell and Mr. Ray Hall.

A most successful evening was brought to a close. Mrs. Peake thanked Mr. Weir and the members of the panel.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served.

AMATEUR EXPLORERS FIND LOST TRIBE

A group of amateur explorers from Chicago, who flew recently to Guatemala and trekked through Central American jungles, has returned with first-hand reports of a lost Aztec tribe that lived, remote from civilization, since the 15th century. They are the Lacondones, who held out against the Spanish Conquistadores. At top is the son of the chief, Antonio Garcia, 35, who wears his hair long. With him are geologists Mario Ferrer of Switzerland, and Roland Stimmel (right), of Hilladale, Mich. At bottom, Ted Zillias, member of the "lost world" expedition, comes upon a "calendar stone of the ancient Mayans in the heart of the jungle.—Central Press Canadian.

Asian and African Leaders Plan Conference in April

LONDON (Reuters)—Leaders of 30 Asian and African countries will meet at Bandung, Indonesia, April 18-24 to review the position of their countries in the world of today and consider what contribution they can make to world peace.

The conference will be the first of its kind, bringing together Communist and non-Communist, Arab and Indonesian, Japanese and Chinese, and representatives from independents states and colonial territories.

The convenors of the meeting, the five Colombo powers—India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Burma and Indonesia—have declared that they do not desire to set up a regional bloc.

25 OTHERS INVITED

They have invited 25 countries to join them in sending ministers to Bandung. These are: Afghanistan, Cambodia, Central African Federation, Communist China, Egypt, Ethiopia, Gold Coast, Iran, Iraq, Japan, Jordan, Laos, Lebanon, Liberia, Libya, Nepal, Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Syria, Thailand, Turkey, North Viet Nam, South Viet Nam and Yemen.

The main link for most of these countries is their achievement of independent or self-government in this century. Despite this community of interest, many of them have diametrically opposed foreign policies and are sharply divided over the East-West cold war.

For example, Japan recognizes Nationalist China; Pakistan, the Philippines and Thailand are members of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization; Turkey is in the Atlantic pact; the Arab states have a league of their own and India pursues a policy of non-involvement.

Authoritative sources here say the basic purpose of this unique ministerial gathering is to see that the countries represented become better acquainted with one another. The idea is to promote understanding of each other's point of view on questions of war and peace, agriculture and industrialization, and political, social and cultural problems.

TO PROMOTE CO-OPERATION

The conference, which will draft its own agenda, will have these four main aims:

1. To promote goodwill and co-operation among the peoples of Asia and Africa.

2. To consider social, economic and cultural problems and relations.

3. To discuss problems of special interest to Asian and African peoples — problems affecting national sovereignty, racialism, racial segregation and colonialism.

4. To view the position of Asia and Africa, their peoples in the world of today, and the contribution they can make to the promotion of world peace and international co-operation.

Communist China, which is expected to be represented by Chou En-lai, prime minister and foreign minister, is recognized by only a small minority of the governments to be represented at the Bandung deliberations.

Diplomatic quarters here believe that in both the talks at the conference table and in outside informal meetings, the problem of Formosa will be a major issue.

Brooklyn Eagle Closes Shop Due to Guild

NEW YORK (AP)—The 114-year-old Brooklyn Eagle, only major daily newspaper published in a community of nearly 2,000,000 persons, announced Wednesday it is through.

Publisher Frank D. Schroth said the paper could not survive if it continued to meet the wage demands of 315 striking news and commercial department employees. The strikers belong to the American Newspaper Guild (CIO).

"Faced with the choice of accepting terms that would h ve doubled the great financial loss of 1954 or of suspending completely, we have chosen to quit," Schroth said. "In these circumstances there is no hope for us. The Newspaper Guild is malignant."

The Pulitzer prize-winning Eagle suspended publication nearly seven weeks ago when the strike began and other employees refused to cross the Guild's picket line.

The publisher's announcement was greeted with skepticism by the union and Wednesday night federal mediators sought to bring the parties together again.

I. Kaufman, a leader of the strike, noted Schroth's use of the words: "We do not intend ever to resume publication," and commented that the publisher has been saying the same thing for 18 years.

The strike, Kaufman said, is continuing.

The paper had 650 employees, according to the publisher, and 130,000 daily circulation and 185,000 on Sundays.

The issue in dispute with the Newspaper Guild were the union's demand for a $5.80 weekly pay increase, spread over two years, and improvements in vacation and severance pay provisions.

The Guild wage demand was similar to that obtained from Manhattan newspapers and Schroth termed it the "Manhattan pattern." He offered instead $2.65 a week over two years and said he would accept arbitration of the entire contract. The Guild insisted arbitration be limited to the three items.

Before the strike, the Eagle's wage minimum r a n g e d from $47.50 for copy boys to $131.25 for experienced reporters and photographers.

BROOKER DIES

TORONTO (CP) — Henry L. Rogers, 67, a real estate broker in Toronto for 45 years and a former alderman, died Wednesday.

Newly-Formed 'Radio League' Is Criticized

HALIFAX (CP)—The president of an organization which speaks for Canada's private radio station owners said Wednesday that the newly-formed Canadian Radio and Television League is "the perfect example" of organizations whose apparent purpose is one thing and whose real purpose is another."

E. Finlay MacDonald, manager of station CJCH in Halifax and president of the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, told a church men's club that he named the new group as an example "of many like organizations who use names and influential people to further a specific end results."

(League officers at Toronto said the CRTL was formed last fall to encourage high standards in the planning, production and performance of radio and television programs.

(A six-man executive committee was named. Its members are: Dr. J. R. Kidd of Toronto, president of the Canadian Adult Education Association, Pierre Berton, managing editor of Maclean's Magazine, Dr. Frank Underhill of the University of Toronto, Dr. A. R. M. Lower, Queen's University, Albert A. Shea of Toronto, of Communications Research, and Dr. A. E. Corbett of Toronto, former president of CAEA.)

The CRTL, Mr. MacDonald said, "lists a membership primarily of largely CBC personnel sparked by a chartered executive of members of the CCF party."

"Even though this does not in any way condemn the organization," he said, "it also is by the way apparent to the non-discerning member."

Mr. MacDonald's remarks were contained in a summary of his address issued to the press before delivery.

In Toronto, a member of the executive committee agreed with Mr. MacDonald that the league was a revival of the old Radio League of Canada. He said these were among the aims and purposes of the league:

1. The league shall be constantly vigilant regarding freedom of the airways in order to secure the free expression of all points of view.

2. The league will seek to ensure that various groups and individuals across Canada shall be served as fully as possible by radio and television and that through these media, Canadians learn as much as possible about other parts of the country.

REVENGE-CRAZED

Campbell, object of the fury, was punched in the face by one fan and pelted with an avalanche of rubbers, pencils, programs, eggs, tomatoes and pennies. He said afterwards that he was unhurt.

The demonstration was mild at the start. Hundreds of fans jammed the lobby of the Forum two hours before game time but they seemed in a jovial mood. But when the game got under way the efforts of those without tickets to crash the gates were repulsed by police they became more surly.

They assembled in a park at Atwater and St. Catherine street, directly opposite the rink, and started pelting streetcars with chunks of ice. Dozens of windows were broken.

Campbell's arrival midway through the first period touched off the demonstration inside by many of the 15,000 fans. For six minutes after his arrival he was pelted with programs and peanuts. He took it all smilingly, as if he had expected it after setting down Richard for the rest of the season and the playoffs for a stick-swinging episode in Boston.

After a time the demonstration subsided, but when the period ended with Detroit ahead 4-1 the spectators renewed the barrage. This time, however, soft bottles were added to the missiles.

Ushers and police tried to keep the fans away from where Campbell sat with three secretaries from NHL headquarters. One spectator, however, presented to be a friend of the NHL president, and with his hand extended as if to shake Campbell's hand, got through the guard.

He maintained the friendly attitude until he was within striking distance, then slapped Campbell across the face with his open hand. As Campbell fell back from the blow, the fan closed his fist and punched him.

Campbell retained his seat as police dragged the attacker off. But when the tear-gas bomb was tossed into the passageway he joined hundreds of other fans in putting his handkerchief over his face and heading for the exit.

FIRE DIRECTOR STEPS IN

Fire director Armand Pare then ordered the game suspended, "for the protection of the fans." The order meant the contest was automatically forefeited to the Red Wings and moved them into undisputed possession of first place in the league.

The cancellation seemed to increase the ire of the fans, who milled around outside for four hours after the game, throwing anything they could get their hands on at police, cars and streetcars.

When they were finally pushed back from the Forum they marched up St. Catherine street, Montreal's main business artery, smashing windows and looting for some 20 blocks. Police said it was impossible to estimate the amount of merchandise destroyed or stolen.

Since Tuesday when Campbell announced Richard's suspension for hitting Hal Laycoe of Boston with his stick and punching linesman Cliff Thompson, his office has been flooded with threatening calls, some warning that he would be killed if he went to Thursday night's game.

ACCEPTS CHALLENGE

Campbell accepted the dare and said unless police requested otherwise he planned to attend. No request came from police and midway through the first period, with Detroit ahead 3-0, Campbell arrived at the Forum.

Last season, after suspending Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion for a stick-swinging affray with Ron Murphy of New York, he did the same thing. After a few peanuts and programs were tossed at his arrival, the crowd subsided.

But this year there was no holding the frenzied Montreal supporters.

More than 100 policemen and scores of firemen could do nothing to turn back the crowd. Instigators of the demonstration were still being rounded up today but police said they had no hope of getting them all. They did not know who had thrown the bomb—a United States army model.

GAME FORFEITED

After leaving the rink, Campbell went to the Forum clinic. There he met with Frank Selke, general manager of the Canadiens, and both signed a note and sent it to general manager Jack Adams of Detroit in the Red Wings dressing room.

It read: "The game has been forfeited to Detroit. You are entitled to take your team on your way any time now. Mr. Selke agrees to this decision as the fire department has ordered the building closed."

Campbell remained in the clinic until 11:30 p.m., some two hours after the game was called. Meanwhile, radio stations and newspapers were flooded with calls from persons who had heard he had resigned.

When he emerged from the clinic, he said a statement probably would be made today.

TO LIMIT CROWD

Selke also declined to make a statement. He said the game here against New York Saturday will go on as scheduled, but no standing-room tickets will be sold.

Detroit players stayed in their dressing room for an hour and a half after the cancellation, then were escorted by police out the back way to a bus that carried them to the railway station.

For the NHL records, the first-period goals and assists stand but the game simply goes into the files as a forfeiture.

Richard was at the game, seated only a short distance from where the tear-gas bomb fell.

Most of the destruction and all the looting took place long after the game—in the early hours this morning. Reporters who followed the mob up St. Catherine street said the tiniest weed was all that was needed to set off another incident.

GRIM SCENES

The mob ripped signs off movie houses, upset garbage cans and attacked bystanders. As each jewelry store was approached, one of the mob would heave a chunk of ice or lobber down the glass with a rubber. Then the demonstrators would jam their pockets with loot and move on to the next store.

One store had a large sign behind its broken window: "Watches, 20 per cent off." Not a single watch remained.

The mob fury finally burned itself out in the heart of the downtown business district. Some of the participants went into restaurants and were later hauled out by police, who spotted them with loot.

HUMOROUS SIDE

In the Forum, while fumes from the tear-gas bomb were billowing among the customers, the public-address announcer told them the game had been called off.

The organist immediately struck up with, "My heart cries for you . . ."

Ticket-holders were not given refunds, and the game will not be replayed.

In the Red Wings dressing room, Adams described the demonstration as "a disgraceful spectacle."

"I have never seen anything like it. It would never have happened in Detroit."

The mob violence recalled the anti - conscription demonstrations here in the 1940s when youths clashed with police in a parade that wound up in a window-smashing display in the east end.

MUNICIPALITIES

Spokesmen for the Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit parties said the government should pay local taxes in all municipalities on all its property as a move to help ease the acute financial problems of municipalities.

Mrs. Ann Shipley (L—Timiskaming), one of 17 speakers who participated in the debate, said elimination of the two-per-cent provision would do anything material to help municipalities. However, she hoped the government some day would go all the way.

H. P. Cavers (L—Lincoln) and Dr. W. M. McMillan (L—Welland) urged that grants be paid to municipalities along the Welland ship canal. The grants would compensate the municipalities for police, fire, traffic and other expenses provided because of the inland waterway.

Mr. Harris said the present system of paying grants only for federal properties used in the function of government will be continued. This excludes canals, Parks monuments, museums, harbor works and other engineering works.

SPECIAL PROVISION

For Ottawa, which has a larger proportion of federal property than any other city, there would be a special provision. Land and buildings on Parliament Hill would be considered separately and a grant made to cover the cost of city services provided.

Mr. Harris also said that municipalities which lose potential tax revenue through federal acquisitions of properties for parks and other such purposes would be eligible for compensating grants.

An amendment would permit the minister of finance to direct that crown property occupied by a taxable tenant be included as federal property. This would permit inclusion in the grant base of such properties as married quarters developments, provided the municipality forgoes its right to tax the occupants.

Mr. Harris said the Ontario government has undertaken to provide municipalities with the necessary powers to give up these taxation rights.

The legislation also would provide statutory authority for grants to rural municipalities now covered by an item in the estimates. These grants are paid to municipalities containing or adjacent to military stations. Their purpose is to reimburse these municipalities for unusual wear and tear caused to roads by military traffic.

"All municipalities presently receiving grants will get increases . . ." Mr. Harris said.

Canadian Officers Offered Hand of Friendship in Hunting

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOEST, Western Germany (CP) German hunting—a formal affair—has offered the hand of friendship to Canadian officers with the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade group. A number have accepted.

The Hamm section of Germany's National Hunting Association, which controls hunting rights, has been the chief host. Deer, wild boar, foxes, hares, pheasants and partridge, similar to the Hungarian red except for a slightly fuller breast, abound.

Lt.-Col. Don George of Saskatoon, senior garrison staff officer, and Capt. E. W. (Ed) Petty of Galt, Ont., commander of the brigade detention barracks, are two who have gone out several times. George, who shot for Canada at Bisley last year and who hopes to take a brigade squad this year, likes the German formality.

MOONLIGHT HUNT

"There's not much comparison with Canadian deer hunting," says Petty. "It virtually amounts to the owner of the hunting rights inviting some friends to have a crack at a four-year-old stag identified down to scars on right flank and patches on left hind quarter.

"He probably wants to weed out his flock for breeding purposes. The party turns out on a moonlight night, sits quietly in a hut and the animal may show up."

Beaters are used for wild boar, hunting ritual is ancient and elaborate.

Hunters wear forest greens. They are stationed by the best at boar shoots, which proceed according to calls on a German hunting horn. Infractions of the code are punishable by paying for a round of drinks.

Petty paid up for stepping across a board to have a closer look. He learned then that the kill is lined up according to precedence—elk, stag, roe, boar, fox and so on—and the line must never be crossed.

AWARDED TWIGS

Hunting calls are blown over dead beasts. Each must be cut open immediately with a knife carried for that purpose. Hunters taking an animal are presented with twigs dipped in the kill's blood and these are worn in the hatband. Some hunters' hats are pretty well caked on one side.

Petty says that a wild boar coming full-result out of the woods sounds like a baby tank. Some of them weigh more than 300 pounds.

Hunters in the Canadian brigade have exchanged hospitality with the German counterparts. The Canadians have won a trophy put up for trap shooting competition, but expect the Germans to give them a hard time with skeet shooting, the local preference.

YALTA CONVERSATIONS RELEASED BY U.S. GOVERNMENT

Publication in the U.S. of a transcript of conversations at famous Yalta conference has made it a subject of conversation and criticism all over the world. The conference was held in 1945 before Germany was defeated, and before Russia was in the war against Japan, and the transcripts reveal the private conversations between Prime Minister Churchill, left, the late President Roosevelt, centre, and the late Marshal Stalin. Particularly significant were those remarks attributed to President Roosevelt, which may be used in Germany by those opposed to German rearmament and to alliance with the west.—Central Press Canadian.

Land Famine In Halifax Stops House Building

By DON HOTT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—House construction here is nearing saturation in the wake of a land famine.

Halifax planners and officials of the Construction Planning Association agree that the building boom is just about over.

The city, almost surrounded by the waters of the North West Arm and Bedford basin, "has reached its limits," says Mrs. F. Carl Hudson, CPAC branch secretary.

W. A. G. Snook, city planner, admits that in "the foreseeable future, the city will have to decide whether to annex land or build upward."

LAND PRICES HIGH

Since the end of the Second World War land prices have risen by leaps and bounds. One man sold for $4,500 property he bought in 1946 for $750. Today, with only 1,000 lots left, people in the city of 100,000 are asking "where do we go from here?"

Mrs. Hudson contends Halifax aldermen "don't feel the thing is important enough to do anything about." Their attitude, she says, is: "If you can't find a place to live in the city, move to the country."

But Mr. Snook says the city is working on several schemes to meet the problem of land shortage. While admitting "there aren't many cities of the same size" he denies the situation is acute.

"It isn't too hard to find an apartment," says. But high rents, ranging upward from $90 a month for a three-room unfurnished flat, leave prospective homemakers thinking twice before they put the down payment on their own homes.

REPLACEMENT PLAN

Part of the answer may lie in a projected program of replacing antiquated tenements with modern apartment buildings.

Within six months, Mr. Snook hopes to have a concrete plan for erasing some "blighted" areas. An earlier proposal to get federal assistance from persons who preferred living in the city was killed because of their condition, rather than become apartment-house tenants.

The program aims at "improving the security of living in their own home," said Mr. Snook.

There are other obstacles besides further home construction projects. Many are available but are owned by contractors who hedge at selling unless they are engaged to build houses on the land.

Mrs. Hudson says the city's Negro population, 80 per cent of which is housed in slum areas, can't buy land or houses outside their districts, presumably because of prejudice. Many are confined to a cluster of wooden houses in the north end. The city has no Negro Africaville.

Precedents for annexation of county land meet with criticism in some quarters on the ground that extension of public services will result in higher taxes.

Member Countries of GATT Decide to Form Permanent Organization to Aid Trade

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

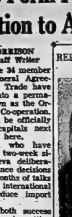
OTTAWA (CP)—The 34 member countries of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade have decided to form it into a permanent body to be known as the Organization for Trade Co-operation.

The new name will be officially unveiled in the 34 capitals next week, it was learned here.

Member countries, who have agreed to abide by a two-week silence on their Geneva deliberations, then will announce decisions reached at the four months of talks designed to tighten international trade rules and reduce import curbs.

They will report both success and failure — success in getting countries to agree to limit import restrictions imposed because of currency exchange problems, and failure in getting the United States to agree to similar reductions of its import curbs on farm products.

U.S. GETS WAIVERS



The agreements to be announced will show, it is understood, that the U.S. has been granted waiver rights to make its import curbs on dairy products and grains legal in the eyes of GATT members. Previously Canada and overseas countries protested these restrictions on the grounds they contravened the spirit and terms of GATT. That argument will be washed away by the waiver rights.

The agreements also will show that the member countries have agreed to extend the tariff concessions existing under GATT for a three-year period to mid-1958.

Members also have tentatively agreed to meet in Geneva again next fall to review the present trade organization machinery and possibly to start a new round of negotiations aimed at further reductions in world tariff barriers.

The new Organization for Trade Co-operation, it is understood, was tentatively agreed to include a council or board of directors in which Canada will be given a place. A Canadian official will be appointed to the OTC council as a full-time job.

Ontario Liquor Bill Hits Record Of $258,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario residents paid out $258,000,000 for liquor, beer and wine, in the 12 months ending last March 31, the biggest amount in the province's history.

The amount was $12,000,000 or five per cent more than during the previous year, the annual report of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, tabled Thursday in the legislature, disclosed.

Spending was up in nearly every category with sales of hard liquor showing the largest increase. There was a small drop in the sale of imported spirits.

Total sales from liquor stores were $115,000,000, from breweries and brewers' retail stores, $139,000,000, and from wineries, $3,000,000. Beer sales showed the nearest five per cent, liquor sales by 5.2 per cent, and wine sales by nearly four per cent.

HUGE PROFITS

The board turned over $45,000,000 in profits and fees to the provincial treasury, and $82,000,000, to the coffers of the federal government for customs and excise duties, sales tax and corporation and taxes. Municipalities also received nearly $1,000,000 for their part of licence fees.

After Statements at Yalta Stalin Must Have Found U.S. Resistance to Reds Amazing

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kremlin must have been surprised in the years after the Second World War at the forces with which the United States came to resist Communist expansion in Europe and Asia.

For Stalin heard directly from President Roosevelt at the Yalta conference that the U.S. would not keep troops in Europe for more than about two years after the war and did not plan to station troops in Korea at all.

In retrospect, it appears possible in the American point of view that the secret exchanges of the Yalta meeting may have influenced Soviet strategy for expanding world communism by political maneuver, subversion and military pressure into areas of weakness, left by the war.

BASIC ASSUMPTIONS

The Yalta papers released by the state department Wednesday night —and likely to be a subject of intense interest in world capitals for months to come —indicate that Roosevelt based his relations with Stalin during the Yalta conference on two basic assumptions:

1. What he conceived to be the supreme importance of assuring Russia's entry into the war against Japan after the defeat of Germany in the light of word from his military advisers—who knew of the coming of the atomic bomb—that such entry was essential.

2. A belief that Russia was approaching the post-war period in the co-operative spirit of an ally with true goodwill, and that Stalin would be trusted and dealt with confidentially.

Thus, for example, he secret talks with Stalin, when Prime Minister Churchill was not present, Roosevelt talked about a proposed international trusteship upon Indo-China. This was against Churchill's interests. It reasserted British authority in Burma. Roosevelt also disliked to Stalin—calling the action "indiscreet"—Churchill's plans to build up France into a strong power for British purposes in Europe.

UNCONCERNED ON EMPIRE

Roosevelt seemed less concerned over the crumbling away of the British Empire which was Churchill's first concern—than he was over getting along with Stalin, assuring Russian action against Japan and completing arrangements for Soviet co-operation in the United Nations.

Actually, it was to be about two years before the strong alignment ship which came to hold it clear that the co-operation developed fully between Britain and the U.S.

The Yalta papers bring to light many little things which diplomats consider indiscretions when practiced internationally. Their new disclosure makes it unlikely that a top-level conference on the Yalta pattern will ever be held again.

SHOOT OFFICER, TAKE GUNS

CLEVELAND (AP) — Warrant Officer John Sullivan was shot in the wrist and shoulder when two masked men took four submachine-guns from the 107th Cavalry Brigade armory Tuesday night, said five Ohio national armament were auditing books when the pair, masked with white handkerchiefs, invaded the armories.

Federal Grants To Crossing Fund Will Be Increased

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Thursday night cleared the decks for legislation to increase to $5,000,000 from $1,000,000 the annual federal contribution to the railway crossing fund to help eliminate dangerous grade crossings across Canada.

A resolution paving the way for the legislation was approved and a bill was introduced and given first reading. It carries out the recommendation of the board of transport commissioners made in a report issued last June after a lengthy study of the grade crossing safety problem.

Transport Minister Marler said he hopes the full amount of the fund will be used each year. But this would depend on the ability and willingness of the provinces, municipalities and railways who initiated the projects to spend money for crossing safety. Contribution from the federal fund could be up to 50 per cent of the cost of a project.

SUGGESTS STOP SIGNS

At the night sitting, W. M. Howe (PC—Welland-Huron) said that as many little things which diplomats consider indiscretions when practiced internationally. Their new disclosure makes it unlikely that a top-level conference on the Yalta pattern will ever be held again.

James McBain (PC—Elgin) said that of the 3,000 grade crossings in the St. Thomas vicinity only three are separated. Some of the existing overpasses at crossings were built for the horse-and-buggy days and would have to be replaced.

Vice-Presidents Reduced by Two

OTTAWA (CP)—The CNR now has 10 vice-presidents, two less than in 1949, the transport department said Thursday in a Commons return.

It also informed Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) that 43 superintendents now are employed by the CNR, one more than in 1949.

In the Commons Jan. 28, C. W. Hodgson (PC—Victoria, Ont.) said: "The CNR is overloaded with officials from top to bottom." He claimed the railway has 50 per cent more officials per working man than the CPR.

Pedals Way to Health

SURNABY, B.C. (CP) — Tom Stanlake, 39, says he pedalled his way to health.

The well-known musician and orchestra conductor has rolled up 202,692 miles by bicycle and he didn't learn to ride until he was 46.

The cost to date, including lamps speedometer, capes and repairs and initial cost of two machines has been $333.

He bought his first bicycle because his health was failing and he has since competed in 354 races and won more than 40 prizes. One notable win was a 56-mile race from Vancouver to Blaine, Washington, in 1938.

Burns Believes Border Needs Joint Patrolling Says Report On Recent Arab-Israel Clash

By WILLIAM HARCOURT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The Canadian chief of the UN's Palestine truce organization believes Israeli - Egyptian co-operation in jointly guarding and patrolling their border could considerably lessen tension between them.

Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Ottawa told the United Nations Security Council Thursday that "the willingness of the parties to cooperate effectively in guarding and patrolling could, to a degree, indicate whether they really desire to keep the border area quiet."

Burns appeared before the council to personally report on last month's Israeli-Egyptian clash at Gaza in which 46 persons died, all but eight of them Egyptians.

The Israeli-Egyptian mixed armistice commission already has sharply condemned Israel for the Gaza clash.

AVOIDS VOICING BLAME

Burns carefully avoided blaming either side for the tense border situation that led to the Gaza battle, which he called "the most serious clash between the two parties since the signing of the armistice" in February, 1949.

He said Egyptian infiltration across the border has undoubtedly been and continues to be one of the main causes of tension in the area.

But he reminded the council a mixed armistice commission twice in the last two months found Israeli border patrols had provoked the Egyptians by carrying them in Arabic or shouting and laughing at them.

RUSSIAN BLAMES ISRAEL

The brief council session adjourned without naming a date for the next meeting, probably next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Russia's Jacob Malik told the council Israel was to blame for the Gaza clash but—that the issue in the dispute was the result of efforts by "certain states" to turn the Middle East into a powder keg.

Egypt's Omar Loufti assailed Israel as the aggressor and called on the UN to punish those responsible for the Gaza killings.

The council is expected at its expected to condemn Israel for the Gaza incident and to urge implementation by both sides of Burns' proposals to reduce tension.

Curb-Crawling Taxis Will Be Curbed by Law

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill which would prevent curb-crawling taxi cabs from pirating business by tuning in on competitors' short-wave radio communication was introduced Thursday night in the Commons.

Transport Minister Marler said the legislation also would enable federal authorities to prevent erection of unsafe radio and television aerials and to exempt the licensing of radio devices used to operate automatic garage door equipment.

Mr. Marler said the bill would impose reciprocal restrictions on all radio communications not intended for general public use. This was in line with terms of an international telecommunication convention signed some time ago by Canada.

Persons who violated these security restrictions would be liable to a maximum fine of $500, a six-month prison term or both.

The bill would enable the transport department to pass regulations and name inspectors to ensure that all radio and television aerials are not hazardous to life and property.

Intercom System Will Be Placed On Carrier

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's new aircraft carrier, the 18,000-ton Bonaventure, will have an intercommunicational communications feature, when she is delivered next year, a television Commons witness.

A naval spokesman said Thursday night a $30,000 contract has been let by the defence production department for the closed-circuit TV system. The TV installation aboard the Bonaventure, now being built at Montreal, will include a camera.

The spokesman said the idea behind the experiment is to test the value and some inspectors to ensure that all radio and television aerials are not hazardous to life and property.

EDEN STILL ILL

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Eden today was still confined to his home with influenza, but has reported showing steady improvement.

Main Diplomatic Party for St. Pat At Soviet Embassy

OTTAWA (CP)—It was St. Patrick's Day in Ottawa but the main diplomatic party was at the Russian embassy.

It was not by design. The embassy waited until the last people to meet their councillor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ivanov Logunov.

Representatives of the press, the diplomatic corps and the city generally, were there.

It so happened that the usual St. Patrick Day party of the Irish Ambassador was passed up because the minister, Sean Murphy, had been transferred, and his replacement had not arrived.

The Russians had not even thought of the significance of the date, they said.

SHIPPING SUIT SETTLED

NEW YORK (AP)—The $11,000,000 suit of the former German shipping magnate, Arnold Hernstein, against the Holland-America line was settled for approximately $330,000. Settlement of the 10-year suit was announced Thursday in federal court. Bernstein, who was convicted in 1937 by a Nazi court of alleged violation of foreign exchange regulations, charged in the suit that he had had fine properties were extorted from him while he was in prison.

Irish Remembered

DUBLIN (CP) — St. Patrick's Day 1955 was injected into the Commons' record Thursday by the House's Irish stalwart—Rev. Dan McIvor.

Decked out in a bright green tie and wearing a lapel shamrock, the 82-year-old United Church minister from Port William rose at the start of the sitting to remind his colleagues what day it was.

In the brogue of his native County Tyrone Mr. McIvor wished Prime Minister St. Laurent and the leaders of all other parties well and said the house hoped they would have a "sober, sensible and successful St. Patrick's."

Critics of Market Inquiry Draw Ire of Probe Chairman

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator J. William Fulbright declared today that "professional Republicans" are trying to gauge the current Senate stock market inquiry into partisan political terms and to undermine confidence in the American economy.

The Arkansas Democrat, chairman of the Senate banking committee's inquiry, told the Republican national chairman, Leonard W. Hall, who criticized the committee, to "come on up to Miami" Thursday night.

Hall criticized the hearing as a vehicle for spreading "gloom and doom" and said it may well have caused the recent sharp price break.

"We have tried," Fulbright said in a statement, "to conduct this study of the stock market in a fair and friendly fashion and I think I have a right to object to professional Republicans attempting to interrupt this important work. I would object just as vigorously if professional Democrats attempted to pump politics into this inquiry."

In the inquiry itself, President Harlow H. Curtice of General Motors took sharp issue in testimony prepared for today with suggestions—by Fulbright and others—that there is no real competition in the automobile industry.

On the contrary, Curtice declared, the industry "is even more competitive today than at any time in its 50-year history."

He said he would bring along charts to prove that GM's car prices "have been consistently below those of the rest of the industry."

Fulbright has told repeatedly of hearings reports that GM could make profits even if it cut prices so far that its major competitors would be driven out of business.

In another development, the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce declared that business is expanding healthily and without danger of a stock market crash—despite what the chamber called "insane talk" growing out of the Fulbright investigation.

The chamber Thursday night issued a report saying recovery from the 1953-54 recession not only continued but "actually gained momentum" in the first three months of this year.

Three Senators Go on Record For Wider Divorce Grounds

OTTAWA (CP) — Three more senators Thursday went on record as favoring wider grounds for divorce in Canadian courts. Included was one of the five women members of the upper chamber.

Senator Wilfrid Bider (L.—Ontario) said Canada's divorce law, permitting legal separation only for adultery, is antiquated. Senator Ralph Horner (PC—Saskatchewan), agreed, and said Britain has changed but the law hasn't changed with them.

The lady member, Senator Cairine Wilson (L—Ontario) said she is lucky to have a happy marriage but the law should be widened to give relief to those not so lucky.

The debate was on a bill that would add cruelty, desertion for three years and incurable insanity as grounds for divorce. It would apply only to those provinces with their own divorce courts—all except Quebec and Newfoundland.

Senator Euler, a former cabinet minister and father of three children, said divorce is not an evil for remedy of an evil. The evil was the moral actions which justified divorce.

The way to preserve the family perhaps lay in education "to bring about the restoration of the old-fashioned standards of morality—a pretty difficult job in this day and age."

He did not agree that the new grounds contained in the bill should not apply to Quebec and Newfoundland, which now send their divorce petitions to Parliament. Quebec's divorce courts should be established in Quebec and Newfoundland.

Senator Euler Thursday Vaillancourt (L—Quebec) interjected that Quebec has adequate machinery to handle relief.

Senator Euler said new divorce grounds would not interfere with religious beliefs. People of anti-Christian faith do not use divorce courts. But there should be equal opportunity for all.

Senator Wilson said the National Council of Women has repeatedly asked that desertion for seven years be grounds for divorce. She had heard of cases of husbands blackmailing wives whom they had deserted after the wives had remarried.

She said that like Senator W. Joseph Davies (L—Ontario) who previously spoke in support of the bill, she likes to see people happy.

Writers Register Agreement, Disgust Over Suspension of Rocket Richard

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The suspension of Maurice Richard, which churned up talk ranging from agreement to plain disgust among National Hockey League fans, was analyzed by Canada's sportswriters Thursday.

The feelings of NHL officials and fans have been recorded in sports pages since Wednesday when league president Clarence Campbell announced the unprecedented suspension for Richard's attack on Hal Laycoe of Boston Bruins and on Hossman Cliff Thompson. The Montreal right winger was suspended for the remainder of the season and the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Here's how some sportswriters feel about it:

Jack Alexander, The Ottawa Citizen: "It was no serious a mistake as a matter of fact, that it would not be surprising if Mr. Campbell and the league as a whole live to regret the decision.

"Not that the Rocket was blameless; far from it. Just about everyone has in agreement that what he did was wrong and that there should have been some punishment. But suspension for the playoffs as well? Sheer stupidity."

Jack Dennell, Toronto Daily Star: "When Campbell included the Stanley Cup playoffs in his suspension order, he came about as close to hanging the Rocket as it was possible to get. You can't expect Montreal fans to believe it, but professional hockey should be the winner in the long run. What's happened to Richard is going to be a lesson that all hockey will remember.

"If he (Campbell) can toss the game's No. 1 star out of the playoffs, he's capable of having the ordinary Joe Blow ridden out of hockey on a rail."

Gord Walker, Toronto Globe and Mail: "Clarence Campbell will be vilified and abused in Montreal for the disciplinary action he took against Richard. In Detroit, Boston and all points north, south, east and west, he will be commended for the same performance of duty.

"Actually, it must have been the easiest decision Campbell has had to make in years. The only alternative to suspending the great Montreal forward as he did was to pack his personal belongings and turn over the National Hockey League presidential chair to the office boy."

Andy O'Brien, Montreal Star: "The cut received by Richard from Laycoe's savage stick blow would be enough to halt immediately any world heavyweight boxing championship bout.

"In fact, a wound of that size and nature suffered by Rocky Marciano could cost him his title. But president Campbell thinks it could possibly justify only 'an immediate and instinctive reaction' . . . how can anyone expect a man who has just been bashed across the head for five stitches to pause for reflection?

"If Richard had only been born with a little less guts he might have dropped to the ice, rolled over in his own blood and fainted into a state of happy reflection over the dire penalty forthcoming to Hal Laycoe. Unfortunately, the stiff of champions doesn't allow others to fight their battles."

Bill Westwick, Ottawa Journal: "A hockey stick in the hands of an athlete in the state of mind that seems to have seized Richard in his follow-up actions at Boston can be quite a lethal weapon.

"Unrushed by severe treatment of one of the greatest of all hockey players might have found himself involved in far more serious trouble than the closed out his brilliant career. For a certainty he couldn't be the excuse if it reached the stage where a serious or even fatal incident placed him out of the league's hands."

Bob Keakeith, Toronto Telegram: "It is difficult to assess what effect Richard's suspension will have on Canadiens aside from the goals they won't get in the playoffs.

"Whether or not you feel that Richard got a fair sentence, you can't help but hope a bit that they recover and go on without him.

People who like this game of hockey and feel that it is bigger and better than any one individual are usually the same kind of people who get a charge out of seeing adversity overcome for a loss."

Bert Seulieve of Montreal La Devoir says Richard deserved punishment but Campbell's decision was "unjust" and "atrocious."

He said that if it was based on past practice, then Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings should not have got off with only a four-game suspension following his fight with a spectator in Toronto.

Training Camp Notes

While some baseball clubs strive toward winning pennants, the Washington Senators would be content to end up in the first division—which is what manager Chuck Dressen is pointing for in 1955.

Not since 1946 has Washington finished among the top four clubs in the American League. The Nats were fourth that year and in 1950, '52 and '53 they came close with fifth place finishes. Since they won their last pennant in 1933, the Senators have been in the elusive first division only three times.

Dressen, who led the Brooklyn Dodgers to two straight National League flags in 1952 and 1953, has his Nats riding atop the grapefruit and cactus league standings today with a 4-2 won-lost record.

Third baseman Eddie Yost homered to start the bottom half of the first inning Thursday and the Senators went on to defeat the Cincinnati Redlegs 6-4 for their fourth straight victory of the exhibition season. Tom Umphlett also hit a homer with a man on base to climax a three-run outburst in the fourth inning.

BOSOX BEAT BRAVES

The Boston Red Sox broke a three-game losing streak by whipping the Milwaukee Braves 5-3 in Billy Goodman collected three hits and batted in three runs.

Al Kaline scooted home from third base on Jack Phillips' slow infield roller in the ninth inning to give the Detroit Tigers a 3-2 triumph over the Philadelphia Phils.

The New York Yankees turned back the St. Louis Cards 7-4, getting three earned runs in the eighth inning to snap a 4-4 tie.

The Kansas City Athletics received effective pitching from Art Ditmar and Marion Pricano to down the Chicago White Sox 8-3. Chico Fernandez' error on Gus Triandos' doubleplay grounder let the winning run score as the Baltimore Orioles nosed out the Brooklyn Dodgers 5-4 in 10 innings. In another extra-inning game, the Chicago Cubs outlasted the Cleveland Indians 8-7 in 11 frames.

Gridiron War Bugles Blow Again 'Every Man for Himself'—Bell

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bert Bell, a boy figure in the Canada - United States football player skirmish, has given up hope of peaceful relations and says it's every man for himself.

Canadian teams, in general, didn't appear to be too concerned about the declaration. Team manager Harry Sutherland of Toronto Argonauts said it was "ridiculous."

Bell, commissioner of the U.S. National Football League, announced in Philadelphia Thursday that his clubs as far as he can in dealings with teams in the Big Four Union.

"I've gone as far with those fellows as I can," he said. "I'm not going to try to hold the Canadian league together."

The announcement came after Bell said he learned that Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders raided NFL clubs and signed Gil Mains and Tom Dublinski of Detroit Lions and Don King of Cleveland Browns.

Bell said he telephoned Jim McCaffrey, Rough Rider general manager, about the signing of King and got this reply:

"Oh Bert, he's only got an option."

"You know that's wrong," Bell said he told McCaffrey. "Okay, I've gone as far as I can with you fellows. From now on my teams are free to act as they please, except where legal agreements such as that between Calgary and Washington, apply."

It was the latest development in a war for talent that started more than two years ago.

Bell told the Lions Thursday they can have Gordon Malloy, University of Miami halfback. Lions had signed Malloy after Montreal Alouettes paid him a bonus to play in Canada.

Bell had refused to approve the contract, maintaining that Montreal had first claim to the Miami player. Bell said he tried to get Malloy case to show good faith with the Canadians.

Big Four president Ralph Cooper of Hamilton said it was "unfortunate" that Bell declared the war a wide-open affair. However, he added that he wasn't surprised.

I talked with Bell Wednesday and spoke about one or two players," Cooper commented. "I said it would be up to our teams to see if they would reconsider."

Sensitive said Bell knew about the Dublinski case all along.

"Argos have not done anything Bell didn't know about a long time ago. When I met Bell Jan. 15, I told him we were negotiating with or had signed Dublinski, Gil Mains, Billy Bishop and Bill Albright."

Somehow said Argonauts have not signed any player under contract with an NFL club.

"The players we signed were under option and the courts have ruled that the option doesn't stand up."

In Montreal, Vic Obeck, vice-president of the Alouettes, said he has had no official word that Malloy can go to Detroit. Alouettes had not raided NFL clubs and intend to maintain that position. Obeck added that Malloy was neither signed by nor under option to the Lions but was named on their college draft.

McCaffrey made only one comment in Ottawa. He said King, a 195-pound, 210-pound tackle, was not under contract to the Browns.

In Regina, Dr. Beattie Martin, president of Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, said his team has never had trouble with the NFL and doesn't expect any.

SQUIRT

The Canadiens captured the championship of the squirt division of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association last night at the arena with twin victories over the Black Hawks, 3-1 and 3-2.

Canadiens added Bell Jones to their Dubinski case all along.

"Argos have not done anything Bell didn't know about a long time ago. When I met Bell Jan. 15, I told him we were negotiating with or had signed Dublinski, Gil Mains, Billy Bishop and Bill Albright."

MIDGET

The first game of a similar series between Booth Radio and Northern Electric for the midget title saw the Northern squad score a 7-4 win with the second fixture scheduled for the "week-end" at 1.30 p.m.

Billy Foster sparked the winners, followed by Gord St. Louis. Foster was the big goal man with four as well as one assist, while St. Louis drew helpers on four and fired one point. Boyd Miller and Bob Wannamaker also scored while Jerry Mann picked up two goals and Ronnie Rankin a goal and assist in defeat while Kerrigan, Russell Brant and Austin tallied the others.

Actor's Role Teaches Him Value of Public Defender

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Playing in "Public Defender" has been an informative to Reed Hadley as to his television viewers.

"It has made me aware of the need for the office," says the tall, Texas-born hero of the new weekly CBS filmed show.

Before he began the series 9-tilts over a year ago Hadley knew little about law or the office of public defender, the man who in the United States represents defendants unable to employ their own legal counsel.

"Police officials, judges and attorneys in places that have public defenders say the show is a great thing to acquaint people with the value of the office," he declares.

"In communities where they do not have a public defender's office, I've had many attorneys say to me, 'I hope we get it here.'"

In real life Hadley never had experience in public work, or even any repressed ambitions for it. He has been an actor since his high school days in Buffalo, N. Y. First signed to a movie contract in 1938, he has a long list of motion picture credits including a new feature entitled "Big Town, U. S. A.," not yet released.

Gary Crosby's first TV appearance since playing his new contract with CBS will be with uncle Bob on Jack Benny's show Sunday night. His schedule on CBS' Western Ernie radio program is Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Some of today's movie, TV and stage performers are seeing themselves as kid stars on video reruns of old Hal Roach comedies, including the "Our Gang" series. Now entitled "Little Rascals," they're showing in 46 cities.

Among stars of the old films who now are grown-up show business personalities are Mamie Van Doren of the Sid Caesar show, Jackie Cooper who does frequent guest shots on stage roles, and Alfalfa Switzer, still in films.

'It Was Shot in Arm for Me' Says Stewart of Japan Trip

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"It was a real eye-opening experience. I had almost forgotten movie fans like that existed."

This was James Stewart talking of his recent journey to Japan, Hong Kong and Manila. When I saw him at his Beverly Hills home, he spoke with amazement of the Asiatic film fans.

"It was a shot in the arm for me," said Jimmy. "It made me realize all over again the power of the film industry. I want to make more trips to other parts of the world now. I think other movie figures should do the same and get new their enthusiasm for the film business."

Paramount sent Stewart to Tokyo to open "Rear Window" and publicize "Strategic Air Command." He then dropped down for appearances in the Philippines. At each stop he and his wife Gloria found the crowds large and demonstrative.

Jimmy showed me some films of his arrival in Japan that someone had given to him—"I didn't know who it was; everybody in Japan owns a camera." The films showed the smiling Stewarts wading through a mass of admiring humans, most of whom had cameras.

It's no accident that Stewart is a favorite with the Japanese. He selects his pictures carefully, concentrating on subjects that take best advantage of the movie medium. He also likes the images "Stories that move and get somewhere; not films where the characters sit around in a room and discuss their problems. Nobody wants to go to the movies to listen to problems."

Because the Stewart vehicles contain more action than dialogue, they are usually palatable to the foreign market. Especially in Japan, where the language does not permit dubbing of the voices.

Disney World's Most Famous And Successful Hobbyist

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Walt Disney is the world's most famous and successful hobbyist.

That may sound like an odd description of the creator who has been called Hollywood's only true genius. But Walt himself admits it. He's the first to say so. Maybe that's why he has been so successful at it.

"You might say that I have commercialized my hobbies," he said in his informal office, where he is surrounded by copies of his cartoon figures and posters of future attractions. "As far back as I can remember, I loved to draw."

DREW TRICK MICE

When he was 14, he attended three months' of Saturday art classes. After the First World War, he took a year and a half of night school lessons, but that was the extent of his art education.

"I started drawing trick slides for magic houses," he recalled. "And I was so excited about the work that I couldn't sit in school." That is one of the most important elements about Disney—enthusiasm. When he starts talking about a new project, his eyes seem move up and down and he practically generates steam. Said he:

"One of the reasons I like Disneyland is that it's never through with it. It's something you can keep building and getting new ideas for."

BIG LETDOWN

"It's different with a picture. The hardest part is getting started —trying to figure out if the idea is worth putting three and a half million dollars into. The big things after you've started. It's like being in a fight; you keep slugging away and you never know if you're getting hurt. Then you reach the point where there's nothing more you can do to it. The creation is over, and there's a big letdown."

It will be my time for a let-down, his co-workers don't notice it. vessels was considerable.

AT THE CAPITOL — Producer John Wayne stars in the action packed thriller "War of the Wildcats" also showing at the Capitol Theatre today and tomorrow. Co-starred with him is a beauty contestant in Mickey Rooney's latest comedy "The Atomic Kid" continuing show starts Saturday from 1.00 p.m. Doors open 12.30 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — "A Star Is Born", the long-awaited motion picture with Judy Garland in the starring role, opens today in Technicolor, the premiere showing in Eastern Ontario at the Belle Theatre.

He works long hours on his variety of projects—the feature pictures, Disneyland on TV, the vast amusement business. When he starts talking about a new project, his eyes move up and down and he practically generates steam. Said he:

Wings Awarded Game Over Canadiens After Fantastic Riot In Forum

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"BEAST AND BARIN'"

The Memes are in fighting trim ready and rarin' to go. Coach Frank Dunlop put them through two stiff grinds Tuesday and Wednesday nights and ordered a layoff last night.

Speaking with the coach today, we learned that Frank is confident the Memes will win the series, "but it is going to be awful close." He said the entire issue may depend on which team gets the "breaks."

The Memes are not cocky nor over-confident over their thrilling six-game performance against the powerful Cornwall Colts. All the veterans on the squad know the calibre of the Kingston Goodyears and none of the team is calling the Rodneyville crew short. And that is a good sign. They are going out there to win—and 15,000 residents of the banks of the Moira, plus many thousands more of the district, are solidly behind them.

This department never had so many friends—nor made more enemies—than over the past few days. Our official capacity as sports editor of this newspaper seems to give a lot of people the idea that all we have to do is crook a little finger and tickets for the series start to flow in. Manager Walt Gowsy of Memorial Arena, has had the same experiences and so has Lorne MacGregor, boss-man of the Kingston Community Centre to date. We are sure of one soul—and that is our cozy corner in the press box. The only thing we can offer is a seat on the reportorial lap—a blonde preferred—and if the Little woman reads this—we are only kidding. (Yeah?)... So please fellas, lay off will-ya. We have no tickets, no dimes, no nothin', including dough. And, aside from your wish to win, we just dumped a nawbuck under our nose—sorry, chum, we do not do business that way.

GO-MEMOS—GO!

ONE-AND-ONE!

Hiding misgivings under a barrage of meaningless statistics, these Goodyear figure filberts worked until dawn cracked the heavens the other morning. Maxie (Adding Machine) Jackson and his statistical superintendent, one Michael J. Rodden, used all the midnight oil and some of the early morning fuel, for some say with the benzedrene statement that the Goodyears (that's the Kingston team) outscored their combined opposition 66 to 54 while the Memes "made it a 53-48 parade."

Take your comfort while you may, chums. You are going to need it.

Mr. Rodden, hugging his beloved statistics to his hairyly bosom, opines that these figures show that the Goodyears have slightly the better attack and the Memes the stronger defence. (He did not see the Cornwall series). He adds: "but in playoff time the tables could run the other way."

Then remembering he owes this department a couple of bucks from a seasonal wager, he endeavors to pat the Memos on the back—and rightly so. Sez he:

"In eliminating the favored and front-running Cornwall Colts the colorful Memos performed one of the season's outstanding feats. Their "come-back" was dramatic after they had lost the opening semi-final in Cornwall 10 to 6. Only courageous athletes rise from such ashes and, therefore, the Bellas have earned the orchids.

"Goodyears experienced trouble in disposing of the Whitby Dunlops, but when so sternly challenged they showed their mettle by winning that sixth game on Whitby ice with Willie Pawchuk the marksman who shot down the remnants of last season's champions. The Dunlops 'died' hard but Goalkeeper Ken Johnson apparently broke their hearts and the swift Pawchuk donated the flowers.

"Arena managements in both cities are prepared to handle capacity crowds, interest having grown apace the while Cornwall and the Memos rolled upward to the finals. The all-time record has already been established in Belleville and the high mark here is due to be assailed. It should be a great series, with no holds barred.

"The masterminds guiding those gallopers have been warned beforehand and the battle of wits between Mons. Boucher and Les Douglas should be one of the highlights. It is thought unlikely, however, that any drastic changes in strategy will be tested. Stress will be placed on sustained speed, an objective that can be achieved by liberal substitution.

"George H. Carver has been beating these championship drums without cessation during the last six weeks, the while he had formed a committee of one in predicting that the Memos would eliminate the potent Cornwall Colts. Whether by accident or astute observation his findings cannot now be faulted but Goodyears may arise to step Belleville's march to a place in the sun."

RUSH SEATS

With a sell-out practically assured for Memorial Arena tonight last-minute fans would be well advised to be on hand at eight o'clock at the box offices where 390 rush seats go on sale. They will probably go like hotcakes and it will be a case of "first come—first served."

Flanagan KO's Johnny Bratton

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Del Flanagan of St. Paul Thursday night threw a roadblock onto the comeback trail of welterweight Johnny Bratton with a sixth-round technical knockout of the Chicago battler.

Bratton weighed 147½, Flanagan 152½. Ringsiders said the fight probably would spell out Bratton's near-finish as he had previously dropped three straight — to Kid Gavilan, Johnny Saxton and Chico Vejunas.

Score 4-1 When Game Called After One Period of Play; Rocket Can Win Score Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League game between Detroit Red Wings and Canadiens at Montreal Thursday night was one of the season's key engagements.

A goaltender and two high-scoring forwards were battling to improve their records, and first place in the league standing was on the line, with its extra money for the players on the top team.

These facts were almost lost right in fantastic riot which caused the game to be forfeited to the Red Wings after one period of hockey, Wings were ahead 4-0 when the eruption took place among fans protesting the suspension of Montreal's Maurice Richard by league president Clarence Campbell.

WINGS ALONE AT TOP

The forfeiture by Canadiens left the Wings alone in first place, two points up on the Montreal club.

The sudden finish was a break for Richard and his daughter Terry Sawchuk of the Wings. Here's why:

Richard, suspended for the remainder of the season plus the playoffs, still has the individual scoring race with 74 points. The two fellows who were threatening his lead, teammates Jean Beliveau and Bernie Geoffrion, failed to gain a point in the period played. Beliveau has 72 points and Geoffrion 71.

And Sawchuk, who went into the contest trailing Harry Lumley of Toronto Leafs by one goal in the goalkeeping race, fell another goal behind, but could have fared much worse.

Sawchuk, who has been scored on 134 times, has only one game left to play—against Canadiens in Detroit Sunday. Lumley has two to go before the schedule ends Sunday night.

KELLY, REINEL HOT

Earl Reibel and Red Kelly each tallied twice for Detroit Cahm MacKay got the Canadien goal.

The league championship hinges now on the game in Detroit Sunday. Canadiens play New York in Montreal Saturday night, and regardless of the outcome of that game can still take the title by downing Red Wings Sunday. If the two big teams end in a tie, Montreal's superior scoring average would give Canadiens the title.

No games are scheduled tonight. Chicago Black Hawks visit Toronto Saturday. The Leafs go to New York Sunday while the Hawks visit Boston.

Nortown Within Game of Crown

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Toronto Nortown moved to within one game of the all-Ontario senior A basketball championship Thursday night when they trounced Sault Ste. Marie Gunners 79-58 in the first game of the best-of-three playoffs.

The series continues here today. If the Gunners tie the series the third game will be played Saturday.

Nortown displayed too much class for the Gunners, going into a 29-8 lead by the 10-minute mark of the half. By the end of the half the Toronto squad had increased that margin to 43-25 and were well on their way to the victory.

A 20-11 edge in the opening 10-minutes of the second half built up the lead to a comfortable 32 points and from there on in it was just a matter of completing the game. Gunners outscored the visitors 22-11 in the final 10 minutes but their efforts were far short of what was needed.

Ed Boguski with 18 points was top man for the winners while Mayernick had 18 and Ray Thomas 10. For the Gunners Lukenda had 12 and Bill Harris 11.

Warwicks Deny Puck Retirement

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—Grant Warwick, playing coach of the world champion Penticton Vs hockey team, Thursday denied reports he and brother Bill and Dick plan to retire from hockey.

"It's pretty hard to give up a thing you've put your life into," said Warwick. "I don't know how the story got out of Europe, but it's not true at any rate. I may hang up the blades and stick to coaching, but I hope to be active in hockey for a few years yet."

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Trent Valley Hockey

MARMORA — Marmora at home to Campbellford on Wednesday evening in the second game of the Trent Valley Northern Section finals, lost the advantage of a 5-3 lead established in first two periods for Campbellford to win in the last minute by 6-5.

Half way through the first, the visitors opened the scoring as Stevenson baffled Killian on Pace's pass. K. Trumble replied for the homesters' getting an assist from Darrah. Just before the close of the period Lavender received an injury in the hand, retiring for the rest of the game.

In the first half of the second period Marmora got the remainder of their goals. The first two came as two of the Campbellford players were serving their term at the same time in the penalty box. Blute and Jones scored unassisted and Blute got the next two. Jones being in on that player's second goal, which was his third of the game.

In the third, the homesters showed signs of weakening just before half way through and four goals were scored by Campbellford.

Stevenson netted on assists from Payne and Hay. Wilson scored on Blake's assist; Stevenson scored unassisted and Payne initiated a movement which brought Derrington the winning goal at 19.03.

The next game, constituting a home game for Campbellford, will be on the Marmora rink on Friday evening.

Only seven penalties were issued in a fast, clean game.

The teams:

Campbellford — Goal, Nelson; defence, Field, Pace; centre, Blake; wings, Herrington, Wilson; alternates, Byers, Stevenson, Hay, Dooher, Kemp, Lee and Louth.

Marmora — Goal, Killian; defence, Nayler, Leonard; centre, Darrah; wings, Lavender, K. Trumble; alternates, Jones, Manners, Blute, Smith, Doyle, C. Trumble.

Laycoe Started Bloody Episode Officials' Reports Confusing

By W. E. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The position taken by Montreal Canadiens management in the case involving the Maurice Richard case was not a defence of stick-swinging, bludgeoning or punching officials.

It was their belief:

That by Hal Laycoe's own admission he, in effect, was the instigator of the bloody episode in Boston Gardens last Sunday night;

That the three officials who handled the game gave no confusion as to what happened they contradicted themselves in their official reports to the league president and in the hearing before him.

For his stick attack on Laycoe, Boston Bruins player, and for punching linesman Cliff Thompson in the eye, Richard was suspended Wednesday by president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League for the rest of the season, including the playoffs.

Other than Campbell's 1,200-word statement following the hearing, details surrounding the Montreal conference have not been made public. The Canadian Press learned however, authoritative sources throughout how the position taken by the Canadiens at the meeting was developed at the meeting.

One after another, referee Frank Udvari and linesmen Sammy Babcock and Cliff Thompson were asked what happened and how and immediately before the outbreak started.

Each said it was Richard.

They were asked if they would, if necessary, repeat it to that effect. They said they would.

When Laycoe was asked by Campbell for his own version of the affair he started out by saying he wanted to tell the truth, he would tell the truth, the same as if he were under oath.

He then said: "I was carrying the puck. . . ."

Laycoe went on to say he felt a sudden "impact" against his glasses. In Canadiens' view this could have occurred by Richard's stick flying up as he tried to take the puck from Laycoe.

The bespectacled Boston player was then quoted as saying:

"After that I thought that should call for a match penalty. Then I swung my stick and struck Richard."

Canadiens' contention was that Laycoe not only thereby admitted being the instigator but should have had a match penalty, the same as was subsequently given Richard. Laycoe was given a major penalty of five minutes for high-sticking.

Under the NHL rules, "attempt to injure" as well as deliberate injury of an opponent calls for a match penalty.

Canadiens also contended that because of the blow to Richard's head and the blood coming down his face and because of the milling about, Richard did not know whom he had hit when he struck linesman Thompson.

In developing this contention, Canadiens representatives asked the linesmen if they had miscalled the icing of the puck, called against Canadiens when Ed Sandford of the Bruins had actually shot the puck down the line.

The linesmen admitted miscalling it and being put straight by referee Udvari.

The contention then went this way: the linesmen couldn't be hit on the head and weren't bleeding but they couldn't tell a whiteshirted Boston player from a white-shirted Montreal player, so how could they expect Richard to distinguish between a linesman who had thrown him to the ice and a Boston Bruins player?

In Campbell's decision he said Richard "had no difficulty identifying Laycoe" and further that the Boston sweater is white and the officials' sweater a deep orange.

Canadiens representatives contended the testimony of the officials was further shown in interference to tossing of a towel, which brought Laycoe's penalty to a penalty.

Linesman Babcock was quoted as saying that Laycoe, on entering the penalty box threw a "bloody towel" he was using and struck referee Udvari in the face with it.

Udvari was quoted as saying the towel was thrown "towards" him.

Lynn Patrick, general manager of the Bruins, was quoted as saying the towel landed at Udvari's feet.

In his decision Campbell said the towel was thrown in Udvari's direction, "striking him on the face."

Montreal Riot 'Unprecedented' Says Patrick

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lester Patrick, dean of Canadian hockey, says the outburst of fisticuffs at Montreal Forum is unprecedented in Canadian sport.

"Never in my long hockey career has a thing like this happened" said the former coach and owner of New York Rangers of the National Hockey League. He was commenting in his Victoria, B.C., home on the mob violence that halted Thursday night's Detroit-Montreal game.

"My goodness!" Patrick exclaimed when he was read a report of the rioting precipitated by the suspension earlier this week of hot-headed but starry Maurice Richard for striking an official in a game in Boston.

"I'm astonished . . . I'm flabbergasted."

CRITICIZES MAYOR

He criticized the mayor of Montreal for stating that Richard's suspension would be lifted shortly.

"He's the leader . . . the common fellow of average intelligence could see that. He'd be likely to blow his top."

Patrick, former owner of Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League, said he didn't see how Richard "had no difficulty identifying Laycoe" and further that the Boston sweater is white and the officials' sweater a deep orange.

Canadiens representatives contended the testimony of the officials was further shown in interference to tossing of a towel, which brought Laycoe's penalty to a penalty.

Linesman Babcock was quoted as saying that Laycoe, on entering the penalty box threw a "bloody towel" he was using and struck referee Udvari in the face with it.

THREATS OF VIOLENCE FOLLOW RICHARD'S SUSPENSION

The suspension of Maurice Richard for the remainder of the NHL season and the entire Stanley Cup playoffs for his stick attack on a Boston player is the severest penalty NHL President Clarence Campbell has ever given a player. For not only is it certain to wipe out the Rocket's league-scoring race, but it may cost the Montreal Canadiens the NHL title and weaken the club in playoffs. Battle-scarred by the attack Hal Laycoe on March 13, which led to formal inquiry in Campbell's office in Montreal, Richard is seen above as he was handed the severest penalty of his career.

Among those who attended the hearing which lasted three hours and 35 minutes were Hal Laycoe, left, and linesman Cliff Thompson, who was alleged to have been struck in the face by Richard while attempting to restrain him. After Campbell, seen at right, had handed down his decision, the NHL offices were deluged with telephone calls from enraged fans threatening everything from a punch in the face to death for him and the blowing up of the Sun Life building, in which the NHL offices are located.—Central Press Canadian.

55,000 Attend Soccer Benefit

SHEFFIELD, England (CP)—Britain's biggest public tribute to a soccer player was staged in this Yorkshire city March 10 as 55,000 fans turned up for Derek Dooley's benefit match.

Dooley, 23, broke his right leg playing for Sheffield Wednesday two years ago. The limb had to be amputated above the knee and his soccer career ended.

But Sheffield fans didn't forget the giant centre forward whose goal-scoring aptitude pushed his club from the bottom of the second division to the first division promotion during the 1951-52 seam.

They paid more than £8,000—all of which went to Dooley—to see a combined Sheffield Wednesday and Sheffield United team leaden 5-1 by an international squad including such stars as Stanley Matthews, John Charles and Tommy Lawton.

The match also opened Sheffield Wednesday's new £22,000 floodlighting system.

Soccer Film Shown Tonight

An international soccer match between England and Hungary will provide the entertainment at the annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League at Kiwanis Centre tonight. The film will be shown at 7:30 with the business meeting following.

President Len Digby extends an invitation to all soccer fans, especially the junior and minor players to see the film.

Dodgers Sell Palica to Birds

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Dodgers today sold Erv Palica, 27-year-old right-hander, to Baltimore for an undisclosed sum of cash and first baseman Frank Kellert. The latter will be the property of the Paul farm club.

Palica has been with the Dodgers since 1945 when he was a 17-year-old phenom. Farmed out three times, he has been a Dodger fixture since 1947. His best year was 1950 when he won 13 and lost eight.

The Palica sale closes out last winter's deal in which the Brooks sold Preacher Roe and Billy Cox to Baltimore. Roe later retired and was returned to Brooklyn, which placed him.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Casey Stengel, the master of the Yankees isn't nearly as happy as he was after he won his fifth straight flag two seasons back, and his output of confidence has diminished to an amazing extent.

When the old Casey could, and often did, talk a blue streak for 30 minutes without uttering a single sentence which left a hole in the ceiling and end, he now uses almost 30 minutes to say he discusses his pitching problems.

The change could have come last September when he finally realized he wasn't going to beat Cleveland Indians into the ground. It might have occurred more recently, when the front office advised him Allie Reynolds would be the only pitch the big ones for him. He sounds aggrieved when he mentions that "Reynolds quit on me."

"I've got 22 pitchers in this here camp," Casey said today, "and I can't name you but three that I figure will start for me in regular order. They would be Whitey Ford, Bob Grim and his new Feller, Bob Turley. Ed Lopat can pitch one of course, but it's that fourth regular since I've got to be sure with. I've got to find myself a sleeper."

Casey was asked if he expected to have a sort of fluid lineup, as he did last year, with numerous infield and outfield combinations.

"I'd rather not say," Casey said with a trace of indignation. "Why would any manager want to do that? We can find us one lineup he likes and can stick with it? I sure don't.

"I think I'll have Mr. Yogi Berra do my catching for me, and I'm pretty sure he'll be surprised if a young man named Mickey Mantle is in center."

And the other positions?

"There'll be nine of them out there, and that's all I can find. Who'll be where I can't tell you at the moment because I've got a lot of men and they're all good."

Canadian Girls' Basketball Team 'Complete Flop' in Pan-Am. Games

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Canada's biggest disappointment in the Pan American Games so far has been its women's basketball team.

Invincible for years in playoffs at home, Vancouver Ellers have been complete flops in the Pan American tournament.

Thursday night the Canadian girls were virtually eliminated when they suffered their third straight defeat, a 58-42 drubbing by Mexico. Only a 17-point performance by Nora McDermott kept the Canadian in the game.

Tonight the Ellers meet the unbeaten United States quintet, which has averaged 15 points a game more than the Canadians and has allowed 10 fewer points a game. The Americans, with three wins, are the only undefeated team left in the five-country tournament. Brazil and Chile are tied for second place with Colombia and Mexico has a 1-3 mark.

The Ellers have five games to play in the double round - robin tourney but from their showing they have little hope of catching the leaders.

Miss Hall and field Thursday women did all the point-scoring for Canada. Owen Robbins of Toronto led the Canadian attack in qualifying Wednesday and placed fourth in the 80-metre low hurdles finals. Alice-Ann Whitty of Vancouver finished sixth in the high jump.

The 17-year-old Toronto girl garbed in track and field togs Thursday won one point to give Canada a total of 14, all in track and field. In the unofficial standing Canada was in 10th among 22 countries and territories.

As the games enter their sixth day, the United States had 345 points to 197½ for Argentina. Cuba moved into third place with 47 points and Brazil and Mexico were tied for fourth with 46½ points.

The U.S. squad captured five championships yesterday to boost its gold medal bag to 23 out of 31 championships.

The Americans won the women's high jump, men's 110-metre high hurdles and 56-pound hammer throw, and placed first in the men's individual rolls and the 50-metre freestyle pistol shoot.

Canada has participated in eight of 18 track and field events so far staged and in seven, Canadians have placed among the first six finishers.

Today a pair of new faces will appear, Sharon Mary Cliffe of Mission City, B. C. and Marie Ann Dyer of South Burnaby, B.C., will compete in the women's javelin throw.

In the 400 metres, Dick Harding of Toronto faced six other competitors including Lou Jones of the United States who broke the games record Thursday with a brilliant 46.2 clocking issued in the semi-final.

Harding ran a dead heat for third place with Mel Spencer of Jamaica in the other semi-final, in 47.2 seconds flat.

Canada also entered a team in the 1,600-metre relay but at a late hour its exact makeup was not known.

The two Canadians in swimming and diving trials Thursday without a win.

In wrestling, Henry Hudson of Montreal dropped his first match after getting a decision over Israel Sanchez of Cuba in the light heavyweight class.

High note of the games Thursday was the high jump, Mildred McDaniel of Chicago won it with a leap of 1.685 metres (5 feet, 6¼ inches) breaking the games mark by nearly nine inches but narrowly missed tying the world standard of 1.70 metres (5 feet, 7¾ inches) held by Russia's A. Chudina.

Canada's Miss Whitty cleared 1.56 metres (five feet, 1¼ inches),

Walter (Turk) Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs won the Vezina Trophy as leading goalie in the NHL 14 years ago tonight after one of the most exciting races in history of the award. Boston Bruins decided the contest between Broda and Johnny Mowers of Detroit by firing four goals past the Detroit goalie in the season's final game. Broda won the Vezina a second time in 1948.

The best of Tall Tales

A prominent West Coast firm hired a man last year to teach bookworms the alphabet. The idea was to have the bookworms put the perforated initials on the labels, guarantee-slips and so on.

However, as you might suppose, the experiment failed. You simply can't educate a bookworm. So the whole bunch of them were sold off to a stationery supply house where they are now used as unskilled labour . . . boring holes in straight lines to make the perforations in tear-off notepads.

DELUDED BY SICKNESS
PARIS (Reuters)—Sleeping sickness may cause some people to believe that they are possessed by a devil, says Prof. Jean l'Hermitte of Paris University's medical faculty. In a report the Academy of Medicine he cited as example of a 35-year-old girl patient who was convinced a devil like those in medieval paintings prowled around her all day. At night the devil took her body into an "astral world" where he humiliated and tortured her.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, March 19, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—This is no day in which to take things by storm, to make sudden shifts from one thing to another or to alter plans without sufficient thought. Some fine inferences but steadiness will be needed.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—A vigorous, beneficent period which can be turned into an extremely gainful one with true Taurean effort. Progressive for business, professional and personal endeavors. Seek your honest share.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—You Gemini natives can accomplish a great deal during the early hours if you put forth your best and sincerest efforts. Be objective, diplomatic in approach, and never doubt. You can succeed.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Extra caution stressed in agreements, contracts, legal problems. Be careful, if asked to participate in certain promotions entailing money. Laborious tasks, business under some pressure.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—This can be a competitive day or "just another day"— it's mostly up to you. Mixed vibrations suggest that matters of importance be given extra attention. However, worry or doubt won't help.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Like Leo now, much depends on how you present yourself, your wares, how you react to situations and how you produce. Evenness of temper, accuracy and patience will be invaluable aids.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—You may find the going smoother than some others now —especially in daily chores, personal interests. But watch for tricky spots during the afternoon. Be sensibly alert, careful.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—It would be well to exhibit restraint at present, to allow a thorough survey of prospects without outside distractions. Stars warn against making hasty decisions. Avoid uneasiness of mind.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Neither too activating nor too dull a day. Artistic matters, sound investments, occupational gains generally favored. There may be some hectic hours ahead; remain calm, don't yield to unsound pressure.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—The outlook may not be entirely to your liking. Impending lacks carry certain heavy duties, responsibilities. You can be a strong example for others. Fight fairly, of course—but firmly.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Billet yourself within a just sphere of action. Attend to matters necessary to the welfare of yourself and your community. Some are trendy; take a look, but don't jump to conclusions or grab first offers.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)— You may have to put in extra time and effort to keep pace with demands, but it can be done without fuss. Be explicit, concise, and keep within range of your capabilities.

You born today have a mild, sympathetic, sensitive, nature; are genuinely loving, industrial, confiding, insately honest; kind to animals as well as to your fellow-man. You have a good sense of humor and could develop into an excellent wit. You have talent for the artistic and scientific - and enough imagination to develop a leaning toward writing, journalism. You probably love the sea, farming, anything close to nature; can finish a job in expert style. Develop confidence and do not anticipate trouble. Birthdate of: Wm. French Premier Compromises On Tax Issue

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—Anxious to assure passage of the German rearmament pacts, Premier Edgar Faure made a compromise agreement today with parliamentary backers on a controversial tax-relief issue.

At one time during the heated post-midnight debate on the taxdodger issue Faure appeared certain to be defeated.

The premier had warned the assembly that the vote would be a defeat on a vote on the motion calling for suppression of penalties against tax-dodgers.

Finally the authors of the motion agreed in withdraw their proposal for the time being. In return, Faure agreed to present to the assembly March 28 an outline of tax reforms which he hopes will satisfy the demands of the small businessman.

Faure made it clear that he was giving in only because he considered Senate ratification of the Paris treaties the most important issue facing Parliament. He told the deputies a new government crisis would cause further delay and asserted that the world would not forgive any further French procrastination on German rearmament.

The Senate is scheduled to complete by March 25 France's ratification of the Paris pacts restoring West German and sealing the Franco-German accord on Europeanizing the coal-rich Saar.

Three More Die In Incidents In Gaza Region

JERUSALEM (AP) — Mixed armistice commissions in the troubled Holy Land had two new border disputes before them today. Three persons were killed and one wounded in the incidents.

Egypt and Israel both complained to their commission over shootings Friday near the frontier of the Egyptian-held Gaza strip. An Egyptian spokesman said the victims were two children, a boy aged 12 and a girl 10, who strayed over the border while playing and were machine-gunned by an Israeli military patrol.

An Israeli spokesman, however, said the two killed were among a group of infiltrators harvesting Jewish fields. He said they were shot in an exchange of fire between the patrol and the Egyptian troops across the armistice demarcation line.

The second complaint was lodged by Israel with the Israeli-Jordan commission. An Israeli army spokesman said it involved the killing of one Jewish watchman and the wounding of another by infiltrators from Jordan who opened fire early today on an Israeli settlement in northern Israel.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: There is still no sign of spring in the weather map. Skies will be cloud over during the day in southern Ontario and several hours of snow are expected in most regions late today and tonight. This is to be followed by clearing and colder Sunday. The snow is associated with an area of low pressure located this morning several hundred miles west of Lake Michigan and expected to move east of the province Sunday morning.

CHURCHILL MAY BE PREPARING FOR RETIREMENT

Expected Leader Will Step Down in April

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP)—Growing prospects of a general election this year sparked fresh reports today that Prime Minister Churchill may step down before the strenous campaign begins.

Three London newspapers—the pro-Churchill Daily Express, The News Chronicle, Liberal, and The Evening Star, independent—all carried reports that the 80-year-old leader is "about" to retire as prime minister, but remain as a member of Parliament for Woodford.

But both The Express, and The Chronicle have denied the possibility Churchill might change his mind.

QUEEN KNOWS DECISION

The Star says Churchill has already let the Queen in on the secret and that an announcement is expected in "another week or two."

Churchill has been thinking and talking about retiring for a long time. But his deep feeling for what he regarded as his duty has always held him to his post.

Churchill has repeatedly expressed the desire to see a strong political career by setting the stage for "lasting world peace." For two years he looked forward to a face-to-face meeting with Russia's Premier.

The chances of top-level Russian talks have slimmed, however, and at home the time for another general election is drawing near when Churchill must call such an election by the fall of 1956.

There have been increasing signs Churchill may be ready to step aside and turn over the leadership of the Conservative party to his 57-year-old foreign secretary, Sir Anthony Eden.

MORE CONVINCING

Such reports have circulated before, but those carried in today's press seemed to carry more impact.

Alan Harvey, chairman of the Tory Association in the Churchill constituency of Woodford, would have noted the reports in the papers, but I have heard of no such suggestion."

Harvey explained, however, that Churchill would not necessarily tell him "only if he were resigning as a member of Parliament."

Observers here say the party "in its present stage" would flourish under the leadership of either Churchill or Eden.

CREDITS AUDITING

Brig. Kitching said the reports were "nothing new" to our own auditing . . . our own check started before this individual became involved."

He said more than 100 persons have been implicated in the works company controls appropriations totalling $1,000,000,000 and handled $200,000,000 worth of equipment in B.C. at war end.

Brig. Kitching is the son-in-law of Lt.-Col. G. H. McManus, 41, of Belleville.

WHALE BEACHES FISHERMEN

GALLIPOLI, Italy (Reuters)—Five terrified fishermen put to sea day night they had been chased by a whale 25-foot while. The men said they were out fishing when the whale appeared and tried to ram their boat before finally it gave up the chase. They fought it off with their oars, then rowed desperately for shore.

Italian Women Over 40, Unmarried, Not Resigned to Lonely Old Age

By HORACE CASTELL

ROME (Reuters) — The Italian woman who is plain, over 40, and unmarried does not sadly resign herself to lonely old age.

She prepares for a husband and stands a good chance of getting one if she can offer a dowry, experts say, running well up to $4,000 orably, an apartment.

Advertising for a husband or a wife has become a widespread practice among middle-aged Italians. Newspapers carry particularly on Sundays, newspapers carry columns of such advertisements under the title: "Marriages."

There is nothing romantic or sentimental about the advertisements. Each is to be followed by "a little of affection." The word "love" never appears.

The advertisements are "business-like.

Example: 33-year-old unmarried lady, owns flat, would marry distinguished, serious young man of good position," read one message.

Another said: "Distinguished, chaste, pretty woman, dowry 5,000,000 lire, owns furnished apartment and car, would marry doctor or engineer or professor of another profession aged 40-45."

Five million lire is about $8,000. Dowries range from that to "no" for importance in a country where marriage is a family business. Women without flats are at a disadvantage in the marriage market.

Marriage brokers, match - makers, teachers, midwives and secretaries thrive on romance.

Masculine advertisers are also exacting in their demands.

A "tall, warm - hearted, high-grade bank clerk" recently advertised for a "suitably well-built, sophisticated, property - owning young woman with dowry."

A "distinguished, 35-year-old merchant" wanted "an honest, 29-year-old woman, tall, handsome, strong physique, preferably with dowry."

Knowland Will Seek Release Of Tehran, Potsdam Reports

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator William F. Knowland says he will press for publication without a trace of official reports on the wartime Tehran and Potsdam conferences.

The California Republican, who is Senate Republican leader, said as far as he is concerned it is "purely coincidental" that reports of these meetings of Democratic United States presidents with Stalin may become public as the 1956 presidential campaign is getting under way.

State Department officials said Friday that world reaction to disclosure of the Yalta conference report had caused abandonment of plans to publish reports of the Potsdam, Tehran and Cairo conferences this year. The Russians were not represented at Cairo.

Knowland indicated he will demand that the decision be reversed, and insisted that the additional reports will be published by next year.

Senator John Sparkman of Alabama, a leading Democrat, said in a separate interview that he believes the political impact in the case of the Yalta record has been a "dud" as far as the Republicans are concerned. As for the Tehran and Potsdam papers, "let them come."

The Tehran conference in November and December, 1943, was the first meeting of Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin. It dealt largely with plans for a second front in Europe, pledged the postwar recall of occupation troops in Iran and coordinated the arming of Yugoslav guerrillas.

At Potsdam in July and August of 1945 former president Truman first met with Churchill (later replaced by Clement Attlee) and Stalin. Japanese surrender terms were agreed upon, as well as plans for the administration of Germany.

The state department said Friday that previously secret wartime documents on American relations with China also will be published.

Scads of Documents Rejected In Compiling Yalta Papers

By WARREN ROGERS Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States state department officials who compiled the Yalta papers say they rejected scads of documents but stuck scrupulously to a self-imposed rule that they exclude no material unfavorable to Russia.

They officials, who worked on the Yalta project for years, made the statement in response to questions about criticism concerning the factual fullness of the report. The published document was made public this week by the American record of the wartime Yalta conference.

Sir Winston Churchill last summer wrote many of the big Three who met at Yalta in 1945, has complained that he found "serious omissions" in the records of that conference.

Both Republican and Democratic members of Congress also have traded critical words over the report, and the Soviet has denied charges that documents were suppressed or distorted.

However, those who worked on the project contend that its purpose had nothing to do with American politics. They say the Yalta papers, still in galley-proof form, were turned over to all interested departments.

"We did not edit out the unnecessary and irrelevant," said one official, "there would not be room enough to print the books if you could find a bookshelf big enough to hold it."

Officials defending the papers said "scads of documents" not pertinent to the Yalta issue were left out in putting together the official conference section. But the Yalta papers, they say, include "as much as is complete a record as could be gathered together, from official aides called. Only in a few places were there omissions, and these to protect security, feelings and friendships.

The next affront quip by Churchill that he never cared much for the Poles, was left in inadvertently.

Premier Douglas Says Gov't. Ready For Polls Test

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan says the CCF government is prepared to stand against the Liberals in the June 10 provincial election any time the Liberals want.

He said in the Saskatchewan House Friday the Liberals are continuing to question the integrity, honesty and motives of the government.

"I am prepared to give them any type of investigation they want," he said. "I am also prepared to take it before the highest judicial body in the country, the Supreme Court of Canada."

Liberal Asmundur Loptson, member for Gardiner, was referring to create jealousy and suspicion. Mr. Douglas answered that this "won't have any effect on us."

In other legislatures:

New Brunswick: The New Brunswick legislature's committee on forestry and natural resources was told spruce budworm attacks have increased in northern New Brunswick. Officials, reporting after a tour of the area, said the insects had destroyed 1,000 square miles of timber in the province.

Nova Scotia: Highways Minister A. W. Mackenzie told the Nova Scotia House the government is planning to introduce a system of driver examinations.

Less than 20 per cent of the province's motorists are responsible for 80 per cent of highway accidents, he said. Driving examiners will be re-examined within the next five years.

The Nova Scotia opposition resolutions presented in the Manitoba House Friday urged the new Liberal-Progressive government.

A Progressive Conservative bill to provide a royal commission to investigate conditions at Hecla Island preceded the main resolution debate, but was defeated by a vote of 31 to 19.

The House also rejected a CCF amendment to a resolution asking establishment of a Manitoba government hospital service for all citizens and a Progressive Conservative bid for the same thing for the province, by a vote of 34 to 6 for the former and 33 to 19 on the later.

Vancouver Thefts Recall Similar Acts at Petawawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Disclosure of large-scale thefts in army works services depots in British Columbia have brought back memories to those from Petawawa military camp some years ago which resulted in the jailing of some army personnel and civilians.

Brig. George Kitching, newly-commander of the British Columbia area, said at Vancouver Friday there have been large-scale thefts from army works depots at Vancouver and Chilliwack, B.C., in the last 10 years and that an investigation is under way by army provost and RCMP officers.

The Petawawa thefts and subsequent investigation developed into a major political issue before the Liberal party came to power.

Montreal accountant George S. Currie, appointed to investigate the army works services at Petawawa, 130 miles northwest of Ottawa, found evidence of a general breakdown in control of stores.

PETAWAWA WAS WORST

He said, however, that only at Petawawa were there "extensive irregularities over a prolonged period, and only there . . . said they could be no estimate of the total loss there.

Currie's his report was published late in 1952, there were a series of resignations, charges and counter-charges of conspiracy and theft. Two officers and three non-commissioned officers were charged and all but two of them were convicted. Eight of 10 civilians charged were convicted.

Out of statements in the Currie report came opposition charges that the Liberals had covered up for army works payroll at Petawawa. The government denied both the charges and the report made any such statement.

NO ONE WANTS EAGLE

BROOKLYN (CP) — The publisher of the Brooklyn Eagle, which announced this week it was ceasing publication, said Friday the newspaper in Brooklyn, Democratic home of Frank D. COMMONS ASKED FOR ADDITIONAL EXPENDITURES

Total Budget Outlays Now $4,567,784,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament has been asked to approve an additional $53,994,000 in government spending before the end of a year of record peacetime expenditures.

Final supplementary estimates for that amount, tabled in the Commons Friday by Finance Minister Harris, brought to $4,567,784,000 the total budget outlays for the fiscal year ending March 31.

The figure is a new record point to a government prediction that Mr. Harris' first budget, expected in early April, will show Canada had its first peacetime budget deficit in the year. The budget this year forecast a nominal $4,000,000 surplus based on estimated spending of $4,460,000,000.

ROUTE RECORD

The supplementary figures, final item in the government's 1954-55 spending program, brought the total effected after the $4,383,979,000 set in the last year of 1943-44.

OATS PAYMENT

Trade Minister Howe announced Saturday that the government plans to distribute an interim payment this year of 20 cents a bushel, basis No. 2 ew grade at the Lakehead. He said the cost to the federal treasury of $2,290,000 on oats already delivered against the crop year Aug. 1 last.

Opposition parties, voicing disapproval of what they termed a political appointment to the grain board, backed a CCF motion which would have blocked approval of the bill.

DOWN DEFEATED

The motion by Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) was defeated by 96 to 55. It was supported by all three opposition groups and opposed by all the government party. Fernand Girard (Ind-Lapointe).

Opposition to the bill has centred on the recent appointment to the board of Stanley Loptson, 42, of Saskatchewan, who became chief commissioner D. G. McKenzie of Winnipeg and Roy Milner, who also is from Saskatchewan.

The bill was given second reading approval after Commons had debated study in committee. It now awaits formal passage. It would increase from three to five the number of members of the board, the chief commissioner of the grain board to $18,000 a year rather than those of the two commissioners to $13,500 from $12,000.

During detailed study, two proposed CCF amendments were defeated by standing votes. One would have provided that future assistant commissioners be appointed on the recommendation of the three western wheat pools and the Interprovincial Farm Union Council. The other sought to have appointments to grain agencies at terminal elevators disposed of on the recommendation of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the interprovincial Farm Union.

Flower Pots Forbidden as Commie Signal Devices in New Handbook

SEATTLE (AP) — Communist party big shots frown on using flower pots in their windows (the cops are wise) but they needn't worry about the practice of one waiter for wilting secret messages.

This and a lot of other cloak-and-dagger stuff is to be explained from a handbook the House of Representatives Un-American activities sub-committee obtained from a witness Friday.

The witness is Harvey Matusow, former Communist official testifying at hearings of the sub-committee. Rep. Walter (D-Pa.), committee counsel, said the handbook was prepared by Mr. Vassilev, a former Colombia strategist, "is much planner in its purposes" than anything in the extensive files of the committee.

Not only were the cops wise to the flower pots, Vassilev wrote, they were even doublecrossing the comrades by putting pots in the windows themselves.

Comrades were instructed to use "the latest inventions of chemistry" in writing messages not in the business numbers and it is difficult to get rid of them."

An ordinary flat was considered a favorable place for meeting in were mandatory and of course impossibility as an official's rank increased.

Codes were specified, too, ranging from simple word-jiggling to mysterious stuff about book pages and poetry.

While the party preferred persons dedicated to its purposes, it wasn't giving the bum's rush to any non-zeloks who might still be useful.

"They must be organized as sympathizers."

Former German Security Chief Held As Traitor

West Germany Announces Heinz Arrested for Treason

BONN (Reuters)—Friedrich Wilhelm Heinz, former chief of the West German security service, and other German defence office, has been arrested on charges of treason, it was announced today.

Police said he was taken into custody at his home in Wehes, near Frankfurt. Federal Justice authorities said the arrest was ordered on the treason charge.

The defence office is the department which will become the defence ministry, when West Germany rearmament is reached.

West German federal criminal police are continuing investigations into the Heinz case and it will be handled by the Supreme Court "in the country," the federal attorney's office said.

Another person was arrested at the same time but police declined to give his or her name.

CNR Is Back In Red Ink

OTTAWA (CP)—After a couple of years of unaccustomed prosperity, the CNR is back in the red ink.

The publicly-owned $2,500,000,000 corporation, Canada's biggest customer for steel, reported a deficit of $28,758,000 on 1954 operations.

Finance Minister Harris told Parliament Friday when Finance Minister Harris tabled in the Commons the government's final supplementary estimates for the 1954-55 fiscal year that made March 31. One of the items was a government outlay to cover the deficit.

Total figures for 1954 CNR spending and revenue will not be shown until the company's annual report is made public Monday, but it is known the deficit results from the slump in overall rail revenues in the face of CNR economies.

The corporation spent annually owes about $21,500,000 in interest on bonds held by the public and smaller amount on bonds held by the federal treasury.

Harris also notified the CNR, as usual, had an operating surplus but large enough to cover the unusually-heavy burden of debt inherited through its historic position as the custodian of a complex variety of companies that included bankrupt and otherwise uneconomic lines.

Manslaughter Case Dismissed

TIMMINS (CP)—A manslaughter charge against Jean Cote, 30, of Ste. Rose, Timmins, Ont., was dismissed at a preliminary hearing Friday because of insufficient evidence to warrant higher court trial.

He was charged after Gerald Dube, 30, of Mont Laurier, Que., was found dead on a road at the Malayan port of Penang a week ago. Dube was struck by a car until the Carona spotted them.

Woman Given Prison Term For Armed Robbery

OSHAWA (CP) — Mrs. Joyce Weir, 28, of Toronto and formerly of Vancouver, Friday was given a penitentiary term for armed robbery.

Magistrate F. S. Ebbs said in passing sentence:

"It is the first time in my 20 years on the bench that a woman has been sentenced for armed robbery in this area."

Mrs. Weir was sentenced to two years in Kingston penitentiary after Arthur Thomas, 34, of Toronto, father of two children, to three years on the same charge. Police said Thomas was carrying a firearm.

Committee Wants Speed Limit Of 25 Miles in City

Members of city council will be asked to consider a traffic and light committee recommendation calling for the speed limit in the city to be reduced to 25 miles per hour.

The matter came up for discussion at this week's meeting of the traffic committee and members passed a recommendation calling for the city solicitor to prepare the necessary by-law setting the speed limit at 25 miles per hour.

The committee authorized the city clerk to get a ruling from the solicitor regarding the parking limit in areas in the downtown district, where there are no parking meters. It was pointed out that in such places cars are left parked all day.

Shown above is R. R. Mundle, field representative of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, who met with directory of the Belleville Chamber, Friday. He stressed the need of municipal and federal support for Chamber work.

Mr. Mundle is expected to visit several communities in the district during the coming week to assist local Chambers in the solution of their local problems.

Planning Committee Turns Down $1,950 Request of Board

Members of the city council planning and housing committee have turned down a request from the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board for a city grant of $1,950 to assist them in carrying on their work.

The matter was placed before council Monday evening by a delegation headed by J. J. Trudeau, who emphasized that the city grant was necessary if the board was to carry on further work. The request was referred to the city solicitor, planning and housing committee for consideration and recommendation.

At their meeting on Wednesday the committee noted that although it was in sympathy with proper suburban planning, it did not feel that the division of costs among the participating municipalities was fair and equitable and it could not recommend further payments to the planning board.

The committee also recommended that no action be taken on a petition requesting that south Front street and Victoria Park be changed to Zone D, commercial for building purposes. It was recommended that this matter be referred to the board of adjustment, when this was set up to deal with any changes in the city building by-law.

REFERRED TO BOARD

A request from James Yeates to change the zoning at the corner of Pine and Dufferin streets was also referred to the board of adjustment.

The committee also decided that a special meeting of council should be held to discuss the serious traffic problem expected to be caused as result of the new four-lane highway north of the city and the possibility of an access road to bypass North Front street and the new secondary school.

Other matters to be discussed at the special meeting would be the deepening of the channel and Telegraph Light in the Bay of Quinte; policy for city representatives to follow on the suburban planning board and securing of the services of Mr. Culham, consulting engineer for a special meeting to discuss annexation of the industrial land for industrial purposes.

Coaches Select Minor Hockey Trophy Winners

The coaches from the pee wee, bantam and midget divisions of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association have selected the "Most Sportsmanlike Player" and the "Most Improved Player" from each league for the 1954-55 season. The voting listed three points for first place, two for second and one for third.

In the pee wee section, Stu Muirhead was picked as the most improved player and will receive the CJBQ Trophy. He finished well ahead of the others named with six points. John Graham claimed the H. G. Jones sportsmanlike player award with four points, one more than Paul Brown, Ron Smith and Paul Zakos.

Bob Garrison received six points in the voting for most improved player in the midget section while Larry Langlois, Jim Campbell and Ken Weeks each followed with five. Bob will be presented with the Dave Whalen cup. The most sportsmanlike award went to Larry Langlois with Ab Wright and Jack Elliott close on his heels. They had six, five and four points in that order. Mr. H. G. Jones donates the trophy in all four leagues.

Bantam voting saw a tight battle for both trophies with Ron Stoneburg taking the Pat Boland award for the most improved player. He drew five points while Dugan and Ron Dulmage each had four. Don Deacon captured the most sportsmanlike trophy with six points while Bill Skelly picked up five.

All these trophies will be presented at the annual minor hockey banquet.

New Dial System To Be Operating Early April 17

At two minutes before midnight Saturday, April 16th, Belleville will be without telephone service for the first time since 1879.

Thirty-five to 60 seconds later service will be restored to Belleville's 8,700 subscribers as a new $2,000,000 dial exchange replaces manually-operated switchboards.

Facts, figures and the future of dial telephone service were outlined for members of the Belleville Lions Club at their meeting Thursday by A. D. Connolly, commercial cutover supervisor for the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, who has been in the city since April of last year working on new installations.

He pointed out that Belleville's conversion to dial exchanges is largely a matter of economics. Without dial, new city telephone service would be impossible.

He told members that if manually-operated switchboards had to provide service every girl in the country between the ages of 18 and 35 would be required to handle calls; buildings to house equipment would be enormous and payrolls astronomical.

He pointed out that Belleville's exchange numbering of Woodland, with its five numbers, is part of a continent-wide program to make possible long distance dialing. North America is being divided into 90 different master exchange areas and each area will code dial be reached by dialing three numbers. Dialing of the individual number once connection is made. The area exchange has been made will also make it possible to dial directly to any part of the North American system.

SUFFICIENT UNTIL 1980

The new two-five exchange system, as it is called, is expected to provide sufficient telephone numbers until the year 2,300.

Today's service is a far cry from the early days of Belleville's telephone exchange when phones were installed free and telephone agents worked a 72-hour week for $8.00 a month.

Surveys of local customers have revealed that approximately 55 per cent have had no previous experience with dial phones. In other exchanges dial back to a test board 90 per cent have incorrectly dialed a zero instead of the letter O when dialing the exchange letters.

Despite the cost of installing the dial system here the Bell Telephone Co. does not anticipate a rise in rates. First rise would likely be forthcoming only when the number of phones served exceeds 10,000.

Mr. Connolly also stated that with the dial system a maximum of 10 subscribers can be served on rural lines.

Opening of the new dial service will not completely displace the operator. It will be necessary for the company to have a certain number of operators on duty to handle special problems.

YE CHRISTIAN HERALDS, GO, PROCLAIM

Ye Christian heralds, go proclaim
Salvation through Emanuel's Name;
To distant climes the tidings bear
And plant the Rose of Sharon there.

God shield you with a wall of fire,
With flaming zeal your breasts inspire,
Bid ranging winds their fury cease,
And hush the tempests into peace.

And, when our labors all are o'er,
Then we shall meet to part no more;
Meet with the blood bought throng to fall
And crown our Jesus Lord of all.

The missionary motive has been the mainspring of the Christian church through more than nineteen centuries, and the missionary theme has inspired many of Christendom's most glorious hymns.

Bishop Herber's immortal song, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" Dr. Isaac Watts' "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er The Sun Doth His Successive Journeys Run"; Bishop Coxe's Washington Doane's "Fling Out The Banner", Dr. John Bowring's, "Watchman, Tell Us Of The Night", and Samuel Wolcott's "Christ For The World We Sing"—these are but a few of the gems in the missionary music collection.

Toward the end of the nineteenth century the english singer, Frances Havergal, brought out the popular hymn, "Tell It Out Among The Nations" and about 100 years earlier another singer of the British Isles, known to posterity only as "Mrs. Vokes" was writing "Ye Christian Heralds, Go Proclaim!" and other hymns.

Though we know little about Mrs. Vokes and about her life, we do know that she clearly loved the mission cause for she made it the theme of most all of her songs. "Ye Christian Heralds, Go Proclaim!" was written about 1780 and made its bow to the public 17 years later in a volume of "missionary and Devotional hymns", published at Portsea, Wales.

The tune, known in the churches as the "Missionary Chant", was composed by Henrich Christoph Zeuner, a native of Saxony, who came to America in 1827 and who subsequently served as organist in the Park Street Church in Boston and St. Andrew's Church in Philadelphia.

Safety Routine For Infants

By NANCY CLEAVER

Louis Adamic in, "The Native's Return" tells of overhearing an old grandmother in a Croatian village saying to a young mother: "When your baby is learning to walk, don't worry about its hurting itself when it falls: a good angel goes before it and drops an invisible pillow in front of a baby wherever it stumbles."

This is a charming imagination picture—but modern mothers in Canada realize they must protect their infant long before it starts to walk with a sensible safety routine.

Is carrying a small baby to a dressing table, mother should be careful to give the tiny form plenty of support for its back and head. Hurry causes many people to trip and stumble. A mother must not have a fall with her baby—or let her baby fall!

The table where baby is changed should be of a convenient height. An active baby cannot be left alone for a second for fear it might roll off the table on the floor.

Baby powder with stearate of zinc or boracic powder should be avoided. Safety pins must be kept closed and out of reach. Baby should never see mother putting pins into her mouth.

Choose a high chair which will not tip and is easy to keep clean. Food should be strained for young infants and chopped or minced for the older baby. It should be neither too hot nor too cold. Small hard pieces of food such as peanuts should never be given to baby. He might choke!

Baby's play time is safe from accidents if he has a sturdy, roomy play pen. Some mothers use a clothes line as a baby tether. But care must be taken so that baby does not become tangled in the rope.

Toys should never be painted with paint containing lead as it will produce lead poisoning if eaten. Playthings should be large enough and they should have no removable parts such as little wheels for the same reason.

Do not take a chance on the temperature of baby's bath water! Many mothers use their elbow to see if it is lukewarm. Too hot water will frighten baby and burn his tender skin; too cold water will not be to his liking either!

A mother does well to have all the bath things assembled before she starts to bathe baby. When he is wet and active he is exposed only slippery. Take a firm hold before lifting baby out of the bath. A towel placed in the water on the bottom of the tub is a good idea.

A firm mattress and no pillow are needed for baby's sleep. Many a tiny infant has smothered by burying his head in a feather pillow or soft mattress. Beware of draw-strings at the neck of sleeping bags or heavy outdoor garments or covers.

Baby should never sleep with mother or anyone else. Many infants have been injured by being rolled on by an adult turning during sleep.

When baby sleeps outside in a carriage be sure the brake is strong and is on. Never place the carriage where it might start to move—even into deep grass. A vigorous baby or a passerby might jiggle the carriage and start it moving.

Park the carriage so that the sun will not shine directly into baby's eyes. Protect him from insect bites with mosquito netting. Failing cribs and baby carriages are found in some districts. A well-made harness prevents baby falling out of the carriage. But mother must keep a watchful eye to see that no small child, or perhaps a pet cat or dog frighten baby.

Looking after a baby is a twenty-four hour job! Under no circumstances should a baby be left in the house alone day or night, no matter how short the time. It is shocking how many infants lose their lives in a fire. Mother can ever to talk to a neighbor for "just a minute"! Baby is so precious—don't ever gamble with his life!

A Lift For Living

Superstition—Fear for Reason

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Most of us would deny that we are superstitious. A superstition is a belief resting on emotion or fear rather than on reason. It is a kind of cobweb in the corner of the mind, and we like to think that our mental attics have been cleared clear of such cluttering fabrications.

Of course, we might plead guilty to a few trifling superstitions. Many of us dislike to sit down at the table in a company of 13, or to live on the 13th floor of a hotel. Some have a strange fear of Friday, others avoid walking under ladders. But by and large we pride ourselves on not being gullible or credulous. We no longer believe in ghosts or witchcraft.

But really, how free from superstition are we modern men? If we could analyze the contents of a typical mind, would the proportion of falsehood therein be much smaller than in the days of our grandfathers? We know more, but we also know so much more that isn't so.

Despite the spread of education, we are still the easy victims of subtle propaganda. We are bedevilled by a swarm of foolish ideas, false ideals and stupid fears.

MIND'S LIMITATIONS

With all due respect to the amazing powers of the human mind, we have to admit its limitations. We can talk ourselves into believing almost anything. We can deceive ourselves with wishful thinking. We can be scientists in the laboratory one day and savages the next. We fool ourselves with that Galiswrthy called our "cockeyed cocksureness." All these states of mind may be referred to as "seldom" at the time. And thus "wise in our own conceits," we superstitiously call many things foolishness which God calls wisdom.

One of our superstitions is that we are afraid to trust the power of God. We fool ourselves as to what is weak and what is strong. Saint Paul said, "God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the mighty." We think ourselves very expert in this matter of strength. We have become specialists in power, learning as we have, how to improve on the slow forces of nature. We no longer leave the lazy currents of rivers to their natural pace; we change their channels, dig mill-races, build mammoth dams. Fruits and vegetables are not left to ripen with the season; for we now speed them with hot-houses. We have put "punch" and "pep" into both natural and human processes.

There are some processes into which "punch" cannot be put. One can hardly speak of putting it into one's love for friendship, or sympathy. There are some areas in life where we cannot say "step lively" to the Almighty. We may grow mushrooms in a hothouse, but we cannot rear oak trees overnight. Hence, we who have become so clever in decorating interiors and building time-saving devices, often fool ourselves in discounting the quiet, old-fashioned inner forces of God.

GANDHI STILL LIVES

It is loud-mouthed Goebbels who scorned the methods of the quiet Gandhi as too weak to be noticed, but Goebbels is dead and while Gandhi is still revered by millions, Hitler, the pompous Roman governor, thought Jesus must be crazy because he would not defend Himself. But Pilate is remembered only for his contact with Christ. We wise boys think we know what the "big shots" are. Yet how often are we fooled.

Another superstition is that we are afraid to trust what is not yet established and recognized. We think we know what is real and what is not, and we are determined to be hard-bitten. But in all this, we may forget that it is possible to fool ourselves by believing too little as well as too much. There are pessimistic fools as well as optimistic ones. I once heard it said, "a pessimist is a person who isn't happy unless he's miserable and even then he isn't happy." There is much to make us pessimistic today. It is considered smart to be cynical.

But is it always smart? Had I stood on the banks of the Hudson when crowds were laughing at "Fulton's Folly," would I have been a believer or a cynic? Had I seen Jesus dying on the cross, I probably would have said it was the end of the poor carpenter. Yet we shall soon be celebrating His resurrection.

FINED FOR STUBBORNESS

KITCHENER (CP) — Ronaldi Markowsky Thursday was fined $100 or three months in jail for his stubborness in refusing to take an x-ray. Dr. G. E. Daff Wiese, medical health officer, said Markowsky had a past record of tuberculosis and needed an x-ray. Markowsky insisted he was healthy and did not need an x-ray.

Who Was This?

By A. A. M.

Who was the young man, sitting in a third window, who fell fast asleep while Paul was preaching an extra long sermon?

Paul had left Ephesus when there had been a riot and he came to Troas. There he stayed for seven days. On the first day of the week the Christians were gathered together to break bread. The thought of his departure on the next day must have been weighing on Paul for he prolonged his speech until midnight.

Perhaps the crowd or the many lights in the upper room made the young man feel weary and restless. He sank into a deep sleep as Paul talked still longer. Imagine what a sensation he must have created when he fell out of the window onto the street below!

He lay unconscious and was taken up for dead. When Paul came down and bent over him, he embraced him, saying, to those standing around, "Do not be alarmed, for he still has life in him."

Paul returned to the upper room and broke bread and ate with the other Christians, talking with them until daybreak. Think of the joy the young man, who were grieving over his apparent death, took him away alive. They were not a little comforted at this averted tragedy.

You will find this young man's name and this story in Acts, Chapter 20, verses 7 to 12.

A STUPID CRITICISM OF JOBLESS

There are a number of unemployed persons in Canada but the number could be considerably increased with real benefit to the country.

Those whom we should like to see join the ranks of the jobless are the persons who are getting paid good money to sing a chorus deploring the immobility of the Canadian working force.

These learned oracles shake their heads over statistics revealing the mounting number of jobless persons in this or that district. They say, quite truthfully, that unemployment insurance has a tendency to keep a jobless worker from moving about the country in search of work. Or they say, also quite truthfully, that the great increase in the number of workers who own their own homes has made the country's working force less mobile. What they do not say is where they would like these jobless workers to move.

An immobile working force can be a very great problem in a country which has "depressed areas" where there are large numbers of unemployed and also areas where there is a great expansion of economic activity and additional workers are urgently needed. Canada has such areas which can accurately be described as "depressed." It has some unemployment, but nothing which promises to become permanent unemployment, unless it be in the Cape Breton coal fields. On the other hand there is in Canada more than enough work to go around for everybody. It is not a question of finding work but of finding some work from one town to the next, where he has no friends and where it is so much easier for everybody to disclaim any responsibility for his plight.

If the day should come when thousands of jobless persons in one area refuse to move to fill thousands of vacant jobs in another area, then those who deplore the lack of mobility of the working force will have some valid ground for criticism. But until such a condition exists there will be many of us who will regard the fact that jobless workers are not spreading from town to town, seeking jobs which do not exist, as a blessing instead of a handicap.

DEBATING DEBATES

The value of college debating societies was a debatable subject in the House of Commons.

For several years participation in debating societies, in the New World at least, gave way to the more exciting pastimes of exploding test tubes, catching footballs and playing first base in Touring British debaters had little difficulty winning an inordinate number of catch-as-catch-can debates against Canadian and United States teams. Not only that, but they also seemed to have an inordinate amount of fun doing it.

The usual procedure for such touring debaters was to schedule challengers well in advance, give them a choice of several subjects and then choose the side and the question which they wished to defend. Victory would be awarded the team judged by the audience to have made the best presentation of its case.

It may have been a peculiar quality of hypnotism in Scottish burns or Oxford accents that seduced Canadian audiences but the fact is that the visitors' reasoning, wrapped in charming accents, usually had a greater appeal than the hard but gaunt logic of their Canadian adversaries. The defeated logicians, sometimes baffled by defeat by charm, were certain, found it difficult to appreciate the appeal of poorer reasoning in better English.

College debating, however, may be on the road to revival.

A recent appeal was made on behalf of debating by a professor visiting in Toronto. He stressed the importance to industry of the ability to express and the ability to think and to speak clearly, concisely and accurately while on one's feet.

He stated that college debating hones this ability to a keenness unmatched by any other form of mental exercise.

The professor's advice, unfortunately, was directed to students of art and science. Debating, subjects in which the ability to survive depends to a great extent on the ability to debate well with one's critics. If college debating is to raise the standard of civilized discussion, it would be better for enthusiasts to discuss its merits with engineers and doctors, both inarticulate breeds, than to enkindle more oratorical fire and flame in the already combustible patrons of art and archeology.

GARDEN KNOWLEDGE

There's a way to have a garden,
But it's not an easy trade,
Your hands you have to harden
With a rake and hoe and spade,
And your back must start to aching
As your muscles stronger grow,
For the flower beds you're making
There is much you ought to know.

When you've done the simple seeding
From the springtime through the fall,
There's the constant task of weeding
You must learn to know them all.
There are spots some things won't grow in;
Without sun they'll quickly fade.
There are others you must now in Places damp and dim with shade.

This you have to be prepared for;
Many a rose is like a child.
Left unguarded, and uncared for,
It is likely to run wild.
One must battle as a duty
Drouths, the rains and killing frosts,
But a garden's gift of beauty
Is worth every pain it costs.

The most interesting part of the evening's program was a debate on the subject — "Resolved that the trend of population from the country to the urban centres is due more to social than to economic reasons." The Bridge Street Church League was represented by Miss Charles Hyde and Miss Tucker upheld the affirmative and Mr. Cecil McMullen and Miss Laura Bell of the Tabernacle League took the negative side. U.S. Forgets Defeat in 1812

(Edmonton Journal))

It is astonishing how readily nations sometimes forget their own past experiences. The adults learn little to do so. We have had a rather startling example of this recently in the United States.

Ever since the signing of the Korean armistice, the people of the Eisenhower administration have been claiming that the war in Korea was the first conflict in American history which the United States had not won. This was not a decisive victory. This view has now been made official in a short history of the United States written by Brigadier-General P. M. Robinett and published by the defence department. General Robinett states that the army was "organized and trained before Korea" until then it never failed to "achieve the national objective."

The general said all the Americans who share his opinions seem to have entirely forgotten the War of 1812. While many causes contributed to the outbreak of that struggle, most of it was based on "national objective" was clear. It was the conquest of Canada. In pursuit of this objective, the Americans invaded what are now the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. In the first two years, they had an overwhelming superiority of forces and every prospect of success. Yet the British and Canadian defending forces not only repulsed every invasion attempt, but repeatedly carried the war across the border. When the fighting was ended by the Treaty of Ghent on December 24, 1814, the Americans did not hold an inch of Canadian territory. On the other hand, the British and Canadians had occupied northern Maine; British amphibious forces had captured Washington and burned the White House and the Capitol; the Royal Navy held the whole Atlantic coast under a tight blockade; the United States government was virtually bankrupt; and the New England states were on the point of seceding from the union.

Canadians Aided Lincoln

(Ottawa Citizen)

That a good many Canadians enlisted with the Northern armies in the American Civil War is well known. But that the total reached 50,000, of whom 18,000 died, is quite astonishing. W. J. McCulloch, founder of the Lincoln Fellowship in Hamilton, has these figures in a recent address to the American Women's Club in Hamilton.

On a population basis, the equivalent of this number today would be 250,000, and the death toll would be greater than in either of the world wars. Were Canadians felt they were fighting for freedom; others sought adventure; and others were handsomely paid, under an alternative then possible, to take the places of Americans who did not want to serve in the war.

This was anything but a victory. By contrast, the United States was far more successful in Korea, where it achieved its two main objectives; the checking of Communist expansion in the vicinity of Japan, and the protection of the republic of South Korea. -If the memory of 1812 had not become so dim, Americans would probably be far happier over their very real military achievement in Korea.

One of the most dangerous illusions a country can develop is to imagine that it has always been completely victorious in the past. It tends to breed pride and overconfidence, and a feeling that the national honor can never be satisfied by anything less than the unconditional surrender of its opponents. In actual fact, however, no nation has ever had an unbroken record of triumph. Each has met with reverses as well as victories in its time. It is well for a people to remember its defeats as well as its victories; it helps to preserve an attitude of moderation and common sense in today's crises.

Pay to Wait In Warmth

(Hamilton Spectator)

We were intrigued to read the other day that a country railway station in Britain is experimenting with a penny-in-the-slot electric heater in its waiting-room. In a way, there is a touch of grim humor in this announcement. Nowhere in the world are railways as exasperating and yet so lovable as they are in Britain. One has just decided that they are simply ugly when the train passes through a country station that might have been made of ginger bread and is set among a mass of flowers which are the talk of the station's pride and joy. As for the waiting-rooms, no traveller on English railways is likely to forget them.

On country stations there is usually only one waiting-room, wait-ish in its austerity, with ancient advertisements for summer resorts, framed like old masters hanging on the walls. Smaller and even more ancient advertisements are there to enjoy — sea breezes at Scarborough, Blackpool, or Brighton where apparently, a trailing attack of sweden hats are still the fashion for the gentlemen, and fierce military moustaches for men, and the smartest people still travel along the sea front in hansom drawn buses.

In the winter, then in the grate is a handful of coal dust from which rises a greasy cud of smoke. More than once a man who saw a railway waiting-room fire blazing has run to help. The hardy passengers sit on benches which are fixed to the wall and on the rare occasion the station master can be caught sound the poker would make should it touch that tiny, smoking pyramid of coal dust and he would cry out: "Leave that fire alone!" Or he would plain that he gets "three buckets of coal to last a month."

There is so much of this is doomed under the plan to modernize British railways. There is so much history attached to them that we shall see these railway museum pieces, the waiting-rooms pass with regret.

Her Skill Was in Heart

(Hartford Courant)

Mrs. Rose Sparcel of the Bronx is what is known as a "baby nurse," if not the year. She has just been honored as the most successful foster mother to 100 children over the past 43 years—not one of them her own. More than four dozen of the decades ago, when she lost her own baby girl, she found a foundling home and brought to her two-story frame house in the Bronx the little child. Since then there has she has had an average of six of these infants under her care every year in and year out. About 90 per cent of them were boys.

Mrs. Sparcel says that once or twice she had a little trouble with truant boys, never more than once in that long span, with this variegated crew of children, did she ever have to go to the juvenile court to answer for any of their misdeeds. She attributes her success to Mrs. Sparcel's fact that that she has no set of rules, no advice to give to child psychiatrists.

This automatically sets her off as an unusual foster mother, relying on child guidance and the psychiatrists. She has evidently certainly quote rules, regulations, and frames of reference to explain misbehaviour, but she says there is nothing to do with accumulated experiences, common sense, and Oedipus complex. She has merely done what has come naturally to her.

She was fortunate, too. All the time, her associates have noticed that many children, and her ability to retain their affection even today would indicate that she has been practising her art well. And if the experts can get their eyes off the textbooks for a moment, they will see that at the center of her skill was her heart.

Not Every Man Is Mr. Fixit

(Ottawa Journal)

Far be it from us to throw cold water on budding talent in mechanical things, but it is time somebody cast an enquiring look at this do-it-yourself trend. The idea is that every man should be a Mr. Fixit, that he should roam from roof to basement in his house mending pipes and patching wires and generally tinkering in his workbench, this in what would be called laughingly his play time.

When the five day-week began to make headway there were learned discourses on the use a man should make of the extra leisure he faced. The do-it-yourself cult was born. It has plagued the public because it is clear that if a man is immersed in the construction of a book-case or a portable bar, or if he has undertaken to paint the living room or upholster a chair or weave a rug for his bedroom he is not likely to be disturbed by a poker game or a cocktail party.

So we are beginning to hear amateurs forming themselves into clubs, reading newspaper pages devoted to their activities, and equipping themselves with lovely tools which are useful and quite remarkable versatility, and being rated as Big Business.

No objection at a wholly admirable development and might even be a good deal of social value. But it is always good for a few lines.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

RELIGION AND HEALTH

Anyone who believes that there is a fund mental conflict between science and religion should examine the utterances of many modern scientists and see what they have to say about religion. On the whole, the day of the old materialistic scientist is past. He is not yet extinct but he is nearing extinction. Some scientists make no bones whatsoever about their attitude that to a thoroughly orthodox type of religion. Any scientist today who attempted to denounce religion as an ancient superstition would receive very little applause from competent associates.

The distinguished Swiss scientist Dr. Jung declared some years ago:

"It seems to me that, as religion climbses, nervous diseases notably increase. For most of my patients who have passed middle age, there is not one whose real problem is not that of religious outlook. In the last resort every one of them suffers because he has lost that which a living religion has at all times given to its followers, and not one of them can truly say he has recovers his religious outlook."

Why does a reasonably silling person have to recover his religious outlook in order to be really cured? For the simple reason that man is a spiritual being incased in a physical body and the being and his body are related.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The stupidest dog I know, a cocker spaniel called Rover, belonging to a devoted master who is a fishing partner of mine, is the victim of perfection. He is fed every day, exactly on the same times and the same plate, sometimes on the same eternal dog feed. He is taken, once every month, to have his coat given a professional bath, a trimming and a couple of pills brought to ease his digestion. He is let out the door at the same hours each day, and goes for the same walk, on a leash, around the same couple of blocks, every night.

His beautifully tinted eyes are the exact same four or five things every day of his life. He never jumps on the chesterfield. He never roots on the rug, shedding hair. He will sit up and beg and shake with his paw. He is the stupidest, best trained dog I ever knew.

The wittiest, gayest, most alert dog I know is a slim four-year-old gentleman of doubtful, indeed of shady parentage. He just wobbled one day into his destined home and on the shaky legs of an eight-weeks-old vagrant.

His master starves him one day a week. And it is never the same day each week, for fear he might catch on, and expect it. Never does he get the same food or the same amount of food. He never knows when Bruce Hill his friend is to be, from one day to the next. Sometimes the kitchen, sometimes the cellar, sometimes upstairs in the hall. In winter, it is always indoors. In spring, summer and autumn, it is often outdoors, on the back porch, or even in the garden. Never do the humans has to stay out in the rain and snow, keeping dry and comfortable, like a true scout. Nothing in his life is ordered, organized.

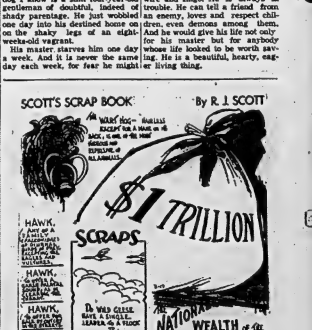
His beautiful friend, with his master, "law and order to do to him what it has done to all the other species. In nature, no animal is the victim of routine. Vicissitude is the very essence of his life.

Well, sire, this dog can read your every mood. He can convey his every joy to you, in return. He is full of wire and zingo. He is always in readiness for trouble. He can find an enemy, loves and respect children, and can even discriminate them. And he would give his life not only for his master but for anybody whose wife decided to be word saving. He is a beautiful, hearty, eager living thing.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THINGS NOT CHARGED



It would be interesting—and a surprise to many—if we only stopped to take note of all the things with which we have been endowed, and which have not been charged nothing! For example, consider the wonderful expression from many a clerk in a store, even though you did not buy; the interest of kindnesses received on day after day by our friends, and also by ourselves; the delights of our pleasure and profit, such as our public libraries, museums, and art galleries, and our city parks.

And then in nature, on every hand we are given many a thrill of beauty for which we are charged nothing. Who has ever seen the starry night! But how little we know what is behind all those stars, and behind the men who have made the most fascinating manner about what goes on in the bed of the ocean, and of its topography and inhabitants. Anyone is free to explore to his heart's content.

Look at it and read and write. I listen that Spring in this southland country will soon be here, and overflow throughout all the countryside. We are indebted to all the balmy days of Springtime, its flowered perfume and its bridal array. We are indebted to all who have ever given us a kind word, a note of encouragement, or left something of themselves to enrich all life, like what the poets, artists, and great writers have created and left as a heritage to all mankind. We are not charged for all these services. Should not this inspire each one of us to make a contribution to the world in the happiness of others—a small payment for all which we have received from life, which we have not been charged at all, but no bills are ever rendered.

Three Youths Held for Thefts From Churches

Two local youths and one juvenile have been apprehended by city police for the theft of money from Tabernacle United Church and at St. Michael's Church.

Police said the juvenile, John Smith, 19, Water Street, and Dennis Downes, 18, Bay Street, were charged on two counts of shopbreaking and on one count of theft. The Tabernacle Church had been entered on two occasions and money stolen from purses of choir members, while money was also taken from St. Michael's. A juvenile was also involved, police said.

Bulletins From Birdland

GEOGRAPHICAL CONDITIONS

Distance from the equator or the north pole is not really the deciding factor for a bird's breeding range, but the climate of a district. This, in turn, depends upon altitude, ocean currents, rainfall, and so on.

Our Rocky Mountains provide a good example for elevation. While the valleys are warm enough to support life as found in the southern tip of Ontario, such as the barn owl, the peaks are of an Arctic character, the willow ptarmigan, a bird of the treeless north, occurring there.

In between these two belts lie less extreme temperatures, and there may be seen blackbirds, robins, and yellow warblers, birds similar to those of a large portion of settled Canada. The Cypress Hills of Saskatchewan, which lie about 2,000 feet above the surrounding plain, illustrate the effect of height on life. There we have a coniferous forest supporting bird life of a more northerly nature, as Great Horned Owls, Canada Jays, and mountain bluebirds.

It is hard to realize that Land's End in England, warmed by the Gulf Stream, is in the same latitude as bleak Labrador, washed by a cold artic current.

BIRD RANGES

On the north shore of the Lower St. Lawrence nest ruby-crowned kinglets, white-crowned sparrows, fox sparrows, palm warblers, and wilson warblers; in the Gulf of St. Lawrence are encountered red-throated loons, eider ducks, and brunnich's murres.

Actually farther from the equator, but swept by the warm Japanese current, our northern British Columbia coast is surprisingly mild. This is added to by a heavy rainfall on our western provinces, as the same birds of those parts are species ordinarily found only south of our border. Thousands upon thousands spend the winter in British Columbia, reluctant to leave so equable a climate.

Another condition affecting the distribution of birds is met on our western treeless prairies. Entirely different species are attracted by this dry region, hunting for the sage hen. Yet it is mottled by many shallow lakes, some of them alkaline, where avocets and marbled Godwits breed.

Canada thus supplies suitable living conditions for a great variety of birds; those that thrive in extreme cold, and those that can exist only when the climate is always definitely warm; land birds and water birds; lovers of mountains, plains, forests, and deserts. Let us do our part in trying to preserve this gift of Nature, Canada's bird life.

Dial Telephone System Will Be on Display

The dial telephone exchange unit which enables anyone to "see" a telephone call tracing its path through intricate switching equipment, will go on display at the Belleville Utilities Commission office, 377 Front St., today.

Since the unit first went on display, early in February, in Bell's business office on Bridge St. E., nearly 2,000 persons have seen it in action.

The demonstration unit consists of two telephones and a set of dial switches exactly the same as the thousands which will go into service in the exchange building on April 17. Visitors can test their dialing technique, and at the same time, watch the switches, in succession, jump into position to complete the circuit to the second telephone. When the two letters and five digits have been dialed, the second telephone rings. A trained attendant explains the action as it progresses.

"We are grateful indeed for the Belleville Utilities Commission assistance towards making the changeover to the dial system as smooth as possible," said Grand W. Proctor, Bell manager here.

"We expect that hundreds more persons will visit the dial demonstration unit in its new location."

Wellington on the Lake

THE FIRST ROBINS

It was a bright March morning
And the sky was all a-glow
Though on the streets still lingered
A remnant of winter snow.
When in the leafless apple-tree
Appeared a sight to cheer—
A pair of red-breast robins
To proclaim that Spring is here!

O pretty robin red-breast
You welcome your return;
Your coming seems an answer
To the weary spirit's yearn,
And your songs bring in a vision
Of the summer sun and flowers,
And of the untold magic—
That haunts the summer hours.

Dear harbinger of Springtime!
We love your cheering song
As well the dreams and visions
That round your presence throng;
O may we catch the radiance
That flashes from your wing
And cheer the world with music
Like your joyful carolling!

—Helen B. Anderson.

On Tuesday morning, March 15, the robins returned to the apple-tree by the south window. Deep in our hearts we felt a warm welcome for these harbingers of Spring and recalled how last summer they hopped about on the lawn and perched on the window sill as if asking for crumbs which were lavishly given.

We wondered if they were weary after their long journey from the south. We recall on a trip home from Florida, seeing large flocks of robins resting and feeding in Georgia and South Carolina as they were returning north. The joy felt on their return cannot be expressed in words. Quoting a poet:

"You never dream of the wonders you bring,
Visions that follow the flash of your wing.
How all the beautiful by-and-by Around you and after you, seem to fly."

THE W.A. SUPPER

The supper under the auspices of the W.A. of the Wellington United church on Friday evening, attracted a large number, who enjoyed the delicious repast prepared by the ladies. The tables were inviting and the guests pleasantly served.

On entering the hall and noting the attractive tables and the guests enjoying the social evening with the members of the W.A. attentively serving, thought of the lines of the late Nellie McClung when she wrote of "Women and the Church". An extract follows—

"Go, labor on, good Sister Anne,
Abundant may thy labors be.
To magnify thy brother man
Is all the Lord requires of thee.

Go, labor on, the night draws nigh:
Go, build us churches—as you can,
The times are hard, but chicken-pie
Will do the trick. Oh, rustle, Anne!"

An enjoyable evening was spent in games and social chat.

At ten o'clock the newlyweds were asked to take their places at a decorated table and a congratulatory address read to them by Mrs. Donald Danford after which they were presented with several baskets of lovely gifts by Lynda McDonald and Brenda Vanclea.

After the gifts were opened and admired Murray and Phyllis graciously thanked everyone for their kindness and invited all to visit them in their new home.

Refreshments were served by the sponsors of the evening, Mrs. Reg. Bishop, Mrs. Harry McDonald and Mrs. Donald Davis.

Guests of honor at the event were Mrs. Sam Danford and Mr. McCrae Danford.

Penang's Botanical Gardens

The extreme opposite of a visit to a zoo is the time spent in the botanical gardens of the world. The pathos of the one and the glorious glamour of the other leave unforgettable memories. Of the former the most notable exception is that of Singapore's Botanical Gardens; there the animals have the greatest freedom possible to be found anywhere. Also near London are the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew.

We sometimes think of the gardens as being a collection of pretty plants and interesting trees but their greatest importance is their use in plant research. It was in Kew that rubber nuts were nurtured and later transplanted to Malaya and other parts of the Empire.

Similar investigation work was done in connection with tea. It seems incredible that the climate of England would possibly produce anything that could be nourished in the climate of Malaya or Ceylon for its full development. In passing, one may recall how in both these same Kew Gardens owe to the interest of the second and third Georges.

LENGTHY RESEARCH

For many years work that is now being done by the Government Agricultural and Forest Departments under the aid of crop improving races of plants and so on—was done exclusively in the Botanic Gardens of Colombo, Calcutta, Buitenzorg and Singapore. Most of us enjoy the horticultural results: for example here in Penang the Gardens supplied over 11,000 trees 75 years ago. We now enjoy their shade and beauty.

Another function of the Gardens is the exchange of plants with other countries most of them of value, especially the exchange of timber trees with many parts of the world.

The occupation of the Japanese during the last war left many sad features; the deaths of the curators of war, of important members of the staff.

The occupation was accompanied by removal of large quantities of planting material, especially orchids. Tunnels had been excavated on the boundaries for shelters and storage. A large section works for assembling torpedo b o m b s found the thick foliage of the big trees an excellent concealment from aerial attack. There is still a huge quantity of war material not yet removed on account of lack of funds. But courage, industry and determination will work wonders.

SLENDER PALMS

I saw the Royal Palms Avenue entrance to the Gardens under the brilliance of the midday sun. The slender upright stems of the palms looked like so many architectural columns with their tops of feathery scrolls giving a fantastic touch to the little cloudy blue sky above. The avenue is almost a mile long and was planted only 20 years ago.

The uniformity of design of the particular palm used to decorate this street is most unusual and delightful.

Other avenues were planted with trees having golden yellow flowers growing in great masses 100 feet above the ground. Differing from our flowering trees, these bloom, at intervals, for four or five months at a time. I was fortunate to be there at the right time to enjoy their sight and fragrance. I was also present at the right time to enjoy the sight of groups of children, apparently scouts and guides, and so comfortably well-behaved.

Growing in the Garden is our Pitcher Plant and on the hill of Penang our Lady's Slipper, but I was not fortunate enough to see either. There is not room to go into any detail about the many exotic plants but the most curious was called the Tacca or Black-lily. It was not black but of a deep enough purple to be called black. It produces five-inch-long whiskers like stamens coming from the petals of the flower, and is like nothing I had ever seen.

INTERESTING TREES

It was, however, the trees that chiefly interested me. There were giants here, as I found with their odd hanging roots descending out of high branches which, when they reached the ground, formed a buttress and actually support the long branches. In the branches the roots and the roots grow down the trees can cover a very large space.

Many trees are also confined to the Botanical Gardens by any means but we found it amusing to get into competition and strengthen the tree by sending forth up alongside.

Before we entered the park there was a bookah or bottle tree which I had first seen growing in the Canary Islands. There it was called the dragon tree and so named for that it could not get permission to collect one leaf as a souvenir.

ENORMOUS SIZE

It can grow to an enormous size. Just measure off 6 feet in your yard and that will give you an idea of the thickness of the trunk but it does not grow to any great height. It is said that the trunks of living trees are often excavated to form houses which makes them even larger than the Redwood of California.

The largest I have ever seen was in Southern Rhodesia near the mighty Victoria Falls: The most interesting was the "Dot" tree in Kandy, Ceylon but the one in the grand Canary, from which I did not get a leaf, was the finest in court yard and it had been necessary to build the house around it.

Often in the orient I noticed a great growth of plants on many trees, orchids, ferns, and actually other trees trying to take roots in the soil formed by rotting branches where they spread out from the trunk. They are called epiphytic.

On some of them are to be found the birds-nest fern. What happens is that the fern fronds find a place to root in one of these decayed bits where dead leaves from neighboring trees also find a resting place and in their turn form soil.

SOIL FORMED

The fronds overlap and form a sort of hollow nest, fed by the spongy mass which holds water for a long time after rain, thus material is formed, not only for this fern but for other many plants. Ferns that can be seen peeping out be-tween the mass of rootlets one sees as one looks up into the trees.

One path in the park leads directly into the jungle which I was satisfied quickly I was not prepared for a few minutes to watch some family groups of monkeys common to this area.

They seemed to be having the most pleasant days with each other in some kind of monkey dialect, and have a friendly smile. One came over to our car, apparently to look us over, then returned to her family to report her opinion of us.

Going Places

Weather Affects Flight Plans

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Bad weather travel is most likely to be a problem this time of year and is most likely to affect those of us going places by plane. If this mans you, here are some answers to some questions that travelers usually raise when the wind blows and the rain flows:

(Q) How do you know if your flight is going?

(A) If the decision not to fly is made clearly enough, the airline (which will know where to find you if you've made a proper reservation and given your phone number) will call you. However, the decision may not be made until the last minute, in which case they'll advise you when you check in. Sometimes the weather is changing rapidly, either at your starting point or destination, making it impossible to advise you in advance.

(Q) Is there any way you can judge yourself as to whether conditions are good enough for flying, so you may make plans?

MISTAKEN IDEA

(A) Yes. Women have a mistaken idea of what makes adequate flying weather. Rain, snow, and fog are not usually significant. The only time it's a safe bet they won't be flying is when you can't see very far ahead of or above you: that means the pilot can't either. Rain and snow are usually obscure visibility from the air, but fog and haze, of course, do.

(Q) Is it ever to rough (turbulent air) to fly?

(A) As far as the airlines are concerned (except in the event of serious storms) it is. Often they'll make a trip for you.

If you are making a short hop, or taking a flight which is a local, (and therefore won't have any chances to get above the overcast), or if it is very windy and the clouds appear to be high, or if the weather reports are changing, chances are there will be turbulence.

CANCELLATIONS

(Q) What happens after your flight is cancelled?

(A) The airline will make every effort to first switch you to another line going the same way. The other carrier may be going because it's plane is already at the field and will not get flying because its pilots can't get in, or may have lower minimum standards and will operate where your line won't. (this is not necessarily a compromise with safety, since every airline has to adhere to government safety standards; some have higher standards of their own, and some don't.)

If they can't switch you, they'll offer you a reservation on their next available flight. Of course, you run the risk of the weather not improving for that one either. The next possibility is a train. If the ticket agent is not too busy, he'll check into it at once, book you, make your reservation, and refund your plane ticket.

If no other flights are available (and in some instances even if they are) the airline will pay your living expenses (if you're away from home) until they can get you on one of their flights. These expenses will include transportation to and from the airport, meals, and hotel room. According to the custom of the airlines, you are entitled to these accomodations, but in some cases you may not get them unless you ask, so it's well to know about them.

WHEN IS IT SAFE

(Q) How can you tell if it's safe enough for the airline to fly?

(A) You can't and it's not your job to do so. Even though you may have been in a crash, bear in mind that the airline has many lives and millions of dollars worth of equipment at stake—if they decide to fly, it's safe. You need never worry about that.

(Q) What about the people who are waiting to meet you at the airport?

(A) The airline will be happy to let them know that you're not arriving as scheduled and when you will arrive. Either that or they'll get in touch with whom you may have business appointments at your destination.

(Q) What happens if you miss a connection because of delays due to the weather?

AIRLINE RESPONSIBLE

(A) The airline which caused you to miss the connection is responsible for it. Either that airline's reservation ready for you when you arrive at your connecting point or will put you up over night (or otherwise assume your expenses) until you can make a connection.

(Q) How can you know in advance if your flight is delayed because of the weather?

(A) If it is delayed more than 45 minutes or so, the airline is supposed to call you. Unfortunately, they don't always. Unless you check with them just before you're scheduled to leave for the airport, you may get out there and have a long wait on your hands at the terminal. Even an hour or so before flight time there may be no accurate information available to you, but that has the advantage of as one of the risks of air travel.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A SMALL PROBLEM, BUT A DIFFICULT ONE

Here is a problem about which I would like very much to have readers express their opinions. For while it seems like a small one, it is still a very difficult one to those who have it, and, frankly, I'm not at all sure myself what the best way may be to go about solving it.

Here, in the words of the wife who writes about it, is the problem:

"While my problem might be classed as of bad manners, it is fast becoming a problem of the heart to me, it regards smoking.

"My husband and I have been married nearly 30 years, and during the first half of those years, he did not smoke. Then he started, and has been a chain smoker ever since.

"When he is home, it's like living in a smokehouse. If there's no ash tray handy, the ashes go on the furniture, and when he doesn't drop them on the furniture he sees he puts them in his pockets.

"About the only kind of recreation we have seemed to have in common was playing cards, but I have now got to the point where I don't care to play any more, because most of the people we play with are smokers, too. I've let them know I dislike breathing a cloud of smoke, but it just doesn't register with them, or else they don't care how I feel. Occasionally, someone will say: 'Poor thing! We'll have to get you a gas mask!' and then light up another cigarette. My husband is the worst of the lot. If he shouted me any consideration, maybe the others would, too.

"Now I don't play cards any offener than I have to in order to be polite, and I don't really enjoy it any more, so I am wondering what I should do or say. I have even been thinking seriously of trying to get a steady night job and letting my husband sit here in his cloud of smoke night after night. But I had to have a major operation about a year and a half ago which ruined my wind, and so, since I am past 50 years old and have a handicap besides, I haven't much hope of being able to hold a job or even get one.

"My husband provides for me, and is good to me in many ways, which is why I put up with his smoking as I have. But after an evening of playing cards with smokers, my nose and throat feel raw from the smoke, and it seems to me the others should have a little consideration.

"Can you suggest anything that might help, or do you smoke, too, and think everyone should put up with it, like my husband and friends do?"

No, I don't smoke myself, and so I can well understand the dilemma in which this woman finds herself. For while no one wants to be rude and unfair to those who enjoy smoking, it does seem, at the same time, as though non-smokers should have rights, too.

In most cases, I think it is apt to be thoughtlessness, rather than a lack of consideration for others, that activates the smoker who lights up one cigarette after another without bothering to ask if anyone objects. At the same time, I doubt if even the thoughtful smoker who does ask, really expects that anyone will object so strenuously that he must go through an entire evening without a single smoke. And most non-smokers hesitate to appear fussy, or to deny smokers their pleasure.

So what is our correspondent to do when she has to sit through an evening as the only non-smoker present?

My own idea of a solution is that she might buy a smoke-consumer, or some other kind of air-clarifier, which would draw out most of the smoke and leave the air breathable for her. I suggest that she go to stores in her city where smoking equipment is sold, explain her problem and ask what she could buy that would serve the purpose of keeping the air as clear as possible.

Since there must be many non-smokers among the readers of this column, perhaps some of them may have solved this particular type of problem in other ways. It would be greatly appreciated if any who have solved it will let us know how they have done it.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

GOOD-LOOKS INSURANCE

Minutes into hours, hours into days, days into years! You can't do a thing about it! Every year there's an extra candle on the birthday cake. And what have you been doing to keep young in looks and spirit?

Whenever you see a woman of sixty, light of foot, slender of body and with a crease in her satiny smooth complexion, you can be sure she has had foresight. She's fought good-looks griefs before they came along. It is a life-long job, and you had better get an early start.

When a woman reaches her fortieth birthday, she may be pretty mad about it. It is a wonderful satisfaction if she does not look her years. She shouldn't, considering what can be done to retain pleasing appearance. Beauty life can be prevented. Overcoming them, when once established, is something else again. That can be tough going.

Remember that beauty is built on a foundation of health—physical, mental and spiritual. Make every effort to keep strong and well. Don't forget that well-being depends on a sound nervous system, mental poise, a strict rein on the emotions. Don't get upset about small irritations. They are a part of life that comes to everyone. It is the serene woman who is never bothered with little accordion pleats in her face.

Do not understand the beauty benefits of a balanced diet. It is worthwhile to acquire a little knowledge about dieting. If you are overweight, cut down on fats, sweets and starches.

Beauty sleep means precisely that. The big idea is to get enough of it. Don't be a bonehead about sun-sitter. Have a certain amount of outdoor life. Cream your hands and face, brush your hair and don't forget to say your prayers.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

NO REASON FOR PRESENT, NOW OR LATER

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Yesterday I received from a distant cousin of mine a clipping from her local newspaper telling of the engagement of her daughter. I haven't seen this distant cousin in many years and have never met her daughter. The clipping announced that the wedding would take place "early in the summer." Am I supposed to send a wedding present now, or should I write to many years, and have never met ask when the wedding date is to be?—R.B.

I see no reason why you would send a wedding present now. Your distant cousin certainly had a casual way of announcing her daughter's engagement. If you wish, you might write a cousinly note to the mother of the bride-to-be, and or a note of good wishes to the bride-to-be. But don't write asking for information about the wedding date, for to do that look as if you are begging for an invitation. Also, I take it you're not very much interested in receiving.

BIRTH-ANNOUNCEMENT CARRIES NO GIFT-OBLIGATION

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Our baby is to be born in a few weeks, our first child, and naturally we will be most eager to send the news to our relatives and friends in various parts of the country (unfairly to them in the city where my husband and I were born and lived all our lives until three years ago). But I hesitate about sending our birthannouncements, because I'm so afraid that people to whom we send them will think a present is expected as an "acknowledgment" of the announcement-card. Don't you really think I'm right about this? —"Lady-in-waiting"

No! You have the wrong point of view about sending (or receiving) birth-announcements. As their name says . . . they are announcements, and the announcement carries no obligation for the receiver to send a present. Naturally, as you and your husband will want to share the happy news with your relatives and friends . . . so please put away your hesitations and your fears, send the announcements high-heartedly and joyously . . . and let nature take its course as to how they are acknowledged. Most of the acknowledgments that I believe, be in the form of warm-hearted little notes of congratulations, "best wishes for all three."

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . can hardly wait for the paper to come as you help us so much. Was wondering if you or some of your readers could give me the recipe for the glaze that you use on raised doughnuts. . . I always have just kettle cooked my peaches. . . I did the same this year. . . the syrup was plenty rich, and then put them in scalded cans and worked the air bubbles out, turned them upside down until morning, then washed cans . . . in about a week bubbles started forming in some and one broke . . . bubbles formed in others but did not break jars and we are using them and they are grand. I sure hope you can help. —Mrs. A. V.

ANSWER:

TO GLAZE DOUGHNUTS

Add 1-3 cup water boiling hot to 1 cup unsifted confectioners' sugar. Mix well. Dip warm doughnuts into the warm glaze and allow to cool on wire rack.

I have had letters from other readers this winter telling a similar story about peach spoilage. I talked to the chief chemist of one of the largest peach canneries in Canada, asking if they had had any experience in canning in 1954 that would explain failures such as yours. He said a definite "No". He said though, that if the letters were coming from a particular area it might be that some bacteria that had sneaked in to that particular area was responsible. To be 100 per cent sure of your process you should process your sealed cans in pressure cooker. Would be that the fork or knife or spoon you used to work out air bubbles might not have been sterile. Be stricter about your sterilizing methods next year.

LETTER:

. . . I find if you boil brown sugar and cream together it won't curdle . . . re butterscotch and caramel fillings. . . . these I have no trouble with. . . I use either brown or white sugar, caramelize it then pour on milk cold . . . thicken it with cornstarch paste, boil until the sugar isn't all melted but I simmer for about 15 minutes and it all melts and I've yet to have one curdle . . . here's another. . . little hint: when making lemon pie use lemon pie filler to thicken the filling, it won't curdle, need lemon juice or vinegar. . . . I put a piece of butter in too . . . of course you won't need a whole pie filler for 1 pie. . . I use 2 scant tablespoons. You might like to try these cookies . . . they are real good—1 1-2 cups flour, 1 1-4 cups quick-cooking rolled oats, 1-4 cup butter, 1-3 cup shortening, 1-4 cup warm syrup, 1 egg beaten, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking soda (level ones), 2 teaspoons ginger, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon allspice. Sift flour, salt, baking soda and spices. Add oats and sugar. Rub in butter and shortening. Add syrup and beaten egg. Mix all well. Roll in small balls size of large hazel nut, bake on greased sheet till golden in moderate oven. They go a lovely brown color but watch as they burn easily. Two teaspoons soda may seem a lot but you can't taste it for the syrup counteracts it.—(Mrs.) H. M.

High Climate Slows Distance Men, Canada 11th in Pan-American Games

MEXICO CITY (CP) — George Norman of Toronto, a 43-year-old marathoner who survived a 1,000-mile death march during the Second World War, today came up against the major problem bothering distance men in the pan-American games.

The high climate of Mexico City has slowed them down.

Norman was entered in the most gruelling event of the games, the 26-mile, 385 - yard marathon, against a field that included veteran Johnny Kelley of Boston.

The Canadian runner had one of the last chances to gain a gold medal for Canada as the games reached the halfway mark with the wind-up of the track and field events.

The spotlight also was on the 1,500-metre race with West Saxter, the 1-mile king, favored and the men and women's 400-metre relays. Canada entered a team in the 400-metre medley.

MISSED R.E. GAMES

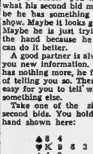
For Norman it was the first time he had run in international competition in several years. He finished sixth in the 23,385-marathon at Yonkers, N.Y., in 1949, but failed to qualify at the British Empire Games at Vancouver last summer.

Norman came to Canada from Britain in 1943. During the war he came through a death march from Poland to Dresden, in East Germany, while serving with the Royal Artillery.

Friday little known Lou Jones, 25-year-old private in the U.S. Army, surprised the experts when he raced the 400 metres in a phenomenal 45.4 seconds to break the world record held by George Rhoden of Jamaica by 4/10ths of a second.

The brilliant performance overshadowed the world record hop, step and jump mark of 16.36 metres, or 54 feet, set the day before by Brazil's Adhemar Ferreira da Silva and the 50-foot-plus broad jump by Rosslyn Range and John Bennette, all of the U.S. Army.

Barrelling along with Jones was Jim Lea, Bermudan, whose 44.6 also broke Rhoden's world mark.



U.S. TOP TEAM

The United States long since has been established as the games champion with an unofficial points score for the games of 145. Argentina, the defending champion, was next with 123½ and Mexico was third with 107½.

Canada was tied with Jamaica for 11th place with 15 points.

In swimming, George Park of Hamilton, Ont., qualified for the men's 100-metre free style swimming finals with a fine performance of 59 seconds flat. The Canadian policeman came in second in his heat behind Charles Schelor of the U.S. Army, who broke the games record with a time of 58.3 seconds.

Canada's women's relay team dropped its fourth straight, losing to the United States 46-25.

In nearly every bridge group there is some guy whose holdings you are unable to read. He thinks he is Mollor Nataya's guide in the game. So, he insists on playing every contract, regardless.

As a result, you never know what his second bid means. Maybe he has something more to show. Maybe it looks good to him. Maybe he is just trying to play the hand because he thinks he can do it better.

A good partner is always giving you new information. Even if he has nothing more, he finds a way of telling you so. Therefore, it is easy for you to tell when he has something else.

Take one of the simplest of second bids. You hold the north hand shown here:

♠5 4
♥K 9 6 3
♦A 5 2
♣9 6 4 3 2

The bidding starts off like this:

South	North
1 Heart	2 Hearts
2 No-trump	?

What is your south partner saying? What is the picture you get of his holding? What is he expecting you to do about it? What should you do about it with the hand you have?

Among other things his opening showed five suit tricks in which are four high cards (not trump tricks). Since your simple assist does not force, his second bid shows something additional. What?

The fact that he did not raise the assisted hearts denies having a sixth trick. So, he must be showing a fifth high card. How do you definitely know he has a 4-3-3-3 distribution.

CURTIS ACCLAIMED FOR VERSATILE PERFORMANCES

Facing the biggest challenge of his career, Tony Curtis proves himself one of Hollywood's most versatile actors in Universal-International's "Six Bridges to Cross," the story behind the great $2,000,000 Boston robbery that shocked the nation. The picture, starring Tony as the master-crook behind the crime of the century opens Monday at the McCarthy Theatre with Julie Adams and George Nader also starred.

Just prior to this highly dramatic role Tony sang and danced for the first time in "So This is Paris," portrayed a dashing knight in shining armor in "The Black Shield of Falworth" and won audience approval of his serious singing, romance and daredevil race driver in "Johnny Dark."

Five years ago Tony was "just a kid from the Bronx." Today Joseph Cotten, who directed Tony in "Six Bridges to Cross" has this to say about the young actor:

"Tony has a strong personality and drive that makes for believable manner. He studies his role thoroughly and makes every effort to do his best. I recommend when he is in front of the camera, I believe can do just about any type of role."

"Six Bridges to Cross," based on the Collier's magazine story and the best selling novel "The Anatomy of a Robbery" by Joseph F. Dinneen (also a Reader's Digest Book Club hit) was produced by Aaron Rosenberg and filmed almost in its entirety in Boston, actual scene of the sensational headline story.

Jay C. Flippen and Sal Mineo head the Collier's all-star cast which was recruited mainly from the ranks of New York and Boston stage and radio-TV actors.

Jeff Donnell Enjoys Playing Wife to Comic George Gobel

By JOE THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jeff Donnell is a lucky girl. She has two delightful husbands—and it's legal.

First husband No. 1 is Jeff, the big fellow with a voice like a foghorn on the San Francisco bay. He is Jeff's real-life hubby.

Husband No. 2 is George Gobel, the sharp comic who was voted the outstanding new personality on TV by the Television Academy. Jeff plays his wife Alice on the Saturday night show.

LUCKY GIRL

"Sure, I'm lucky," said Jeff, a bright, fresh-faced girl with a lot of enthusiasm. "I can't think of any job I'd like more than playing Alice."

The alliance with George had its inception two years ago when he and Jeff were appearing on NBC's Saturday Night Revue. They never appeared together on the big show, but Jeff became a Gobel fan. The closest they came to meeting was in a studio corridor.

They were walking toward each other, Jeff said: "I think you're wonderful." He said: "Thank you." Both kept on walking.

DIFFERENT WIVES

Two years later, Gobel was being prepped for a show of his own. Various actresses were proposed to ture."

play his wife and Gobel selected Jeff from a list. But she was getting married to Jack that week and couldn't make it. Other actresses did the role for the first shows and the idea was to have a different one each week.

But when Jeff finally played the part, all hands decided she should be the regular Alice. When she first reported to work, George told a bystander: "Two years ago I came to work greatly depressed; I thought things were going badly on the Saturday Night Revue. Then I looked over at rehearsal and saw this girl grinning at me. She thought I was funny, even when I was contemplating suicide."

She still thinks George is the funniest man alive. The only way she can keep from busting out laughing at his domestic skits is to lose herself in the role of Alice.

REAL ALICE

What about "the real Alice," as George calls her?

"We get along wonderfully," Jeff said. "We're both the same age and have the same interests. We live close to each other and get together for dinner often.

"George and Alda had to get up at 5:30 to catch a plane for Japan, where he is making a pic-

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

TOUGHIE TO DROP

The Kingston Goodyears won the first round of the senior "B" group finals last night, thanks to the magnificent performance of one Ken Johnstone, their keeper of the gate who kicked out enough rubber in the first period to insulate a flat top. The Memos staged a dazzling offensive in the first period outshooting the Goodyears 14-7 with Mr. Johnstone wondering where all the rubber was coming from. They did everything but dunk the dice with the "third-period" Goodyears living up to their endurance reputation in the final heat to beat Parisi twice to clinch the verdict.

• • • • •

The Memos had an edge in the second heat, too, outshooting the Goodyears 10-8 but again it appeared impossible for them to sink the puck behind the steady Johnstone.

• • • • •

A slithering puck that Parisi never saw and which veered in from the right boards early in the third period seemed to take some of the sting out of the Memos attack and the speedy Goodyear forwards took advantage of everything that came their way. They checked hard and loosed their torses around with an abandon that took the effectiveness out of the Memos' passing attacks. They fought desperately in the final minutes of the game but the Goodyears had tasted victory blood and had no intention of letting the win slip from their grasp.

• • • • •

Keith MacDonald's goal in the second chapter was the prettiest effort of the night. Jack Watt contacted the puck after slipping the puck to Goyer who in turn relayed a short flip to MacDonald on the right boards. The fleet winger drove a hard blazing shot past Johnstone to open the scoring.

• • • • •

The teams resume the ice warfare tonight in Kingston and tangle in the third round in the Limestone City next Wednesday. It was rip-roaring high-speed hockey all the way with players of both teams playing the puck rather than the man as the total of five penalties will evidence. It should be a red-hot series—and remember— Cornwall was the first of the semi-finals series against our side by a 10-9 score.

• • • • •

A large number of Memo fans will make the trip tonight, or as many as can get tickets and the Boucherville won't be without some support, it was stated in the press box last night that an all-time record crowd is expected to cram the Community Centre to a bulging point.

BASEBALL

A strong delegation from the Belleville Baseball Association, headed by Bala's manager Jack Carson, left for Cobourg this morning, where they will attend the annual convelave of the Ontario Baseball Association. Manager Carson has been nominated for a position on the OBA executive and it is to be hoped that he meets with the favor of the delegates.

SOFTBALL

Newly-elected president of the Belleville District Softball Association, Cy Barrlage has called a meeting of the organization for Monday night at the West Moira Street Fire Hall. It is hoped a good, turnout will be on hand for much important business has to be conducted. The association will likely name a delegate or delegates to the Ontario Amateur Softball Association's annual conclave slated for Peterborough on April 8 and 9. Don Lee, executive member, is again running for office.

CURLERS LAMENT!

One of Ottawa's heartiest curling enthusiasts was telling a story about the curler who had been hitting the bonspiel circuit for several weeks. The pace was a vigorous one and it prompted what he described as "The Curler's Lament." It went like this: "I had 12 bottles of whiskey in my cellar and my wife, annoyed by my frequent benspiel trips, told me to empty the contents of each and every bottle down the sink —OR Else."

• • • • •

"I agreed to proceed with the unpleasant task. I withdrew the cork from the first bottle and poured the contents down the sink, with the exception of one glass, which I drank. I extracted the cork from the second bottle and did likewise with the exception of one glass, which I drank. I then withdrew the cork from the third bottle and poured the whiskey down the sink, with the exception of one glass, which I drank. I pulled the cork from the fourth sink and poured the bottle down the glass, which I drank. I pulled the bottle from the cork of the next and drank one sink out of it and threwthereet down the glass. I pulled the sink out of the next glass, bottled the drink and drank the pour."

• • • • •

"When I had everything emptied I steadied the house with one hand, counted the bottles, corks, glasses, and sinks with the other, which were twenty-nine, and found the house came by I counted them again and finally had all the houses and bottles and corks, glasses and sinks counied, except one house and one bottle which I drank."

Gunners Edge Nortowns 76-68

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — The 49th Regiment Gunners of Sault Ste. Marie kept their hopes of an all-Ontario senior A basketball championship alive Friday night when they edged Toronto Nortowns 76- 76-68 in the second game of their best-of-three final series. Toronto won the first game 78-68.

The deciding game will be staged here tonight, the winner earning the right to meet the Ontario senior champions.

Gunners displayed a complete reversal of form over their performance of Thursday night. They outplayed Nortown by a fair margin, especially in the important second half.

The opening 10 minutes of play saw 49ers take a 23-17 lead at Ray Sillanen and Jerry Kahle combined to score 14 points.

Best man for the winners was Sillanen with ballied 20 points, while Lou Lukenda had 13. For the losers, Ed Maynerick had 18 points.

Campbell's Presence at Game 'A Challenge' Says Official; All-Out Police Guard Tonight

By MEL MORRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The mayor, city councillors, police and just about everyone else in this hockey-mad city talked the argument over Thursday's riot at the Montreal Forum while police drew up plans to prevent another outburst tonight.

Merchants along busy St. Catherine street were still repairing broken window today and counting the damage caused by thousands of frenzied Montreal followers who went on a rampage of destruction and looting to protest the suspension of their idol—Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

In an attempt to avert a similar demonstration when the New York Rangers play here tonight, Mayor Jean Drapeau and Richard himself spoke to radio and television audiences, asking them to stop any protest demonstrations.

CLASH WITH CAMPBELL

Drapeau also clashed verbally with National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell, the man who suspended Richard and thus came the target of revenge-crazed fans at the Forum.

The mayor said Campbell's insistence on attending the game was a "real challenge" to the fans. Meanwhile, a city councillor went on to say he was prepared to obtain a warrant for the arrest of the NHL president.

Campbell said Drapeau's statement was a "strange and sorry contribution" and attributed to the magistrate "sworn to uphold the law".

He denied rumors that he planned to resign. He said he had received letters from the Canadian governors "commending me very highly" and left no doubt on Mr. Richard case and the manner in which I have conducted myself, including my attendance at the game."

DRAPEAU RETIREMENT

Richard also ended reports that he planned to retire this year.

"I will take my punishment and come back next year to help the club and the younger players win the cup," he said in his brief radio and television address in both French and English.

"Because I always try so hard to win and had my trouble at Boston I was suspended," he explained. "At playoff time it hurts not to be in the game with my team. However, I want to do what is good for the people of Montreal and my team."

"So that no further harm will be done I would like to ask everyone to get behind the team and help the boys to win from Rangers and Detroit."

NO ACCURATE ESTIMATE

There was still no accurate estimate of the damage caused by the thousands of milling fans after the game between Montreal and Detroit was forfeited to the visitors. Most damage estimates ranged around $100,000.

Windows were being repaired throughout the day. On the Forum marquee above the main entrance were at least 100 rocks, chunks of ice and empty pop bottles.

To prevent a further demonstration tonight, chief of detectives George Allain told every member of his Sherman force to be on duty. Police chief T. G. Carter said no placards or groups of people would be allowed outside the Forum.

Canadiens managing - director Frank Selke, surveying the shattered windows of the building, said no standing-room tickets will be sold.

"Order will be maintained," he said. "It is our responsibility inside the Forum and the city's outside."

TEAM SPIRIT LESS

The Canadiens hockey team worked out on the Forum ice Friday but it was a rather apathetic affair. Coach Dick Irvin said the players obviously were still upset over the wild demonstrations of Thursday night.

Although no official announcement was made, Campbell was not expected to be present tonight.

Thirty-seven men were charged Friday in connection with the riot. All but eight pleaded guilty to minor charges—such as disrupting traffic and disturbing the peace—and will be sentenced next Friday.

Twenty-five juveniles still await trial in social welfare court. Police said they picked up dozens of others but let them go again when it became clear they were not the leaders of the demonstration.

MOST SERIOUS

Municipal judge E. G. McManamy said he will consider the case carefully before passing sentence. He said the demonstrators' actions were of the "most serious" nature.

All but two of the men were released on $75 bail. The other two had criminal records and, were ordered to post $100.

Mr. McManamy said the seriousness of the charges hinges on the fact that the demonstration was premeditated and not spontaneous.

"It is for this reason that I will be severe . . . an example must be set for others. Law and order must prevail, no matter when or where."

Campbell and the police force came in for criticism from civic officials, along with the group that started the riot. In an official statement Mayor Drapeau appealed to the NHL president to play away tonight.

"REAL CHALLENGE"

Referring to Thursday's game, Drapeau said: "It would have been wise on the part of Mr. Campbell to have refrained from going to the Forum but he persisted in formally announcing publicly in advance his visit there. In fact his presence could have been interpreted as a real challenge."

"As a matter of fact everything was quiet for the first 10 minutes of the game and it was only when his secretary, reached his seat that the event took on a deplorable turn."

Campbell, a 47-year-old former Rhodes scholar, replied that he was "astonished at the statement attributed to the mayor."

"SORRY COMMENTARY"

"What a strange and sorry commentary from the chief magistrate of our city who was expected to uphold the law and as senior officer of the civic administration is responsible for the protection of the visitors and property of the citizens through our police force.

"Does he suggest that I should have given in to the intimidation of a few hoodlums?

"It was my right and my duty to be present at the game both as a citizen and as president of the league, and if the mayor of the Forum authorities had any apprehension they should have let me deal with the situation and had requested me to absent myself I would gladly have complied with their request.

"No such request was made or suggested by anyone."

BLAMES POLICE

Councillor Lucien Croteau blamed lack of police protection for the outburst.

"I was standing outside the Forum when I saw a group of a dozen young men trying to batter their way into the Forum entrance," he said. "There was one lone constable standing there watching them trying to break and enter the building. He did nothing to prevent them."

Police chief Leggett said the force was surprised by the dimensions of the affair" Thursday night. No chances will be taken tonight, however, he said. More than 100 policemen will be stationed outside the rink to break up any demonstrations before they get started.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hado

Dennis Riggin, Junior Puck Chameleon Changes Sweater for Fourth Time

TORONTO (CP)—Dennis Riggin, 18-year-old goalie with a sharp eye for stopping hockey pucks, is changing his sweater oftener than Lana Turner these days.

Sunday, Riggin will wear the colors of St. Catharines TeePees as he begins stopping rubber for his fourth team since Ontario Hockey Association junior A playoffs began. Six teams entered the playoffs.

Riggin was runner-up for the Red Tilson Memorial Trophy awarded as the most valuable player to his team this season. Last year he had the best goal-keeping record in the OHA junior loop. This year he ranked fifth.

FIRST WITH CUBS

The slim, dark-haired youth from the Lake Huron town of Kincardine, Ont., opened the season kicking out pucks for Hamilton Cubs. His father is a Hamilton automobile dealer and Riggin, who flashes around in his own 1955 model, works part time in the news room at CHCH-TV in Hamilton.

The Cubs were thumped out of junior A quarter-final by Guelph Biltmores in three straight games. Riggin, property of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, was barely out of his sweater when the season ended.

Gerry McNamara of St. Michael's Majors was injured during his club's playoff series with St. Catharines. Under OHA rules his team could ask for a replacement. They chose Riggin.

4 MARLIES OBJECT

This brought prompt objections from Stafford Smythe, general manager of Toronto Marlboros, who said it violated the spirit of a club agreement to carry two goalies. Riggin played fine hockey in the last two games of the series but St. Catharines lost.

When Marlboros moved into their semi-final against the Biltmores their regular goalie, Johnny Albani, came down with measles. Club officials hustled Riggin into a Duke jersey and Guelph went down in straight games.

Coach Rudy Pilous of St. Catharines then announced TeePee goalie Mary Edwards had stiches in his face and the club would ask for Riggin in the final series against Marlies. The next day it was all a joke and he just wanted to show that the rules are a farce.

In practice before the St. Catharines-Marlboro series opened Edwards stopped a shot with his jaw and suffered a fracture.

TeePees played the first of the seven - game series Wednesday with sub-goalie Roger Day in the nets. Marlies scored four while the Teeps had trouble getting one past "Dennis the Menace."

After the game, Pilous demanded a neutral physician examine Albani for spots and the Marlie goalie was declared fit to play. Then Pilous asked for permission to use Riggin. Detroit said yes and the OHA was expected to give permission.

WITHOUT GOODBYE

Riggin hopped out of Toronto without even saying goodbye to Marlie coach Turk Broda who gave him some pointers on his game.

"It would suit me just as 'well if the OHA ruled me ineligible for any more hockey," said Riggin. "Sure, I'd lose money that way but I wouldn't be doing anybody any harm."

Riggin has played nine playoff games with every club but Galt and Guelph but this is the first opportunity Marlies will have to shoot at him.

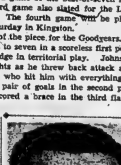
Kingston Goodyears Eke Out 3-1 Victory Over Memos In Series Opener

Score Two in Third Period To Snatch Belated Triumph; Johnstone Sparkles in Goal



By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Outshot and outplayed for two periods, the Kingston Goodyears lived up to their "third-period" reputation here last night, edging the Belleville Memos 3-1 in a sterling senior "B" group finals opener before nearly 2800 fans.

The teams clash in the second game of the best-of-seven series in Kingston tonight with the third game also slated for the Limestone City on Wednesday next. The fourth game will be played here on Friday and the fifth, Saturday in Kingston.

Ken Johnstone was the hero of the piece for the Goodyears. The stocky goalie turned back 14 shots to seven in a scoreless first period when the Memos had a decided edge in territorial play. Johnstone rose to some sort of hockey heights as he threw back attack after attack of the goal-hungry Memos who hit him with everything but the rafters. The teams split a pair of goals in the second period and the opportunist Goodyears scored a brace in the third flaming best to salt away the victory.

It was a typical Kingston - Belleville battle with the crowded arena echoing with the cries of "Go-Go-Go" as the teams fashioned a pretty game throughout the entire forty minutes. It was sparkling hard-checking but comparatively clean hockey with Referees Maurice Walsh and Jim Crombie handing out but five penalties, three of them to the Goodyears. The Memos outshot the Goodyears 32-26 in the game.

KEITH MACDONALD
. . . Scored the Loser.

The Goodyears spotted the Memos a goal in the first period on Keith MacDonald's sharp angle shot from the boards, the prettiest goal of the night. Johnny Myke tied it up in the same period with a more or less fluke shot that saw the puck fired from behind the net to strike Jake Wade's skate and deflect into the net. Don Bellringer scored the winner after five minutes of the third period with Don Murray firing the insurance marker with less than six minutes to go.

The teams started off at lightning speed maintained throughout the entire twenty minutes. The Memos had a decided edge in territorial play with the Goodies goalie, Ken Johnstone playing a brilliant game to keep the rushing Memos off the score sheet. The goalie outguessed three solo Memos as they drove in on his doorstep.

Rich Macey and Vern Goyer drove sizzling shots at the Goodies goalie but he blanked them each time.

Ted DeGray blasted a hot drive at Johnstone in the opening minutes then Watts went off for tripping the fleet Memos forward.

The Goodies defence held off the speedy hometeers, then Wilson got the gate for charging. Goodfellow followed him on 30 seconds later and the Memos were two men short briefly. No damage was done in a fierce-checking period with Parisi turning back Goodyear threats.

DeGray broke into the clear but Johnson had his close-in shot. Muckler got the gate but smart penalty-killing on the part of the Memos kept the score sheet intact.

The Memos raced back to the attack and Johnstone again kicked out hard blasts. The Memos outshot Goodyears 14-7 in this period.

The Memos maintained a slight edge in the second period with the clubs splitting a pair of goals.

MacDonald, first Goodyear skater 1.47 of play with his blazing angle shot from the right boards beating Johnstone cleanly. Jake Wade spearheaded the play with Vernon Goyer who flipped a short pass to MacDonald on the wing and the fleet right winger made no mistake.

The teams kept up the fiery pace with both goals having narrow escapes. At the seven-minute mark the Goodyears tied the score on a scramble near Bungay goal. Johnny Myke took the puck before the Memos net and his passout hit Jake Wade and deflected into the net.

The goal gave the Goodyears a spark and they gave Parisi some anxious moments. Pauchuk missed from close in and the Memos ripped back with Peter Jones driving in hard to have Dugan miss his rebound.

Keith MacDonald buzzed around Johnstone but could not take the puck home. The Goodyears raced back and there was a scramble of players on the ice in the Memos goalmouth. It looked like a goal but Parisi came up with the rubber. The gong rang to end another terrific period with the Memos outshooting the Goodyears 9-8.

The Memos' passing plays were not clicking in the third period and the efforts were mainly using the hard-checking tactics of the Boots-and-all Doran miss. A red cow goalmouth passes from the Goodyears roared back with threatening offensives. The Goodyears defence used its body checking to good advantage and seemed to slow up the Belleville attacks.

Bellringer scored the winning goal with a shot that sent the puck slithering over the ice from a corner angle that Parisi never saw until it was in the net.

Goodfellow drew the only penalty of the period after seven minutes for cross-checking and the Memos threw everything at the Goodies defence with Johnstone stopping everything in sight. Parisi threw back three savage Goodyear shots from close in as the visitors sought to increase the lead. They were rewarded at 14.20 when Don Murray boisterously put the puck into the net after spearheading a drive with Bellringer and Gabby White.

The Memos fought back desperately in an effort to snatch a belated victory or a tie, and were driving hard at the bell as time ran out.

A large crowd of Kingston fans was on hand to cheer their team. They brought signs with them bearing the inscription "Go, Goodyears, Go" and these were in evidence whenever the visitors had the team.

Minor Hockey

The Canadiens swept through their final pee wee series with the Black Hawks undefeated this morning to win the city championship. They won the first game last week by a 4-2 score, were held to a 1-1 tie in the opening-game this morning but notched a decisive 4-1 victory in the deciding fixture.

The winners were sparked by excellent goaltending on the part of Casey Sedon in both games while Hammie Allan starred in a good performance for the Hawks. Teddy Rowland for the Habs and Stu Mutrie for the Hawks were the only goals of the first game, Gee drawing an assist on Mutrie's tally.

Doug Dafoe spearheaded the Canadian attack in the second battle with one goal and two assists while Barney Durant hit the hemp twice. Teddy Rowland scored their other marker while Bobby Duggan from Holt tallied in defeat.

Dutchies, Soo Will Clash In Ontario Finals

KITCHENER (CP) — The all-Ontario senior hockey final between Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds and Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen will start Wednesday in Guelph, it was announced Friday night.

Greyhounds qualified to meet the Dutchies by trouncing Ahlthi Eskimos 6-0 Friday night.

Kitchener won the Ontario Hockey Association senior A title Wednesday, taking a best-of-seven set in five games over Windsor Bulldogs.

The schedule for the best-of-seven all-Ontario finals is: March 23, 24 at Guelph; March 26, 28, 29 at Sault Ste. Marie; and March 31 and April 1 or 2 at Kitchener (if necessary).

Dutchies will be without the services of their regular goalkeeper, Dennis Brodeur, who injured his knee in practice Saturday and who is currently in hospital with torn ligaments. He will be out for the entire series, it was reported.

Bib Gibson, netminder for the Owen Sound Mercurys, will be called in to replace Brodeur.

Also out for the series is Joe Schertzl, Kitchener defenceman, who suffered a severed tendon on a small toe in Wednesday's final league game.

Toronto Upsets Niagara In Hoop Opener

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—Toronto Northern Vocational unwound in the final four minutes of play Friday night to score 18 points and upset the favored Niagara Falls Red Raiders 47-46 in one of the opening games of the all-Ontario senior high school basketball tournament.

The victory, which came off Fred Lewis' basket in the last 19 seconds, moved Toronto into semi-final competition today against Niagara district's Stamford Horticultural Society Hilltops and Windsor Patterson, both winners in their opening round games, meet in the other semi-final.

Norvoc's win was the thriller in the last game played Friday. The Toronto team was 10 points down with four minutes to play. Then Bill Bell, Jim Lawrence and Lewis combined for the surprising comeback. Bell netted 14 points in the game, eight in the last five minutes, while Lawrence, Norvoc's high scorer, added 16 and Lewis eight.

Bob MacDougall was top man for Niagara Falls with 15. Larry Trim netted 12.

COUNTED 30

Stamford eliminated Ottawa Lisgar 63-47, mainly on the scoring power of lanky Don Jones, who turned in a 30-point performance. They started from a slim 11-8 first quarter lead and had the scoreboard blinking 27-18 at half time. Captain Gus Turnbull and Pete Ben Oaden contributed 10 and nine points to the winning side.

Hamilton Westdale took a 52-44 drubbing at the hands of Sudbury Cyclone Taylor Memorial Collegiate counted 14 points, John McRibbon, 13, and John Tymchuk, 11.

In the only other game Wednesday, Port Arthur Gary Weir was hit for 19 and nine points respectively to edge out Toronto Etobicoke Collegiate 49-45.

In the consolation games, Etobicoke will meet Lisgar and Niagara Falls take on Ottawa. The games will also be played today.

NHL Schedule Ends Sunday; Playoff Positions Undecided

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The National Hockey League season ends its long game schedule this weekend and nobody—except Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers and Maurice Richard—knows where they are.

In 68 games, the top four teams in big-league hockey have decided practically nothing. All positions for the Stanley Cup playoffs, which start next Tuesday, are undecided.

The Vezina Trophy race for goaltenders is a tossup between Harry Lumley of Toronto Maple Leafs and Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings.

The individual scoring battle is also a question mark. Richard, Montreal Canadiens' rightwinger who was suspended Wednesday for clobbering a player with his stick and punching a linesman, still leads in this department. But one of his teammates may grab the glory.

The Hawks and Rangers each have two games left in the regular schedule. They are out of the playoffs, but they can fatten their scoring averages, and make life miserable for the opposition. Richard, for his part, knows he's finished until the 1955-56 campaign starts.

Here's the final week-end schedule:

The fifth-place Rangers meet Canadiens in Montreal and the last-place Hawks take on the third-spot Leafs at Toronto tonight. On Sunday, it's Montreal at Detroit, Toronto at New York and Chicago against the Bruins at Boston.

The scramble for playoff spots, Richard's bid for his first scoring title and Lumley's last-ditch fight for the Vezina and its $1,000 prize money are the big attractions.

The Red Wings are leading the team now with 93 points, two ahead of Canadiens. The Wings have only one game left. Canadiens have two.

If Canadiens drop their game against Rangers tonight they will need a win over Detroit Sunday to finish in top place. If they beat Rangers a tie against Detroit would do the trick because of their goals-for, goals-against average.

Leafs are favored to stay in third place. All they need is one win. Bruins have to take a victory and get help from two Toronto defeats to move up a notch.

The Leafs finished first in the league race wins the league championship and retains the third place club in the Stanley Cup semi-finals. The second - place team takes on the fourth-spot club in the other best-of-seven semi-final set.

Montreal Riot Aftermath

MONTREAL (CP) — Charged with smearing a tomato over the head of Clarence Campbell, Andre Robinson, 22, led the parade when 32 men appeared in court here Friday.

The hefty Robinson, described by his lawyer as a fervent fan of the National Canadiens, pleaded not guilty and was released on $100.

Formally charged with disturbing the peace and simple assault, Robinson was administering the tomato to Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, during a mob scene at the Montreal Forum. He will appear again next Friday.

REGINA (CP)—Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, says Thursday night's riot in Montreal over the suspension of hockey player Maurice Richard was a "terrible thing" but he thinks it may have a sobering effect in the long run.

He made his remarks in a telephone interview with Regina editor Scotty Melville of the Regina Leader-Post and Johnny Esaw, sports director of radio station CKRM in Regina.

"You cannot have to live in Montreal to realize what has gone on," Campbell said. "It wasn't the normal thing for fans, such as they have in Penticton at the moment. It was organized religious fervor. Richard is a great idol and a great hockey player and it didn't need much imagination for leadership to arouse those who are easily led." Campbell said he had given no thought to staying away from Thursday night's game.

"If I had definitely decided not to go, my failure to attend would have been a tie-up of a sort and wrongly by Richard's supporters and they would have considered it a great triumph. The crest of a whole behaved very well . . . I was not hurt at all, not even a scratch."

TORONTO (CP)—Riots like the one in Montreal over the suspension of hockey star Maurice Richard could happen anywhere when certain conditions, a mental health specialist said Friday.

"People have a latent hostility, perhaps toward authority, and it suddenly overflows," said Dr. J.D. Griffin, general director of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

The spark in the case of the Montreal riot was probably a minority of people who, psychologically, identified themselves with Maurice Richard. He was their hero and they would fight for him at all cost. But other people were undoubtedly drawn along by the infection of the excitement.

"We simply are not as stable as we think. And what are we doing to provide our children with experience that might enable them to resist the 'infection of riot!'"

Soo Greyhounds Win North Title

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds gained their first Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A championship in three years when they whipped Ahlthi Eskimos 6-0 Friday night to take the best-of-seven final in four straight games.

Greyhounds racked up 7-1, 3-1 and 4-3 victories prior to Friday night's contest.

In bringing the NOHA title and the Municipal Trophy back to the Sault, coach Johnny O'Flaherty started on the road which could see the former Leaf-elite monitor match Don Grosso's successful three league championships. Title marks O'Flaherty's second year at the helm of the Greyhounds.

Little Sammy McBurney was the Hounds' sparkplug, rapping home two tallies. McBurney counted twice in the opening period and opened the scoring in the third stanza. Verdi Lund tied the only goal of the middle session while Kenny Watson and Harry Taylor followed McBurney in the scoring in the third period.

Leafs Recall Bailey, Timgren

TORONTO (CP) — The injury-riddled Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League Friday recalled centre Bob Bailey, and left wing Ray Timgren from Pittsburgh Hornets, to help them through their final game against Chicago here tonight.

Police Take No Chances At Olympia

DETROIT (AP)—A detail of 30 uniformed policemen will be on duty at Olympia Stadium Sunday night to forestall disorders in the Detroit-Montreal hockey game.

Another 200 policemen will be "on call" in the event trouble breaks out.

Police superintendent Jack Harvill ordered the action following the Montreal riots that broke up Thursday night's National Hockey League game between the Canadiens and the Red Wings.

The top-heavy policing will be determined in the Sunday game.

Deputy police Supt. Miles Furlong said a police detail will meet the Canadiens' train Sunday and will stay with the Montreal club until game time. Furlong said he anticipated no trouble during the game but was making "complete preparations, including tear gas guns."

The 14,000 seat Olympia Stadium has been sold out for days for the game.

Gelt Terriers Get Extension

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Galt Terriers Friday were granted more time to join the senior Intercounty Baseball League this year.

League commissioner Jack Gillies of London said the extension was granted after Terrier officials said it would help their chances of entering the 1955 campaign.

"Walter Reid, president of the Terriers, sounded decidedly optimistic," said Gillies. "Reid told me that if we extended the entry deadline until noon Monday, Galt was almost certain to enter the league. He said that they have two or three excellent prospects and lined up and that the directors of the Galt team are meeting, Sunday afternoon."

Deadline for intercounty entries was midnight Friday night.

The meeting changed its usual course to permit the guest speakers to present their subjects. Introduced by Mrs. Percy Gray, junior, Dr. T. A. McNally, dentist of the village, spoke on "The Dentist and the School," dealing with tooth diseases and their prevention.

He was accorded a vote of thanks by Mr. E. C. Prentice.

Miss Barbara Meiklejohn, music teacher for schools in the area, and also of Marmora, spoke interestingly on "Music in the School," and pointed out in the course of her remarks that parental interest was a great help in begetting the child's confidence in its musical tuition.

Introduced by the president, and thanked by Mr. James Sproul, Miss Meikiejohn gave a demonstration with four children of Grade I, who creditably rendered a number of songs.

The business section of the meeting then ensued. The minutes of the last meeting having been approved Mrs. H. Olsen announced that $31.90 had been made from the series of teas held.

The treasurer, Mrs. John Vanvolkenburg, in giving her report, showed finances to be in good shape.

GUARD RAIL NEEDED

Mr. Sproul read a letter from Mr. E. C. Prentice, who, as clerk of the village, notified the association that the Department of Highways were advised concerning the lack of the guard rail at the western end of the Crowe River bridge, and promised to attend to the matter.

Mrs. Bobyk asked the members to submit any suggestions for the welfare of the association, placing them in the suggestion box.

Nicolet, Que., Fire Rages Seven Hours, Razes 35 Buildings

Loss Placed at $700,000; 300 Persons Left Homeless

By SHIRLEY MORRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NICOLET, Que. (CP)—An early morning fire, raging out of control for almost seven hours, today destroyed 35 buildings and caused $700,000 damage in this community 90 miles east of Montreal.

The damage estimate was made by Mayor Ubald Caron of Nicolet, a business district.

He said 31 stores and 75 tenements, housing an estimated 300 persons, were destroyed by the fire that leaped from one building to another with lightning speed. Nine blocks in the central section of the town were destroyed.

There were no casualties.

STARTS IN RESTAURANT

Firemen from five neighboring towns joined hundreds of townspeople to battle the inferno that developed one morning after an explosion in a small restaurant.

Police said it is believed the explosion touched off a fire in a frying machine in the Matthieu restaurant as it was closing for the night.

An alarm was given immediately and firemen fought the blaze, their homes in sight attire. Many escaped with less than they were wearing when aroused.

Germain Pirine, president of the Nicolet Chamber of Commerce, said he saw the fire jumping through the roof of the restaurant.

"The wind pushed it on to the next building, which was wooden, and from there the fire leaped from block to block until this whole section was burning. He waved his hand at the acre or more of smoking ruins.

Other witnesses said flames were shooting more than 200 feet into the air and were plainly visible in Trois-Rivieres, 25 miles away across the St. Lawrence river on the north shore.

SEVEN-HOUR TERROR

The buildings destroyed had business establishments on the ground floors and residences on the upper stories. A total of 75 families were made homeless.

Also destroyed were four restaurants, one photographic shop, two hardware stores, two clothing stores, a jewelry store, the Caisse Populaire (credit union), two beauty dressing establishments and a garage. A number of trucks in the garage were destroyed.

So intense were the flames that the foundations and chimneys of the buildings were left standing.

The fire was first discovered at 12:30 p.m., and it was not until seven hours later that Mayor Ubald Caron of Nicolet announced that it was under control.

About 200 firemen from the neighboring communities of Drummondville, Sorel, Pierreville, St. Gregoire and St. Leonard assisted Nicolet's fire help. Also Nicolet volunteer brigade.

At dawn, a heavy pall of smoke hung over the town but it began to clear as the sun rose.

Many townspeople took shelter in the city hall, hotels and a seminary.

A group of Red Cross workers, under Lt.-Col. Alexandre Gagnon of Nicolet, set up a relief centre and medical supplies for the homeless.

Tobacco-Chewing Man Has Right To Kiss His Wife

CROWLEY, La. (AP)—City Judge Edmund M. Reggie holds that a wife has no grounds for a fight when her husband tries to enjoy a goodbye kiss and a plug of chewing tobacco at the same time.

He found Mrs. Winston Berard guilty of committing simple battery against her husband and gave her a suspended sentence of $15 or 10 days in jail.

Mrs. Bertrand testified she pushed her husband in the face in a spat following her refusal to kiss him goodbye while he was chewing.

Dozen Killed In Plane Crash In Missouri

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—An American Airlines plane threading its way through darkness and rain toward a landing field crashed Sunday night, killing 13 persons and injuring 23.

The twin-engine Convair crashed in a pasture about two miles north of the Springfield airport. The age was scattered more than 300 feet.

The plane carried a three-member crew and 32 passengers. All the survivors were injured.

Jack Pripish, of Chicago, the pilot, was the only member of the crew to survive. Stewardess Rita Madaj of Chicago and co-pilot J.E. Walker of Chicago died in the wreckage.

FLASH FIRST

The airport control tower had given final clearance for the landing. As the craft approached Carl McCrary in the tower saw a flash. Then the plane disappeared and he gave the alarm.

The plane crashed about 10:30 p.m.

Robert Browning, 15, of Chappaque, N.Y., an injured passenger, said there was a "terrible vibration" before the crash.

Mrs. O. W. Peebles, who lives near the scene, reported hearing an explosion just before the crash.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

The dead included Stanley Grankowski, 64, of Detroit, assistant Wayne county prosecutor for 16 of the 17 years he has been in office. He was en route to Springfield on private business.

At New York, an American Airlines spokesman said:

"Airlines officials emphasize that there is no way of knowing at this time what caused the accident."

He said company officials from Tulsa, Chicago and New York had been dispatched to the scene and would join in the investigation which will be conducted by the civil aeronautics board.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: A storm moving along the lower lakes toward the Gulf of St. Lawrence today will be east of the province tonight. It spread rain and snow in the southern regions and freezing rain and snow into northern and central sections. This storm system will come to an end this afternoon in most sections of the province, following this storm temperatures ranging from 30 in the south to below zero in the north.

On Tuesday, the southern half of the province is under the threat of more poor weather from a storm developing this morning in Texas but whether it will bring precipitation to the province is still difficult to say at this stage.

20-YEAR TERM PRISONER FLEES JAIL WITH CHOIR

Now Believed Hiding In Heart of Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — A convicted bank bandit who used a visiting church choir to cover his escape from prison is believed to have gone into hiding in downtown Vancouver, police said today.

William Allen Babcock, 33, described by an appeal court judge as a "menace to society," slipped away unnoticed from Oakalla prison farm in suburban Burnaby Sunday afternoon after attending a church service in the prison grounds.

RCMP and prison officials said Babcock, dressed in civilian clothing, walked past armed guards by mingling with a group of about 30 men and women who had been conducting a church service for prisoners.

"MENACE TO SOCIETY"

Babcock was sentenced Jan. 28 to 20 years in prison and 21 strokes of the paddle for the armed robbery of a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada here Jan. 14 in which three men escaped with $20,000. Three suspects were captured later the same day and the loot recovered in Bellingham, Wash.

Mr. Justice H. B. Robertson of the B.C. court of appeal said Babcock was a menace to society when sentencing him.

The department itself had no official comment on George's suggestion.

George, an influence in the development of United States foreign policy by virtue of his position as chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, suggested last day night a four-power conference here "on the real issue of avoiding war." He said it possibly should be held this year.

At the moment, a meeting of Big Four foreign ministers—like that held in Berlin a year ago—seems more likely than a conference of chiefs of government. State Secretary Dulles and leaders of Britain and France have talked of this possibility in positive terms

Call for Big Four Meeting In Line With Govt. Thinking

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—State department officials say a call by Senator Walter F. George (Dem., Ga.) for a top-level Big Four meeting is in line with the thinking of the Republican administration.

But, like George, they cast certain conditions should be met in advance before efforts to bring together President Eisenhower and the chiefs of Britain, Russia and France.

when German rearmament is approved.

Expressing a belief a top-level conference would lead to "adjustments moving toward a more normal world," George said in a television interview:

"I think that we have reached the point where we should try."

George suggested a meeting be held "as soon as practical" but said after full ratification of agreements to rearm West Germany as a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the European Union.

After the broadcast, George said in response to a question he does not believe Red China should attend such a meeting.

To periodic suggestions from Prime Minister Churchill for a top-level conference, the administration has reacted with some coolness. However, it has not closed the door on the possibility.

Eisenhower told a press conference last October he did not believe the time ripe for a Big Four meeting. But he added that the United States will be ready to confer at any time it believes the Russians are sincere about wanting to foster an enduring world peace.

Expect Churchill to Step Down as P.M. Within Weeks

LONDON (AP)—Britons took it for granted today that Sir Winston Churchill is stepping down as prime minister within weeks but no one expects him to go into retirement by the fireside.

Reuters said "little doubt" remained today that Churchill will retire within the next two weeks. It said general expectation is that the news will be announced officially April 4 or 5, just before Parliament adjourns for the Easter recess.)

Only the 80-year-old statesman's political enemies seemed to harbor suspicions the imperious Churchill would change his mind at the last minute.

The Daily Mail, as Churchill is affectionately known, reached the twilight of a political career extraordinary in half-century span of strange air of casualness.

No political eulogies were being prepared even by his closest supporters.

Neither they were talking more of his new role, a sort of "elder statesman of the free world." And there was a feeling that the voice of Britain's greatest orator would still ring out, reach the far corners of the world.

MAY KEEP SEAT

There was talk in parliamentary lobbies that Churchill will keep his seat in the House of Commons. This would avoid a by-election and an official status. He would always be available for such assignment as a special government emissary.

Churchill is expected to hand over leadership of the Conservative party and will step down from premiership, to Foreign Secretary Eden before Parliament recesses for Easter.

The Times, an authoritative independent newspaper which seldom delves into political speculation, says:

"It now seems increasingly likely that he (Churchill) will resign about Easter and that the Queen will then call upon the foreign secretary to form a government."

Speculation is already rife on the prospect of an early general election. Guesses for the date ranged between June and October. The Churchill Conservative government has until October 1959 to run but can call an election any time before then.

The 57-year-old Eden is laying the groundwork for the campaign by touring before the country in a somewhat younger cabinet than under Churchill. There is a possibility Eden may hold the dual jobs of prime minister and foreign secretary for a short time.

Eventually, his most likely successor as foreign secretary is Harold MacMillan, a veteran administrator who is now defence minister. The 61-year-old Macmillan would carry a strong appeal to the electorate in a campaign. As postwar housing administrator he made good use of the Conservatives' proud pledges during the 1951 campaign, building more than 300,000 new housing units in a year.

Eden's right-hand man in the cabinet, however, would be 53-year-old Richard Butler, expected to remain as chancellor of the exchequer. Butler is the leading apostle of free economy and the country's export drive.

Must Find New Farming Land Says Member

EARLTON (CP) — The Ontario government must encourage land settlement in the North, A. R. Herbert, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Timiskaming, told a Conservative rally here Sunday.

He said he intends to press the matter at the next session of the House within the near future.

Mr. Herbert said the little clay belt, which covers 120 miles north of North Bay, is the heart, grows cattle and produce that equals any in southern Ontario. Industrialization is rapidly increasing population in southern Ontario and it is imperative to find new farming land.

Demands Return Of Negev Desert

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times reports that an Egyptian spokesman has called for return of the Negev desert, now held by Israel, to Arab control as a precondition to any defense co-operation with the West.

The Times dispatch from Cairo quoted Maj. Salah Salem, Egyptian national guidance minister, as declaring that another crusade by Western and Egyptian views on Middle East defense might be reconciled if Washington and London ended efforts which Egypt considers to be aimed at the development formation of the Egyptian-backed all-Arab defence alliance.

'Wanted Girl Worse Than Anything,' Woman Kidnaps 29-Minute-Old Baby

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — A young woman charged with snatching a 29-minute-old infant from its hospital crib "wanted a baby girl worse than anything in the world," her father said. She has three sons.

Officers found the little girl Sunday in the home of Mrs. Charles Pauline Schulze, 30, a former nurse's aide.

The child was sped by police-escorted ambulance 85 miles back to Beaumont where authorities said her mother before she knew it was kidnapped Saturday — while she was still in the labor room. The news had been kept from her.

Doctors said the baby was in good condition, except its navel was tied with a shoulder strap from a woman's slip.

Mrs. Schulz was charged with kidnapping. Jailed here, officers said she kept screaming during questioning, "It's my own baby."

They said she apparently had an overwhelming desire for a fourth child and claimed the baby was born to her in the home.

Footprint records identified the child as the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burrel, Port Arthur. Examination of Mrs. Schulze showed she had not given birth recently, doctors said.

Her father, 71-year-old pensioned railroad engineer, said Mrs. Schulze "always had set

30th Anniversary of Y's Men's Club in City Celebrated

Highlights of Y's Men's Club activity during the three decades in which the Belleville club has been in existence were recalled Saturday evening as members both past and present gathered for a 30th anniversary banquet at the local YMCA.

Well over 100 Y's Men, including the close to 60 present members of the club, attended the anniversary banquet with former Cobourg Hospital suffering from head injuries and was later transferred to Toronto where she died.

CUT BIRTHDAY CAKE

Cutting of the club birthday cake by club members, in recognition of many years work as club member Mr. Gordon was presented with a "Y" pin by former president Don Williams.

Other guests were S. Wonnacott, A. Argue, D. Sexsmith and J. Lewis who cut with barber shop harmony. Rev. Don Amos, former minister at Bridge Street United Church and one time member of the club, renewed old acquaintances with the club and sang song one of the numbers being a catchy ditty in honor of the 30th anniversary celebration of the club's treasurer, and his ever-present cigar. The number was entitled "Old Smokey".

POTENTIAL FOR GOOD

In his address of the evening Mr. Gordon spoke of the part the clubs represented a tremendous potential for good in the world fellowship in service. At the international level, Y's Men's Clubs helped to break down barriers and work for world peace.

In Canada, Mr. Canadians have caught the vision of Y's Men better than had their American counterparts. A much higher percentage of clubs per YMCA. Y's Men have the opportunity for club work in Canada as being in communities where there is no YMCA. Out of club work among the youth of the community has come far-reaching public relations and out of this would come new YMCA organizations in the city of Sudbury as an example.

NOT JUST SERVICE CLUB

Mr. Gordon said Y's Men were not "just another service club", but rather the executive secretary reasurer declared that the fundamentals of club members were to be "Y" conscious for the "Y". The success of Y's Men's club depended on the extent which its members were "Y" conscious.

The Y's Men movement had seen world wide growth. International clubs had been organized 23 years ago. Today there were 550 clubs with close to 14,000 members in 30 countries.

Re-literating that the Y's Men movement had a tremendous potential for good, Mr. Gordon pointed out that this was a service club with a strong background. Its members could do much to fight communism.

Looking into the future he noted that if space travel and other scientific marvels known only in science fiction writing today were entirely within the realm of possibility in 50 Men should strive to keep pace.

NEEDS TO CONFIRM FAITH

"We have behind us in the YMCA one of the finest instruments of service but we need first to secure our own personal faith and we need to confirm it frequently," Mr. Grimes said. "When scientists get playing around with the atom it is time to do a little praying."

"And let us remember that duty follows every right," he concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Newt Thompson, first Y's Men's Club president with last year's president, Ross Read expressing appreciation. Robbie Clarke, this year's president officially welcomed former presidents and other guests.

Former club president seated at the head table in the order of their terms were as follows: Newton Thompson, Norman Edwards, Robert Brown, Mel Blanchard, Court Miller, Alex Welr, Dr. Jack Marshall, Jack Wilson, Harold Vaughn, C. H. Trill, Archie Boyd, Donald Williams, Bryson Leslie, Gerald Hyde, Ed Littlejohn, Lindsay Read, and current club head Robbie Clarke.

25 Years' Postal Service Commemorated

The employees of the Belleville post office gathered at the Legion Memorial rooms on Bleecker avenue to do honor to one of their number, Charlie (Skipper) Jeffs, who, due to ill health, is retiring after 25 years' service with the Belleville post office.

When all were assembled, Mr. McDonald, district area superintendent, presented Charlie with his 25 year pin. On the card accompanying this was inscribed: "For 25 Years of Faithful Service," signed W. J. Turnbull, Deputy Postmaster-general.

Mr. Carmen Massey, assistant postmaster, together with Charles Cooke, president of the Belleville branch, Canadian Postal Employees, presented Charlie with a complete flashlight camera outfit from the members. On a lighter side staff, this was followed by a few words from Mr. J. C. Waddell, local postmaster, who remarked that his earliest recollection of Charlie was at Pounder Gillen's retirement banquet in 1930 when he sang "A Lovely Bunch of Cocoanuts," so Charlie had to sing that refrain again.

This was followed by a presentation by Laurel Wannamaker, letter carrier supervisor, and Mr. Starrett Mitre Box, in appreciation of his 15 years' association as a letter carrier. This was deeply appreciated by Mr. Jeffs, who in an interview on his working hobbyist, adding that he had been wanting such an article for some time, in fact was about to place an order for same so that it made it doubly welcome.

The remainder of the evening was spent under the expert fingers of Jimmy Corradi at the piano, assisted by Mr. Tom Fuller.

Chapell's Boat Works Damaged In Sunday Fire

Believed to have been caused from faulty wiring the fire on Sunday afternoon raced through the interior of the Chapell Boat Works on Richmond street, causing unestimated damage.

City firemen were called at 1.30 p.m. by before the evidence and fought the blaze for nearly two hours before it was brought under control.

Firemen said the entire interior of the building, particularly the ceiling, which was sheeted with pulp board, was damaged by the blaze. A new 50-foot cruiser under construction for a local boat enthusiast was damaged in the blaze.

Woodworking and other machinery in the building was not believed to have been damaged by the fire but water used to kill the flames took its toll and was expected to put much of the equipment out of commission.

The blaze was a two-alarm with two trucks answering the initial call and a third truck going to the scene when firemen ran short of water.

Toronto Philharmonic Choir Delights Large Audience

(By EUGENE LANG)

On Saturday evening the Toronto Philharmonic Choir performed for its initial engagement in this city before a best choral music lovers in Bridge Street United Church. This large choir of seventy-five voices was formed in 1945 under the leadership of its present director, Mr. Robert S. Hately. It was originally part of a huge choir of over three hundred personnel, that recorded together for the purpose of commemorating VE Day. After that memorable performance that was given at City Hall, Toronto, before crowds of thousands, the choir was decided by numerous members of the original group to continue as a choir, and they asked Mr. Hately to be their conductor, which post he accepted. Since then, this organization has performed concerts of choral music. The members of the choir come from all walks of life representing such diverse positions as laborers, office workers, professional men, housewives—all with one purpose in mind, to perform choral works of vocal music through their combined efforts.

The choir's program was presented was one that gave the group opportunity to display the many numerous facets of their individual and collective talents. The first part of the program was given over to the singing of some of the most beautiful of the a cappella and the most outstanding Oratorios of the past two centuries, namely Handel's "Samson" and Mendelssohn's "Elijah." Six excerpts from the latter were sung, being the later, all of monumental proportions, and a most difficult work that demanded the utmost from each voice in regards sustenance of tone, distinct intervening of the contrapuntal web, and the smoothly flowing projection of the melodic line. The exacting difficulties looming up from time to time in these works were the most part approached and accomplished with ease, with the exception of the odd instance where the enthusiasm of the individual voice line seemed thin and shaky.

Two well known hymns in arranged form "O Give Thanks Unto to Lord" and "Onward Christian Soldiers," completed the first half of the program, these finding favor with the audience because of their familiarity.

Folk songs, secular works and spirituals took up the second half of the evening's entertainment, giving variety to the program. Each of the twelve numbers sung were given with enthusiasm and feeling that showed the true concerted effort that each member of the choir expended.

A Cappella singing was displayed in the spirituals, the combined voices beautifully harmonizing throughout with tenderness and sincerity. The humorous "Sing a Song of Sixpence" was given a spirited performance that delighted the audience. The incorporation of the plainsong intonations of "Nightfall in Skye" seemed to reach the high ceiling of the church with the strength of finely spun silk, floating back down to the ears of the listenery with even softer guise.

SPLENDID SOLOISTS

Soprano soloist Joan Jacques sang most convincingly in her two numbers as did the two male soloists, Mr. Ed. Davis and Mr. Bromley. These soloists were wise in their selections, which had a decided audience appeal to exemplify their talents as witnessed by the audience response.

The two lovely Russian numbers by Mr. Bromley, particularly sung with verve and virility, although a little more "punch" would have been in order for the Russian Sailors Dance.

The job of the accompaniments were sensitively played by the choir's accompanist, Miss Irene Craig very tying in the fast pace that is demanded by the composers. Miss Craig is a master of her instrument at her disposal, but it is to be hoped that a better job will be supplied any accompanist in the future on such programs as this. Mr. Hately is to be complimented on the overall effect of this fine choral ensemble in the College Hill United Church choir for their foresight in bringing this fine choral ensemble to this city.

Dogs Running At Large Raising Ire of Residents

Thurlow township residents who allow their dogs to run at will are rousing the ire of College Hill residents who complain that lawns and flower beds are being dug up by flying canine paws.

Township clerk Earl Parlow notes that the municipal by-laws call for dog owners to keep dogs on their own property. And the only way to accomplish this is to keep them on a leash or keep them otherwise confined.

At any rate College Hill residents are unhappy and if complaints continue the township dog catcher Jack White will pick up the roving dogs and owners will face pound charges to get their pets released.

Spring Rides In On Back Of Heavy Snowfall

At 4.36 a.m. Eastern Standard time today Spring officially came to Belleville, riding on the back of a thick snowfall.

Despite advance publicity in newspapers and magazines, which annually go all out in spreading the spirit of the season with pictures of blossoms in the barnyard and green-lichened house walls, Belleville this morning was hard put to catch the Spring fever. The best it could run was a mild temperature of 30 degrees above (at 11.30 a.m.).

The city this morning lay under a thick blanket of snow — probably the thing furthest from the mind of Belleville's citizens today. Sunday was an exceptionally mild dry day, and many were preparing the garden patch for the advent of the new season and some citizens did take advantage of the weather to prepare flower beds and lawns.

However this morning's sudden snowfall will cancel all operations on the garden front for the time being. One good thing about it though, until the snow and its attendant slush does there's little sense in tackling the annual spring cleaning chores about the house.

For which many an honest working man will breathe thanks

Easter Bunny With Retinue Arrives in City

Belleville's Easter Bunny stepped off the twelve-fifteen Toronto-Belleville train at the C.N.R. station today amoung the grins of excited shoppers and the teeth of a near-blinding snowfall.

Its arrival was followed by a colorful procession of some the main thoroughfare of the city and a flock of candy for a score of children at the Carson Elliott Ladies Wear Store on Front St.

Everything according to schedule except the weather. Scheduled to arrive at noon the success of the event, which was not spoiling to celebrate.

About 20 youngsters and their parents speckled the snow-covered city as the train had hardly rumbled to a halt before a bloated bunny, invisibly through the snowfall. The rain had hardly rumbled to a halt before a bloated bunny, invisibly through the snowfall. The train

Library Board Pares $2,000 Off Budget

The Board of Directors of the Corby Public Library pared $2,000 from 1955 estimates Friday night and approved a budget of $23,823.

Directors approved unanimously a decision to grant small annual salary increases to permanent staff. Other major items approved included expenditure of $6,000 for new books, $400 for book binding, and $1,000 for repairs and redecoration.

Chief source of revenue is the municipal grant of $18,850.70. The grant was approved by city council at a rate of 90 cents per capita on a population of 20,722. The board had asked for a grant of $1.00 per capita to cover 1955 estimates.

The librarian's report for January and February showed total circulation for the two months of 21,688 books—14,429 adult books and 7,259 children's books.

Two hundred and seventy-one new memberships were added to the borrowers' list and by March 183 were adults. Film Council members borrowed 130 films and projectors were booked for 40 showings. Special training class for film projectionists was held at the library in February, in addition to the regular meeting of the Film Council.

Committees were formed to investigate the possibility of establishing a cumulative sick leave program for library staff and, to investigate ways and means of enlarging the library basement into service.

Will Commence Sewage Disposal Plant This Year

TRENTON (Special) — Mayor Ross Burtt announced this morning that work on the town's sewage disposal plant will begin this year. He also stated that the first phase of the sewage disposal program will likely cost $500,000.

Trenton ratepayers approved the construction of the works at a plebiscite in 1953 but the 1954 council deferred action because of costs.

Mayor Burtt pointed out this morning that with the rapid growth and industrial expansion necessitates an early start.

Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers, are drawing plans for the plant and it is expected that tenders will be called for in the near future.

The plant will be located on the east side of the Trent River, at the harbor end, on the property formerly occupied by the Dilmour mill.

Completion of the plant is expected to be a long way towards elimination of raw sewage in the Trent below No. 1 dam.

3½ Mill Rate Increase Due To Education

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton's mill rate will be increased in '55. The 1954 rate was 52 mills. The rate, mediciné can be struck at the council meeting in the first week in April, will be raised at least 3½ mills in education costs alone, said Mayor Ross Burtt, today.

A $575,000 collegiate is currently under construction in Trenton.

Mayor Burtt stated that the town will show a surplus on 1954 operations mainly because of minimum expenditures for waste and sanitation.

12 Public School Teachers Tender Their Resignations

Dissatisfied over present salary schedules, 12 public school teachers have tendered their resignations to the Belleville Public School Board, it was learned today. The resignations are effective at the end of the school term in June.

Schools superintendent L. A. Kells stated this morning that seven of the resignations so far received have been from men and five from women. Almost without exceptions the resignations have been from younger teachers.

With a regular meeting of the school board scheduled for this evening the matter of teachers' salaries and the problem of replacing teachers who have tendered their resignations, will come up for discussion.

"The meeting is not being called for that purpose but almost certainly teachers' salaries will be discussed."

Other than including a cost of living bonus into the salary schedules no salary adjustments were made for public school teachers for this year. The present minimum salary for men teachers in city public schools is $2,300 with the maximum salary for a teacher with a first class certificate being $3,700.

Mr. Kells noted that the board is at present considering salary adjustments but teachers handling in resignations apparently feel that the amount decided on by the board will not come up to their expectations.

Bushing Failure Causes Power Blackout in City

Failure of a bushing in a current transformer on the 44,000 volt line at the switching station at the old Lazier's Dam caused a power blackout in a major portion of the city shortly after 11 o'clock this morning.

Though a power was off for 20 minutes in the entire west side of the river and north of Bridge street on the east side of the river. The cut off affected No. 1 and No. 2 power stations.

No reason was given for this by Utilities manager O. H. Scott for the failure of the transformer bushing. "It was just one of those things," he said.

The morning's snowstorm had no connection with the power cut-off, he said.

FLOOD THREAT DISAPPEARS

The possibility of a flood in Belleville this spring is now remote. The river, choked with ice only a few days ago, is now clear below its last major obstruction, the CPR bridge. The formation in the placid backwaters behind dams at Cannifton and Corbyville is, for the most part, rotted by sun and broken by wind. Ice at the mouth of the river which might act as a jam against drift ice has lost its strength. March winds have roused currents which have shattered ice in the bay itself and a clear path in the river valley assures a safe runoff of equinoxial rains.

Communities in Canada which are bisected by rivers have a very considerable interest in the behavior of their river each spring. The possibility of flood is ever present until sun, wind and warm temperatures have had a chance to reduce the conditions which make for floods.

This year's prolonged cold produced thick river ice throughout the Moira's length and shackled the bay into which the river empties with a thick field of ice that could have rendered drift ice with disastrous consequence. An unseasonal rain early this year sheathed the countryside with ice making certain of an almost total and immediate runoff of snowfall during the thaw.

However, alternate thaws and cold snaps reduced this dangerous potential and now we are free again from the threat of flood.

Communities farther north in Canada still have their anxious moments ahead of them. Ottawa, at the moment, is wondering whether or not the Rideau river will sweep its ice peacefully into the Ottawa or whether it will flood.

Southward flowing rivers present less of a flood hazard than rivers flowing northward. The mouths of south-ward flowing rivers usually clear well before the river's upper reaches thaw. Danger of ice jams at a river's mouth is less and an orderly runoff of melting ice and snow toward the river's mouth is more likely.

Thaws affect headwaters of northward flowing rivers before they influence winter conditions at the rivers' mouths. Sudden thaws pour vast quantities of water into a river course still choked with ice. Increasing water volume increases current speed. More water and swifter currents quickly through a congested passage make a flood is imminent.

So sudden is the breakup at the mouths of far north-ern Canadian rivers that betting derbys are held on the time the ice will break out. Yet, waiting for a river to clear the ice and the danger of flood is pretty exciting, especially if one lives on the riverbank.

THE MOB MUST NOT RULE

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League says that he has no intention of resigning. Good.

We make no apologies for this comment appearing on the editorial page.

The incident which led to the suspension of Rocket Richard of the Montreal Canadiens was a matter which concerned the world of sport.

The riot at the Montreal Forum on Thursday arose from Campbell's decision to suspend Richard for much more is now at stake than the championship of a pro-fessional hockey league.

Montreal police finally quelled the mob after a seven-hour struggle. But law and order would lose a decision to mob rule if, as the result of this riot, Campbell stepped down from his office as president of the National Hockey League.

It may sound silly to some people to suggest that it would be against the public interest for the head of a hockey league to be replaced by another man, but in this instance it is true.

Campbell says he will not resign.

Again, good.

THIS IS ART

It serves Hollywood right!

Its publicity department erupted with enthusiasm so often that there were no new words left for "A Star is Born."

They tried the very simple, very sincere approach.

It is to be hoped that it works.

Otherwise too many people will miss seeing Judy Garland in a performance of which nobody who remem-bers her in other pictures would believe that she was capable.

Or, for that matter, of which nobody would believe any other movie actress capable.

There was hardly a dry eye in the Belle Theatre after the final fade-out in the opening day's performance. These same people had been rocked with delicious chuckles with-in the hour. Garland made them laugh, made them cry, made them believe, made them live through joy and sorrow.

That does not happen often.

Garland is terrific—in the sober, editorial room sense of the word.

Too bad the Hollywood publicity offices long ago wore out that word on mediocrities.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PRAYER ROOMS

Never in all the history of civilization has the call to prayer been so urgent and important. After all these years I understand that a prayer room has been instituted in the Capitol building at Washington where members of Congress may retire for private meditation, and for a renewal of courage and faith during these days of fear and doubt. Each session of Congress is opened with prayer.

The world's great leaders have always been men of God who believed in prayer and were inspired by it. The President of the United States, his cabinet and advisers are praying men and women. Prayer has a power that no other force has, as it takes effect in the mind and heart, and is distributed to all parts of the body, giving it to all overall relaxation and spiritual strength.

I once knew a very successful Chicago business man who told of the small prayer room in his office which he visited alone every day. Just to meet the man was an inspiration. From his very countenance was radiated the success that was his.

The man served of all prayer rooms is that one which we all may have within our heart, that no matter what the circumstances, we silently offer up our prayer from this room and feel the happier and more hopeful at once for having prayed.

Of course no special room is essential for prayer. It matters not where we may be, or when. Our prayer room may be the whole area of nature, with every article of furniture selected and placed by the Creator of all. What more appropriate place than a prayer room than the shore of the ocean, beside some flowing stream, or while treading the mysterious and sweet-smelling forest?

Matched Feelings

Can Pretend Far Too Much

(By Russel Wright in This Week Magazine)

Pretending is one of the most frequent social games. It's played to avoid embarrassment or to make an impression but, unfortunately, it usually backfires.

You may have engaged in an occasional match at a dinner party, in a railroad club car, in any social situation. Usually someone starts the ball rolling.

A couple is introduced to you. You don't catch the name, but reluctant to make them or your host repeat it, you simply smile pleasantly and strike up a conversation. Half an evening later, when you're obliged to introduce them to someone else, you are stuck.

Or a current hit show is mentioned. Yes, wonderful show, you agree. But when somebody asks if you thought the second-act curtain scene was really convincing, you're suddenly uncertainty betrays the fact that you never quite got around to actually seeing the show.

Small dodges of this sort are innocent enough. But the habit of pretending can be a dangerous one and, when you stop to think about it, there's much more at stake than the mere risk of being found out.

There are people—I'm sure you know a few—who never dare admit there's a current book they haven't read, a fashionable place they haven't been. But the habit they can't afford, a person they don't know. They seem to 'get on the assumption that you should ever be always required to put the best face forward and make a favorable impression on him.

But far from achieving its purpose, pretending usually accomplishes just the opposite effect. Impressionistic character means putting yourself at the mercy of the person whose business or mind you're trying to impress. Besides, if he suspects you are lying, he distrusts you. If he believes you, he loses all respect for your integrity. Soon, both of you have guilty consciences.

I've often wondered, listening to swappers of large and loose boasting stories, why they should ever seem to occur to them to admit they don't know something or somebody.

A piece of downright honesty accomplishes what pretending almost always fails to do. It puts the other fellow at ease because, by declining to try to impress him, you have relieved him of the burden of impressing you.

Creeping Democracy

(Hamilton Spectator)

Word that Russia has consented to send an entry to the Miss World beauty contest is particularly heartening to those who, like us, believe there is a peaceful way of making the people of the world realize the error in their warlike behavior. If they could only be urged merely to compete for the world's healthy, red-blooded capitalistic title, it is possible that war could become a thing of the past.

From Russia have come various items of alarm. They have shown an excellent brand of football, quite good hockey, and their Olympic lassies teams are not to be taken lightly at all. But this is not enough. They must be persuaded to enter joyfully into life as we know it. Asked to send an entry to a world beauty contest, a Russian official in London, in accepting, remarked that Russia had the most beautiful women in the world—and that's the proper spirit.

We, however, must not relax our efforts as the Russians must seek Soviet participation in more and more such events. Why, for instance, should Russia not have tested the recent Canadian claim to a curling chair championship? And are the Russians not likely going to allow a decadent Hollywood monopoly to have a walk with the record for the longest time spent in banging a drum? Canada, at present, seems to hold the record for lengthy plane playing. Surely some Soviet aviator will contest this claim.

Just how to get them into the swing of things and soon they will be swallowing goldfish, sitting on flagpoles and so on. And just let the Kremlin try to make a girl work on a collective farm when there is also a chance to win the world beauty title and a Hollywood contract. In no time at all every Russian will want a hardtop convertible, a ranch house, a fishing boat and a backyard barbecue pit, and men with these desires are in no mood for revolution-ary talk. We can promise you that.

That's the way to stop the non-sense—spreading of democracy." It is an insidious and deadly thing and should put a stop to its war nonsense once and for all.

Farmer Once Jolly

Speed Limit Change Needed

(Hamilton Spectator)

A law which the public does not respect is a bad law.

There is probably not a single motorist in the Province of Ontario (with the possible exception of that legendary little old lady believed to read car obituaries) who can say honestly that he or she has driven the 50-miles-an-hour speed limit the respect of absolute observance at all times.

For this reason the amendments to the Highway Traffic Act now before the Legislature are a little disappointing. They tackle the problem of highway speed restriction—and tackle it with eminent sense—up to a point, but they fall short of the complete overhaul for which today's scene to call.

The amendments will give the Minister of Highways power to establish different speed limits for different circumstances—something that has long been needed—and in particular they will permit a lowering of the limit during dangerous winter weather. On a road like the Queen Elizabeth Highway the 50-mile limit makes no sense. Indeed, the conscious effort of restraining a motorist to keep under the limit—in the rare cases in which it is observed—is enough of a irritant to be dangerous.

It is a question whether absolute speed limits of any sort are necessary in populous urban areas. A really good "common danger" law with teeth in it and backed by a driving licence (as it is there in some provinces) that can be withdrawn for breaches of a legal onus on the driver to prove that he is acting safely might be a better solution.

It would permit just as strong enforcement of safe driving as an absolute limit does and, what is more important, it would be respected by the public at large.

Lady Godiva Is Defended

(Ottawa Journal)

Once more an iconoclastic historian is found to criticize one of the best-known stories of mediaeval England — the ride of Lady Godiva through the streets of Coventry to save her people from a heavy tax imposed by her husband, Coventry's city chamberlain, says it never happened.

The Encyclopedia Britannica calls the story a legend, has this description of the incident:

"Godiva, or Godgifu, was the wife of Leofric, Earl of Mercia in Saxon England. She was the people of the city suffering grievously under the earl's oppressive taxation, but would not keep within doors or shut their windows she rode through Coventry clothed only in her long golden hair. One person disobeyed her proclamation, a tailor subsequently known as Peeping Tom, who is said to have been struck blind. Earl Leofric then did as she asked and abolished the obnoxious taxes."

Both the places the famous ride (which he thinks never happened) in the year 1042 when, he says, Godiva was a girl of very old and hardly worth a man's eyesight. If those dates are correct, she was born in 1007 or 1008. But according to the British Encyclopedia, she died in 1082, and if the Britannica is accurate she was just two years old when her husband, the earl, undertook down her hair and rode her white horse through the principal streets of her husband's city.

In the light of this confusion we prefer to believe that the Godiva legend is really a fact, while we must concede that even the word that officially the city of Coventry takes the same position. They hold a pageant-festival-festival in which a shapely English girl wearing something (not much) more than her long hair rides a white horse over the traditional Godiva route, and there is no thought of abandoning this tourist lure, this link with old times.

Myth or legend, let us keep our Lady Godiva. She is one of the few people in history who did something about high taxes other than just pay them.

Boy Rebuffed

Personal Health Talks

WORRIED AND AFRAID

Dr. Brady

If I were really a worrier I wouldn't have stuck on this job all this time. I would have said the heck with it long ago and resumed general practice a few years ago — the day I urged any person subject to persistent or frequent "piles" to have a proper medical examination, lest what purports to be "piles" prove to be more serious — and a publisher down south rushed over to the doctor for such examination, found his "piles" was nothing but piles, and returned in a rage to fire me for scaring people like that.

With long experience I learned not to take such mishaps seriously. In fact I have learned to expect twenty-five years not to take anything—well, to be perfectly honest I'll say I have rolled away most minor vexations (comes-quite so, as young Bill's physical instructor calls 'em, forward rolls) and bowled away the rest of my anxieties (on the bowling green—if you are a bowler you'll know what I mean.)

I was doing just fine when I got whooped (no, not whooping, no crack) radicultis. Not that I'd minded, nor have I the faintest idea whether it is a "virus" infection. It is inflammation of the root of one or more spinal nerves, especially the portion between spinal cord and the intervertebral canal. I'm not convinced it is actually neuritis (inflamnation of nerves). I believe it is just neuralgia (pain in the nerve) and should be called radicultalgia. But I'm willing to admit such hairsplitting.

For several mornings I persevered, actually rolled two or three before I gave up. Finally came yesterday morning, and I tried to convince myself I was going to do my regular half dozen rolls and have no more nonsense about it. But the sad truth—sad to me, if not to some fifty or sixty year old stiffs—is that I chickened.

But this radicultis, intercostal neuralgia or whatever happy name you please to call it, will be over within a week or two and I'll be rolling again—you wanna bet?

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

CUT DOWN THE NOISE

The Police Departments of a certain large city recently handed out slips to all drivers with these words printed across the top: "Is That Noise Necessary?"

It reminded me, when I saw him hold it to his ear, that although there is a lot of unnecessary noise in the world which we can't stop, a million of any Motor Vehicle Code, but nevertheless hard to endure. How we go out for a drive with those we loved one! How we talk out of turn and express a lot of opinions which we later have to rectify or retract! How we weep and wail and go on about our aches and pains when nobody in the world is interested in them—and these distressers most probably die down and disappear if we would only behave ourselves and relax.

And in addition to this, most of us talk too much. After many years as a practising physician, I have noticed that the person who talks least is usually the person listened to the most.

So the next time you feel certain impulse rising within you, just ask the question, "Is that noise necessary?" Anger is dust and ashes after the wave of passion has passed. What difference do our opinions make anyway? They have significance but only as of millions of other limited, frustrated, and struggling beings.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Thanks to the marvel of modern book publishing, you can buy a dime novel worth 25 cents for as little as 25 or 30 cents. But if you want a book suitable for more than propping open a window or throwing at a cat, you have to pay more. And if you want a book really special, you might have to pay as much as $10, which is the price of "Pioneer Inns and Taverns" by Lucius Gullet, who is one of Canada's truly dedicated historians. No literary or historical study will be complete without this record of the wayside inns, taverns and stage coach establishments which served the pioneer settlement of Canada. Mr. Gullet, who has already published several volumes on the pioneer history of the country, has spent twenty years amassing the material of this book, which has been ransacked and scores hundreds of these hostelries, nearly all of which have long been vanished. Two hundred and 23 illustrations from old prints, woodcuts and photographs. From contemporary records, he has gathered the fullest detail of how the inns were run, what they looked like from within to the travellers, how they were licensed and controlled. The pioneer tavern was in many ways the focus of the whole community; council and church meetings were held there; it was the community hall and the dining room of the fire brigade and of the fraternal orders. From the copy of such a book as this, you can acquire a sense of the pioneer times, their sound, taste, smell, that no fiction and precious little history can impart. Mr. Gullet is not a teacher of history knows this, and it has been his guiding principle as he has collected Canadian pioneer records that by searching the record with imagination, the record speaks for itself.

This volume is the first of three, the two covering Quebec and the northern United States for the period will be issued shortly. Now on up from the States into Canada. As far as Mr. Gullet knows, no one is doing similar research in the West. But since so many families in the West are prominent in pioneering the East before they pioneered the West, the book has value to the whole of Canada. As a sidelight on book publishing, it might be noted that Mr. Gullet had to publish the book himself and there are only 600 copies."

Offer Foods From Orient

(Charlottetown Guardian)

About 50 Oriental foods are now processed for the North American market; they include everything from baked oysters to stewed rattlesnake and fried octopus. However, it is not specified in the Far East recently popularized that Westerners have no taste for fried bumblebees, a delicacy in Burma, or for boiled bats which the natives of Guam go for in a big way. A bright note is that the soup, put up in Japan, is now attracting customers after a long period of inactivity.

Plainfield W.A. Hears Talk On Blind Musician

Mrs. Jack Salmon opened her home for the Plainfield Women's Association's recent meeting which had an attendance of 16. The president, Mrs. Charles Trevorton presided.

Mrs. Stanley Hazard conducting the worship service, gave a reading "The Lost Sheep," dealing also with the meaning of 'Easter.' She was assisted by Mrs. J. Skelley who read the Scripture lesson from Luke 5: "The Miracle of the Fishes".

The financial report showed a balance on hand of over $700 and was read by the treasurer, Mrs. Clarence Hall.

Mrs. Brennan for her program, read a lovely poem and gave an interesting reading "Music Through Music", reviewing the career of Herbert Treneer, a native of Kingston, Ontario, who although totally blind, ministered so much to human welfare through music.

BLIND MUSICIAN

Mr. Treneer after graduating from the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford, made music learned by Braille notation, his life work, serving in many cities as well as his home town, as choirmaster, Sunday school teacher, councillor for youth groups, teacher of organ, voice and piano, preparing pupils for examinations of the Royal Conservatory of Music. All this was accomplished not through special talent, but because of his courage, his foresight in grasping opportunities, his great love of people, especially children, and his boundless faith in God. These attributes contributed to make his blindness a challenge and a blessing rather than a handicap.

The offering amounted to $2.45.

A social half hour followed with refreshments served by the hostess and her committee.

Dope Peddlers, Drug Effects, Discussed at WCTU Meet

The March meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the "Y" with the president, Mrs. R. Farnsworth in the chair.

The devotional way taken by Mrs. A. H. Fisher with the Scripture taken from Luke 9:20-27. It was a meditation on "The Way of the Cross."

Mrs. George Foster reported on the Peace Department. In a recent meeting of the Local Council of Women, in Toronto, reference was made to a new petition campaign launched by the Canadian Peace Congress. It is important that no Canadian should be deceived into signing of this petition (headed "Appeal against the preparation for atomic war") which is simply another device of Communist propaganda, the members were told.

FAR-SIGHTED STATESMANSHIP

President Sidney Smith of Toronto University, told the Women's Canadian club that the Colombo plan is an example of far-sighted statesmanship in working for a world in which everyone will have enough to eat, can enjoy reasonable health and can learn to read and write.

Canada is emerging from its sensitive adolescence, and should raise its sights to the distant future. For every $100 Canada spends for armaments, she gives $1 for the peaceful rehabilitation for one quarter of the human race.

Alderman McCabe presented several cases of emergency and needed care given by the Red Cross.

The slip sheet "The Dope Peddler," was in charge of Miss Cizzie. To assist her were, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Abram.

NARCOTIC DRUG LAW?

What is the law in Canada concerning narcotic drugs? Synthetic narcotic drugs are not sold over the counter but only on a doctor's prescription, no repeat sale without another prescription. It is the illegal dope peddler that is the danger. The ever-defying traffic in illegal drugs is a well organized wealthy racket. The men in control make large sums of money yearly as the price of human suffering, and is most difficult to be caught. The maximum penalty is 14 years in penitentiary.

"In the Globe, we learn in Ottawa, March 15, Health Minister Martin, said the next major step in Canada's program to beat back the threat of narcotic addiction would be the treatment and rehabilitation of addicts in separate institutions. He outlined that control of the importation and distribution of drugs and the suppression of illegal distribution of drugs and the use, come within federal responsibility; but the treatment of this illness, as it is considered an illness, by medical and social authorities, is a provincial concern."

DIFFICULT TO CATCH CRIMINALS

"Why is it difficult to catch these criminals? One addict can carry on his person enough heroin to supply hundreds of addicts for weeks.

"The heroin capsules are wrapped in waterproof silver foil or several in a small rubber balloon. They are carried in the mouth, so that they may be swallowed at the approach of police, and be recovered later. They have been found in a hoist flush toilet tank and in a fire alarm bell. Who are these dope peddlers?

"Because there is big money to be made, they are hidden in all walks of life—a business man, a dressmaker, a night club entertainer and others.

"What makes the illegal sale of narcotic drugs so profitable?

HEROIN MOST DANGEROUS

"Heroin is the most dangerous and potent of the morphine derivatives and sells legally for $10 or $12 an ounce. There are 437 grains in an ounce and a dope addict will pay from $8 to $10 for a single grain. So one ounce worth $12 at a drug store when pure, is sold by the peddler for over $1,000 as it is usually adulterated till its weight is doubled. (Maclean's August 15, 1954.)

"How many addicts are there in Canada?

"There are 3,000 known addicts in Canada who have come under police observation. Many addicts need $150 a week to keep them in drugs to avoid the terrible craving suffered. Vancouver chief of police says "Seventy percent of recent crime here originated in the dope racket." Gangsterism stems from the drug trade. Many an addict has to steal more than $10,000 worth of property a year to keep in dope.

ATTRACT YOUTH

"Why is the dope peddler anxious to attract the youth? New customers are needed. Few addicts live beyond 30. Hundreds die before 30. The RCMP report 80 percent of drug addicts start before they are 17. Marijuana "reefer" is often the starting point."

Mrs. Vandervoort had the study "Liquor at the Wheel". Driving a motor car is a complicated operation. It brings into use many distinct abilities. Many experiments have been performed in an effort to determine the effect drinking alcoholic beverages have on these abilities, used in driving.

In one group as much alcohol as would be found in three bottles of beer was given. Not enough to make him appear or act drunk and a blood test revealed .05 per cent that means in one hundred spoonfuls of blood there would be 1-20 of a spoonful of alcohol —only a few drops yet that trace of alcohol was enough to make a difference in his driving.

In general Dr. Goldberg of Caroline Institute, Sweden, concluded from his experiment that even a slight amount of alcohol in the blood, caused a decrease in driving ability of between 25 and 30 per cent in expert drivers.

Prize winners were —ladies, 1st, Mrs. McCann and Mrs. Kennedy; 2nd, Mrs. C. Craig and Mrs. J. N. Anton; consolation, Mrs. C. Ford; lone hand, Mrs. Wins and Mrs. Davidson; men's 1st, F. Bedard and G. J. Williams; 2nd, H. Carr-Brainl; consolation, J. Taverner; lone hand, R. Kennedy; door prize winner, Mrs. Gannon.

A hamper of groceries raffle was won by Mrs. Moher. A scrabble board raffle was won by Mrs. F. Maund. A special prize was won by D. Kennedy; lucky cup prize was won by Mrs. J. Vinkle.

A successful evening brought much credit and appreciation to all who donated and assisted in any way.

Y's Menettes Hold Fine St. Patrick Tea

On Saturday afternoon the spacious finely-panelled plywood auditorium of the YMCA was "en fete" for the annual St. Patrick's Day tea sponsored by the Y's Menettes under the convenership of Mrs. Ron Cass.

Lattices gay with green shamrock leaves sprinkled the walls and green and white garlands interspersed with more leaves, twined round the pillars.

Receiving the many guests were, Mrs. V. Weir, president of the Y's Menettes club, assisted by Mrs. Di Diamantides, wife of the secretary of the YMCA, and Mrs. R. Clarke, wife of the president of the Y's Men's club.

Just inside seated at a little white covered table was the treasurer of the club Mrs. G. H. Trill, who had charge of the tickets.

ATTRACTIVE TEA TABLE

The centre tea table attractively appointed with a lovely damask tablecloth had as its centrepiece an entrancing buffet bowl of green tinted mums and yellow daisies. On either side of the floral centrepiece were silver candelabra with tall green tapers and at either end, the gleaming silver services.

The decorating was done by Mrs. Eric Whitfield, Mrs. D. Bateman and Mrs. Roscoe Mooney.

Those who poured tea were, Mrs. P. C. McGuire and Mrs. W. J. Robinson; Mrs. C. B. Morgan and Mrs. H. J. Fuke.

The novelty table, under the direction of Mrs. D. Bell and her assistant, Mrs. E. Tindale, displayed many gay aprons, little girls' dresses, knitted and crocheted articles, felt work and potted plants.

Convening the homecooking table with its dainty cakes, cookies, tarts, and candy was Mrs. J. Pearson, assisted by her helpers, Mrs. C. White and Mrs. R. Johnson.

Tea at the centre tea table was replenished by Mrs. R. Edwards, and Mrs. Linton Read, while those who served included Mesdames B. Cronk, E. Wooding, V. Flindall, R. Mooney, S. Denton, J. R. Leslie, W. Moffatt and R. Booth.

The kitchen convener was Mrs. K. Yorke, with her assistants, Mesdames E. Whitfield, G. She, C. Lowther and T. Hutchinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Vane Patterson of LaFargeville, N.Y., are shown cutting the two-tiered wedding cake following their marriage in LaFargeville Methodist Church. R. Scarles, of Oak Lake. (Photo by Bill McCombs, N.Y.)

PATTERSON—CARD

LaFargeville Methodist church, N.Y., was the setting on Sunday afternoon, March 13, at 2.00 p.m., for a lovely wedding ceremony, when Mildred May Card, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherry Card, LaFargeville, R.R. 1, became the bride of Douglas Vane Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Patterson, of Clayton, N.Y. The Rev. Roberts Mallabar, pastor of the church, officiated in the double-ring ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Clayton R. Stoddard, pastor of the Clayton Baptist church.

Miss Marjean Snell, church organist, accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Morris Henry who sang "Because", and "I Love You Truly". Miss Snell also rendered the traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of nylon net over white satin, with Chantilly lace yoke and bolero jacket having long sleeves pointed over the hands. A lace Juliet cap, encrusted with pearls and rhinestones, held her veil of tulle illusion, and she carried a white Bible crested with white roses centred by a white orchid.

Miss Rehba Patterson, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, gowned in lavender with ruffled skirt. She carried a Colonial bouquet and wore a matching headdress.

Miss Jacqueline Siebert of Alexandra Bay, Miss Carol Harris, of LaFargeville, N.Y., Miss Janice Card of Chaumont, N.Y., and Miss Joyce Snell, also of LaFargeville, were bridesmaids. Miss Siebert wore a ballerina-length gown in nile green with matching green hat; Miss Harris wore blue; and Miss Card and Miss Snell were in pink, with matching hats. All carried Colonial bouquets matching their respective gowns.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Burton Ralph Patterson, of Clayton, N. Y., and the ushers were, Messrs. Leonard Ralph Marcellus of Clayton, N.Y., and Keith Lloyd Castell of Rochester, N.Y.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The bride's mother, wearing a gown of navy blue lace with navy and pink accessories, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in beige lace over rose satin ,with navy blue accessories. For travelling the bride chose a gray princess style gown, trimmed in poodle cloth, with navy blue accessories, and wore a white orchid corsage. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Patterson will reside at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is a 1950 graduate of LaFargeville Central school, and the bridegroom a grandson of the late Mr. B. Scarles, Oak Lake, near Belleville. He is also a 1947 graduate of Clayton Central school, and served in the air force at Seoul, Korea.

Relatives from Newcastle, and Cannilton, Ontario, were present at the wedding.

Home-School Assoc. Holds Fine St. Patrick Day Children's Fair

Queen Victoria School, Pine St., was "en Fete" on Friday evening when the Home and School Association of Queen Victoria and Sir Winston Churchill schools sponsored a children's St. Patrick Day fair.

The auditorium was prettily decorated with green and white streamers and gay balloons; while at the entrance a row of tall, black, Irish toy-back, made in lantern style, were draped across the archway, and on the stage curtains was a large mural depicting a sweet, little Colleen wishing all and sundry "The Top O' the Mornin'" and on either side large, fringed shamrocks added their delightful Irish accent.

On the tick of seven, the large doors were opened wide, when children and adults, by the hundreds poured in, the children making their way up the stairs to the ever-favorite fish ponds, of which there were four, all eagerly patronized by the young folks. Another attraction on the same floor was the moving pictures, which were well attended.

An exceptionally fine display of home cooking, under the convenership of Mrs. H. Soule, with co-convener Mrs. J. MacKeen, and their assistants, comprising cakes, pies, cookies, tarts, pickles, jams, were quickly disposed of to eager customers. This display was enhanced by a pretty St. Patrick tablecloth.

The tea and coffee room guest tables were adorned with white cloths and centred by little shamrocks where many refreshed themselves with sandwiches, tea and cakes.

The candy table was a popular "Mecca" for old and young alike. The convener, Mrs. S. Coles, and co-convener, Mrs. Else, and their assistants were in while with hats bedecked off with green shamrocks, who sold their wares at varying prices. These sweeties were on tables covered with white and green paper and were most attractive as their early disappearance proved.

As is usual, the white elephant proved another "drawing card" with its numerous oddments, under the able convenership of Mrs. C. Powell and Mrs. H. James.

The ice cream booth, which was held in the basement, was also aglow with St. Patrick decorations, including green and white lattice work. Here, too, were the hot dog and soft drink booths, each one most alluring in its appeal. These in charge were: of the ice cream, Mrs. J. Doyle; of the soft drinks, Mr. E. Wallons and of the hot dogs, Mr. and Mrs. E. Randell.

The movie pictures, upstairs, were in charge of Mr. Thomas Slowell, and the fish pond, in charge of Mrs. R. Luuk and Mrs. A. Rump, as convener and co-convener, respectively.

Added to the foregoing attractions, dancing, which also included the old times square dances, was greatly enjoyed by both the children and the adults. Mr. Dier was in charge of this.

Mr. H. St. Pierre acted as treasurer for the evening.

Much praise goes to the convener, Mrs. R. O. Deegan, and to all those who assisted in making this St. Patrick Children's Fair one of much enjoyment, and pleasing success.

The president of the Home and School Association is Mrs. N. O'Neil.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A FORMER MOTHER FEARS SHE MAY LOSE THE CHILD SHE LOVES

A problem that is very likely to come up when a father and wife become official foster parents for a child, appears in the following pathetic letter from a woman of 33:

"I took in a little girl when she was 7 years old. She is now 12.

"Her father drinks heavily, and several years ago he and her step-mother separated. Her real mother left her when she was three, and from then until my husband and I took her in, she was put in and out of homes. She has now grown to love my husband and me and our home, and the fear in my heart is that she may be taken from us increases everyday, and is getting to be more than I can endure.

"Her father will not let us adopt her. He claims he loves her, but does not want to support her, and hardly ever even comes to see her. She has never seen any of her grandparents, and they have never tried to get in touch with her. Her real mother has been proven incapable of caring for her, and her father has been in and out of hospitals because of his drinking. My fear is that, if anything should happen to him, she would be given to relatives.

"I am 35 years old, have raised seven children, and am now out working in order to send this little girl to school, and so that she can have the things other little girls want all need.

"Do ya think I should just let things ride, and take a chance on her belonging to me, or should I give her up now and try to find her a better home? Please help me. I could even forget her, as I love her now as my own.

"I really this is more of a legal question, but I did ask a lawyer, and I don't think he understood the love I feel for this child."

Well, although, as I have already said, thinkind of crisis is all too likely to rise when a couple takes a child into their home under a more orlem lnformal arrangement, it oes not always, by any meanz, necessarily have to end in heartbreak. Usually, however, it does takea vast amount of effort to bring bout the desired happy ending. he, strangely enough, even parents who have shown no interest tatterer in a child they have been willing to have looked after by cherz. balk when it comes to the pat of allowing her to be legally aopted.

This woman says that she has already consulted a lawyer, but evidently wh discouraging results, since it is important, though, that she have xpert legal advice, my suggestionwould be that she locate the office o the Legal Aid Society in her area and ask if she may discuss her problem with someone on their staff

The Natural Legal Aid Association is an organization which has establishedoffices throughout the country nadal, at modest cost, those who need legal advice. I am sure she ca find out where the nearest soa office is located, if she will ag her local newspaper for this information.

One other thing that should be very hope for her to do, is to call her ical family welfare association ad ask there, too, if she may comea to talk over a vitally important family problem. Her local telephone book should give her the name and address of this agency, and she can either telephone or write for an appointment.

It will certainly take a great deal of time, patience and persistence to work this problem out, but I believe it can be done, with the aid of these two organizations I have mentioned.

Will Mrs. E.D., who signed the above letter, let me know what she does, and how she makes out?

Rush Hour Casseroles

By Mary Moore

Sometimes when the mail comes the stack will be piled as high as usual and I immediately wonder what provocative thing I have unwittingly said in the column. The extra heavy mail I'm referring to now I did not provoke—but Jane R.'s carefully prepared Oven Meals for Two did. It appeared here in January and I'm still receiving requests for it.

I seem also to be receiving an increasing number of requests for oven dishes that may be prepared in advance and baked when working housewives arrive home, or busy mothers or hostesses have a few minutes in the kitchen.

Those two ideas are closely related so today I am giving you made oven dishes designed to hold in refrigerator until baking time but before dinner or supper is served.

TWO-CRUST MEAT OR CHICKEN PIE

An excellent way to use up 2 cups leftover meat or chicken.

There are 2 choices of unusually good deep-meat-pie pastries: (1) Cornmeal-egg-cup cornmeal, 1 1-4 cups sifted white flour, 3-4 tablespoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 7 tablespoons best quality shortening, and 1-2 cup cold milk. Cut shortening into sifted dry ingredients, then mix in milk with fork. Knead for a few seconds on floured board. Divide in two and roll out top and bottom crusts. (2) English —Sift together 3 cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Mix well and stir into flour mixture 3-3 cup shortening, 1-3 cup hot water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 unbeaten egg yolk. When dough is smooth chill, then roll out 3-4 of it to line 8-inch casserole. Put in filling (below) and cover with remaining pastry rolled out to fit top.

Filling—3 cups diced cooked meat or chicken, 1 10-oz tin cream of celery (or mushroom) soup undiluted, 1 cup each cooked or canned peas and carrots or 1 15-oz. tin combined peas and carrots. Combine all filling ingredients, fill lined casserole with filling, cover with either of the above pastries, well-gashed to allow steam to escape, seal edges. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 12 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and bake about 20 minutes longer. These amounts serve six.

BAKED MUSHROOM WOODCOCK (Lenten)

There are two good reasons why I am giving you this popular rich-flavored dish: (1) it is meatless and (2) mushrooms are low in cost now. One lb. mushrooms scrubbed clean and cut in large pieces, 2 tablespoon butter, 3 tablespoons each flour and fat, 3 cups milk, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 lb. grated ordinary cheese, 4 sliced hard-cooked eggs, 1-2 green pepper sliced, 4 tablespoons chopped pimento. Saute mushrooms in butter until wilted but not brown, in another dish melt fat, stir in flour then slowly milk until thick and smooth. Add seasonings and cheese, then sauteed mushrooms, eggs, pepper and pimentoes. Turn into buttered baking dish and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 or 45 minutes or until lightly browned. This dish was designed to serve over fluffy rice or on buttee toast points.

NOTE:

If you do not want this to be meatless 1 or 1 1-2 cups meat like ham or chicken or shrimp may be added to the mushroom mixture. This dish is a great favorite in soy of its variations.

NOTE 2:

With the meat, and especially the shrimp, it is excellent for a midnight snack for a bowling or bridge playing mixed crowd along with a generous green salad.

Have I succeeded in appearing calm and collected? If so, appearances are deceiving as this first day or spring, for in 15 days Marianne and Herbie are to be married. Harried mother with married and applies to the unmarried mother of the bride. To you tender-hearted friends who may worry. I hasten to add I have much tireless helpers to lean on.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

TEN MINUTES OF TURBINO

For men the shower bath has become an institution. Some of them even have a lot to say about the delights of a cold shower. But most women get the shivers just thinking about one.

The girls know that they can find in the bath tub what they cannot find elsewhere in a busy day—and that is complete relaxation. Let the telephone clang; you can't do a thing about it. If father has mislaid his cac keys, it is his business to find them; you can't help. For the moment you are out of this world, and glad of it.

To enjoy a bath thoroughly and to the limit, the water should be only slightly warmer than the temperature of your skin. Before getting into the tub, wash your face and apply a cream. The oily substance combined with the moist, hot air of the bath room form a combination that will give freshness to the complexion.

Let every muscle go limp, close your eyes, breathe deeply and think about nothing at all. That will help get the fatigue bugs out of your system. A five minute soaking will make the bath more cleansing. The skin is constantly doing a hail- and-farewell act, dead cells shedding, new forming.

Use a brush with heavy bristles that do not bend when moistened. You will not only have a more thorough bath but you will stimulate the circulation of the blood which does a lot for health and good looks.

After the scrubbing turn on the warm spray or stand under the shower. And, finally, have a brisk rub down with a coarse towel.

GOOD MANNERS

CHALLENGE . . . WRITE THANK-YOU NOTE FOR UNWELCOME GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I think my question to you should perhaps be called "true confession"! Do you think I'm wrong in not writing a thank-you note for a birthday present I just loathe? It gives me the willies just to look at it. And to add insult to injury I'm quite positive it's a left-over gift. I don't blame my friend for passing it on, but I wish she hadn't passed it on to me! Must I write a thank-you note for this undesirable gift? — Disgruntled Me.

So a sport, accept this challenge, and have fun doing what doesn't come naturally! Yes, you should write a thank-you note for this gift, even if you "loathe" the gift, and suspect it's a pass-on gift. If so far in your lifetime you haven't had to write a thank-you-note for an unwelcome gift, you're certainly been lucky. However, this probably won't be the last time you'll have to do it. Life can be like that.

Just dare yourself to write a gracious note — it can be done, I assure you. For you can (1) put enthusiasm into words to thank for the thought, and (2) mention the gift by name (even if you'd rather not!) and try to think of some features, or at least one feature, about which you can comment with some degree of enthusiasm. For instance, the color: "This shade of blue is a very popular shade today, and deservedly so." Or the design: "The design is so interesting" . . . "interesting", by the way, is a word I especially recommend for you to use, for any gift can be "interesting" from any one of several points of view. (Even if you don't particularly approve of any one of them!)

Buick's beauty beckons you!

You can take our word for it when we tell you this:

The first time we put eyes on the 1955 Buicks, we really raised a cheer.

To top the looks of last year's Buick—the car that sent Buick sales soaring to new record levels across the land—that was something.

That gave us two hits in a row, we figured—and it seems we figured right.

For with these stunning new 1955 Buicks, we're getting even more noses pressed against our showroom windows than last year—and more folks coming in to look and study and drive and buy.

But bold new styling, of course, is just one reason for the sensational success of these great cars.

New power is part of the picture—robust new V8 power in record mighs—256 h.p. in the CENTURY, SUPER and ROADMASTER—188 h.p. in the low priced SPECIAL.

New performance, too—from the dynamic action of Buick's Variable Pitch Dynaflow* that gives you far better gas mileage in normal driving and cruising—and full-power getaway or safety-surge acceleration, but instantly, and with infinite smoothness.

So you can see that just looking isn't enough.

You have to take that wheel in your hands, try that power, feel that Dynaflow take-hold surge, sample that Million Dollar Ride—and check the hard-to-pass-up prices we're quoting.

We'll gladly help you do all that. Why not come in this week?

*Dynaflow Drive is standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

Thrill of the year is Buick

Women Requested To Help Put Over Celebration

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) An estimated 40 per cent of the men in this area are growing beards in preparation for the Sault hoobs centennial this summer.

Now it's the women's turn to lend an old-time touch to the celebration in the neighboring cities of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

A proclamation last week issued jointly by the mayors of the two municities which face each other across the St. Mary's river called on the women to follow the examples set by their pioneer great-grandmothers.

Mayor Herbert Smale of the Canadian city and Mayor James Robertson of its Michigan neighbor decreed that the women are to leave off c o s m e t i c s, costume jewelry and perfume, when appearing in public.

They are forbidden to wear slinky or in combination "lipstick, rouge, powder, foundation cream, eye-shadow, mascara, attachable lashes, nail polish, perfume, cologne, dyed or bleached artificially-curled masses of gossamer hair, short dresses, earrings or jewelry or any other kind of cosmetic, hirsute or skin-covering additions or impairments upon the handiwork of Mother Nature."

However, there's an "out." The women will be excused from this provision if they obtain the official "Centennial Belle" emblem button and wear it until the two-week celebration ends Sept. 5.

The festivities will recall the construction of the first of the large ship canal locks linking Lake Superior with Lake Huron.

There's a fate in store for men and women who do not go along with the proclamation. They will be persuaded to do so by a series of kangaroo courts, set up for the laughs, which will penalize such absences of civic mindedness.

Best Haddock Fishing Grounds Being Sought

HALIFAX (CP)—A survey to determine the best haddock fishing grounds off the coasts of Nova Scotia and New England is to be conducted by experts aboard the survey ship William Kyle, it was announced today by the Canada-United States fish and wild life service.

The project will attempt to answer such questions as why the fishing ground was closed for one year, and little the next.

John R. Colton of Woods Hole, Mass., chief biologist aboard the vessel, said "If the efforts are successful they will then be applied to other fishing areas in the North Atlantic.

"To date we have found that in one good year perhaps 30 of 1,000,000 eggs spawned survive to become marketable fish." In an average year the ratio will be down to about one in a million.

PLANKTON IS SECRET

The survey is using a plankton recorder to study the thousands of square miles of fishing areas. The device is towed by the ship and makes a complete record of plant-and animal life as it passes through the water. Only this recorder we can decide the best areas for potential haddock fishing," Mr. Colton said.

Haddock eggs are spawned and fertilized in the ocean, and the female usually lays about 200,000 eggs. The eggs hatch in the spring and hatch in about three weeks.

The young haddock feed on zooplankton, animal life floating free on top of the water, which in turn feed on phytoplankton. But larger fish eat the haddock.

After some months on the surface the haddock grow to about five inches and return to the bottom. If they go back to deep water they are lost to commercial fishermen.

"It is necessary to find out why they disappear at this age," Mr. Colton said.

'Stork Derby' Winner Dies

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Arthur Timleck, 57, mother of 18 children who benefited from the Miller "stork derby" will of 1938, died Saturday.

Mrs. Timleck and three Toronto mothers profited from the will of lawyer-sportsman Charles Vance Miller who died in 1938. Mrs. Timleck who had 13 surviving children got $100,000.

Mr. Miller left the bulk of his $300,000 estate to the Toronto mother who, in the 10 years after his death, gave birth to the greatest number of children.

In 1938 six mothers tied with nine births each. After two years of litigation four of the mothers split the $500,000. Mrs. Timleck was the wife of a $30-a-week city employee when she received her inheritance.

Oliver Critical Of Road Probe By Government

WINDSOR (CP)—The handling of the investigation of irregularities in the Ontario highways department was developed Friday as one of the blackest chapters in the political history of the province," Ontario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said here Saturday.

He said the legislature's select committee investigating the irregularities was conducted "secretly, bringing the truth out, but with concealing it."

He said a Liberal party rally that after months of work and the spending of millions of dollars, no one knows to this day what actually happened under the administration of former highways minister George Doucett.

The Progressive Conservative government has always appointed royal commissions "for every conceivable reason, but in the highways probe it shied away from a royal commission as it would avoid a plague," he said.

"NEVER BE KNOWN"

The truth about the highways irregularities will never be known, he said, until another government takes over in power and finds out exactly what happened.

Mr. Oliver said the government will not dare to declare this sum'mer, probably in June.

"When the present provincial government goes to the polls this summer, it will have to answer before the bar of public opinion for sins of commission and omission."

The conversion of electrical power from 25 cycle to 60 cycle was expected to cost the province $191,880,000, he said, but it is now expected it will cost more than $500,000,000.

He charged the Ontario government's grants to municipalities have failed to keep pace with an ever-increasing demand for more service in spite of the fact the people are paying four times as much money to Queen's Park in taxes as they were in 1943.

Lady Gooderham also was made a Lady of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, conferred for her connection with the St. John Ambulance Association, and her welfare work.

Lady Gooderham was born in Trenton, Mich., in 1863 but moved to Canada with her parents at the age of two.

Federal Economists Expect Rise in Gross National Product

By HAROLD MORRISON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Federal economists are becoming more and more optimistic about Canada's economic possibilities for 1955. Now they're talking about a possible rise of $1,800,000,000 in the gross national product this year to a record of about $25,000,000,000.

In fact this estimate on the GNP—value of all goods and services produced—may become part of 1955-56 budgetary planning of Finance Minister Harris. And since finance ministers use the GNP to aid them in estimating potential tax yields, any GNP rise would of course give the minister elbow room if he planned tax changes and reductions.

So it would appear almost certain that Mr. Harris will announce some tax cuts in the 1955-56 budget to be brought down in a few weeks, possibly April 4 or April 5. But the kind of tax cuts and amounts of the reductions are only matters of speculation at this time.

TAX CONCLUSIONS

You can conclude that tax cuts will be announced through this reasoning: In April 1954, Finance Minister Abbott, now a Supreme Court justice, estimated he would have a balanced budget in the 1954-55 fiscal year on the basis that the GNP in 1954 would be unchanged from the previous year that is about $24,400,000,000.

However, the GNP dropped by about $400,000,000 following a prairie crop failure and a sharp decline in farm income, tax revenues declined. Federal officials have estimated that instead of a balanced bidget, Mr. Harris will present Parliament with a government's first post-war bidgetary deficit—perhaps of $100,00,000 or more.

If a GNP of $24,400,000,000—the amount in 1953—would give the government a balanced bidget, it would be reasonable to suppose that a GNP of $25,000,000,000 would give the government a surplus—providing there were no tax changes and no changes i spending.

Informants say it is quite inconceivable that Mr. Harris would present in 1955 a surplus in 1955-56, but rather would be content with a balanced budge. Therefore there would be room for tax reductions.

Big Increase In Beaver Population Seen

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—A big increase in the beaver population of northern Ontario is enabling wildlife experts to prove some of the mysteries which surround Canada's best-known but little understood animal.

The energetic animal, Canada's national emblem, was fast disappearing a few years ago because of ruthless trapping. But today colonies are flourishing in waters of this district.

The Ontario department of lands and forests is taking advantage of the population step-up to send trappers to long-standing mysteries about its habits and characteristics.

EXAMINE ANIMALS

Game wardens here are trapping beaver of various ages from different breeding grounds for examination. Skulls of selected animals are sent to Toronto for research into one of the biggest riddles—how to tell a beaver's age.

The return of the beaver is the result of a strictly-enforced conservation policy. Trappers are given a quota of catches based on the number of "houses" on their trapliines.

Houses are the winter homes which beavers build on the lake edge with the same industry they apply to dam construction. They are made largely of sticks and mud, and with snow covering take on the appearance of small igloos.

At present district trappers are restricted to a total of three beaver for each two houses on their line.

MARMORA

Sacred Heart Church Dramatic Club Presents 'Darling Brats'

MARMORA — The fine reputation of the Dramatic Club of the Sacred Heart Church of Marmora was further enhanced on the evening of St. Patrick's Day, as in the spacious hall of that church, it presented the 3-act farce "The Darling Brats," to a good house.

The choice for title roles fell to two young artists, who, in making their debut with the club, created a fine impression and occasioned with the rest of the cast, frequent outbursts of mirth. PITTS REARDEN INTO PARTS

Rose Anne Meehan and Carl Clemens, impersonating Barbara and Harold Darling, the younger two members of the orphaned Darling children, put realism into their parts of irrepressible mischief creators.

Verna Black and Patricia Clairmont, talented members, who have appeared in previous presentations, excelled in their parts as Cynthia and Theresa Darling, their older romantic sisters.

Mrs. P. Brawley, always a favorite with local readers, also scored in her portrayal of Juneberg Johnson, the colored maid, having the hilarious part befitting her particular ability.

Also starring were: Bill Meehan as Jack Henry the rancher, and James Black, as Appollo Crah, fastidious vegetarian, and wealthy business man, represented two suitors for the hand of Agatha Bridget, kindly disposed aunt of the Darling children, a role skilfully portrayed by Mrs. E. McCamus.

As Mrs. Vinton (Gloomy Gussie), Mrs. Charles Crawford executed a difficult role with striking ability, turning her woes into the deep amusement of the audience.

Completing the cast were, the parts of her son, Ron Vinton, taken by James Hughes, and that of Spike Spirling, cowboy pretender, by Paul Brady, adding to the comedy with marked ability.

RENDEZVOUS

The specialty between acts 1 and 2 was a tableau, "Rendezvous," in which Mrs. Clarence Shannon and Martin Nicholson posed and danced with grace, with Mrs. Hugh Brady being soloist and Mrs. James Black the accompanist.

Between acts 2 and 3, Rev. W. P. Healey, parish priest, expressed regret that Right Rev. H. J. Farrell, of Perth, was unable to be present to repeat his courtesy of former years in rendering Irish songs.

Father Healey then gave a pleasing Irish recitation, and thanked all responsible for the play; stage furnishings and the fine attendance — all contributing to its success.

Presented under the direction of Mrs. James Black, it was a further revelation of her capabilities in that direction. The play was repeated with success on Friday evening.

Garden Notes

Time to Use Dormant Sprays

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

For many years orchardist and farmers, market gardeners and florists bought chemicals and herb dusts to mix with their own pest control materials. Then, compounds of lime, sulphur, a solution of lead, pyrethrum, and derris began to appear in various mixtures and strengths. These were packaged and sold under trade names.

About ten years ago the organic pesticides such as 3-4-D, DDT, and the carbamates appeared. These have proved very effective and we now depend upon the manufacturers to mix all our pesticides. They do a thorough job of it too, employing numerous research workers, and testing these compounds in their own proving grounds.

Later, the material is tested in fields maintained by agricultural colleges and government experimental stations. After a thorough testing in all three of these fields the product is registered and produced for sale to the public. All this assures us of better results which mean better crops at lower cost.

INSECT PESTS

For those who grow fruit trees, sprays and dusts have been perfected to combat a host of pests. The apple tree is subject to bud moth, oyster shell scalem, case bearer, rosy aphid, red mite, scab, red bug, codding moth, leaf hopper, leaf roller and red-banded leaf roller, curculio, green apple aphid, apple maggot, and harvest drop. Your local seed dealer will provide you with a calendar to guide you as to the proper time to apply sprays for each pest, and will have the necessary equipment to do a thorough job with the least effort.

Sweet cherry, sour cherry, plums, prunes, peaches and pears have their enemies too. The 1953 spray calendar will tell you what to guard against, when to apply preventative medicine, and what to use for each different ailment. Many of the sprays are combinations which will take care of several maladies at one spray.

SPRAY FOR EVERGREENS

Have you examined your evergreens lately? They are subject to pine-leaf scale, spruce mites, aphis and red spiders. You can use a dormant spray any time now that the temperature is above 40 degrees. Do the job early in the day so it will have time to dry before the temperature falls or sundown. Keep the sprayer agitated and spray on an even light film.

To prevent junipers splitting wrap with three-inch-wide strips of burlap, a few inches above the below crotch. If splitting has occured draw the split surfaces together and bind with electrician's tape. The surface will heal and be strengthened. Cut off wet snow as soon as possible from all evergreens. A thick mulch of peat moss or dry leaves will prevent frost from drying out in strong winds. New evergreens need extra care for the first two years. Stake them against wind, give them extra water, and provide support where they are in exposed positions.

False Teeth Often Have a Certain Odor!

Soak your plates in Polident daily to avoid "Denture Breath"

Polident is the specially designed cleanser that keeps false teeth—and breath—clean and fresh always. Follow these simple rules.

1. Never use a brush as these! Your dental plates are much softer than natural teeth. Brushing wears down fitting edges so they get loose.

2. Never use soap or toothpaste! They can leave film which collects bacteria and food particles, a major cause of offensive "Denture Breath."

3. Use a soaking-type cleanser made for false teeth only . . . Polident! Polident is the denture cleanser recommended by more dentists than any other. No brushing, no handling of soapy plates that can slip and break. Polident gets where a brush can't reach. Safe for all. Polident always leaves false teeth odorfree. Get the world's largest selling denture cleanser, Polident, at your drug counter.

ANOTHER TOUGHIE

The verbal serum of "Go-Goodyears-Go," which loyal Kingston fans deal out in tremendous doses seems to have the desired effect on Art Casterton's crew-cuts from Roddenville.

Whether it was the hearse cheering that sent the Goodyears on their way to a second straight victory in this hectic senior "B" series finals Saturday night is not known but suffice it to say that the Goodyears, two goals down going to the second chapter with 4466 fans looking on, hemmed our side in behind its own blueline for nearly fourteen minutes before the rubber slicked down into Goodyear territory, with the "Go-go's" busting their eardrums.

Even at that Keith MacDonald, one of this corner's selections as one of the Memos' outstanding stars in the playoff series, scored the prettiest goal of the night, aided and abetted by Johnny Meckler and Davy Jones, and once again the Memos sensed victory. But the "third period" Goodyears again roared from behind to not only tie the count but put the effective Don Murray in the hero's role with the winning goal with less than eight minutes to go in the flaming third chapter.

Okay, so we're two games down. Things have been worse —and the Goodyears are not in the provincial semi-finals yet. As Der Maxie Jackson, figure magician of Mike Hodden's statistical stalwarts remarked the other night, "A period does not make a game, nor does a game mean the series." We'll add to that, ladies, neither does two games.

But, at that, the Memos face a stiff task. Granted the Goodyears have to win two more games to annex the series bauble—but our side has the tremendous job of winning four of the next five to cop the laurels.

And we believe they can do it. Even if they are up against a team that does not play the position-perfect game of the Cornwall Colts, nor are they, in our opinion, as good an all-round team as the way-down-easters. But they have been fired with a will-to-win spirit that has swept them through to two victories, coming from behind in each case to grab the goal-lean.

The Memos in the two games played to date have not displayed the fierce both-way checking that carried them to victory in the Lower Canada series. And the "three-quarter-ply" fence of the Goodyears has not aided them in the slightest. They meet the Goodyears in Kingston again on Wednesday night—and if they can grab this one it could be the turning point of the series. If not their backs will be so far against the traditional wall you would think they were countersunk.

We still believe the Memos can take this series—if they utilize their potential to the full. And there will be no better time to start than Wednesday night.

DERBY DAY!

The bloody riot that occurred in the Montreal Forum on Thursday night when rabid Canadien fans went practically berserk in protest against the National Hockey League's suspension of their idol, "Rocket" Richard, brought back memories to our "friendly enemy," one Michael J. Rodden, erudite sports editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard.

It happened way back in 1928 when Michael J. and the late Lou Marsh, of Toronto, were two of the most-feared, most-respected referees in the business.

The New York Rangers were playing the Montreal Maroons in a best-of-five Stanley Cup series. "Them were the days" when goals were more than incidental to the game and two squads had split four games. Montreal defeated Rangers 2-0 in each of their two victories while Lester Patrick's Gotham Blues won 3-1 and 1-0, the second game being the memorable one when Patrick went into the nets and handed the Mighty Maroons a shutout.

The fifth and deciding game saw the Rangers leading 2-1 when Hal Phillips of the Maroons shot the puck from behind the Ranger net and somehow got it home for the tying score. In those days the rules demanded that a player shooting the puck from behind an opposing net must skate out on the wine to make his comeback and not a defending player. Phillips, after the pass, raced out in front and banged into Ranger defenceman Ching Johnson. Mr. Rodden promptly called the goal and although Marsh thought it was legal. That started the fireworks. The Rangers eventually won the game and the Stanley pewterware—but Michael J. was not yet out of the Forum.

A bowling mob of disappointed Maroons supporters waited outside for Mr. Rodden. They had decided him entering the Forum wearing his conventional battered fedora. What they did, not know was that Dunc Monroe of the Maroons, had presented Mr. Rodden with a conventional "hard-top" derby hat, prior to the game.

As the fans milled around waiting for the official to appear, they paid no attention to a tall, well-dressed guy wearing a brand new "chrisite" hat. He mingled with them and asked what the trouble was. He soon found out. He walked away and sauntered to the Windsor Hotel where the then president of the National Hockey League, the late Mr. Frank Calder, was pacing up and down, clearly worried as to Michael's fate.

He later attended the banquet tossed by the Rangers at the Windsor which set back the Blues management some $3,500.

Later the party went to Child's restaurant, and there some excited fan started an assault on Mr. Calder. Michael J., a right bonny scrapper in those days, promptly hung a haymaker on the chin of the attacker—and the battle was joined. The Rangers came over from the hotel to join in the fun—and later it was discovered the irate Montreal fans were still on the "warpath" for a hot-named Rodden. They formed up again and marched to the railway station, breathing threats—and again they did not know that the object of their "affection" strode along laundry in hand, unscathing with them and hiding his identity under that "hard hat."

Champions Defeat Habs 6-0, Meet Toronto in Playoffs; Hawks Edge Bruins in Final

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The dramatic race for National Hockey League awards is over. It took the last engagement of a gruelling 70-game schedule to decide everything.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings had to come up with a great performance in goal on the windup night to claim the Vezina Trophy and $1,000 prize money.

Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens had to blast into the scoring leadership on the final weekend to capture the individual scoring crown by beating out teammate Maurice Richard.

And the Red Wings, defending a record unmatched in the game, were forced to play a victory as the last engagement for their seventh straight league championship.

It all happened during the weekend, a couple of days before the Stanley Cup playoffs.

SHUT OUT HABS

Sawchuk, a star since he hit professional hockey nine seasons ago, won the Vezina, the goalkeeping award for goaltenders, when he shut out Canadiens 6-0 in Detroit Sunday night. It came while Harry Lumley, the 1953 winner, was allowing three goals as Toronto Maple Leafs dropped a 3-2 decision to New York Rangers.

Terry, a five-foot-seven native of Winnipeg, finished with an average of 1.91 goals a game. The Wings were scored on 134 times during the 70-game schedule for a 1.92-average. There were 133 goals against Lumley.

That 6-0 shellacking before 13,353 fans at Detroit Olympia gave Red Wings the edge over the Leafs for the title. It dropped the high-powered Canadiens into fourth spot.

IN FRONT SATURDAY

Although Geoffrion, Montreal's 24-year-old right-winger, finished a score against Detroit, he produced a goal and two assists in Canadiens' 4-2 victory over Boston. Montreal Saturday to move into the scoring leadership. He ended up with 75 points—38 goals and 37 assists. Richard, suspended last Wednesday after a stick-battle with and a linesman, was second with 74. Montreal's Jean Beliveau came next with 73.

In the only other Saturday game, Leafs weakened the last-place Chicago Black Hawks 5-0 at Toronto. In a double-header Saturday night Bruins were edged 4-3 by Hawks at Boston.

The best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals start Tuesday. Wings meet Leafs at Detroit and Canadiens go against Bruins at Montreal.

A defenceman's second goal in 70 games at New York and a tearful bonus from his team combined to give Sawchuk his third Vezina in four years.

SETTLED THE ISSUE

A 25-foot drive by Ranger rearguard Harry Howell, who had scored only once before this season settled the issue late in the second period of the 60-minute game.

Sawchuk was spared 40 minutes of hockey in the tear-gas episode at Montreal Forum last Wednesday night. The goalie, who has somebody who was miffed over the Richard suspension, settled his nerves and caused forefeiture of the game to Detroit at the end of the first period. Wings were leading 4-1. Sawchuk possibly would have been beaten again had the engagement continued.

Howell's goal at 18:28 of the second period sent Rangers into a 2-1 lead. However, they long'ago finished out of the playoffs, along with the Hawks.

STOPPED 24

Lumley made 24 stops against Rangers but couldn't handle the aggressive Blueshirts long enough to wriggle into the Vezina circle. New York netminder Lorne Worsley stopped 26 Leaf drives.

Danny Lewicki and Andy Bathgate tallied the other New York goals. Defencemen Jim Thomson and Eric Nesterenko tallied for Leafs, Thomson getting his fourth goal of the season.

At Detroit, Leftwinger Ted Lindsay led Red Wings to victory with three goals. He finished the season with a total of 19 goals. Marcel Bonin tallying his 25th, Tony Leswick and Alex Delvecchio added the others.

At Boston, 10,696 fans saw Chicago defenceman Al Rollins turn in a fine performance. Frank Martin, Jerry Toppazzini, Eddie Litzenberger and Red Sullivan scored for the Bruins, who pulled off their 13th victory of the campaign. Dr. Gardiner tallied twice for Boston. Bill Quackenbush got the other one.

LED ALL THE WAY

Canadiens didn't waste any time taking the lead before 13,540 fans at the Forum Saturday. They were ahead 3-1 at the end of the first period and 4-1 at the finish of the second. Before Rangers scored their second goal of the night Canadiens' seven scoring was split among Geoffrion, Beliveau, Baldy MacKay and Floyd Curry.

Larry Popein and Dean Prentice produced the New York goals.

Leftwinger Sid Smith and rightwinger George Armstrong each tallied twice in the Hawks-Leafs game at Toronto before 12,826 fans. Smith ran his season's goal total to 33; Armstrong to 10. Right winger Ron Stewart tallied the other Toronto goal.

In chalking up his shutout, Lumley stopped 18 Chicago drives. He made some great saves and appeared to be well on his way to the Vezina.

The one-goal margin reversed last year's finish when Lumley took the trophy with 131 goals against him to Sawchuk's 132. The two have been rivals for top NHL honors since Sawchuk replaced the 28-year-old native of Owen Sound, Ont., in the Detroit nets in 1952. Lumley was traded to Chicago and then to Toronto.

Stamford Takes Senior Schoolboy Basketball Title

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Stamford collegiate Hornets upset the defending champion Welland Patterson collegiate 56-47 Saturday night to win the all-Ontario senior schoolboy basketball championship in a hectic final game here.

The Stamford quintet defeated in a district final earlier by the Niagara Falls collegiate, had been given a bye into the championships as Niagara district representatives. Once in, they rolled in a big way.

Friday afternoon, they dumped Ottawa Glagar 65-47 and then moved into the finals with a tingling 43-40 win over Toronto Northern Vocational Saturday afternoon.

Windsor moved to the final downing Scholastic 49-42 and Sudbury Tech 65-45 after two overtime periods.

PLAYED CAUTIOUSLY

Both teams were weary from the two hectic semi-finals and played cautious basketball most of the way. With two minutes left to play, Patterson pulled away, sparked by Dave Howard's two successful set shots and a pair of baskets by lanky Pete Den Doelen.

Den Doelen and captain Gus Turbulo paced Patterson's champions with 14 points apiece. Mike Jasnich walked close behind with 13.

For Windsor, Wilber Ott potted 15 points and Gary Weir 13.

In the consolation round, Stobbcoke Rams completed the downing of Niagara Falls collegiate Red Raiders by racking up a 70-61 win after trailing 31-28 at the half. The Red Raiders, Niagara district champions and finalists against Windsor last year, lost to Northern Vocational 47-46 in the first round and moved into the consolation final with a win over Ottawa Lisgar 51-43.

Etobicoke, victims of Scholastic in the first round, defeated Hamilton Westdale 69-46 to gain the final.

Point Anne Ousts Marmora

The Point Anne Trent Valley League southern district champions eliminated the Marmora Millionaires from OHA competition in the village Saturday night taking a 10-7 verdict from the Centre Hastings club.

The Ox Trotters won the best-of-three series in two straight games and now advance to the second round of the OHA intermediate "C" playdowns. No word as to what the opposition will be has been received as yet.

The Marmora team enjoys a 2-1 game lead in their current best-of-seven Trent Valley northern division finals, the winners meet Point Anne for the league championship.

Teeps 3-0 Win Over Marlies Explodes Into All-Out Brawl; Officials Issue 69 Penalties

By BILL SENYK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Boiling tempers, frayed by jarring bodychecks and the lenseness of playoff competition, exploded into Sunday into one of junior hockey's biggest explosions in recent years as St. Catharines TeePees shut out Toronto Marlboros 3-0.

It was climaxed by a 20-minute brawl which broke out only 77 seconds from the end of the game and involved almost every player of both teams. The result: 29 five-minute major penalties and 40 one-minute misconducts.

The victory for the TeePees tied the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A final 1-1. The third game will be played in St. Catharines today.

The last-minute outburst shocked the 11,227 fans who saw the defending Memorial Cup champions open the series. Without a warning flying in for Marv Edwards, regular TeePee netminder, out of the lineup with an injury.

Riggio, property of Hamilton Tiger-Cubs who were eliminated in their first playoff round, made "impossible" stops on two "sure-goal" attempts by Glen Cressman early in the game and later robbed McNeil, Gary Aitkens, Bob Baun and Billy Harris.

THREE ABSENT

The only players not involved in the free-for-all of the dying minutes were Roy Cressman and Kelly of the TeePees and Gerry James of the Marlboros. Greenen suffered a leg injury early in the game and didn't return. Kelly and James were sent to the dressing room with majors 32 seconds before the big fight for players to private brod. Kelly suffered a cut arm in that fracas and is to receive treatment in hospital at St. Catharines for severed tendons.

All told there were 65 penalties—33 majors, 23 misconducts and nine minors—for a total of 413 minutes. Marlboros drew 17 majors, 12 misconducts and four minors for 213 minutes.

A decision on various fines arising from the donnybrook is expected to be announced today after OHA president Tory Greeg of Windsor, Ont., arrives here with Bobby. OHA rules call for an automatic $50 fine for any player leaving the bench to fight on the ice.

Kingston Goodyears Edge Memos 4-3 To Take Two-Game Lead In Series

Wipe Out Two-Goal Deficit To Snatch Win in 3rd Period; 4,400 Watch Stirring Battle

KINGSTON (Special) — Kingston Goodyears climbed another rung on the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "B" series ladder when they edged the swift and potent Belleville Memos by 4 to 3 in the Community Memorial Centre on Saturday night and gained a 4 to 0 points advantage in the best-in-seven group playoff set. It was a sizzling struggle all the way but Goodyears held a wide advantage in territorial play and would have won decisively if "Tony" Twrid hadn't turned in one of the most sensational goaltending exhibitions of the long campaign.

The Memos struck swiftly midway through the opening period and scored twice in succession as the white 4,395 fans looked on in wonder and admiration. The Belles, playing with determination and jaunty confidence, were clearly the better machine through the initial session but Goalie Les Douglas and his proteges resorted to the ganging attack system and adhered to it over the rest of the route the baffled Memos were set up for the kill.

Partial, under heavy attack, stopped every puck that came his way until Jack Irvine, aided by the elusive Willie Pawchuck and the fast thinking Don Bellringer, scored Goodyears initial counter at the 13.18 mark, the while John Jay Muckler looked on from the penalty bench. Muckler's return at 14.31 did not alter the trend and less than three minutes later Ted Pyzpazzini hit the webbing after having attacked in conjunction with Jim McKeown and Bob Lockyer.

Those first four goals had been amassed in the game and when Keith MacDonald shot into the same webbing and broke the deadlock at 1.36 in the final session Belleville's hopes were riding high. But that goal had a flaw in that Muckler's pass to Harvey Jones was a bit offside at the centre line.

RESPOND QUICKLY

Goodyears quickly responded to the challenge and the Memos "fort" was assailed from all distances and angles. Coach Frank Boucher alternated his lines every two minutes but Goodyears maintained that relentless pressure and finally reaped the desired dividends when Douglas got his split-tier at 6.44 and Don Murray the winner at 12.10. Douglas was assisted by Bellringer and Lockyer but Murray scored unaided following a face-off in the circle to the left of the Belleville cage.

Less than one minute later Murray missed the unmanned Webring after Twrid had skated out forty feet in a vain effort to trap the errant puck. Goodyears still the aggressors scored with less than five minutes to go but it was officially and correctly ruled that the puck had been batted in with a stick held higher than the shoulder.

George MacGregor drew a tripping penalty at 16.40 but the Belles were from the chase, were unable to organize a payoff assault. With 55 seconds left Partial was withdrawn and an extra forward sent into action. Following an offside attack at the Belleville blue line Don Bellringer was hurt and relieved. Partial returned to action.

With the last few seconds passing quickly Erwin Duncan broke through or past the local defence but Jim McKeown arrived in time to aid in deflecting the shot wide of the target. A face-off followed with six skating Memos in action but Murray gained possession and the most exciting struggle of the season was concluded amid thunderous applause.

The Pawchuk-Douglas-Bellringer line took top honors with one goal and three assists while the MacDonald-D.-Jones-Goyer array led the Memos with one goal and one assist. Kingston's flashy trio Don Murray, Jack White and George MacGregor, got only one point, a goal by Murray. Ted Pyzpazzini working with Johnny Hyde and Jim McKeown scored once and McKeown had an assist. Jack Irvine contributed a counter and Bob Londry with two assists, shared points-getting laurels with Bellringer who had a similar record.

OUTSCORE MEMOS

Goodyears have outscored the Memos 7 to 4 in the two games to date and hold a precious four-points lead but those Bouchermen could hit back if given the slightest opportunity. They proved their mettle when they nudged off a 10 to 0 initial reverse and eliminated the favored Cornwall Colts in the semi-finals. They could be hard to tame when the teams tangle here on Wednesday night. Goodyears, however, rate favorites to emerge victorious in this series. In ten clashes against the Memos this season they have won 6, lost 3 and tied one but have outscored their doughty foes by only 32 to 28.

Although they are still in group competition each team has participated in 56 games. Goodyears have won 32 lost 20 and tied three. They have outscored their combined opposition 283 to 249 and have amassed 69 points; the Memos have won 30 lost 22 and tied four. They have a scoring mark of 241 as against 218 and have assembled 62 points. The teams:

Swimmers Score in Pan-Am. Games; Virtual Unknown Defeats Wes Santee

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Canadian swimmers may find the going easier than the hard-pressed track and field team and the women basketballers from Vancouver who have lost their five starts.

So far Canadians have finished fifth and sixth in the women's 200-metre free style swim Sunday and five qualified for finals in four events later this week. In track and field Saturday Canada's Barry Lush and George Norman finished fifth and sixth in the marathon and a Canadian quartet was fifth in the men's 400-metre relays.

Canada garnered eight points during the weekend to bring its unofficial total for 5 far down the list of 22 countries and territories.

The United States had a commanding lead of 762½ points to 317 for Argentina. Mexico had 223½ and Chile 105.

PLACES FIFTH

Beth Whittall, 18-year-old Montrealer, led the Canadian swim stars by placing fifth in the 200-metre free style and then qualifying for the 100-metre butterfly in one minute, 16.9 seconds. She won her heat with ease while Linda Ghier of Vancouver was second in another heat and also qualified. Gladys Priestley of Verdun, Que. was sixth in the 200-metre free style race. Wanda Lee Werner, 14-year-old American, won the race in two minutes, 32.5 seconds.

Helen Stewart of Vancouver finished second in trials twice and qualified for the women's 200-metre breast stroke and the 100-metre free style. Virginia Grant, a six-footer from Toronto, won a heat in the 100 metres to become one of the favorites.

Ted Simpson of Vancouver was the only male Canadian swimmer to qualify, finishing second in the 100-metre backstroke. In the longer 400-metre trials, Gerry McNamee of Vancouver, George Park of Hamilton, Ont., and Allan Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., all were eliminated.

VARIOUS WINNERS

Jimmy McLane of the U.S. Army won the 1,500-metre free style championship, Hector Dominguez of Argentina took the 200-metre breast stroke and Joaquin Capilla of Mexico retained his three-metre diving crown.

In the distance races Saturday—the windup of track and field competition, Juan Miranda of Argentina, a virtual unknown, upset Wes Santee, the U.S. mile king, with a fierce stretch drive to win the 1,500 metres in 3:53.2 and Doroteo Flores of Guatemala took the marathon.

Rafer Johnson, a 19-year-old freshman attending the University of California at Los Angeles, won the 10-event decathlon and the U.S. took all three relay races — the men's 400 metres and 1,600 metres and the women's 400 metres.

CANADIAN PLACES

Capt. Rodolphe Lafond of Montreal was fifth in the dressage event of the four-day equestrian competition.

Leonard Lafond of Montreal led the sabre fencing preliminaries with four victories against no defeats.

The U.S. won three rowing events and Argentina four Sunday. Sculler Jack Kelly, Jr., of Philadelphia, a double sculls team from Detroit and the Vesper heavyweight eight from Philadelphia won for the U.S.

Vancouver Ellery, already out of the running in the women's basketball tournament, dropped a 58-45 decision to Brazil.

Junior Baseball Again Under Wing Of Parent Body

COBOURG (CP) — After five years as a separate organization, Ontario junior baseball teams Saturday were readmitted to the Ontario Baseball Association at the annual meeting of the association here.

This move, classifying junior teams with juvenile, midget batman and peewee teams will mean the return of 40 Toronto groups to the OBA.

The 200 delegates also voted to streamline the association's executive by limiting it to four members, the president, three vice-presidents and a secretary-treasurer.

Clarence Riddell of Milton was elected president. First vice-president is Kim Terow of Preston and secretary-treasurer is Thomas W. Rowdon of St. Catharines.

The Cataracts now meet the fourth-place Chicoutimi Saguenems in one half of the best-of-nine semi-finals, while Quebec Aces, who ended in second spot, meet the Montreal Royals.

Valleyfield Braves, trailing the pack for several weeks now, were defeated Valleyfield 3-2.

Judy Garland and Grace Kelly In Bitter Fight for Oscar

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It wasn't planned that way, but the fight for the films' top feminine Oscar might be called a class struggle.

It's Judy Garland, born in a vaudeville trunk, versus Grace Kelly, born into a Philadelphia mansion.

At this writing, the contrast between Little Miss Showbusiness and the debutante actress looks a draw.

Judy was given an actress' tour de force in "A Star Is Born" and came through in the finest tradition of Oscar. But it's doubtful if a Bergman or a Cerbo could have handled the role of the beaten-down wife in "The Country Girl" any better than the reserved Miss Kelly.

Sentiment, perhaps is on the side of Judy. One of the greatest of child actresses, she has led a heartbreak life—a near-suicide and near-suicide at 28, an Oscar favorite at 33.

Miss Kelly, in the last 18 months, has had the most rapid ascent of any star in recent Hollywood history. A real pro at 26, she possesses the craftsmanship that most great stars don't acquire until much later.

Judy doesn't want to win on the sentiment vote.

"I'd rather lose than be judged on anything other than performance," she says. "I think Grace will win it anyway, so I guess I won't have anything to worry about. But I admit I want to win very badly."

Miss Kelly makes no predictions on the outcome but willingly comments on Miss Garland's performance:

"I thought she was just wonderful."

Of course, both could miss the prize to be awarded March 30. Some folks feel that they may kill off each other in the voting, letting someone else slip in. Best bet in this case is Dorothy Dandridge, first Negro ever nominated for the top acting award, for her role in "Carmen Jones."

The other nominees: Jane Wyman for "Magnificent Obession" and Audrey Hepburn for "Sabrina," both past Oscar winners.

Judy was born backstage in Grand Rapids, Minn., of vaudeville parents. She was in the family act at two, a movie star at 13. She never knew a normal childhood.

Grace, born with a golden spoon, knew she had to become a success or live in the shadow of successful relatives. Her father is a millionaire, her mother once was a beautiful cover girl.

Grace, who could have been the prettiest blonde in the German-town country club set, got out of Philadelphia as soon as she could. She studied acting in New York and supported herself as a model.

Next came television jobs, but it was much tougher crashing Broadway.

"I read for 40 plays and didn't get hoo," she recalls. "I had to go to Hollywood because I couldn't get work on Broadway."

AT THE McCARTHY — At the hearing following the great $2,500,000 Boston armed robbery Tony Curtis, the crook considered the likeliest suspect, is shown headlines proclaiming the daring hold-up. In this scene from Universal-International's "Six Bridges to Cross" now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, Julie Adams and George Nader are also starred in this Aaron Rosenberg production which was mainly filmed in Boston.

AT THE BELLE—"A Star Is Born", the long-awaited motion picture by Judy Garland, James Mason, Jack Carson and Charles Bickford, in CinemaScope and Technicolor, offers 2½ hours of screen greatness, and is continuing at the Belle Theatre.

Hawks Drub Ottawa Flyers

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Moncton Hawks drubbed Ottawa RCAF Flyers 6-1 here Saturday night in the first game of the eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-finals. The Hawks now lead the best-of-seven set 1-0 with the second game to be played here tonight.

Orval Gravelle robbed Moncton goalie Nick Pidzodny of a shutout just a second before the end of the game when he batted home a loose puck.

Tod Campeau gave the Hawks, Maritime champions, a 1-0 scoring margin in the first period. Billy Sinnet and Dewar Thomson shot several period tallies, and Sinnet fired his second late in the third to complete the Hawks' scoring attack.

Six minor penalties, four to the Hawks, were the only infractions called in the tame encounter. The Flyers are Ottawa district champions.

AT THE CAPITOL — Ray Milland, who appears with Grace Kelly and Barry Sullivan in Warner Bros. Technicolor suspense drama "The Trial of Joe Mercer" now at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program is Technicolor, "Dragnet" starring Jack Webb as Sgt. Joe Friday.

Police Guard Montreal, Detroit Arenas But Not Even a Peanut Was Tossed

MONTREAL, (CP) — Five hundred policemen stood guard at the Montreal Forum Saturday night as Montreal Canadiens whipped New York Rangers 4-2 in a National Hockey League game that produced nothing in the way of a recurrence of Thursday's riot.

Not even a peanut was tossed, in direct contrast to Thursday when irate fans showered N.H.L. president Clarence Campbell with everything from programs to tomatoes in protest of the suspension of Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

Campbell did not attend, at the request of Forum officials. The crowd of 13,540 was the smallest here since 1947—also because of a forum order forbidding the sale of standing-room tickets.

Police began patrolling outside the rink long before game time. Anyone seen loitering on nearby streets was told to move along and only those with tickets were allowed in the Forum lobby.

Inside, other policemen took over and hustled the fans into their seats, preventing a jam in the lobby. Thursday, the demonstrators congregated there, and when they were forced outside, began pelting the rink with ice and bottles.

Saturday, police also were stationed near the main entrance to the rink—just behind one of the goals—where Thursday a tear-gas bomb was set off and sent spectators coughing and choking through the exits. They had nobody to watch but watch the game, however.

At Detroit Sunday, a special Detroit police detachment of five men at Michigan station was on hand to keep the peace when the visiting Canadiens wearing tam o'shanters, set up a makeshift curling rink, using an attendant's hat as the button, and played three ends with borrowed rocks and brooms. Few of the 1,000 spectators knew what the game was all about.

The four-man rink skipped by A. S. Campbell, president of the Arnprior Lions' Club, defeated Mayor Simpson's team but the score was anybody's guess, chiefly because in the final end somebody kicked the hat away while the distance of the rocks from it was being measured.

Montreal Team Bows to Northerns

The Belleville Northern Electric interdepartment hockey stars played host to the Northern squad from Montreal over the week-end in an exhibition game here and came out on the long end of an 8-4 score. Belleville will pay a return visit to the East at a later date.

The homesters showed superior scoring punch to chalk up the victory, taking a 2-1 lead in the first period, adding the only three goals of the middle session and clinching it in the final twenty minutes to win going away.

Dave Zanella tallied Belleville's first goal, Beauchamp from St. Amand and Fergusson Arnstine the count before Semark tallied on assists from the Wardhaugh brothers to put the winners in the lead to stay. Pete Jones, Jackie Wardhaugh, and Bob Hatfield scored in the second period.

Harry Wardhaugh made it 6-1 early in the third but Fergusson and McIlvie cut the lead to 6-3 before Jack Wardhaugh tallied. Philip notched the final Belleville marker while Montreal's last tally came from Ferguson.

Referees Doug Hamilton and Doug Soules handed out eight penalties, 5 to Belleville sitting.

Montreal — Wright, Lamont, Todden, Crawley, McLean, Ferguson, Halleux, St. Amand, McCaffrie, Rochfort, McIlvie, Beauchamp.

Belleville: Barclay, T. Hurst, Green, Whalen, York, Pucansik, Creegan, Hatfield, H. Wardhaugh, J. Wardhaugh, D. Jones, P. Jones, James, Philp, J. Semark.

Hamilton Bowlers Take Top Honors

TORONTO (CP)—Two Hamilton bowlers took top honors Saturday in the Ontario men's and women's five pin bowling championships held at the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show here.

In the men's division final, Joe Baird of Hamilton downed Percy Gosling of Toronto 2,549 to 2,329 for the championship and $500 first prize. Baird also posted the high single score in the tournament with 367.

Vera Ward of Hamilton won the ladies singles on the last ball of the final game 2,518 to 2,517 over Mrs. B. Ross of Oshawa, Mrs. Ross posted the high single of 332. Mrs. Ward won $200 with the title and Mrs. Ross $250.

Both winners will fly to Winnipeg to compete in the Canadian championships April 9th.

Gunners Win Basketball Title

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Sault Ste. Marie Gunners made a last-minute comeback Saturday to defeat Toronto Nortown 71-68 for the all-Ontario senior A men's basketball championship and the right to represent the eastern Canada finals.

The game, which threatened to break out into a fight between the referee and a Toronto player, gave Gunners their best-of-three series 2-1. It was the first provincial senior championship for Sault Ste. Marie's history.

Trouble threatened when Eddie Boguski, Nortown's scoring ace, disagreed violently with two calls by referee Johnny Marasco. The Toronto player was finally stopped by five players and escorted to the dressing room.

ERASES LEAD

Nortown wiped out a 16-point lead held by the Gunners at half time and went ahead 66-65 with 30 seconds left to play. A field goal by Bill Harris, his only one of the game, gave the Gunners the victory. Four foul shots by Sault Ste. Marie served it up.

Gerry Kahle, lanky Gunner forward, was high scorer with 18 points. Lou Lukanda, former University of Toronto player, and Ray Sultanen added 16 each.

Hornets Take American Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets boasted their second American Hockey League title in 18 seasons as the last of four contending teams focused their attention on the Calder Cup playoffs starting Tuesday.

Hornets, who finished with 70 points, won their only other championship during the 1951-52 season when the league was split into two divisions. Pittsburgh won the western crown that year.

Cleveland, Springfield and Buffalo wound up in a three-way tie for second place with 67 points apiece. In the event of a tie, the team with the most victories gains the higher position for playoff purposes, Cleveland and Springfield each had 32 triumphs, but Barons captured second place because they scored more goals than Springfield. Buffalo won 31 games.

Cleveland edged Buffalo 3-1 in overtime on Johnny McClellan's goal. Hershey, nipped Providence 4-3 in overtime and Springfield trounced Pittsburgh 7-1 in Sunday night's final regular season games.

Gotham Sees Canadian Curling

NEW YORK (CP) — Cries of "Sweep! Sweep!" echoed through Manhattan's Rockefeller Plaza Sunday as a group of Canadians introduced the ancient game of curling to the outdoor skating rink in the shadow of the 70-storey RCA building.

The curlers were led by Mayor Robert M. Simpson of Arnprior, Ont., who threw into New York earlier in the day with a group of Toronto councillors and businessmen.

They are here on a three-day goodwill visit including a tour of the Charles A. Pfizer Company's Brooklyn plant, producer of pharmaceutical products, which is sponsoring the Canadian visit to the eastern Ontario community of 3,000.

The rink in the heart of Rockefeller Centre is normally used for skating but Sunday the visiting Canadians wearing tam o'shanters, set up a makeshift curling rink, using an attendant's hat as the button, and played three ends with borrowed rocks and brooms. Few of the 1,000 spectators knew what the game was all about.

The four-man rink skipped by A. S. Campbell, president of the Arnprior Lions' Club, defeated Mayor Simpson's team but the score was anybody's guess, chiefly because in the final end somebody kicked the hat away while the distance of the rocks from it was being measured.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, March 22, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Influences can do much to assist immediate problems, and to ease possible tensions. Manifest your good intentions and good will, and others will generally do same, benefiting all.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Think and act within reason, and don't just think of your own problems. You may need assistance, advice, even help today, but go will others. Stress friendly attitudes; pray.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Look for the "breaks," but also work! Give that added zest needed at any hour. Stimulating rays, day radiates brightness, helpfulness. Finances, professional, home matters ask tact.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Some necessary restraint. Even with success, exercise diplomacy, calmness. Point up better understanding, confidence. Then day will yield satisfactory returns.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — If you show astuteness, as you well can when up to par, avoiding hasty decisions and talking out of turn, you can do yourself justice in all endeavors. Keep steady pace; don't rush.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Day doesn't promise to be easy for the extraordinary in other-than-routine matters. The keen eye can salvage much that may otherwise go adrift. Be always hopeful.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — On guard! For the little unexpected things that could trip you up annoyingly. Short answers, unnecessary quickness and thoughtless retorts will jeopardize good effort, good will.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — If you don't take yourself and your activities too importantly you can put day through with reasonable results. Brighten your outlook, improve system to broaden viewpoint — (necessary).

November 23 to December 22— (Sagittarius) — Fine influences, with success dangling before your eyes, take care not to become too confident and miss clues. Be magnanimous in spirit, deed, but don't overdo; stay within due bounds.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Indications that news and word from friends will try to influence your action. Be sure you know what you are doing. Aspects say chances excellent in all worthy tries. Romance favored.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — A day that calls for no effort, quality doing to get share of benefits around. Point always for better things, pitch, too, for the unusual in life. Don't be satisfied to drift.

February 21 to March 20 — Mars indicates possible lucratives for the alert thinker today. New ways to increase daily advantages, gain proper recognition in your specific work. Press but don't annoy, it can hurt later.

You born today: Your planet Mars indicates you possess forethought, originality, ambition and vigor. Signifies benefits generally through reminder of month. Manifest your desires in a natural and reasonable way and you ambitious folks can gain much. More than try too fiery or bold front, 1955 from April through August could be extra generous to you who will work hard and earnestly. You can make personal affairs more pleasant for yourself, friends, and loved ones by the give-and-take policy.

Knowles Urges Canada Prepare For Centennial

OTTAWA (CP)—Stanley Knowles suggested today government should launch a vast program of social and economic development of Canada as a fitting tribute to the 100th birthday July 1, 1967.

The Winnipeg North Centre member made the proposal in a private members' resolution worded as a motion for discussion on Monday. Since the time for consideration is limited, resolutions to part his suggestion won't get House consideration at this session.

Mr. Knowles' resolution suggested setting up a "100th anniversary committee" composed of federal and provincial representatives to plan and press a vast program of roads, dams and cheap power projects, highway construction, hospital buildings and assistance to municipal projects.

The resolution said the program should be pursued year by year "so that on July 1, 1967, the people of Canada will be in a position to celebrate not only with fireworks and speeches but by the achievement of a land of health and abundance for all our people."

IDENTIFY THREE

BATHURST, N.B. (CP)—Three men who died apparently from carbon monoxide poisoning in a blizzard - trapped car Thursday night or early Friday were identified as Edgar Arthur Gagnon, 31, of Inch, N.B.; Capt. Joseph E. Levesque, 44, of Kent [illegible] man, Montreal.

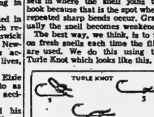
How to Tie Angler's Knots



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT.
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solomar Tables)

Every once in a while one of the users of the Solomar Tables will write to us, requesting information about angler's knots. Time was, when we used gut leaders, that almost any knot would do the job regardless. Not so today.

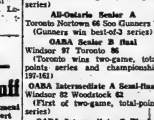
For instance, take a strand, say, of eight-pound playtpl. Tie this to a turned-down eye of a hook with an old-fashioned "clinch knot." Then hold the hook in a vise or pair of pliers and pull. More often than not the jaw will slip and pull free.

More and more each year the fresh-water anglers are carrying eyed flied, minus the old-fashioned snells. Snells take up valuable space in your kit. Moreover, they will disintegrate with time; fatigue sets in where the snell joins the hook because that is the spot where repeated sharp bends occur. Gradually the snell becomes weakened.

The best way, we think, is to tie on fresh leaders each time the flies are used. We do this using the Turle Knot which looks like this.

If you want to play safe, tie a small, tight half hitch in the end of your leader. Do this after you have passed the end of the fly a few times through the eye of the hook and before you tie the knot proper. Then pass the end through pull free, although I have never had a Turle Knot let go. Another knife, the Turle Knot is useful only with hooks which have turned-down or turned-up eyes. With straight eyes, you'll want to use a knot which, so far as I know has not been accepted name. This is how you tie it.

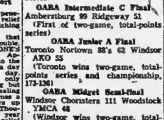
A modification, particularly useful for heavy fish, is to pass an extra loop through the eye, like this—



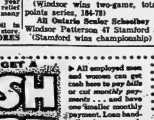
With both of these knots, play safe and tie a half hitch in the end of the leader point.

Seldom these days do we bother with ready-made leaders. They are relatively expensive and often are not tapered the way we like them, so we tie our own from coils of monofilament. These coils are not expensive and they take up little room in your leader pack.

The leader and which fastens to the line usually is tied in a loop. You can tie this loop easily by doubling the leader strand and then trying a simple half hitch, like this—



The better knot is the one that the professionals use, like this—



Once again let me remind you that it is always a good idea to tie a half hitch in your leader point when you are using a fairly stiff plastic monofilament, regardless of the knot in question.

Probably the most useful knot you can have in your bag of tricks is the Blood Knot or Barrel Knot. It can be tied two ways—this way—or this way—

The Blood Knot is not confined in its use to leaders alone. It is the only knot that I know which will join threads of different sizes of monofilament with any degree of success. Thus, broken lines can be repaired until you can find the time to splice them properly.

There are, of course, dozens upon dozens of angler's knots. However, if you learn the ones listed above, I am sure that you will be able to meet successfully just about any of the emergencies which are bound to arise in your fishing.

Churchill Warns France Against Isolation Danger

PARIS (CP) — Sir Winston Churchill warned France last January against the "terrible fate" of becoming isolated in Western Europe and losing her influence in the Free World, it was revealed today.

He hinted West Germany might replace France as the defender of Europe.

The warning came in the British prime minister's reply to a personal letter from Pierre Mendes-France, then premier, who recommended that the West immediately take the initiative for talks with Russia.

Mendes - France published his letter today as well as an unofficial translation of the French text of Churchill's letter, marked "private and personal." The former premier said he had Churchill's agreement to publish the letter.

Churchill said the Paris treaties for rearming Germany could be ratified before arrangements for four-power talks because "the Soviet Union cannot be indefinitely approached through weakness."

EGYPT-CHAIR POLICY

The British statesman said he feared endless French delays in ratifying the treaties "may lead to the formation of some solution under study on both sides of the Atlantic."

The British premier said he would feel "obliged" to uphold the "supply - and - chair" policy, saying France's seat at the international councils rested on France failed to ratify the treaties. Then he mentioned Germany's possible new role:

"I think the United States with their immense superiority in nuclear weapons, acting in association with Britain, the British Commonwealth and the German federal republic, will be strong enough in any case during the years to come to guarantee certain and real security, based on physical and moral capacity for retaliation, to the Benelux countries and to our other allies with whom we have engagements to honor."

QUESTION CHILDREN

ORANGEVILLE (CP) — Five children ranging in age from five to 13 were questioned after a bank note, found stuffed inside the handle-bar of a bicycle, led to the recovery of $200 worth of goods and cash, police said Friday. Police chief Alex Dodds said office supplies, flashlights, $23 in cash and a copy of the New Testament were found under logs, in tin cans and under the town's bandstand.

Minor Hockey

Booth Radio kept their chances for the midget title alive over the week-end as they pulled an upset 4-1 victory over Northern Electric to knot their two game, goals-to-count series at eight goals apiece. The two clubs will meet in a deciding battle some time this week but no date has been announced.

Northern scored the only goal of the first period and carried a four goal lead into the middle stanza. Gord St. Louis tallied Northern's goal with Jim Spafford assisting but Denis Kerruish and Caddie fired a goal each in the second heat to cut the margin. Austin and Ab Wright sparked the attack in the final session, Wright picking up his third and fourth assists as Austin netted two well-scored goals. Ron Collins also drew one assist.

Five minutes of overtime was played but neither team could break the series tie. The Northern crew was handicapped with five penalties while Booths had three.

HOWE SAYS U.S.

Mr. Howe said the U.S. waiver issue dominated the four-month Geneva talks as far as Canada was concerned. He said hopes that the GATT trade rules would be tightened and import curbs relaxed would be dimmed because of the waiver issue.

NOT WEAKENED

But he maintained there was no weakening of the GATT. Its essential integrity had been preserved.

The U. S. currently imposes curbs on imports from Canada and other countries on some grains and dairy products. Canada has protested many times that the curbs are illegal as they violate the spirit and principles of GATT. But the U.S. has recently rejected demands that she remove them.

The fact that the U.S. now has a blanket waiver, said Mr. Howe, "does not mean the U.S. is about to impose new and severe restrictions on imports from Canada."

He said it would have been better for all concerned and for the GATT if the U.S. waiver request had never been made, but the important thing now is how the U.S. acts under the waiver.

Man and Wife Fatally Injured

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A man and wife were fatally injured and seven other persons were injured Sunday in a three-car accident on Highway 4, nine miles northwest of here.

Vincent Cortese, 37, of London, Ont., identified as the driver of one of the cars, and his wife, Ruth, 35, died in hospital. They were the parents of two children, Allen, 11, and Michael, 10, who were not in the car.

Injured were: Carl Miller, 37, of London, critical condition; Eleanor Miller, 31, his wife, minor injuries; Ernest Fullam, 34, of London, critical condition; Edith Fullam, 37, his wife, minor injuries. They were all passengers in the Cortese car, police said.

OTHERS HURT

Kenneth Verrell, 28, of St. Thomas, identified as the driver of the second car, and a passenger Donald Stephenson, 24, of St. Thomas, were reported in serious condition with head and chest injuries.

Robert Anderson, Jr., 23, of St. Thomas, driver of the third car, suffered minor injuries.

Police said the accident occurred around 2:30 a.m. when the northbound Cortese car and the southbound Verrell car met head-on in the centre of the highway. They said the third car apparently came upon the accident scene shortly after and was forced into the ditch.

Four ambulances—two from St. Thomas and two from London—were used to bring the injured to hospital here.

Future of Reuther May Be Affected by Negotiations For An Annual Guaranteed Wage

By NORMAN WALKER

NEW YORK (AP)—William Enright went to work for the Wilson Packing Company in Austin, Minn., 25 years ago. In those days he, like almost every other worker in any industry, never knew when he'd be laid off.

"It was impossible to make plans for the future," he recalls.

But a year later, Hormel put into effect a guaranteed annual wage plan that assures workers of a specific income in a given year. Now, says Enright:

"The fact that today 37 per cent of the homes in Austin are owned by their occupants is undoubtedly one of the direct results of the annual wage plan. The employee can safely go into debt because he knows his work and pay will be steady. The same is true in buying cars, home appliances, other things. Because the worker's employment has been stabilized, merchants obviously regard him as a good credit risk."

Naturally, Enright feels the idea is all to the good. Now a man he may never have met is betting he's right. That man is Walter Philip Reuther, energetic head of the CIO and United Auto Workers.

PRIME TARGET

When Reuther and the UAW sit down shortly to bargain for new contracts with the automobile industry, a guaranteed annual wage is their prime target for a half million workers in U.S. auto factories.

Some of every seven persons in the United States has a direct or indirect stake in the auto industry. If the auto workers win a guaranteed annual wage, other big unions are ready to push similar demands. Observers believe such a move may affect the U.S. economy far more than such major labor-management issues as wages and pensions.

What is the other side of the coin at Hormel, based on its experience? What does the company think of its plan? Fayette Sherman, personnel director, says:

"The only guarantee we know is the ability of management to manage, coupled with the willingness of workers to work. If either fails, the guarantee fails."

There was a lot of trial and error, says Sherman, in developing a plan which would assure a worker of 52 steady pay cheques and assure the company of a steady supply of livestock, with the fewest possible slack seasons. Hormel officials see it as a plan in which the cloth was cut to fit a particular company in a particular industry. They are not willing to guess whether it will work in industry in general, or even in any other specific company.

Officially, at least for public consumption, neither is auto industry management. Without exception, they are not commenting in advance of negotiations.

SAY PLAN WON'T WORK

But unofficially, their view is: The guaranteed annual wage may be fine for William Enright and Hormel's 9,600 other employees. It may be fine, too, at Procter and Gamble Soap Co., Cincinnati, where a guaranteed wage has been in effect since 1923, and at Nunn-Bush Shoe Co., Milwaukee, which has had it since 1935. But . . .

Here's one of the managerial staff of a large auto maker talking:

"It would create an artificial shortage of cars. Unlike soap, shoes and meat, the auto companies cannot gauge their production over a year's time. Autos involve an up-and-down selling season. You can't tell a customer when to buy a car."

The aspect that worries business most is cost. Employers fear they might be stuck for heavy payments at times when they could least afford them. They say individual employers can't control over-all economic conditions.

Reuther's union has an answer for this. It says its plan would require no employer to make job-less payments beyond a fixed liability. The employer would lay aside fixed amounts in a guaranteed annual wage fund. Whenever that run out he would be obligated to pay no more.

However, employers fear unions never would be satisfied with the size of the fund, once established.

For the auto industry it is a tough question — and Reuther knows it. His future in the labor movement well may be affected by the outcome of the negotiations.

Baroness Up For Second Time On Fraud Count

MONTREAL (CP)—The retrial of a former Hungarian baroness, charged with knowingly possessing more than $1,700 in counterfeit United States currency, entered its second day today with the possibility of the case going to the jury this afternoon.

Crown prosecutor George Hill gave rise to this possibility Monday when he said he expects to complete his case against Mrs. Harry Bruyere, wife of a former member of the British Parliament, today "in about an hour."

The 41-year-old woman's first trial ended last Nov. 30 with a hung jury and the second trial was ordered. She was arrested Sept. 20 in a midtown furrier's and has been free on $5,000 bail.

Mrs. Bruyere is the former Baroness Hunyor of Hungary and the wife of Cmdr. Harry Bruyere, member of the British House of Commons for East Hull.

FURRIER CALLS RCMP

Frank Beebe, the furrier who said he called RCMP while he and Mrs. Bruyere were negotiating a $1,100 deal for two fur coats, was among seven crown witnesses who testified Monday.

He said he offered Mrs. Bruyere two fur coats for $1,225 but she held out till the RCMP left. She later telephoned and asked whether American money would be accepted, to which he agreed. In the meantime, however, Mr. Beebe'r telephoned the RCMP.

When Mrs. Bruyere arrived the second time the furrier said he wanted Canadian money. The RCMP arrested her as she started to leave the store.

Cpl. Maurice Nadeau, who had examined the money in Mrs. Pudney's bag, told the court she carried more than $1,700 in counterfeit U.S. funds, $744 in genuine U.S. money and a small amount of genuine Canadian currency. He also carried some $25,000 worth of jewelry in her bag, he said.

Rover Proves He's Smart Dog

HAGERSVILLE (CP) — Eight-year-old Doreen Davies thinks her dog, Rover, is the most about the smartest dog in Ontario.

Rover proved he's pretty smart Monday when he saved Doreen from a tough spot.

Doreen fell into a swamp on her way home from the store. She became mired in waist-deep muck and couldn't get out.

That's where Rover came in. Doreen wrote a note asking "help" on the newspaper she was carrying and gave it to Rover and told him to take it home, almost a mile away.

BRINGS SISTER

Rover brought the paper to Doreen's sister, Betty, 15. Betty said she thought it was a joke but when Rover kept barking and pulling at her skirt, she and her girl friend, Julia Higgins, 14, went back with him.

They found Doreen clinging to the branch of a tree, unable to pull herself out of the thick mud.

One of the girls went back for a rope and in a few minutes Doreen was out on firm ground.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Another storm more intense than Monday's and covering the entire country is lower Michigan is causing strong winds over the province, as well as rain in the south and snow and freezing rain in the north. Colder air sweeping in behind this storm will cross southern Ontario this afternoon. Winds will change to the southwest and west and for a few hours coolness will prevail with gusts as high as 50. Continued cool weather is expected Wednesday with scattered snowflurries.

NORTH RESIDENTS SAID PAYING THROUGH NOSE

Member Wants Check On Transportation Co.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons representation of Northwest Territories residents now is a crown-owned transportation company is forcing his constituents to pay through the nose, it was charged today.

M. A. Hardie (L — Mackenzie River) Monday urged a government check of the Northern Transportation, Co, which carries the bulk of water freight into the North.

He also asked for a review of passenger and freight rates by Canadian Pacific Airlines and said investigation of both companies would result in lower living costs in the Far North.

Mr. Hardie spoke during debate on a government bill reducing the scale of continued emergency assistance to gold mines in 1955 and 1956.

He said lower freight costs are necessary for development of the north's mining resources. The North did not want to be welfare-bound but it was entitled to a fair break.

The measure was given second reading—agreed in principle, it will reduce gold mining assistance payments by some $4,500,000 this year which has been $16,000,000 under a scaled-down payments formula.

Mr. Hardie, former manager for Associated Airways, a northern flying service, listed these prices in his hometown of Yellowknife: butter, 85 cents a pound; eggs, 90 cents a dozen: fresh milk, 55 cents a quart; fuel oil, 31 ½ cents a gallon.

All these high prices are due largely to transportation costs, he said.

The CPA economy flights between Edmonton and Yellowknife, passengers paid 12 cents a mile while the same company charged 25½ cents a mile on flights between Vancouver and Hawaii. Freight charges were as much out of line.

Storm Causes Heavy Damage In Kent County

CHATHAM (CP) — A storm swept over Kent county today, leaving wide destruction in its wake.

Reaching 65 miles an hour, it disrupted communication services, ripped down buildings and cut off power supplies.

Waves from Lake St. Clair pounded the village of Merlin Bay, making evacuation of some residences necessary.

Cottages on a five-mile stretch of Lake Erie were swamped by 20-foot-high waves. At Erie Beach waves pounded the government dock while six fishing boats headed for harbor.

At Erie Beach, hundreds of cottages were reported under water.

It was the worst wind storm so far this year in the area.

In the city tree limbs, hydro lines, television aerials and a garage were blown down as the gale hit the winds. An estimated 2,000 telephones were put out of service.

Ontario to Pay $7,250,000 To Municipalities

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost announced today the Ontario government will pay unconditional grants of $7,250,000 to municipalities for education and unemployment relief.

The premier said in a special press conference $2,750,000 will go for welfare relief and special work projects. He said the municipalities in their own wisdom may decide to spend the entire sum on welfare. He said no matching grants by municipalities will be required.

Another $3,500,000 will go at the rate of $4 a child based on the number of children attending primary and secondary schools during the current school year.

Both payments will be called in the House as supplementary estimates, the premier said.

"As it is proposed to pay these grants in two parts, municipalities and school boards will be notified immediately that they should be given take consideration in arriving at their municipal budgets and estimates for the year 1955," he said.

Snow in Michigan Is So Radioactive Physicist Warns Against Sitting in It

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — A physicist at Western Michigan College says radioactive fall-out from atomic bomb tests at Nevada has at times increased Kalamazoo's radiation count from 46 to as high as 800 a minute.

Dr. Raym Kruglak, associate professor of physics, said the increase represents "a danger signal to me."

Dr. Kruglak began his investigation of the Kalamazoo air March 7, at the time of an atomic test at Yucca Flat, Nev.

He reasoned that the first device was exploded he got a normal radiation count of 46 a minute. By 1 p. m. March 9 the average count had reached 67 and by the morning of March 10 it had reached 200.

Before investigating after the March 13 tests at Nevada disclosed "practically the same results," Dr. Kruglak said.

However, during the last experiment, Dr. Kruglak checked a pan of snow and found that 2½ days after the last the count of filtered down snow reached 860.

Asked if it was dangerous, Dr. Kruglak replied:

"I wouldn't go out and sit in that snow and I wouldn't boil it down and drink it."

He said, that a person would have to be exposed for a "considerable time to suffer any ill effects at this level."

U.S. NAVY HAS NEW USE FOR HELICOPTER

The U.S. navy has revealed that a new technique for sweeping enemy mine fields was made possible by the use of helicopters as "aerial tugs". This new development eliminates the danger from exposed mines to minesweeping vessels. The H-21 "Workhorse," shown above at Morton, Pa., will inflated flotation bags around the wheels to permit landing on the water. The helicopter can sweep the initial path through the water without endangering itself. This will enable the formation of minesweeping vessels following to sweep the remainder of the minefield with safety from moored mines. (Central Press Canadian).

Members of Congress Enjoy Atom-Cooked Food on Cruise

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Senator Albert Gore (Dem. Tenn.) was one of 12 members of the congressional committee on atomic energy who made an all-night cruise Sunday night aboard the Nautilus, the world's first atomic-powered submarine.

He describes his impressions in the following account written for The Associated Press.)

By SENATOR ALBERT GORE

WASHINGTON (AP)—How deep the Nautilus can dive is a secret. But there is no secret that I had nervous twinges as she plunged downward in excess of 300 feet.

How fast she will race through the dark, briny depths is also a secret. But it was the thrill of a lifetime to break all previous records in this respect.

The fright, which I frankly admit, and the exhilaration, which I shall not forget, were only aspects of an enlightening, enjoyable, and inspiring experience.

The food that we ate was cooked by atomic power. The water that we drank was distilled from ocean water by atomic energy. The submarine was held only driven but lighted, heated, and air-conditioned by atomic energy. In fact, all power for all purposes was exclusively nuclear in origin.

The first few minutes I felt very calm and uneventful. It must necessarily be so until we reached really deep water.

The committee broke up into parties of two or three to inspect the vessel. Each of us carefully placed upon the lapel of his coat the instruments to test radioactivity that had been given us upon boarding the Nautilus.

The atomic reactor was, of course, the centre of interest. We were more inclee from lethal, deathly radioactivity. Yet we could harmlessly place our hands upon the still, warm, but quiet, source of enormous power.

After about 2½ hours of thorough and detailed inspection the ranking naval officers took their turns in providing over three sittings at the dinner table, where we were served delicious atomically cooked turkey.

After dinner had been concluded the real shakedown manoeuvres of the Natulius began. Now that his guests had become thoroughly conditioned for it, as he thought, the captain ordered the Nautilus put through her paces.

The speedometred needle moved rapidly clockwise, receding only as the Nautilus took sharp banks and turns. Straight ahead again through the deep, and again the speedometer moved clockwise until we were told that we were racing under water at a record-breaking speed.

Then up again; then down again; up again; down again. As for the members of Congress, we were tensely watching the depth gauge and one eye and the speedometer with the other.

After we had been submerged for hours I asked Admiral Hyman Rickover how many days the Nautilus could proceed under water at full speed.

"Indefinitely," he answered adding enough to go the distance around the world and the answer would still be "indefinite."

Hint Churchill Is Resigning At Insistence of His Cabinet

LONDON (CP) —The Manchester Guardian suggests that Prime Minister Churchill may be planning to satisfy his cabinet.

"It is said on the Tory side," the independent Liberal paper reports, "that Sir Winston Churchill has been under strong pressure from his colleagues in the cabinet, and from party headquarters, to resign the office of prime minister.

"He is believed to have been told by his cabinet colleagues that they could not agree to continue indefinitely working at the lessening speed which Sir Winston's health now imposes.

This is the first suggestion that Sir Winston's decision to resign, now virtually accepted as fact by most British newspapers, has been anything but his own.

Although the paper does not elaborate on the suggestion that the 80 - year - old Churchill has slowed down the cabinet, it has been known for some time that the prime minister has his good and bad days.

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today referred to newspaper reports suggesting he may soon retire as "chatter in the press."

Asked in the House of Commons about reports on his retirement, the 80-year-old statesman replied:

"Really, you mustn't be led away by all the chatter in the press."

A Labor member had asked Churchill whether he would appoint a cabinet minister to deal with disarmament questions.

Churchill replied in the negative.

He was then asked whether he would have many further opportunities to appoint any cabinet ministers and was asked about press reports indicating he may soon retire.

It was then he made the remark about "chatter in the press."

RED SATELLITES AGREE TO UNIFY ARMY COMMANDS

Moscow Radio Reports Talks on Security Pact

LONDON (AP)—Russia has repeated her threat to form a unified Communist military command for Eastern Europe if West German rearmament is ratified.

In a Moscow radio broadcast, the Soviet foreign ministry announced Monday night that the Russians and their seven East European allies have held new talks in connection with their Doc. pledged to draw up their own mutual security treaty if the West approves the Paris agreements.

"In the course of these consultations," the announcement said, "the governments held views revealed itself . . . concerning the principles of such a treaty and the organization of the united command of the states."

American officials in Washington view the new Soviet announcement as a further propaganda effort to isolate the French opposition to West German rearmament. The French National Assembly has approved the arms treaties but the upper house, the Council of the Republic, takes up them on Wednesday.)

COMPROMISE OFFERED

The Russian announcement said the latest talks were attended by representatives of the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Albania and Communist China. The Peiping government "expressed full readiness" with the measures outlined in the announcement added.

It also offered the promise of a change in Soviet plans if the Paris agreements are ratified. Then the Communist alliance "will be created in the event of ratification of the Paris agreements."

The Communist countries held their December parley after the Western powers snubbed a Soviet proposal to negotiate an all-European security system to replace the north Atlantic alliance and the projected Western European Union.

FAIL MENTAL TEST

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) The United States Army today announced it has ousted 5,367 soldiers home from Europe for discharge because they scored "below standard" on mental and aptitude tests. Heavy Rains, High Winds Help To Keep Spring Out of Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Strong winds continued to keep spring out of Ontario.

A storm more intense than Monday's caused winds, rain and damage to many parts of Ontario, weather officials said.

In Chatham winds knocked down hydro lines in the downtown section, cutting off power in the whole business section.

At Leamington Lake St. Clair crews, bulldozers were used Monday to repair breaches in sand dikes, pounded by heavy waves. Weather men said today a shift of winds to the northwest, would blow the snowmobiles lake waters from the shores and case a flood threat.

Toronto Island homes were damaged Monday after waves smashed across breakwaters and submerged sections of residential areas.

Weather men said there will be no change in conditions in the next few hours. In all sections of Ontario the outlook is cool with scattered snowflurries.

Transport Hits Mountain Side Near Honolulu

Low Overcast, Heavy Rain Probable Causes of Crash

HONOLULU (AP) — A U. S. navy transport plane with 66 aboard crashed into a Hawaii mountain early today and the navy announced there were no survivors.

At the time of the crash there was a low overcast and it was raining heavily.

A police officer five miles away heard the crash and described it "one big explosion like a thunderclap." He said "the whole sky was red" for an hour and a half.

The plane carried 57 passengers and nine crew members.

It crashed inside the Lualualei naval ammunition depot on the west coast of Oahu island and 29 miles from Honolulu.

Navy correspondent Roy Essoyan said from the naval depot that the plane crashed about halfway up the side of the mountain.

Essoyan said the wreckage still was glowing about three hours after the crash, which occurred at 2 a. m. (7 a. m. EST).

RADIO TRANSMITTER

The plane carried 57 passengers and a crew of nine, the navy reported.

The big transport took off from Hickam field here late Monday and was four hours and 26 minutes eastbound when it turned back, the navy said.

The navy in San Francisco said the plane turned back on a flight to the mainland because of radio trouble.

The transport, a four-engine RD-6, was loaded to its full capacity. All aboard were military personnel and dependents except for two civilians.

It was headed for Travis air force base, 50 miles northeast of San Francisco.

CAME OVER LOW

William Jozet, a resident of the area, said he heard the plane pass over his house "too low for comfort." Then came the crash.

A navy spokesman said the aircraft "is burning and rescue teams are at the scene. We have had no word of survivors. Ambulances are as close to the scene as they can get."

Cmdr. J. Smith of the Hawaiian Sea Frontier said the plane was an RD-6 from the Moffett naval air station near San Jose, Calif. He said it hit a ridge line about 2,000 feet southeast of the main gate of the Lualualei naval ammunition depot, about 40 miles from Honolulu.

Smith said he did not know whether there were any women or children aboard.

School Board Urges Increased Facilities to Train Teachers, Financial Aid to Trainees

Because the Ontario Provincial Government has failed to adopt a program aimed at increasing the teacher supply, school boards in the Province are forced to outbid each other to secure teachers for their schools.

This is the feeling of the Belleville Public School Board which Monday night passed a resolution urging increased facilities for the training of teachers and calling for financial assistance to be given trainees attending teachers' college either through scholarships or direct payments by the government.

The resolution will be placed before the next zone meeting of the Urban and Rural Trustees Association at Kingston with hopes it will be passed on to the Minister of Education.

ASCERT HIGHER SALARIES

The discussion by board members regarding the short supply of teachers, was the result of the resignations of 13 local teachers, who have notified the board they will be leaving Belleville at the end of the school term in June. Most of the teachers tendering their resignations have applied for positions with schools in the Toronto area at considerably higher salaries.

School Board chairman Mac Smith noted that the resignations were not the result of dissatisfaction with salaries in Belleville, but because they could get more money elsewhere.

Board members failed to agree with each other in order to secure teachers and the reason was there were not enough teachers to go around. More teachers colleges were needed. It was pointed out that a high school student at Belleville planning to become a teacher was forced to go to Peterborough at considerable expense.

SHOULD BE ASSISTED CLAIM

"There should be some assistance of some kind for young people attending teachers' college," suggested Dr. J. Russell Scott, "at present they receive no assistance at all."

Mr. Smith said the Ontario government was proud of the fact that it was spending $66 millions on education, but failure to engage new teachers was forcing school boards to outbid each other and raise salaries in order to do so.

He suggested that the zone trustee association should approach the Minister of Education urging a program to increase the supply of teachers.

The recommendation from Dr. Scott calling for increased facilities for the training of teachers and for encouragement to be given through scholarships or by direct payments was carried unanimously.

The teachers' salary set-up in Belleville was thoroughly discussed by board members both from the standpoint of attracting experienced teachers to the city and holding present teachers.

Certain fringe benefit requests from teachers asking increased accumulative sick leave and partial payment of Blue Cross and Physicians' Services Incorporated fees, were also discussed by the board.

TO FORM BASIS

The outcome of the discussions and facts brought out in negotiations with the local teachers' organization. A special committee of the board consisting of Mac Smith, chairmen of the finance and management committees, and Public School superintendent L. A. Kells was appointed to meet with the teachers' association committee but without power to act.

Teachers' letters, one of whose resignations have been accepted by the board are Gordon R. Bleasdell, Mrs. Mary Barker Allen, Kells, Bruce H. Gorrie, Henry A. Lloyd, Fred Dier, James Campbell, Miss Marion Parker Allen, Marilyn Barber, Lamoine Poste and Jack Parliament.

APPROVE 8 APPLICATIONS

Part of the gap left by the teachers who will leave in June that is filled with 8 staff appointments by the application of eight new teachers. Teachers' applications were approved by the board were Meribeth Bristol, Grace Blue, Gale Dunlop, Nellie Sonn, Barbara Bristol, Nellie Sprague, Erma Burris and Dorothy McCoy.

No action was taken by the board on request from school custodians for maximum salaries to be increased from $2,500 to $3,- 000. However, the board has engranted three weeks' holidays instead of the present two weeks after ten years' service with the board.

Airman Injured As Cars Collide

One man was knocked temporarily unconscious and damage amounting to approximately $1,- 000 resulted in a collision on the rear-end collision on No. 2 Highway west of Belleville.

Victor Zachus, 20 5th Street, Belleville, pulled to the side of the highway to pick up a pedestrian. A car following immediately behind failed to stop in part but the second car behind, driven by Wilfred Caisle, 62, at 10 Donald St., failed to turn out and crashed into the rear of the Zachus vehicle.

A passenger in the Zachus car, LAC John Wilson, was knocked out by the impact but recovered and went on to work after X-ray examination at Provincial Police Constable Robertson, of Belleville, investigated.

Two Injured Near Kaladar

Two men were injured and brought to Belleville General Hospital Monday evening after their car went out of control near Kaladar and went into the ditch.

James Parkhill, 28, of Tweed, suffered scalp lacerations and shock from loss of blood, while Hans Frauenrich, 31, of Buckingham, Que., suffered lacerations to the face.

Driving from Buckinham to Toronto in Frauzkewich's car when the car went out of control on the snow-covered pavement near Kaladar.

The two men were brought to hospital by Nesbitt's Ambulance of Peterborough, which happened to be passing just after the accident. The men were attended by Dr. J. B. McSherry, of Belleville.

'Stradivarius' Magic Word That Won't Make You Rich

(By EUGENE LANG)

In the same way that Nature produces its cyclic phenomena, such as the scourge of the grasshopper and the tent caterpillar overrunning the land every so many years, so man has copied this intermittent chronological upheaval by his own method of economical, physical and cultural magic finds every so often. These so-called "finds" take on the appearance every so often of such diverse ideas as the guaranteed get-rich-quick chain letter, the reappearance of the 1913 Buffalo nickel with no ears attached to the animal that graces said coin, the adventurer who claims he has found the lost city of Kara-kum-bum in the Sands of undiscovered wealth, and the owner of a violin that he is positive can only be a genuine Stradivarius. It is on this latter phenomenum that I would like to expound for a few lines.

Having served in this paper and numerous other offices as an executive throughout the district in the past 30 years, I am no stranger to the owner to the buyer on condition that the instrument must first be thoroughly examined and checked by experts before the purchase is fully made and the agreement upon. Even then it is often the case that a violin will have to be left with a prospective buyer for a seldeable time before it may be possible to find anyone interested in purchasing such an article. Time has not been played upon for any length of time.

The reason for this" Mr. Taylor went on to say"is that a strange similarity about most of the violins are found to be identical. Other details are Trenton Town, Northern Electric C.N.R.A. Radio Sets Shoe, Stewart Warner and Enos David. Letters will be sent out to all the latter for further information.

Any one concluded, "if Bill & Sons Bond Street, London, England, have a violin for sale bearing their label and who is willing to submit to investigators today. If this firm could positively certify it to be a genuine Strad then all arrangements are settled and another one of the fabulous Tremonisse maker's creations has come into its own again from obscurity. But," Mr. Taylor concluded, "if Bill & Sons do not vouch for its authenticity, further recourse to other experts is practically worthless."

OWNS TWO COPIES

Mr. Taylor showed the writer two violins that he owns that are copies of "Strads" but he knows that they are only imitations, as are so many thousands of others. To anyone who owns a violin with the label that I mentioned earlier I say (without trying to shatter your hopes of ever finding the real thing) a great work of the violin maker's art) that the chances are very small that you actually own an original Stradivarius violin.

Fraudulent as these sentences may seem to you, these are the irrefutable facts as they stand amongst the violin experts and dealers. Don't build yourself up to a great letdown, but if violins are that if you do own an original "Strad" you could command a price as high as $50,000, which is the reputed price of the most famous violin of the "Strads."

One final bit of optimism (for the consolation of those who do have a viola or 'cello with the Stradivarius label inside. If so, throw out your violins, because the violas and 'cellos of Stradivarius are worth twice as much as the violins, bringing an average of $75,000 each, some going as high as $100,000—for an old worm-eaten old fiddle. How about looking in your old trunk in the attic tomorrow or is the top of the woodshed—you can never tell when a fortune finding may be a "Strad"—or it may not.

Strong Delegation Will Attend OASA Annual

The Belleville and District Softball Association last night named a strong, three-man delegation to attend the annual Ontario Amateur Softball Association convention in Peterborough over the Easter week-end.

The three voting representatives attending are Cy Barriage, president of the local association, Joe Agnew, vice-president, and Mac "Red" Carson, Lloyd "Red" Doran and Fire Chief Gerald Vance were appointed as alternates. Don Lee, O.A.S.A. convener for this district pointed out that since only Belleville and Peterborough represented Eastern Ontario it was necessary to send as strong a delegation as possible to fight for the association's rights.

Last night's general meeting saw only nine persons in attendance, probably because of the bad weather which definitely prevented the Frankford team from sending representatives. The Belleville Bobcats and Trenton RCAF were the only clubs without members present. Because of this it was decided to hold another meeting on Sunday, March 27th at the Moira Street Fire Hall beginning at 2.00 p.m. and President Barriage urges all clubs in the district affiliate with the league to have someone there to voice their opinions.

Although no definite ruling are in as yet, the Frankford, Point Anne and the Trenton RCAF are expected to participate in the league. Other possible entries are Trenton Town, Northern Electric, C.N.R.A., Radio Bata Shoe, Stewart Warner and Enos David. Letters will be sent out to all the latter for further information.

Any one concluded, "if Bill & Sons Bond Street, London, England, have a violin for sale bearing their label and who is willing to submit to investigators today. Douglas Elliott Dies Suddenly In Toronto

A former well-known resident of this city for many years, William Douglas (Doug) Elliott was found dead in big Avenue Road apartment in Toronto on Monday. He apparently suffered a heart attack during the night.

Doug as he was familiarly known to a legion of friends in this community was raised and educated in this city. His friendly nature and kind personality made him many friends, who will sincerely regret his sudden death.

The late Mr. Elliott was born in Bradford, Ontario, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott. He came to this city at an early age and resided here many years before he went to Hamilton and later made Toronto his home. For some years he was interested in the car business but of late years had been a real estate saleman in Toronto. During the war he served with the Army Service Corps in Canada.

He was a member of the Anglican church and fraternally was a member of a Hamilton Masonic lodge. Surviving are three sisters, Miss Nora Elliott of Toronto; Mrs. Timothy (Martha) Eaton of Toronto; Mrs. Walter (Kathleen) Reeves of Clarkson, and two brothers, Edward (Eddie) Elliott of Toronto, and Reginald Elliott of Vancouver, B.C.

The funeral will be held in Toronto with interment in the family plot at Belleville cemetery on Wednesday.

Fishermen Battle Carp Threat Many Large Specimens Caught

(By GEORGE H. CARVER)

Commercial fishermen of the Bay of Quinte are fighting a three-way battle.

They are attempting to lower the carp population; battling a declining market, and endeavoring to keep in the good graces of sportsmen fishermen.

While catches have been good since the Department of Lands and Forests inaugurated a "harvesting project" four years ago under a special licence, the big fish are still in predominance.

A short line ago commercial fishermen hauled in three motorsters weighing in the vicinity of 114 pounds each, while others tipped the scales at 50 pounds. Carp weighing between 20 and 30 pounds are common. The big fellows were caught near the Murray Canal, according to conservation officer Fred MacDonald of Point Anne.

Fishermen state, it is stated, range around nine cents the pound with American markets taking the bulk of the fish. Not a few are sold in Montreal.

AUTOMATED NETS

The fish were caught in a legal gillnet of 8½-inch mesh. The Department of Lands has use of 2,000 yards of 8½-inch mesh in open water and 1,500 yards through the ice. The nets must be lifted daily and only carp may be taken. Local conservation officers keep a close tab on carp captured and those marketed.

In fact one considerable objection to the use of gillnets by other types of fishermen, it has been decided the nets must be lifted by June 15th until September 15th.

In an interview with Mr. R. G. Sheppard, inspector of Fish and Wildlife, Tweed district, Ontario Lands and Forests Department, this reporter learned that carp were introduced in Lake Ontario as far back as 1900.

The big, large-scaled fish apparently liked the new environment because its numbers increased rapidly, spreading to the St. Lawrence, and the Rideau and Trent Rivers. Thus far they have spread only the first three levels of the Rideau, and only in recent years.

And do not get the idea carp are predators. To the contrary, they are vegetarians. And they believe in extensive propagation of their species. A 40-50-pound carp will deposit at spawning time between two and three million eggs, but, because they are not native, their reproduction period clashes with that of more desirable fish, such as the large-mouth black bass. Both nest in the same area, usually in shallow bays in the upper reaches of warm streams.

While a carp "steak" in no wise resembles a succulent pork chop, the fish and liver Hog have something in common. Both "root" for a living.

FOOD FOR FOOD

The carp secures its food by rooting the bottom deeply enough to disturb the roots and bulbs of valuable aquatic plants. Spawning grounds are approached by large schools of the fish and within a few minutes the water resembles a hog-wallow. This condition is permanent during the occupancy, which may be for two weeks or a month depending on temperatures.

Mr. Sheppard said that with the advent of carp in the Bay of Quinte, many fine water plants began to disappear. This is very evident in respect to wild rice. While he intimated it might be a coincidence, there is also a decrease in large-mouth bass and nesting waterfowl.

"For over 50 years," Mr. Sheppard said, "carp increased almost without molestation." This was partly due to uncertain markets but more to inefficient fishing gear.

One outstanding characteristic of the carp is exceptional timidity. But they are powerful swimmers and being heavily armored with large, smooth scales, present a deflecting surface to any snarling device.

It was soon discovered they could break free of ordinary twine. The only available trifles for this purpose were linen and cotton, but when heavier cord was used, the wily carp refused to approach the nets.

CONSERVATION NETS

The fish is quite impervious to any kind of trap nets, as they will not leave. When they strike a leader they shout-face immediately, but efficient capture is now possible by the use of gillnets constructed of suitable nylon twine.

So after many years of study and work, the conservationists have been acquainted with an effective device to reduce the carp population.

"Although a good harvest of these fish has been taken from the lake and bay during the past four years," Mr. Sheppard said, "they still predominate. It is to be hoped that declining markets will not interfere with the present activities of the commercial fishermen concerned."

Red Cross Drive For $3,000 Now Over Top

TRENTON. (Special) — Trenton's Red Cross campaign today went over the top of its objective, according to campaign treasurer A. J. Boorne.

The drive, which opened only last week with an objective set at $3,000, now has netted $3,-010 and a number of canvassers have yet to report. Last year's campaign gathered $3,011 and it now appears this amount will be well exceeded by this year's drive.

Lee Grills, general campaign chairman for Hastings County, said in Belleville today: "We are delighted because, in the past, while Trenton has done very well, Belleville has usually gone over the top earlier than Trenton. This time the process has been reversed."

"As far as Belleville is concerned we are up to $11,000 and we still have some individuals and organizations to hear from," he added.

Subway Robbery

TORONTO (CP)—Two men, one armed, pulled off the first robbery in Toronto's new subway early today. They got only $4.80 in silver.

George Percy, an employee of the Toronto transit commission, said the two men held him up as he was preparing to close his ticket wicket for the night. The men tried to rob a pedestrian as they left the station but dropped the idea in making a hasty escape.

Bodies of Three Children Found Under Cliff

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — The bodies of three children were found under an overhanging cliff on Valdes Island near here Monday but RCMP said there was no indication of foul play.

The discovery was made by two boys on a trapping expedition on the Gulf of Georgia island six miles south of here.

Under a six-foot square of old canvas the boys found one mummified body intact and the skulls and bones of another two.

"They could be Indian relics," said RCMP constable Gordon Graham, who is investigating.

Constable Graham took the bodies to his detachment headquarters. He said the bodies had been lying under the cliff for "some time — definitely more than a month and maybe a few years."

He said the intact body appeared to be that of a child about 10 years old, while the bones and skulls appeared to be those of children several more years. Police said they had no unsolved report of missing children in the area.

Leave to Appeal

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Appeal Court has granted Joe Glen Lotharp, 23, of Detroit, leave to appeal a 15-year sentence for the robbery last year of district service station operator Bruce Beatty, it was learned Monday.

Lotharp and Jerry Simmons, 48, of Syracuse, N.Y., were convicted last fall of murder in the axe-slaying of Beatty at nearby Renton Feb. 2, 1954. Beatty's wife was also fatally beaten.

In January, the Appeal Court quashed the conviction against Lotharp. He was retried.

Simmons was hanged March 2.

Egypt Takes Over British Army Base

SHALUFA, Egypt (Reuters) — The Egyptian flag was hoisted for the first time over a British barracks here today.

Military attaches of foreign embassies watched the ceremony as Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, the Egyptian premier, hoisted the flag. It rose from a base bearing the inscription: "This camp was handed over to Egyptian forces on this day."

In a similar ceremony Monday the Egyptian flag was hoisted above Deversoir airfield near Ismailia. The Egyptian take-over follow Britain's agreement to evacuate the Suez canal zone.

RECOGNITION OF A FACT

Expulsion of Aneurin Bevan from the British Labor Party's parliamentary association is being interpreted as splitting the party and making it certain that it will be defeated in the next general election.

It is doubtful whether this "split" in the party is new, whether the recent development is anything more than a final reluctant admission of a situation long existing but studiously ignored.

It is doubtful whether a defeat at the polls for a united Labor Party would be worse for the party than a victory bought at the price of continued disunity.

The Montreal Gazette comments on the possibility that Bevan may emerge as the leader of a party of "real Socialists." One may be tempted for regarding this as more of a certainty than a mere possibility.

Such a division in the ranks of British Labor will not be new. For years there were two Labor parties represented in the House of Commons, the official Labor Party and the Independent Labor Party. The differences in policy between these two separate parties were less than the differences which separate the Bevanites and the followers of Attlee.

Indeed from its left wing, the official Labor Party is almost certain to drift to the right. A merger with the left wing remnants of the British Liberals would appear likely.

Bevan's main hope would appear to be that such a merger occurs and that it pulls the Labor Party even further to the right, leaving his hold on left wing sentiment. The very fact that the Communists are a negligible political force in Britain provides a left-wing Socialist party with a greater opportunity than that which similar parties enjoy in continental countries.

At the same time it would be erroneous to suppose that Bevan can expect to win for any new party as many supporters amongst the Labor party members of parliament as he gained in the vote on his expulsion. Many for those who voted for him did so not because they prefer his policies to those advocated by Attlee but because they wished party peace, at almost any price.

The decision to expel Bevan was in the best interests of the country and of the Labor Party. Paradoxically enough, it may be the best thing for Bevan. It is evident that it was also in the best interests of Bevan. The fiery Welshman is a rebel. The Labor Party is no longer, if it ever was, a party of revolt. Whether he knows it or not, Bevan would appear to be one of those men for whom the battle is more important than the victory. He is not likely to acquire a lease on No. 10 Downing Street through the leadership of a new Labor Party. But he will have a lot of fun trying—much more fun than he would have, merely battling his leaders in the official Labor Party.

EXPLANATION IS OWED

A bill to increase the membership of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario from three to six has been introduced into the Ontario Legislature.

Before the bill is approved, the Ontario Government owes the people of the province a detailed explanation of why such a change is deemed desirable.

The Commission of Ontario Hydro is an enviable one. Vision, enterprise and energy have been shown in the operation of a publicly-owned business. The record may not be unique, but certainly in this it is unusual.

There will be many who will ascribe a major share of the credit not merely to the succession of able men who have served on the Hydro Electric Power Commission but to the fact that the Commission has had a large enough to ham-string a forceful leader. Such a man could not be overcome by sheer weight of numbers.

It may well be that circumstances have made it desirable that the size of the Commission should be increased. Before such an increase is authorized, however, the Government owes it to the people, the owners of Hydro, to explain just what these changed circumstances are.

TREE-LINE PUZZLE?

What has Quebec got that Ontario has not got?

The answer is trees.

That statement has to be qualified, of course. Both these provinces have trees in abundance. But a map included in the Bank of Montreal's business review for February shows that the northern limit for trees lies a few miles inland from Hudson Bay in the most northerly section of Ontario, while in Quebec the northerly limit is some 300 miles nearer the pole. Why?

And if that puzzles you why is it that trees will grow in the Yukon territory a thousand miles further north than that little strip of Ontario which is treeless? Why is it that the tree line, which touches Coppermine on the Arctic Ocean in the District of MacKenzie, winds its way in a generally south-easterly direction for over a thousand miles until it touches the mainland again at Churchill in Manitoba? If the tree line continued on this course, instead of taking a swing around the coast of Hudson Bay and crossing Quebec in a north-easterly direction, it would reach the Atlantic seaboard somewhere around Boston. Good thing it changed direction left!

BOYS' WEEK

You may wonder now and then,
When the boys have grown to men
What they'll do and what they'll be.
But some twenty years away
One may come to you and say:
"I am certain that you don't remember,
You will say almost in shame:
"No, I can't recall your name.
I am sorry. Tell me what it is you do?"

And the stranger may reply:
"Well, a doctor now I am I
And I owe a debt of gratitude to you.

"I am what I am today
Just because you passed my way
And the friendship that I needed, you supplied.
I was just a boy back then,
But I've not forgotten when
I knew that you were standing at my side."

Marbles Are Uncontrolled

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

If memory serves, small boys get down on their stomachs, cat's eye and mark circles or holes on the ground and get down on their knees aiming their marbles, when the sun warms up and the earth heats out that they is not enough wind to fly kites. That is marble time, and it is just about here.

Therefore, we say a little mystified by the objections of George Hamilton, secretary of the Marbles Board of Control in London, to Lady Norah Docker's marble-playing television. Says Hon. Mr. Burbridge was appalled by the use of large marbles, aghast at the use of a three-foot circle instead of one six feet in diameter, and horrified at Lady Docker's giggles. Uncontrolled, thought the head of the Board of Control.

It will be news to many a small boy that this game has been so standardized as to limit the size of the marbles, the diameter of the ring and the character of the giggles, if not the sex of the players. Certainly there are many rules for marbles, but no King James version. Is there reason in any group of children is its own board of control. Dibs on that.

Destiny Ends Our Shapes

(Minneapolis Tribune)

Weary of reflecting on the destiny that shapes our ends, an acquaintance in his 40s has of late been considering the destiny that ends our shapes.

In early youth, he remembers, he exercised vigorously as a matter of course, as he still could on every occasion, yet remained lean and fit. Then, after a period when, if his midriff tended to bulge a trifle, he would trim it with a few extra sets of exercises.

Our friend became aware, in his late 30s that his waist-line weight was easier than taking it off. Nevertheless, his desire to keep fit—all in reality, he says, like—and his pleasure in exercise kept pace with his appetite.

Now our friend is edging toward 45. He still enjoys eating. His desire to keep fit is, so he says, as strong as ever. But his zest for vigorous outdoor activity seems to have dwindled. More time than formerly is given to morose contemplation of his age (side, or abdominal, view) and his waistline. And the image grows space, A sad tale, indeed-him, believe!

Traffic accident statistics for 1954 are said by officials to be "staggering." A good many of those involved were staggering even before they became statistics.

Echoes of Yalta

(New York Times)

Publication of the Yalta conference papers is reverberating around the world. It is producing repercussions which on first impact manifest themselves in dismay in some quarters and controversy in others. But in the long run it should have a wholesome and constructive effect on free world politics.

The dismay, especially pronounced in Britain, is based largely on any new and startling revelations of the major results of the conference, all of which had been known before. Rather it is based on the disclosure of some of the more intimate details of the proceedings, which in the light of the present world situation appear to reflect on some of the conferees, and also on the fear that publication may prejudice both final ratification of the Paris pacts and any future secret conferences, in particular the new Big Power meeting which Britain especially desires. Finally, it was to be expected that the publication would be exploited for purposes of party politics.

* * *

Against all this it must be emphasized again that the conference was held by men who did not and could not act in a vacuum. Like all men in office, they were in the grip of fast-moving political and military developments and a psychological situation dominated by war passions, which dictated the decisions and produced both unwise deeds and unwise words — some of the latter meant as jests which look quite different in stark print. Certainly both the basic statements were dominated by two paramount considerations which explain, if they do not always excuse, what happened.

The first consideration was that there could be no compromise with the Hitlerite evil—nothing had to be wiped from the face of the earth, and that then there remained only the challenge of war against Japan to a successful conclusion. The second was the prevailing conviction that the full co-operation of Soviet Russia was essential to the total completion of these two tasks without excessive sacrifices, and to the creation of an enduring peace. This enabled Stalin to exact an exorbitant advance payment for his promises.

Nice Nellys Rare in Rome

(Edmonton Journal)

The Canadian House of Commons has often been criticized for a certain "nicenellyism" in its debates. Over the years, so many rules and conventions have grown up as to what is and is not parliamentary language, that blunt and robust criticism of opponents has become almost impossible. It has long been forbidden, and quite properly, to call the member for Snodgrass North a liar, but a number of phrases used in the British Parliament—"the honorable gentleman has been guilty of a terminological inexactitude" — would probably be held there to be unparliamentary. But most that could be said would be that the member's speech was not entirely accurate, or was misleading. This excessive gentility accounts for a good deal of the startling drabness in the debates at Ottawa.

A startling contrast is provided by the Italian Parliament. There may be some rules of order in Rome, but they have never been allowed to cramp the traditional virility of the debates. In the typical exchange in the Senate the other day, a Communist senator clashed with Field Marshal Giovanni Messe, who may be remembered as the last commander of the Italian army which was forced to surrender in Tunisia in 1943. The Communist accused Messe, of being an "assassin" of Italian soldiers and of running it.

Maximumly Minimized

(Montreal Star)

"I hate definitions," said one of Disraeli's characters in Tancred. That was a century ago. Since then the art of putting things into an intercontinental cognito has advanced tremendously. Spread, rather, not advanced. Definition has become the fertile field of the buzzword, the happy hunting ground for gobbledygook on a helpless public. One such definition came our way the other day that makes a mouthful much too big to swallow.

To the Federal government's report on the state of transportation and communications officer is attributed this definition of civil defence: "Civil defence is planning which, in the occurrence of disaster created either by man or by nature, will minimize the harm and prevent will continue to function, the loss of life will be maximumly minimized."

We stop there. "Maximumly minimized" is the horror of all bombs seems mild by comparison.

away from the battlefield. The field marshal countered by describing the Communist as a "gentleman and soldier."

At this point, mere words become indecent, and the Senate session broke up in a general fist fight.

Canada's way may be drab in comparison, but most of us prefer it.

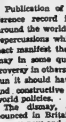
TRAINING IN RELIGION

We have made mention of a number of times regarding the necessity of training children in religion.

Where can this best be done? The church and Sunday-school have a definite responsibility, but the primary responsibility rests in the home. We long for the days when the weekday schools of religion can everywhere be established. We need such schools desperately to overcome the present unbalance caused by secular education. But, of course, the greatest school by far is the home. We encounter there the teachers who influence us the most—parents, brothers and sisters, other members of the household.

How can a child be trained in religion in the home? Ask your pastor and he will no doubt have suggestions and will refer you to denominational agencies which deal with this matter. One of the best ways would seem to be to read to the child just before bedtime. A number of passages of Scripture understood by the childs mind—and most Bible narratives are thus easily understood—should be read to the child and explained. Also the editorials of Christian papers.



Probably the greatest thing a parent can do for a child is to teach him several hundred of the most beautiful verses in the Bible.

Perhaps I should have said one should or one may as well deduct two years for every tooth lost. Of course it isn't a certainty. Actually some persons continue breathing for months or years after they have lost most or all of their teeth, and, to my embarrassment, there was the lady who won the marathon race up Pike's Peak without wearing his plates.

At the end of No. 1 Little Lesson in the Ways of Health I say:

For every tooth lost and not immediately replaced by a functionally satisfactory denture, one must deduct two years from one's life expectancy.

Perhaps I should have said one should or one may as well deduct two years for every tooth lost. Of course it isn't a certainty. Actually some persons continue breathing for months or years after they have lost most or all of their teeth, and, to my embarrassment, there was the lady who won the marathon race up Pike's Peak without wearing his plates.

At the end of No. 1 Little Lesson in the Ways of Health I say:

I consider every functional efficient tooth, real or artificial, worth one hundred thousand cents.

The news item did not indicate whether the court awarded $3,600 per tooth per se or, say, just $1,-000 per tooth and the balance for construction, maintenance and repair of whatever dentures may be required in the next fifty years.

Let no casual reader infer that these comments are facetious. In my opinion the best assurance of health, good digestion, good looks, vite and longevity on one inherit or buy is a full complement of functionally efficient teeth. And so I contend that, regardless of what some physician arbitrarily "orders" or misguided patient requests, a good dentist will not extract a tooth if there is a reasonable chance of saving it by proper treatment.

The latest pamphlet on Yankee Stomach which deals with heartburn, fungoy pain, bloating by gas, hyperacidity etc., I say:

"I do not contend that if all your teeth are in a functional condition you will be immune to stomach trouble. I do believe that people who keep all their teeth working efficiently rarely suffer Yankee Stomach.

Good digestion begins in the mouth, where the ptyalin principle in the saliva converts starch into sugar (maltose and dextrose) — provided the food is properly masticated, and of course proper mastication requires good teeth.

THE GLORY OF CONTEST

I have just finished reading the late Grantland Rice book "The Tumult and the Shouting." It is fascinating reading, written by a reporter who had a love for all sports, and who knew intimately practically every great performer during the past fifty years.

Anyone interested in any sport will find the reading of this book a grand nostalgic experience. Many of the most interesting human stories of prominent sportsmen and women that have ever appeared in print under one cover!

Why is it that this book has such a remarkable sale? I understand it now stands high among best sellers—and this is not fiction! For years I read the column by Grantland Rice and was especially attracted to the poems that he habitually wrote for this column. He was a poet at heart and was beloved by all who knew him.

But why such a remarkable sale for this book? Not alone because it is well written, and authoritative, but because human nature contests, and people like contests and like to read about contests, especially when written about them all in a wonderfully interesting manner. The entire book is one of fine entertainment and information that I can't even quote from it. It has to be read.

Rice covered all the major sports. He knew them and knew honestly about them all, neglecting none of them. I am now reading this book is understandable why it is that newspapers give up so much space to sports and to sports contests. We will never, as human beings, get over being interested in the winners!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The splashy season has arrived. No amount of pleading will prevail upon the careless motorist, the slacken speed when they are sloshing through the pools and puddles of down-town streets. Only the following story will at least indicate the motoring public's sins. In turn, the pedestrian, public, and occasionally gets its just desserts.

A fine, old gentleman, at an intersection, was outrageously slathered with a generous portion of muck, mud and other unmentionables by a car. He had time to identify the culprit as a young, middle-aged gentleman with an exceedingly full complement of face, and wearing a black Homburg hat fair in the middle of the top of his head. My friend shouted in anger. And when, a moment later, he saw the culprit's car halted in traffic, he gave chase. Just as he drew abreast and began to shout his particulars through his open window at the driver, the traffic moved and the driver, with a lofty glare, drove on.

My friend went into a drug store and got himself tidied up and dried with the drug clerk's help and a lot of tissue. Ten minutes later, proceeding in his way to the office, who should my friend spot, standing across the road on the corner intersection, but the unmistakable gentleman with the Homburg hat and the haughty air? He was standing by the shining car. Mr. Friend, awaiting the traffic, was gleefully glad, even in his mind the things he was going to say when, in a moment, he was friend of mine, this gentleman and probably knock his Homburg off.

But at that instant, and in full few, a car came careening around the corner of the intersection, took the unmistakable gentleman with the Homburg hat and the haughty air right in the middle of

Highways Minister Sets Up Five Administrative Areas

TORONTO (CP)—Highways Minister Allan announced in the legislature Monday the creation of five regional administrative areas in the Ontario highways department.

Regional control was established to provide the necessary supervision in the control of works, Mr. Allan said, describing the reorganization, suggested by the select committee on highways, as an important move.

The five regional supervising engineers will begin their special duties April 1. They will control the operations of 18 departmental divisions.

FIVE AREAS LISTED

Mr. Allan said the five regions are:

1. Southwestern, including the Chatham, London, Stratford and Owen Sound divisions, with head office in London.

2. Central, including Toronto, Hamilton and Port Hope divisions, with headquarters in Toronto.

3. Eastern, including Kingston, with headquarters in Kingston.

4. Northern, including Huntsville, North Bay, New Liskeard, Sudbury and Blind River divisions, with head office at North Bay.

5. Northwestern, including Cochrane, Fort William and Kenora divisions, with headquarters at Fort William.

REGIONAL ENGINEERS

Appointed as regional supervising engineers were H. H. Adcock (1), C. Fraser (2), M. N. McEwen (3), R. A. Panter (4), E. A. Cash (5).

"Their duties will be to supervise, guide and aide the various divisions," Mr. Allan said. "They will visit head office often so as to be fully acquainted with policy."

Mr. Allan said the plan could be enlarged if needed, but he added it did not mean decentralization.

"Rather, it is designed to provide necessary supervision. Regional engineers are to be charged with seeing all works meet specifications and plans and they will have authority to give decisions quickly."

INSPECTION TRIPS

The minister said general supervision and inspection is to be extended with key head office engineers from Toronto making frequent inspection trips.

"All this will result in a saving through stepped-up efficiency and will improve the operation of the highways department huge road development program," Mr. Allan said.

The minister said that pre-engineering has reached a high degree of efficiency as a result of reorganization. Controls had been set up to assure that money could not be spent without proper authorization.

"No work may now proceed without proper written authorization and responsibility is pin-pointed to the people in charge of work involved. A complete written story is now available to explain where every dollar went, and why, and who had the responsibility for the transaction."

DOUBLE CHECK

The minister said an engineering audit, which will bring to light any discrepancies, has also been established as a double check.

Appointment of the regional supervisors, involving the promotion of one former division engineer and four currently serving as division engineers, brought seven other changes in the department's executive engineering ranks including promotion of five construction engineers to be division engineers, as follows:

E. R. Heavegye, division engineer at Stratford, to be division engineer at Owen Sound; L. D. Barrett, construction engineer for London division to division engineer for Stratford; F. J. Fownes, construction engineer, to be division engineer at Toronto.

H. D. Duff, division engineer at Bancroft, to be division engineer for Port Hope; J. D. Foster, construction engineer for North Bay to be division engineer; J. B. Garland, construction engineer for Huntsville, to be division engineer for Fort William and T. A. Sharpe, construction engineer at Stratford, to be division engineer at Bancroft.

Bill Would Set Up New Board Of Transport

TORONTO (CP)—A new highway transport board to carry out provisions of the Public Commercial Vehicles Act and the Public Vehicles Act would be set up under legislation introduced Monday in the Ontario legislature.

A government bill introduced by Attorney-General Porter provides for a board of three or more members, a secretary and other office, administrative or enforcement staff the board considers necessary.

The two acts at present are administered by the Ontario municipal board.

Licensing of transports and other commercial vehicles such as taxi cabs would be controlled by the board as well as fixing and collection of licence fees and enforcement of various regulations.

CAMPBELLFORD

Two Accidents Cause Extensive Car Damage

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Police reported two accidents over the week-end, with no serious injuries in either case, but quite extensive damage to the vehicles involved.

The first mishap occurred on Saturday night when Charles Duncan, 31, of 54A Sidney St., Belleville, escaped with minor injuries when his car failed to negotiate a curve, rolled over at least four times, and ended up on its roof, a total wreck.

Duncan was travelling south on Highway 30, about three miles west of the town, and told police he failed to see the curve until it was too late.

The spot, known as West's Corners, has been the scene of a number of similar accidents. Police said it was a miracle that Duncan escaped serious injury.

Glass from the wrecked auto was strewn for nearly 200 feet. Duncan was travelling alone at the time.

OPP Constable George Louth investigated.

The second accident resulted in about $65. damage on Sunday afternoon, when one driver reportedly failed to see a traffic light at the corner of Bridge St. and Queen St. and collided with another car travelling through the intersection.

William Hendricks, 30, of Haley Station, was travelling south on Queen Street, when a car driven by William Phillips of Belleville, travelling west on Bridge St., met in collision with the back fender of Hendrick's car.

Phillips told Chief Constable George Rose, who investigated, that he failed to see the stop light at the intersection. There were no injuries.

Soup is on the menu at one of the five crippled children's camps owned and operated by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children who annually conduct the Easter Seal Campaign. Purchasers of the seals last year made it possible for 1,200 crippled children to enjoy a three-week summer vacation.

Problem Child, One of Many Readjusted by Society's Efforts

Mary is an 11-year-old who today has a happy, wholesome outlook on life despite the fact that the radius of her young world is confined to sights seen from a wheel chair. Yet, only two years ago Mary was unhappy, a worry to her parents and, potentially, a serious loss to society.

When she was four years old Mary was stricken by poliomyelitis. She survived the disease, only to face a life in a wheel chair. Her parents literally smothered her with affection and attention. They failed to realize that this was a course that could have serious results, because too much attention could take the form of not permitting Mary to develop her own personality and self-reliance.

By the time she was nine years old, Mary was a problem child, a bright, intelligent but embittered youngster. When officials of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, whose nurses and therapists had aided her, suggested she go to summer camp, her parents recoiled at the thought. Her mother at first insisted she should accompany Mary.

Finally, Mary went to camp. Her first days were bad, yet within a week she had seen other youngsters, some far more seriously handicapped than she, enjoying life. By the end of the camp term Mary was one of a happy group, had appeared in a play, learned craft work and was eager to go to school when she got home. Practical, applied psychology had worked its wonders.

Easter Seals made camp life possible for Mary, something enjoyed last year by more than 1,900 handicapped Ontario kids, who benefited from the campaign of the Society and 200 Ontario service clubs to raise funds for the help of crippled children.

Belleville's objective in the campaign for $550,000 is $4,000. To date almost $1,200 of this has been donated. Rotary club officials, who sponsor the drive here emphasized the necessity for citizens to contribute early to the campaign.

PLAN LAKES SERVICE

MONTREAL (CP)—Two European lines announced Monday they plan to start service to the Great Lakes this year, with six or more ships. The Niagara line, of Rotterdam, will offer a service linking lake ports with the Mediterranean. A lakes service also was announced by Montship Lines and the Capo Lines, which will fly the German flag.

SPOLETO, Italy (AP)—Twenty-two miners were killed and another 16 injured today by a fire-damp explosion in a lignite mine near here.

The explosion occurred as the second shift of miners started work, at a depth of nearly 1,000 feet.

First reports said that apparently no miners were entombed. The dead and wounded, some of the latter in grave condition, were immediately brought to the surface.

Mrs. William Jose gave the treasurer's report and Mrs. Clark reported on the flowers, gifts and cards which she had sent to those who were ill.

Mr. Farrow, the new minister, gave an inspiring talk, and spoke briefly on the "Power of Prayer."

Mrs. Howard Adams took charge of the program, and opened the devotional period by reading "The Man of Sorrows". His solo followed.

MANY GIFTS

Mrs. Runnalls was the recipient of many gifts, cut flowers and cards; also a birthday cake from her daughter, Mrs. M. Dafoe of Frankford. Her son, N. H. Fleming, who resides in New York City, was unable to be present, but sent a telegram, conveying birthday wishes.

Bountiful refreshments were served bringing to a close a most enjoyable evening.

'Education' Topic At Pine Grove Institute Meeting

Mrs. W. Slater was hostess to the Pine Grove Women's Institute on Wednesday. Mrs. G. Barton, president, was in the presiding officer and 14 members were in attendance.

Mrs. F. Campbell, Citizenship convener, suggested that every member consider herself responsible for the evaluation of radio and television programs and report their findings to her. It was decided to send a gift to Miss Gwenda Dettier, who is a patient in the Kingston General Hospital. A meeting of the standing committee conveners to assist in the preparation of reports for the annual meeting will be held at Mrs. F. Finkle's home on April 7. The nominating committee will also meet at the same time. A donation is to be made to "The March of Dimes". Mrs. H. Dafoe gave the current events.

Mrs. L. Finkle, convener for Education, took charge of the program, which consisted of readings "Work and Education", by Mrs. A. Finkle; "Things to Learn" by Mrs. J. Brown; "How Ignorance Leaves Wisdom" by Mrs. H. Coulter; "Learning by Experience" by Mrs. F. Campbell; "A Memory System" by Mrs. F. Finkle; "Report Card" by Mrs. F. Landenfield.

EDUCATION

The convener gave an interesting paper which she had prepared on the topic "Education".

"Education week serves a useful purpose if it reminds us that every week is one for education. We must realize that education is a process that continues from birth to death. Dr. Lyncoln, an authority on this subject, has said 'Today's children face a world in which there will be increasingly rapid changes and continuing tension. The three 'R's' will not be enough in themselves to enable children to live in that kind of world without breaking down.'

"We should show our appreciation of our sacred heritage of freedom of worship by encouraging church and Sunday school attendance. Remember education is not only in our schools. It is in our newspapers, our magazines, our films, our radio and television programs, and in our community life. You don't have to have an arts degree to help develop the minds of your children. A little more encouragement at the right time; more selective radio listening; more useful reading; better organization of time will help."

GOOD W.I. PRACTICAL

"We must never lose sight of the fact that our Women's Institute organization is primarily an educational organization. If our branches revert into simply money making organizations or just social meetings we are bound to lose members.

"A good Women's Institute is both practical and progressive. At the end of the year every Institute member should feel she has learned something. Her life should be enriched, her vision broadened. She should be a better wife, a better mother, a better homemaker, and a better citizen because she has been an Institute member."

An alphabet contest, and also a St. Patrick's Day one were enjoyed after which refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. E. Horton, Mrs. C. Ross, and Mrs. F. Finkle.

India's Religions Discussed At W.M.S. Meeting

MADOC — Mrs. S. Rollins entertained the Women's Missionary Society.

Mrs. Alvey read from Matthew 8, of how the Great Physician healed the sick when on this earth. Mrs. D. Blakely had the topic, and told of their work with the sick and in the hospitals, and how both doctors and nurses try not only to heal the bodies, but to bring spiritual help to the minds and hearts of the patients. Much of the sickness comes from lack of food, and poor sanitation.

In the missionary hospitals doctors and nurses must be truly Christian to teach the patients Christ's way of life. Leprosy is a terrible scourge in India. Hospitals with nurses and doctors, who have had special training and new drugs, are doing a wonderful work in checking this disease that once was considered incurable.

Miss Heslip gave a talk on the different religions of India. "Long before the time of Christ they had their great religious leaders, the human heart then, as now, was seeking after peace. Hinduism goes back to 1200 B.C. Their chief gods were rain, fire and sun; they taught the transmigration of souls. After that came Buddhism, Brahmanism, Jainism, then came Mohamedanism. Muslems are found in nearly all parts of the world, in Africa is growing faster than the Christian faith. In more recent days came Gandhism, Secularism and Communism, which has a large following in India today.

"At the present time about one-third of the world's surface is closed to Christian fellowship. In Turkey, Iran and Iraq, and the Middle East, missionary work is limited, slow and very hard; in South American bigotry flourishes, Christian freedom is a mockery in Colombo at the present time, Christians suffer persecution and even death, but there are parts of Pakistan open today to the teaching of the Gospel of our saviour, before independence.

"The tragedy of India is the failure of Hinduism to bring peace to the hearts of its millions of people, to combat evil and to conquer despair, to fill their lives with hope and joy and to reveal the love of God through Christ Jesus, His Son."

Mrs. Allen closed the meeting with prayer. A luncheon was served by the hostess and her helpers, Mrs. Spencer and Mrs. Kernahan. The social hour was greatly enjoyed.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

LONG LINE

WHEN YOU'RE TO BUSY TO TALK

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When you have guests, or are transacting business at home, and a friend calls on the telephone, is it correct, after exchanging greetings and a few pleasant remarks, to explain to the friend telephoning that you have guests and to ask may you call back later. Or (as I've heard some people say) should the telephone conversation be continued, even if it is likely to last for some time? —Reader

How wonderful it would be, how helpful, if all one's friends, telephoning to start a conversation which "is likely to last for some time," would first ask whether or not the call is convenient! "Hello, Marie, this is Helena. Is this a convenient time for you to talk, or may I call back later, at any time you say?" This is exactly what really courteous and thoughtful people do . . . and should do. In these days so governed by telephoning.

But if they don't do this, then, when you have guests or are otherwise too busy to talk more than a minute, you should explain, graciously of course, and ask if you may call back. "I'd love to chat more, Cathy, but I have guests. Or, I'm just putting the baby to bed', or 'I'm leaving for an appointment.') May I call you back later? What time would be convenient to you?

SHOWER BEFORE ANNOUNCEMENT OF WEDDING DATE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Do you believe in the giving of showers for a girl whose engagement has been announced but who doesn't know when the wedding is to take place? — Four Girls

It isn't at all necessary to wait until the wedding date is set before giving a shower for an engaged girl. Circumstances might very well suggest this plan as more convenient. However, what should be avoided is that an overly-enthusiastic friend or group of friends decide to start the shower-ball rolling extremely early to pass on the suggestion to others that they follow suit by giving other showers. Today too many budgets stagger under the "pressure" of buying too many shower presents!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THIS GIRL HAD BETTER TELL THE TRUTH

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am writing to you because you are the last person I can turn to. All my friends have deserted me because of what I did.

Some months ago, I met and fell in love with a very wonderful boy. I loved him, and I thought he loved me, but I was wrong. We had an affair, and I became pregnant.

Since then, he has left me, and I have met a fellow who likes me very much, but he does not know my condition. He asked me if I would marry him, and I don't know whether to say yes or no. If I tell him of my condition, he might not understand, and I think I just want a father for my baby. But that's not true because I really love him.

Please help me. — N.W.

Dear N.W.:

You would make a very serious mistake indeed if you were to agree to marry this boy without telling him the truth about your situation. If he is the type of boy who would throw you over because of what has happened, then he is the type who would do the same if he discovered the real facts after you became engaged, or even married, and it is practically certain that he would discover.

I strongly urge you to be perfectly honest with this chap and the sooner the better. Nothing but unhappiness can come of not doing so, while if you show that you are a straightforward girl who tells the truth, you may win out.

Black silk taffeta tells the fabric story of a new dress for current late day wear in town. The rustling fabric is softened with black sheer for the yoke fore and aft, set below a neat little collar and bow of the taffeta. The important long torso look is achieved via a hip yoke, curved up front, from which the gathered skirt bellows out in graceful lines. Although there are many normal waisted fashions about, it is the long torso that establishes the new vintage dress.

Bonus Readers' Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

ATTENTION DEAR READERS;

Would you be ever so kind and permit your devoted slave to decide whether she will put the answer to you in this column or mail it to you? When you give only initials and no address I have no choice and often no grace. That will explain the delay (when any) in my reply. Come on, now, be good kids, and send name, address and be extra good and include stamped envelope.

QUESTION:

. . . I have a rheumatic heart and have to make my work as light as possible. . . would you send me any recipes for cooking for two people that are easy? . . . also bread rolls that do not have to be kneaded and Boston Cream Pie. . . wishing you all the best Mrs. Walter G.

ANSWER:

I have mailed the "Cooking For Two" release of Feb. 17. You will have to cut the recipes in two though. . . the recipes for Chicken Pilaf and Apple Crisp will have to be reduced by two-thirds. I don't need to mention that beating may be done by electric beater; rolling out of pie crust (if your doctor allows pie in your diets) can be overcome by using crumb pastry or but water pastry and pressing it onto pie plates or tart tins while warm. As for kneading I have a friend who has eliminated it from his bread baking. He had a heart condition too and his recipe is in the mail to me now. Watch for it here soon.

REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

(No kneading)

Three-quarters cup hot water, 1 teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons shortening, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 package granular yeast, 6 tablespoons lukewarm water, 1 well-beaten egg, 3 1-2 to 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour. Measure the sugar and take 1 teaspoon from it and put it in a measuring cup with the 6 tablespoons lukewarm water. Sprinkle yeast on top and allow to stand until it foams to top of cup. Combine hot water, salt, shortening and remaining sugar in bowl. Cool to lukewarm add yeast (when ready). Add the egg and half of the flour and stir until blended. Then stir in remaining flour enough to make a dough that is easily handled. Smooth and grease top of dough, cover very well. Keep in refrigerator—it keeps four or five days. Cut off dough as needed and shape into rolls and let rise covered until doubled—1-2 to 2 hours at 425 deg. Fahr. about 12 or 15 minutes. If preferred dough may be formed into rolls as soon as mixed, then allowed to rise.

BOSTON CREAM PIE

Cake Batter (this is a 2-egg 3-layer plain cake): Cream 1-2 cup shortening, then gradually beat in 1 cup sugar, then 2 egg yolks. (This much beating may be done with electric beater.) Beat very well. Sift cake flour and measure 1 3-4 cups and sift it with 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder and add 1-3 of it alternately with 1-2 cup milk to shortening mixture. Add 1-2 teaspoon vanilla then fold in two stiffly beaten egg white. Turn into three greased and floured 8-inch layer pans, and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes. When baked and cool put together with Vanilla Cream Filling —In top of double boiler mix together 1-3 cup flour, 1-2 cup sugar and 1-4 teaspoon salt, then add 2 cups milk, and cook, stirring, over boiling water until thick and smooth. Pour this slowly, while stirring, over 2 beaten eggs which have been beaten with an additional 1-4 cup sugar. Return to double boiler, and cook stirring, for two minutes. Remove from heat and stir in 1 tablespoon butter. When cool add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Make half this recipe when filling only 2 layers.

Mother's Helper

MIRRORS in most bathrooms are at a height convenient only to adults. Your child will enjoy having one low enough so he can wash himself as well as teeth or face, without being perched precariously on a stool.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

OVERWEIGHT IN YOUTH

Let us say that little daughter is a freshman in high school. She is plump as a partridge, is over-developed for her age, and does a lot of sobbing about her too-ample curves. The casual mother may pass no heed and there she is making a mistake. The family physician should give the child a medical check-up. He will inquire into her eating habits. She probably hangs around the soda fountain with the ice-cream-and-coke gang and raids the cookie jar the minute she comes into the house.

It should be the business of every mother to see that her child has a balanced diet and that she does not eat between meals and so destroy appetite for food elements that are necessary for growth and well being.

In the morning rush, getting pesky for school, breakfast may be considered a bother. She should have a fruit, a glass of milk and protein in some form. An egg will supply it.

If the weight is considerably above normal, the physician will suggest cutting down on fats, sweets and starches of which many children get more than they need, as do adult heavyweights. It may be advisable to remove cream from milk, to eliminate chocolate and pastries from the diet. The result will not only be normal proportions, but will be an insurance against oily skin, blackheads and acne—the chief beauty problems of teen-agers.

If mother is forsighted she may visualize what is ahead for little daughter if her weight isn't watched. The dimpled elbow that is so pretty in girlhood may not be so pretty on a bulky, over-developed arm later in life.

The pretty girl with fresh complexion, sparkling eyes and lively manners should have a body with no pronounced over-curves if she is to be a lovely picture. Overweight, even in youngsters, can slow up activities.

When cakes are cold and put together with filling sprinkle top with sifted icing sugar. This filling may be used for cream puffs or eclairs or jelly or chocolate sponge roll.

Greek Woman, 95, United With Son After 30 Years

TORONTO (CP) — A little old woman, bent by her 95 years, saw her son Sunday night for the first time since he boarded a creaky train in the Macedonian village of Bouffe 30 years ago.

Steve Vuchkoff came to Canada and went to work in a restaurant. Later he bought his own cafe in Chatham, and made plans to send for his mother, Sophia Vuchkoff.

But the war kept him from going for her, and the tide of postwar immigration kept her from sailing from Greece.

Steve was 57 this year when he obtained passage for his mother. Fifteen days ago, she boarded the Nea Hellas from Salonika.

Seasickness the second day out robbed her of most of her strength, but there was strength in the hug she gave Steve when they met at Union station here.

Steve carried his mother through the emptying concourse and together they boarded the train for Chatham and his mother's new home.

Six Countries Accept Russian Technical Help

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Russia finally has found takers for $2,000,000 in aid she has offered for the last two years through the UN technical assistance program.

Six countries were reported Monday to have accepted Soviet help this year in improving their economies. They will be sent Russian technicians or equipment, or will send their own experts to Russia for training.

Three of the nations were identified as Burma, India and Indonesia. Two others were understood to be in the Middle East and the third in Latin America.

Some 10 projects were reported involved. They include machine tools and technicians for an electronic calculating machine factory in India, equipment for water development in India and a low-cost housing exhibit in Latin America.

The aid program is run jointly by the UN and seven specialized agencies.

Australia Cuts Import Quotas

CANBERRA, Australia (Reuter)—Australia Monday announced cuts in import quotas ranging from 15 to 23 per cent aimed at righting the country's lopsided foreign trade account.

The restrictions, effective April 1, were disclosed by acting prime minister Sir Arthur Fadden.

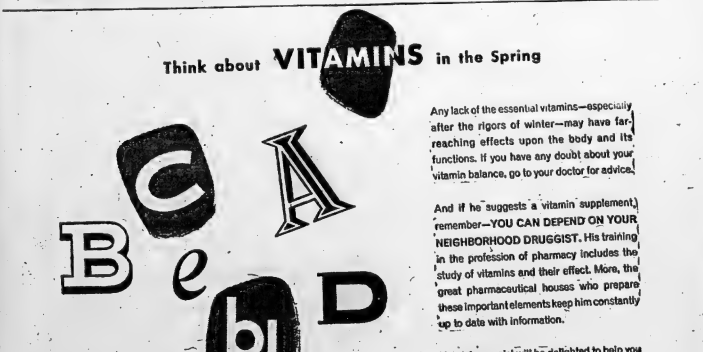
The national account book shows that for the last eight months Australia has spent $100,000,000 more on imports than she has earned with exports.

Quotas in the main category of goods will be reduced 15 per cent and less essential goods by one third.

The cuts will mainly affect British exporters, who supply the bulk of Australia's incoming goods.

SERGEANT DEMOTED

WHITBY (CP)—Sgt. David Freeman of the Pickering township police force Saturday was stripped of his rank when he was convicted at a police commission hearing of one of two charges of misconduct. The hearing was held in camera before judge John Pritchard.



A man we know wanted to send a young mother something really useful for her little girl. What he sent won him a warmer letter than he expected:

"How perfectly lovely of you," the letter ran, "to start that savings account for little Debbie! I'm planning to add to it every chance I get—and it will be wonderful for her when she grows up." Sweep Receipts Set Record For Post War

DUBLIN (AP)—Receipts for Monday's drawings in the Irish sectional hospitals sweepstakes on the Grand National steeplechase set a postwar record of more than $3,800,000. The receipts provide a prize fund of $6,440,000.

The big prize will go to holders of tickets on the three horses who win the first three places in the Grand National race Saturday.

Irish hospitals will receive their biggest single donation from the sweepstake on this drawing, $2,520,000. The proceeds are the second largest in history, surpassed only by that held on the English Derby in 1932.

The fund will provide 18 first prizes on the winning horse of $140,000 each, 18 second prizes of $28,000, and 18 third prizes of $28,000. In addition, there will be 991 horse prizes of $1,400 each, 2,130 prizes of $280 each, 39 residual prizes of $1,596 each, and 4,800 consolation prizes of $28 each.

CANADA AWAITS

The concession to the U.S. is effective immediately. The fourmonth GATT conference also proposed these steps to member countries:

1. Creation of the Organization for Trade Co-operation to administer the GATT tariff bargains and trade rules. Mr. Howe said Canada has agreed in principle but will withhold final approval until the U.S. Congress approves. He recalled that Congress killed off the 1948 proposal to set up the International Trade Organization.

2. Renewal of the hundreds of tariff bargains under GATT for a period of 3 years until December 1957 and automatically thereafter for a three-year period with a proviso that member countries could withdraw or renegotiate tariffs before the three-year period under special circumstances.

3. Tighten up controls on import curbs imposed by overseas countries because of currency troubles and trade deficits. The hard core of the curbs would be removed in a period of not more than five years.

4. Restrictions be imposed on the use of export subsidies for expanding a country's share of world markets. Countries which plan to liquidate large surpluses of farm products should consult with other exporters and give advance notice of their plans.

5. Under - developed countries should get special treatment under the GATT, to loosen their trade and tariff obligations to other member countries in early stages of development.

Two Commit Offences To Get Into Jail

TORONTO (CP)—Two Toronto area men, refused police calls during the weekend, committed offences especially to get into jail, police said today.

At Oakville, Leonard Wilcox, 35, told police he had "six kids, no job, no money and no unemployment insurance." He asked to be locked up, but police said no.

They said he went outside, kicked in a store window, and was charged with wilful damage. He was given a cell and will appear in court Wednesday.

In Pickering, William Murphy, 21, wanted to be locked up, so badly he punched constable Roy Morden in the jaw. He refused to say why he wanted to be arrested.

"He wanted his wife to lay a charge but she refused," the constable said. "He told me he hated to do it, but he wanted to be locked up, so he took a couple of poles at me." (—said

Murphy was arrested on an assault charge.

Rabbit Hunters Bring Back Bear

SKEAD, Ont. (CP) — Victor Jetty and Marcel Jaibert, both 18, of this lumbering town 30 miles from Sudbury, set out Saturday to do a bit of rabbit hunting.

They came back with a bear. Their dog, Cabbage, in fine form, went right to the door of a bear den. Victor and Marcel went to town for reinforcements.

Wilfred Michaud, 14, Donald and Gerald Bedard, 17 and 18, and Roland Durocher, 15, who told their parents they were just going rabbit hunting, all brought .22s. Victor drew the honor of firing first.

FIRE as shots

The bear yawned, and decided to go after Victor.

When Victor came running out of the den, his pals let loose a fusillade. They fired 20 shots before bringing it down.

One of two cubs in the den was killed in the cross-fire. The other was taken home and fed from a baby's bottle. He'll be the boys' mascot.

Man Charged With Extortion At Port Credit

TORONTO (CP)—A man was arrested and charged with extortion during the weekend after two policemen waited three hours under a bed to get evidence in a case involving nude pictures.

Police said Thomas Hawkins, 36, of Toronto was arrested in the apartment of a suburban Port Credit woman.

The complainant was a pretty widow with two children, who said she once posed for nude photos. Police said she complained after a man collected about $150 from her. She is working to support the children.

Two Port Credit policemen hid under the bed and waited three hours watching television until the man came. The man sat in the apartment flicking a six-inch spring knife while he talked, police said.

They said he was able to burn part of a sheet of film before he was restrained.

From Hog's Stomach To Amazed Owner

Bervin Johnson displays two hunting knives which he lost on a hunting trip last November at Trout Lake, on Michigan's upper peninsula. The knives have just been returned from a Mr. Horace Hicks of Indianapolis, Indiana, who states they were found in the stomach of a hog butchered at Monin, Indiana. Just how the knives got into the trout which is an hour by boat and then 700 miles south and into a hog's stomach is still a mystery as yet unsolved. (Central Press Canadian).

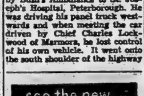
CAMPBELLFORD

Driver Injured As Car Upsets, Charges Laid

MARMORA — Max Hayman of Griffith, Ont., met with an accident on No. 7 highway near Christie's Service Station on Saturday, necessitating his removal by Rush's Ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough. He was driving his panel truck westwards and when meeting the car driven by Chief Charles Lockwood of Marmora, he lost control of his own vehicle. It went onto the south shoulder of the highway turning end over end and rolling sideways to come to rest on its roof crossways of the highway.



Dr. R. C. Shatford, of Marmora was called to the scene and the injured man was removed to hospital. He sustained a fractured right hip and leg with multiple cuts and bruises. His truck was demolished. It was with some difficulty that he was extricated from the wrecked vehicle.

The police received appreciated assistance from about ten men, who alighted from vehicles happening to be passing at the time. Hayman was pinned to the road beneath the vehicle, which had to be lifted off his leg. A bar too had to be used to pry his arm free from the steering wheel, the roof of the truck having pinned it there. The contents of the truck were trinkets of the type sold at fairs and these with pieces of broken glass were strewn for several feet along the highway. A charge will be laid for drunk and dangerous driving, said police.

The best of Tall Tales

There was a scene in a recent movie of a girl preparing to disrobe for a swim on the beach of a lonely lake.

Just as the situation got interesting a train crossed the screen, and when it had passed by the girl was in the water.

We know one fellow who went every night to see the picture in the hope the train would be late.

Ridiculous, of course. The train couldn't be late. But he had an idea on the Saturday night. He bought a seat in the loges and looked over the top of the train as it passed by.

WE INTERVIEW A HORSE

He was so sway-backed that if he were reversed he would resemble a glen-factory facsimile of Waterloo Bridge. He wore collision mats on the under side of his abdomen where clearance was roughly four inches.

This bayburner, whose spinal column from the third cervical to three degrees north of the sacro-iliac resembles a capital "U", has been imported here for special post-hockey series celebrations.

It is reported that if the Belleville Mcmen win the current senior "B" finals series against the Kingston Goodyears, Mayor John Both of this city, will do a Hopalong Cassidy down Front St., with His Worship Mayor George Clarke Wright, chief magistrate of Roddenville, east o' here, at the helm of the auto-steering flatchip. If the Goodyears win, Mayor Both will be the sternsman in the Limestone city, with Mayor Kingston counterpart riding the poopdeck of the valley-backed graduate of a turn-of-the-century milkwagon.

"Dinty" that is what his trainer calls him, because dinty he run in fifty-four games, and dinty he lose 'em all. And dinty he try to get into the Canadian Mounted Rifles during World War One and was turned down because the cavalry became footsloggers in that big show. . . .

"Dinty" chewed luxuriously on a large portion of "Lefty" Whitman "horsehide." He doesn't nibble the plug stuff since he had new dentures installed after the Charge of the Light Brigade.

It was at the famous charge at Balaclava, he whinnied, that he first developed the "sway" symptoms. He did the half-mile league in 13 minutes flat when the Russian generals mounted him as he was headed in the general direction of St. Petersburg. He finished five lengths ahead of the main Russian army and just a neck over the Capital Stakes. It was either that or being the bean-nag of a mule train in a Siberian salt mine.

"Dinty" had a varied career during his sojourn in the land of the Czars, vodka, caviar, ballet and Cossack choruses. He carried Russky commissars around to all the military functions and at last found himself in a Sergie Sircus, where he did stunts galloping around a ring with up to 13 children on his spine. His swing developed his sway until he was withdrawn from active work because in rough scrutiny or in the winter time he developed callouses on the under part of his stomach.

He got into the Russky sports parade—and at times with his withers and hips representing goal-posts he was used in several games. That could be part of the reason why the Russian hockey team's shooting was generally high. At other times he was inverted and used in croquet tournaments.

Now he is back home again and faces what might be the proudest moment in his life. "I'm the only one who can win. Both can't be Wright, and if Wright prevails Both won't be wrong. However, I understand both mayors have ridden horses before. But I'm giving them warning. They must be used to fractious colts or bucking broncos, but whatever rides me will get his first lesson in walking from a sitting position. I'm not partial. All my life a mayor has been just another horse to me—and if either of these guys gets fresh with whip or spur or belt, I'm liable to smack 'em from under 'em and leave 'em parked on their own city hall steps."

And "Dinty" swayed away on his way, leaving behind him what sounded suspiciously like a great big equine Bronx cheer.

THE AMERICAN VIEWPOINT

Gotham's sports experts, no doubt taking baseball as a yardstick, are of the opinion the sentence handed out to Maurice Richard by NHL prexy Clarence Campbell following the 'riot' of last week was too lenient, if anything.

One columnist writes: "In baseball if a player punched an umpire, the penalty, in all likelihood, would be life unless there were extenuating circumstances. . . . It is the opinion here that Campbell's verdict was gentle rather than severe."

He goes on: "Richard was sentenced by Campbell because he chose his Cliff Thompson, an official, in the face, instead of a Boston Bruin. These were the most unforgivable blows of all, Campbell revealed. Richard also hit Hal Laycoe several times with his stick, a crime which received honorable mention in Justice Campbell's ruling.

"Reading the Montreal papers you get the idea Richard is a sweet, courteous, mild-mannered fellow who wouldn't think of ramming his stick into an opponent's head while under the influence of a hot temper. Neither 'The Montreal Star' nor 'The Gazette' has carried any prose that didn't read as though it had been written by Richard himself. Campbell on the other hand, is pronounced guilty, charged with having his weight around. Richard, remember, threw fists and hockey sticks around.

"In the closed hearing, prior to sentence, Campbell listened attentively to Richard's defence. Maurice claimed Laycoe's stick so dazed him that he became a victim of amnesia. Hence his attack on linesman Thompson, whom Maurice, no doubt, would have invited to supper after the game had he not been suffering from loss of memory. Campbell, however, recalled that Richard has been charged with no-called forgetfulness in the past, as far as officials go, and decided the prisoner wasn't entitled to leniency."

Minor Hockey

The bantam section of the BMHA closed out its OA playoffs on Saturday morning with the Canadiens bombing the Red Wings to a 7-1 tie in the first game of the two game, goals-to-count series and then blanking them in the final game, 2-0 to take the series three goals to one. This was the third minor title that the Canadiens, the pee wee and septet laurels also being won by the Hab teams.

Maverty starred for the champs, scoring all the Canadiens' marker in the first game and adding another in the deciding battle. White also scored for the victors with Hall and Harvey getting assists. Ralph Champagne tallied for the Red Wings with Buck Ethier drawing an assist.

Bill Moxon turned back plenty of rubber between the pipes for the champs in holding the rival high-scoring Wings to one goal in the series.

Semi-Final Playoffs Start Tonight in Montreal, Detroit; Reeling Habs Meet Boston

By JOE FALLS

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, still reeling from the loss of the National Hockey League championship, go against Boston Bruins here tonight in the opener of a best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final.

Officials of the Montreal Forum announced Monday night that no standing room will be sold.

The move is aimed at preventing a recurrence of last Thursday's riot, when fans pelted NHL president Clarence Campbell with rubbers, programs and peanuts and tossed a tear-gas bomb into a passageway. That game was called after one period and awarded to Detroit.

The Canadiens, who appeared to have the NHL title clinched until they started blowing games right and left last week, will again be without the services of their star Maurice (Rocket) Richard, suspended for the last three games of the regular schedule and the playoffs.

FIRST SINCE TANGLE

It will also be the first meeting between the teams since Richard clashed with Hal Laycoe of the Bruins and Referee Cliff Thompson in a stick-swinging duel that resulted in his suspension by Campbell.

To guard against a possible attack by the fans on Laycoe, police officials said they will have "plenty of men" at the Forum.

"We don't know if the fans will be after Laycoe's blood," a police spokesman said. "They may rate, we're not going to take any chances. There will be plenty of men on hand to nip any trouble before it starts."

There was no announcement Campbell yet on whether he plans to attend. After Thursday's riot, the Forum management asked the NHL president to stay away from Saturday's game against the New York Rangers.

AMONG TOUGHEST

The Bruins have been among the Canadiens' toughest opponents all year. Montreal has won seven games against Boston, dropped four, and three ended in draws.

The Canadiens are expected to go along with the same lineup that dropped Sunday's 6-0 game to Detroit. Reinforcements in the farm system are all engaged in their own playoffs and are not likely to be called up.

Selke said he is trying to locate George McAvoy, defenceman with the Penticton Vs who won the world hockey tournament in Germany recently, to be used as a reserve defenceman, McAvoy would have to turn pro.

The Bruins announced they have recalled defenceman Don Cherry, right-winger Norm Corcoran and centre Gordie Wilson from Hershey for the series.

DETROIT (AP) — Despite a sizzling streak of eight straight victories to wind up the regular National Hockey League season, Detroit Red Wings insist there will be no letdown in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The best-of-seven semi-final between the Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs start here tonight. The Detroiters have been made 2½ to 1 favorites to take their second straight cup championship.

The other best-of-seven semi-final also gets under way tonight in that one, Boston Bruins go against the Canadiens at Montreal.

"We're fresher than ever," boomed Detroit manager Jack Adams when asked if he thought his Red Wings would suffer a letdown in the playoffs.

BEST SHAPE EVER

"We have no injuries and we're ready for the Leafs," Adams said. "We're in better shape for the playoffs this year than for any of the others in the past."

Wings rounded their peak Sunday night when they humiliated Canadiens 6-0 in the final game of the 1950-55 campaign. They gave them their seventh straight league title and won 37 of 70 games to finish first in NHL history.

The question now is whether they can maintain such a torrid pace in the post-season playoffs.

Although Adams figures his club can take Leafs in about six games, he has plenty of respect for the Toronto club. He says goaltender Harry Lumley, who lost the Vezina Trophy by one goal to Detroit's Terry Sawchuk last weekend, is the man Wings fear most.

LEAFS' BIG MAN

"As far as I'm concerned Lumley has been Leafs' big man all season," Adams added.

Wings are in near-perfect physical shape as they start defence of the Stanley Cup title they won from Montreal last spring. The only casualty is team captain Ted Lindsay and he pronounced nothing too serious about his bruised right shoulder when he scored three goals Sunday night.

Leafs will be forced to go through the entire playoffs without star defenceman Tim Horton. He suffered a broken leg and ankle late in the season. Another doubtful starter tonight is centre Rudy Migay, who is suffering from a blood condition.

CALL ON AHL

To offset Migay's loss, Leaf general manager Hap Day called up Bob Bailey from the American League Pittsburgh Hornets. Bailey has been up and down between Pittsburgh and Toronto much of the season.

Out along with Horton is centre Tod Sloan. He allowed a spained ankle that kept him on the sidelines for the last few games of the regular schedule.

While the Wings won the league championship, Leafs barely finished in third place, edging out Boston in last weekend of play.

Detroit took the season's series from Toronto, winning seven, losing four and tying three. The most significant fact, however, is that Leafs scored only 15 goals in the 14 games against the Wings. Detroit scored 27 goals.

Point Anne Wins Over Marmora To Capture Series

MARMORA — Those who saw the second game of the 2 out of 3 inter-mediate 'C' series on the Marmora rink on Saturday evening between Point Anne and Marmora were treated to a dashing display of hockey in which the Cementmen, by virtue of their 10-7 win, captured the round. Tim Williams' boys were out to secure the verdict if possible and Stubby' Trumble's squad were also like minded.

Marmora were destined to open the scoring and Lavender, successfully tested Bales at 3.35 on passes from Gray and K. Trumble. The lead was of short duration, L. Goyer equalized about 3 minutes afterward on assists from Cl. Goyer and Williams. He scored again a couple of minutes later with Williams having again assisted. Marmora followed suit aided by Hunter and before the period closed L. Goyer had added another on his brother's assist.

A minute had not passed in the second period when Lavender again registered, unassisted for Marmora. Both goals were goalies. Bales getting assists. Gilmour got good raves until at 15.25 L. Goyer made a pass of his brother's to good effect. Marmora retaliating came through with another goal, K. Trumble adding 2 on assists from Lavender and Carswell. In the third, L. Goyer was successful again in the second minute, G. Goyer and Williams getting assists. Gilmour got going again scoring twice in as many minutes, Hunter assisting on each and also Strahan on the latter one. Strahan got the next on assists from Gilmour and Semark. Then the homesters occupied the penalty attention and their fans cheered as they garnered four goals. Carswell registered on Lavender's pass and Jones received from Mantle to turn the good combination and Blum got a much-deserved goal on Jones' assist. Jones got the final goal for his team as the whistle was assisted.

Less than a minute of time was left when Gilmour received from Strahan to close the scoring. Although clean on the whole, the referees found it necessary to hand out penalties to Marmora, and six to Point Anne.

The attendance was known to about one hundred and fifty.

Point Anne— Goal, Bates; defence, Gayer, Semark; centre, Gilmour; wings, Hunter, Strahan; alternates, Green, L. Green, L. Goyer, J. Goyer, Williams; spare goalie, Letman.

Marmora — Goal, Killian; defence, Gray, Leonard; centre, Carswell; wings, Lavender, K. Trumble; alternates, Jones, Mantle, Darvah, Brown, Blute, Doyle.

Teeps, Marlies Junior Hockey Brawl Brings Suspensions to Broda, Pilous

TORONTO (CP)—Coaches Turk Broda of Toronto Marlboros and Rudy Pilous of St. Catharines Teepees Monday night were suspended for the next two games of the two Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals as a result of the wild brawl that occurred during the second game of the series in Toronto Sunday.

In addition to the suspensions, levied by the OHA subcommittee, defenceman Al McNeil of the Marlboros was fined $10 "for leaving the bench for part" in the fight, which resulted in 29 five-minute major penalties and 21 minute misconducts. No other players were fined.

St. Catharines won the game 3-0 to tie the best-of-seven final 1-1. Third game of the series is in St. Catharines today.

Broda and Pilous will be allowed to attend the games but were warned not to go near either bench or into the dressing room or to assist the coaching in any manner.

Joe Primeau, former coach of Stanley, Memorial and Allan Cup champions, is expected to return to coaching at St. Catharines tonight to help Marlboros.

The sub-committee said it was their complete responsibility on the coaches to maintain order among their players.

Coaches are "just going to have to see to it that they keep players on the bench," said OHA president Tory Gregg of Wingham.

The suspension came after the subcommittee had thrown out the rule which had called for an automatic suspension for any player or coache whose players leave the bench to take part in a fight on the ice. The rule was thrown out when it was revealed that it was in the OHA Minutes only.

Stafford Smythe, manager of Marlboros, and Roy Wilson, director of the TeePees, said the coaches couldn't be held to blame for the uprising.

Pilous, who said he was "shocked" at the decision, could not say who would be appointed to handle the TeePees for the two games.

National League Makes It Official Geoffrion, Sawchuk 1954-55 Champs

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League made it official today, naming Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion scoring champion and Terry Sawchuk of Detroit the loop's top goalie.

But Geoffrion can credit the fiery temper of teammate Maurice (Rocket) Richard with an assist in winning the Art Ross Trophy and $1,000 as the top scorer.

Richard was leading Geoffrion by two points until he was slapped with a suspension for the last three games of the season and the playoffs for punching linesman Cliff Thompson.

Geoffrion passed him with a goal and two assists Saturday as Montreal defeated New York 4-2. One of the assists was his margin of victory, giving him 37 to 36 by the Rocket. Each had 38 goals.

Sawchuk's win in the Vezina Trophy race was just as close. He went into the final game of the season Sunday with two more goals against him than Harry Lumley of Toronto. Sawchuk blanked the Montreal Canadiens while Lumley allowed New York to score three goals against him.

The final count showed Sawchuk with 134 goals against him, and Lumley with 135.

Jean Beliveau of the Canadiens took third place with 73 points on 37 goals and 36 assists.

The top performance of the week was turned in by Earl Reibel of Detroit, who picked up 10 points in three games to vault from seventh place to fourth in the standings. He wound up with 66 points, nine less than Geoffrion.

Gordie Howe, the scoring champion for the last four years, finished in fifth place with 62 points. Six games missed through injuries early in the season prevented him from moving into the battle for the title.

George Sullivan of Chicago was sixth with 61 points, followed by Bert Olmstead of Montreal with 58 and Sid Smith of Toronto and Ken Mosdell of Montreal, with 54 each.

Only Boston and New York failed to place men in the top ten. Danny Lewicki of the Rangers missed, winding up with 51 points, while the top Bruins scorers were Leo Labine and Don McKenney with 42 apiece.

Moncton Wins Two in Row From Ottawa

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Moncton Hawks whipped Ottawa RCAF Flyers 5-3 here Monday night to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-finals.

Hawks had a 3-1 lead by the halfway point in the third period but the Flyers offensive netted a pair of goals in the last minute of play.

Moncton's goals were evenly split. Bob Bowness, an off-season insurance salesman, fired one in the first period, Tyrus Hoole and Ross Watson picked up the second and third in the middle period and Ray Lacroix and Lorne Walters wrapped it up in the last frame.

Pete Girouard connected for the Ottawa district champions in the middle period. Bill Franklin and Maynie Darch were the markmen in the 11th-hour breakout which brought fans to their feet in the dying moments.

The third game of the series will be played here Wednesday and the fourth game Saturday. Any further games also will be played here.

LIONS BUY QUARTER

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Lions, hoping to cushion the loss of quarterback Tom Dublinski to Toronto Argonauts Monday repurchased a quarterback prospect from Pittsburgh Steelers. He is Paul Held, who served as an understudy to Jim Finks last season. The Lions traded Held to Pittsburgh last year but kept an option on his return.

Ottawa Ousts Noranda Toilers

OTTAWA (CP) — Royden Kealey's solo effort near the end of the opening period Monday night proved Ottawa Shamrocks' winning goal in their 4-3 victory over Noranda Toilers that shoved them a step farther along the Memorial Cup road.

The Shamrocks won the best-of-three eastern Canada memorial cup quarter-final series in three straight games. Ottawa now moves into a best-of-three series next Monday against the winner of the Quebec-Maritime quarter-final series.

Kealey wound up behind his own net and stick-handled through the entire Noranda team to slide the puck past Don Kobe in the Toilers' net for the goal that settled the matter.

COUNTED TWO

Paul McManus fired two of the other Shamrock goals, one early in the first period and the other into an empty net after Toilers took out Kobe in favor of an extra forward in the dying minutes of the game.

Corky Lahey's blueline shot bounced in off Kobe's wrists as Ottawa moved ahead to stay in the first period.

Rheal Larouche and Marcel Tyndel scored single goals for the Toilers in the second and third periods respectively.

SET SOCCER ODDS

LONDON (AP)—Britain's bookies Monday made Newcastle United 7-4 favorites to win the Football Association Cup.

Sunderland were 2-1 betting shots, Manchester City 9-4 and York City 100-6-7. Semi-finals will be on Saturday. The final is scheduled for May 7. All are first division teams except third-division York.

Canadian Swimmers Did Well, Girl Breaks Pan-Am. Record

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Swimming coach Tommy Walker of Toronto was all smiles today after Canada's scrappy four-man team placed third in the 400-metre medley relay swim Monday and Lorre Fisher of Ocean Falls, B.C., smashed the Pan-American Games record for the women's 100-metre backstroke.

The Canadian quartet finished behind the United States and Argentina to give Canada its first third placing since the games got under way 19 days ago. Two Canadian girls came in fourth and fifth in the synchronized swimming individual competition.

And with eight Canadians already qualified in five events at 100-metre distances, the swimmers seem to have a golden opportunity to pick up a goodly number of points for Canada and perhaps even a gold medal.

Canada's third-place finish in the relay race was not accomplished without some official confusion.

The first report of the race placed Canada fifth and the summary of the race, released later in the evening, showed the Canadians in sixth place behind the U.S., Argentina, Mexico, Brazil and Cuba. But a re-check of the figures some hours after the race showed the Mexicans and Canadian teams had been transposed.

The race was strictly a duel between the U.S. and Argentina with the American winning by a good 6 feet in four minutes 29.1 seconds. The Canadians were third in 4:35.5 and Brazil wound up fourth in 4:38.2.

Miss Fisher, 18-year-old blonde Canadian backstroke champion, established a games record in winning the second qualifying heat of the 100-metre backstroke with a time of one minute, 16.8 seconds.

Miss Fisher and 14- year -old Sarah Barber of Brantford, Ont., who finished third in another heat, were among eight women who entered the finals for Thursday.

Canadian swimmers picked up a total of nine points Monday, the best day for Canada in the games. Based on the 10-5-4-3-2-1 method of scoring for the first six finishers, Canada captured four points in the men's swim, and five in the synchronized event to make it 13 all told for swimming.

In the unofficial team standing Canada was ninth with a total of 31 points. Canada earlier had picked up 17 points in track and field and two horsemanship.

The U.S. won gold medals in the relay race, placed first in the synchronized swimming, piled up a huge point score in gymnastics and shooting and captured three out of 10 boxing championships to Argentina's four.

The U.S. had a total of 911 points, Argentina 412½, Mexico 271, Chile 134 and Venezuela 96½.

Ella Lindell, 20-year-old Montreal receptionist, was fourth in the synchronized swimming with 37.57 points. Gisele Pouliot, secretary in the Quebec education department, captured fifth place with 35 points. Canada's luckless Vancouver Eilers dropped their sixth straight game in the women's basketball tournament, bowing to Chile 42-33.

HUMBOLDT WINS

HUMBOLDT, Sask. (CP)—Humboldt Indians defeated Regina Pats 5-3 Monday night to take the opening game in their western Memorial Cup semi-final series.

THE STANLEY CUP
Part 1

All sport is dotted with daring gambles that have added vastly to the drama. And the Stanley Cup, around which have centered far more than half a century some of the greatest thrills in Canadian sport, has provided many of these.

Perhaps the most daring of all chance-taking came about in the Stanley Cup finals of 1942, when Toronto Leafs faced Detroit Red Wings. After three games — it was 4-in-7 series — the Leafs' cause looked completely hopeless. Wings had won the first three games, the fourth was on Detroit ice, and victory for the Wings was regarded as a mere matter of form.

But Leafs gambled. Taking a desperate chance they shot in three youngsters to replace established stars. Big Gordie Drillon, one of the great all-time goal-getters, had scored 22 goals and was an all-star right winger for Leafs that year. Bouncing Bucko McDonald, now an MP, got second-team recognition on defence. But Detroit concentrated on Drillon right from the opening face-off. That slowed down Leafs' whole offence because it tied him up and left Syl Apps, at centre, without a scoring mate.

And up, by the end of the third game, Detroit, which finished fifth in the regular season and beat Montreal and defender Boston in the preliminary rounds, held a seemingly insurmountable lead. And then Leafs took one of the most dramatic gambles in Cup history. In a last minute switch, Ernie Dickens, who spent most of the season with Providence in the minor league, replaced Bucko McDonald on defence. Gaye Stewart, just rolled up from Hershey, took Hank Goldup's place. Leafs put Don Metz in for the scoring star, Drillon.

And with this revamped lineup, Leafs made Cup history. They won the Cup in four straight, the only time in playoff history that a team had the first three and came back to win.

Montreal Canadiens similarly dived with hockey fate in the Cup series of 1953. They met Chicago Black Hawks the first round, won the first two games. Then, suddenly, Hawks wheeled in their tracks, beat Canadiens three times in a row, and with the next game on Chicago ice, looked like scoring a stunning upset.

So Dick Irvin, veteran Canadien coach, gambled. He benched four regulars, goalie Meloff, Paul Meyer, Dick Gamble and Paul Masnick. He replaced these with four minor leaguers, goalie Jacques Plante, Lorne Davis and Calum McKay from Buffalo Bisons, Eddie Mazur from Victoria. Plante turned in a story-book game, scored a shut-out. Canadiens took two games, won the round and went on to beat Boston for the Cup.

Dutchmen Anticipate Tough 'Going' Against Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds

GUELPH (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who swept to victory in the Ontario Hockey Association championships, are looking for a tougher fight in the all-Ontario final with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

The best-of-seven series — an eastern-Canada Allan Cup semi-final—starts here Wednesday, continues Thursday, goes to the Soo March 26-28-29 and moves to Kitchener March 31. If necessary, the seventh game will be at Kitchener April 1 or 2.

The Twin-City club goes into the finals below top strength because of illness and injuries. Greyhounds have an experienced crew with more than half their players former professionals.

Dutchmen defeated Windsor Bulldogs 4-1 in games in the OHA senior finals. Sault won four straight against Abitibi Eskimos in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association finals.

But the OHA club wound up with goalie Donald Brodeur and defence man Joe Schertzl sidelined with injuries.

The club was negotiating for Bobby Gilliam of Owen Sound Mercurys to replace Brodeur. But Monday Gilliam said at Owen Sound he'd heard nothing since Sunday "and we hadn't reached an agreement then so I guess I won't be there."

Club officials said they cannot get a replacement for Brodeur and they'll miss the 200-pounder who played in the American Hockey League before joining Dutchmen last year.

The Sault lineup bristles with the names of good hockey players.

Right-winger Fern Flaman and Steve Wochy and centre Harry Taylor are all former National Hockey League players. Lund played with both New York Rangers and Boston Bruins and Wochy played with Detroit Red Wings. Taylor was with Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks.

Goalie Eddie Chadwick and defenceman John Forbes have each seen AHL service. Matt Minich, Carl Smelle and Lyall Wiseman, all defencemen, bounced around minor pro ranks before going to the Hounds.

Centre Kenny Watson, smallest team member, also has played in minor pro hockey.

Dutchmen's leftwinger Charlie Brooker is sidelined with the flu and may not dress Wednesday. Coach Bobby Bauer also is sick, with virus pneumonia.

If Bauer isn't well for the opener Bob Rafferty, coach of the 1953-53 Allan Cup champions, will handle the club.

Kitchener's first line will be led by centre Jackie Hamilton, former Maple Leaf player. Jack McFeeters is on right and Jim Logan, former Toronto St. Michael's Majors last season, on left. In 10 playoff games the trio scored 22 goals and 37 assists.

Their record rise has taken the hand of Ken Laudman, Gerry Theberge and George Scholes who led the club through the 30-game schedule.

On defence, Dutchmen have Clare Martin, former NHL star, Bud Kemp from Hamilton and Howie Lee, formerly with Toronto Marlboros.

The club has other troubles, too. Its home rink was destroyed by fire in Guelph because the Kitchener rink is tied up this week with an ice show.

Decided by a players' vote in sportsmanship balloting at the Sault, the switch will cost the club money. The Guelph rink holds 4,400; Kitchener nearly 8,000.

Yorkton Wins Over Vernon

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—Yorkton Terriers, sparked by the play of Adam Twarosky, exploded for five second-period goals here Monday night to defeat Vernon Canadians 8-4 in the fourth game of the Allan Cup quarter-final series.

Twarosky's passes set up four of the five Yorkton goals, and he scored in the second period. Vernon scored twice in the first period—both came in each of the second and third.

Red Sing and Bill Jones drove home two goals apiece for the winners with Ron Gratchuk also collecting the other. Vernon marksmen were Sherman Blair, Frank King, Allen Gilday and Otis Lyons.

The victory deadlocked the best-of-seven series at two games each.

SPIKE WILLIAMS REPORT

SARASOTA, Fla. (CP) — Boston Red Sox officials Monday termed the Ted Williams status as "unchanged" in denying published reports that the Sox slugger was on his way to the training camp here. Manager Mickey Higgins had Boston reporter Tom Fallows will be the first to know" in spiking reports that the club has been advised Williams will sign his contract today. Williams announced last season that he was retiring.

Cockerel Readies For Marciano

EASTBOURNE, England (AP)—Heavyweight Don Cockell fired the first intensive shots in the battle for the world title Monday—an eight-week campaign to lose weight and sharpen up for his world title fight in San Francisco with Rocky Marciano.

He shadow boxed six minutes, sparred nine, hit the light bag for 15, skipped rope for 18 and ran five miles.

Cockell has not fought since last July 30 when he knocked out Harry Matthews in Seattle in the eighth round. He probably is faster and a better boxer than Marciano but no one is likely to compare his punching power with the champion's.

Training Camp Notes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A couple of weeks ago Bucky Harris, manager of Detroit Tigers, said "I'm looking for this kid Frank Lary to take his turn as a starting pitcher this year." But Bucky has been taking a good look at the 24-year-old righthander ever since.

Thus far, Lary has worked 11 innings for the Tigers, more than any other hurler in Tigers' Lakeland, Fla., camp. He's up from Buffalo, where he had a 15-11 record last season, including a seven-inning no-hitter.

Monday the kid blanked Baltimore through four innings. The other rookies, Paul Foytack and Babe Birrer, continued the whitewash the rest of the way as Detroit won 4-0.

It was Tigers' fifth victory in 12 spring decisions and their first shutout.

BRAVES ON TOP

Three homers came as Milwaukee Braves defeated Chicago White Sox 8-2. Andy Pafko, Billy Bruton and Joe Adcock recorded the homers to boost Braves atop the grapefruit league standings with an 8-4 record. Milwaukee rookie Humberto Robinson retired the 12 men he faced after coming on in the sixth.

Cleveland Indians held on to defeat New York Giants 3-2. Al Rosen's two-run single in the ninth broke up a 1-1 tie.

Indians, incidentally, also came up with a signed contract from Bobby Avila, the Tribe's hoitest batting champion. Avila finally consented to the same contract he scrubbed last week, reported to call for $27,000 and Monday added $2,000 in bonuses. He got about $18,000 last season.

Ted Kluszewski hit a home run to put Cincinnati back into the ball game at 12-3 in the eighth, and Johnny Temple singled home the winning run with two out in the ninth as Pittsburgh lost 13-12.

St. Louis not only lost to Philadelphia 3-2, but rookie first-baseman Tom Casagrande, X-rays didn't show a fracture, but Cunningham will be out for two or three days.

New York Yankees, finally warming up for the regular season, whipped the Brooklyn Dodgers 13-5 with Bill Skowron and Bob Cerv each getting four hits.

Football Union Asks Change In Broadcasts

OTTAWA (CP) — The Interprovincial Rugby Football Union is asking the CBC board of governors to change broadcasting regulations on reconstructed play-by-play radio broadcasts.

The Big Four, with teams in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton, made an amendment to prevent stations from reconstructing a play-by-play broadcast of events unless consent of participating organizations has been obtained."

The league's application will be heard at a public meeting of the CBC board here April 13.

At present, CBC regulations forbid reconstructed broadcasts of sport or other events until after the end of the event. A reconstructed broadcast must be identified as such at the start and end of the broadcast and at 15-minute intervals during the program if it lasts more than 15 minutes.

Oxygen Feature At Games

MEXICO CIT Y(AP)—Probably never before in any major sports show such as the Pan-American Games has so much oxygen been used.

An oxygen tank here is as essential to sports as the ball, bat and glove. Athletes, officials, winners and losers alike, head for a whiff of oxygen as soon as they finish an event.

Most common plaints of the competing athletes are short breath and "heavy, dead legs."

SUMMED IT UP

That was the way United States Olympic championship star Mal Whitfield, the runner, Jimmy McLane, the swimmer, and Chuck Logg, Jr., the rower, summed it up.

We've helped carry out four athletes on a stretcher. As soon as they were given oxygen they were on their feet," said Logg, their other fellows lug out hurdling champion Josh Culbreath, "we needed a little refresher from the oxygen tank, too.

The doctors and trainers as well as most athletes believe the 15% mile altitude and its fair affects distance more primarily. But double sprint champion Rod Richard told me "it affects the sprinters, too. It hurts our recuperative powers."

Japanese Girl Is Trained From Childhood to Please Man

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What makes so many American boys marry Japanese girls? Japanese film star Shirley Yamaguchi offers this explanation:

"In America, the man does everything he can to please the woman. But the Japanese girl is trained from childhood to please the man."

Shirley, who has made more than 20 films in Japan, is here for her second American film, "House of Bamboo." (She made "I was a Japanese War Bride" in 1951.) The new film shows her as a G.I.'s widow who becomes romantically involved with Robert Stack.

From "Madam Butterfly" to "Teahouse of the August Moon," the Japanese-American love match has been popular in the arts. The American occupation of Japan produced thousands of east - west unions. I sought the reason from the viewpoint of a Japanese girl.

"We want to make a man as comfortable as possible," explained Shirley, who was born in the suburbs of Japanese Manchuria. "When a man is in the house, I don't like so see him working when I want to do things for him. It makes me uncomfortable to have men do so few things."

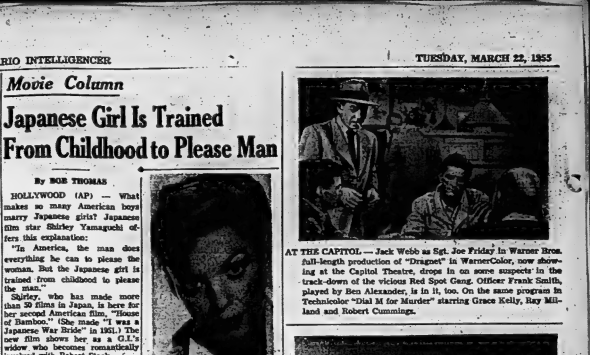
Japanese women now can vote, divorce more easily and enjoy other privileges they didn't know before the occupation. But they still consider pleasing the parents their prime duty in life, she said.

"It is something we are trained in since childhood," she said. "Also, Japanese women haven't the economic independence that depend 'on the men to support them."

Although the Japanese woman reject the American notion of competing with men, the girls have adopted some of the feminizing methods that Shirley has reported. She is one of those responsible for the Westernizing. You may recall that she made a strong publicized trip to Hollywood to investigate the "new look" coming out of the screen, which was then taboo in the Japanese movies.

"Nowadays kissing is very common in films over there," she said. "But you still don't see it in public. To the Japanese, any show of affection before other people—even the touch of a hand—is considered in bad taste."

Shirley has also helped to revolutionize the traditional kimono.



"The manufacturers cut the cloth the same side for all women," she explained. "That meant that small girls like myself had a lot of material left over and it had to be wrapped around the middle. That gave me both to the figure at all."

So she cut off the material herself, eliminating the many folds of cloth and accenting the feminine curves. Many of the Japanese women have followed suit. The bust is more apparent now in Japanese dress, but she said that is still not a prime element of attraction, as in this country. They consider the nape of the neck more important.

Football Game

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You should know by now that a takeout to a new suit is forcing for one round. Only if the chain of new suits has been broken, that is, if anything but a new suit has been mentioned.

Your south partner opens with a bid of one spade when you have the north hand shown here:

♠ Q 8 6 3
♥ 8 6
♦ K 7 4 2
♣ 10 9 5

The bidding starts off like this:

South	North
1 Spade	2 Spades
3 Diamonds

What do you see in the hand held by your south partner? What is he asking you to do? What are you going to do about it with the hand you hold? Bid three spades? Why?

Your assist broke the chain of new suit takeouts. Therefore, the takeout to a new suit by your partner does not force you to bid again. If so, why do you with no additional tricks.

Among other things you know he has at least eight black cards in the two suits mentioned, and more than five red cards. This should help you with the bid that is not important to you in this case.

Not being forced to bid you could pass if you had nothing more to show. But you have something more to show and your partner knows it. Why? If you prefer spades to diamonds you can say so.

Why can you say so without additional tricks? Because taking it back to spade bases does not increase the partnership number. All of which your partner knew when he bid three diamonds.

He did not know and had only three tricks. So his second bid gave you a chance to show if you had four. With a fourth trick you could bid four spades instead of three.

Some second bids are not as silly as they sound.

242½ Miles Of Mining Access Roads Proposed

TORONTO (CP)—Mines Minister Kelly today announced plans for constructing 242½ miles of mining access roads in northern Ontario. This will almost double the mileage built in the last four years by the department.

Mr. Kelly said in the Ontario legislature work will be started on the roads as soon as the weather and ground conditions are favorable. It will be carried out by the department of highways.

The longest of the new roads, 42 miles, will connect the town of Hornepayne to a point on No. 11 Hornepayne at present has no direct link with the outside world.

A 22-mile road is to link the town of Nakina on the CNR main line with Geraldton, Mr. Kelly said it is expected the road will require three years for completion. A third project is the grading of a six-mile stretch of road from Sioux Lookout to Alcona on the CNR.

Rehabilitation of the existing road running from Matheson to the Timiskaming road, a distance of 36 miles, is planned among other projects. Grading and gravelling on a 12-mile stretch running from Palmar to Foleyet will soon be underway.

Thirty-two miles of the road running south from Dubreto to Manitouwadge has been taken over from the pulp and paper company. The 32-mile stretch of road is to be improved or re-built to a standard which will permit use by heavy trucks.

Construction of a 41-mile road eastward from Killarney on the north shore of Lake Huron will probably require two or three years to complete. When it is finished the town, which now can be reached only by water, will be linked with the south of Roslin which is being built from Sudbury to Gravenhurst.

CHILD IS LUCKY

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—Three-year-old Kathleen Chalmers was struck by a locomotive Monday. He fell between the rails and the train ran over five boxcars. Apart from minor scratches he was not injured.

AFTER 30 YEARS

Steve Vuchkoff, 57, hugs his mother, Sofia, 86, when she arrives in Canada after a journey from Greece. They hadn't seen each other in 30 years. Mr. Vuchkoff of Chatham, left Greece when he was young for Canada. War interfered with his plans to bring out his mother. (CP Photo).

Graham Starts Harvest of Souls In Glasgow Hall

GLASGOW (AP) — Billy Graham's all-Scotland religious crusade got off to a flying start Monday night. The "harvest of souls" from the 12-day evangelistic jamboree four-acre Kelvin Hall was the greatest ever, the American evangelist said.

Hundreds responded to Graham's pleas to make "decisions for Christ" and filed off into a side room for a private word with the evangelist. No exact check could be made on the number, but Graham said he had never had such a reaction at an evangelical meeting.

Almost all the Protestant religious notables of Scotland appeared on the platform for the opening of Graham's six-week salvation drive. There was no sign of the dissension which some had feared, and the reaction when he asked for "decisions" stilled the forecasts of some clergymen that traditionally reserved Scots would not respond to his type of evangelism.

WITH BOWED HEAD

Graham stood in the consulting room with the head in a high throng of penitents filed in. Most of them were women.

"It's not I who did it," he murmured into the microphones. "It's God at work. Don't give me the credit for it, because if you do you will spoil my ministry. The glory is God's."

Graham told his audience that through the weeks they would live to be 1,000,000 years old.

"You feed your body, brush your hair, put on your shoes and wear clothes," he said, "and it's all for the body which dies like grass withers. But for the soul, which goes on and on, you do so little."

City services were mobilized to care for the crowd attending the service. Streetcars and buses waited for many blocks on all sides of Kelvin Hall. Officers with walkie-talkies directed the shepherding the worshippers to the doors.

Nicolet Plans Reconstruction

NICOLET, Que. (CP)—Municipal authorities, with the help of the Red Cross, have made plans today to rebuild the heart of this town and find homes for 200 persons forced into the streets by a $1,000,000 fire.

The ruins of 35 buildings, covering nine blocks of the business district were still smouldering when the town council met Monday in emergency session.

Committees were appointed, under the supervision of Red Cross workers from Quebec, to launch a relief fund; to find temporary shelter, food and clothing for the homeless; and to draw plans for reconstruction of the business district. The first contributor was Bishop Albertus Martin of Nicolet who pledged $5,000.

FLY EGGS TO KOREA

SEOUL (AP) — Sixty thousand fertilized duck eggs will be flown from The Netherlands to South Korea April 1 in a Royal Dutch Airlines plane. The eggs were donated by the Heifer Project, but a United States voluntary aid organization comprising some Protestant churches, which sent ducks to Korea 216,000 hatching chicken eggs, 97-week goats and 292 pigs in 1952, and a number of rabbits, goats and bees last year.

Noseworthy Says Globe Report Is 'Startling'

OTTAWA (CP)—Joseph W. Noseworthy, CCF member for York South, Monday asked in the Commons for government comment on what he described as a newspaper report of "alleged political interference" in granting of contracts for the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Mr. Noseworthy said the report in the Toronto Globe and Mail is "startling."

Leopold Langlois, parliamentary assistant to Transport Minister Marler, said he had not read the report but added that all contracts awarded by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority have been made through public advertisements for tenders.

"In each case the lowest tenderer has received the contract," he said, answering the question in the absence of Mr. Marler.

The Globe and Mail report concerned two Cornwall, Ont., firms—Heartland Carriers Ltd. and Coleman-Munro Ltd.—which held contracts under which private trucks are worked on a three dam connected with the power project.

Following a recent work stoppage by truckers, it said, the companies had been by-passed as middlemen in favor of direct dealings between the truckers and the main contractor, Atlantic-Redmond of Montreal.

The paper said there are 70 directors of Heartland Carriers, which received a fee of about eight per cent of hauling costs, and that some said they had set up the firm last October at one way of getting compensation for the increased amount of work we have done on behalf of the Hydro party."

(It added that several men prominent in Cornwall district Progressive Conservative organizations also had been taken into the company as shareholders.)

WANTS ARE TESTED

LONDON (AP)—A member of Parliament suggested Monday that weather data from both sides of the Iron Curtain check the atmosphere for radioactivity, they exchange notes. Labor member Arthur Henderson said such an effort should be made in the interests of the world being dangerously polluted by test explosions of nuclear weapons.

TO INSTALL TESTERS

TORONTO (CP)—A device for police to test suspected drunk drivers as soon as they are arrested may soon be put to "as many police stations as possible," a medico-legal expert said Monday. Prof. Joslyn Rogers, consultant to the attorney-general's department, said breathalizers—devices used to measure the amount of alcohol consumed by a person breathing into them—will enable police to make immediate tests without outside chemical analysis.

Will Resume Unemployment Debate in House

OTTAWA (CP)—Rising unemployment comes in for another round of debate in Parliament today.

It now is certain also that the unemployment problem, with Canada having more jobless than at any time since the Second World War, will be up before the federal-provincial meeting of premiers starting April 26.

A stimulus to discussion of the issue came Monday as the government made public its monthly employment survey, placing figures at post-war highs in the two groups of statistics it uses to calculate the total jobless.

DEMAND PROGRAM

Following release of the new figures, there were three developments:

1. Labor chief demanded a program of action through the April meeting of government heads to reduce unemployment.

2. The federal government set up for today a resumption in the Commons of the sporadic unemployment debate that already has preceded five sitting days since March 1.

The new figures on unemployment swept up fresh ammunition for opposition speakers firing at the government on its employment policies. However, there was some expectation the drawn-out debate might be curtailed by consent of the parties.

'Junior Grade' A-Bomb Tested On Nevada Flats

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The third atomic test of the 1955 series, believed to be a "junior grade" shot, was triggered by the United States Atomic Energy Commission at 5:05 a. m. PST (8:05 a. m. EST) today.

The explosion was seen here, 75 miles from the test site, as a quick white flash with a diminishing orange color that lingered for a second or two.

The blast was also seen in Los Angeles, 250 miles away, where the white and orange brightness illuminated the intervening mountains.

The cloud from the blast rose high and fast.

MARINES MANOEUVRE

It was assumed that as scheduled 3,000 Marines were taking part in atomic warfare manoeuvres in the area of the blast site.

Eight hundred marines were poised in trenches 3,500 yards from the detonation tower. After the explosion they were to move into loading zones and board helicopters for an airborne attack on simulated objectives in the blast area.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

W. A. Sponsors Hot Supper, Program

WHITE'S DISTRICT — The White's Woman's Association entertained about 150 guests to a hot supper at White's Church on Thursday evening, with decorations in keeping with St. Patrick's Day. The tables were loaded with good things to eat, as the hostesses and guests were happy.

All later repaired to the nave of the church where a program was provided. The Rev. R. W. T. Middleton, as chairman, welcomed the guests and called on Messrs. Joe Lock and Dixon for a guitar duet, "It Is No Secret," and "The Mocking Bird." Mr. and Mrs. Donald Anderson sang "This Old House," accompanied by Mr. Anderson on the accordion. Mr. Middleton contributed a solo, "Just Tread on the Tail of Me Coat." Mr. Anderson gave a musical number on his accordion, "The Kerry Dance." Mrs. Anderson sang "Open Up Your Heart," accompanied by Mr. Anderson.

MOCK WEDDING

A mock wedding was staged, with Mrs. Verna Waldron playing quiet music. Mrs. Leonard Young acted as commentator as each participant appeared. Mr. Clayton Sickels ably acted as the minister, the Rev. C. R. Fickle. The soloist, Miss Ina Shore, was Mr. B. Westover, who sang after the ceremony, "Let Me Go, Lover."

Guests were: Miss Georgina Crunchenscraker, played by Mervyn Bowers; Mrs. Alberta Bugenhopper, played by Albert Case; Miss Maggie Rattletrap, portrayed by Raven Hunt; Miss Maddie Creepenpop, who was Clifton Rush; Donald Bowers as Miss Abigail Couchman and Master Gary Gingras as Miss Rose Fairface, accompanied by her friend, Gary Bumpstead, who was Miss Anne Blong.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Melissa Watermeter, was portrayed by Albert Hockaday, while the bride's mother, Mrs. Gilbert Smith, was acted by Gilbert Sarjet. The ushers were: Misses Gail Gingras and Marilyn Bowers. There were two uninvited guests, Mr. and Mrs. Zachariah Peppercrood, acted by Mrs. Clayton Sickels and Mrs. Lorne Hunt.

The groom, John Watermeter, was Mrs. B. Westover, ably supported by Mrs. Floyd Sandercock, as best man. The bridesmaid, Miss Lillie Hasbechaddem, was a Gary Jackson. The flower girl, Miss Amaretta Clawhammer, was John Hunt and the ring bearer, Bimbo, was Lawrence Dafoe.

Last, but not least, came the bride, Saray Smith, acted by Lorne Hunt, leaning on her father's arm, Mr. Gilbert Bilham.

The Rev. Fickle eventually tied the knot, and the bridal party repaired to parts unknown.

The Rev. R. W. T. Middleton gave the final number on the program, "Molly Malone," accompanied by Mrs. Waldron.

"The Queen" brought to a close a fine program arranged by Mrs. Albert Hockaday and Mrs. Lorne Hunt under the leadership of the president, Mrs. Casey Ketcheson.

Frost and Oliver Squabble Over Highway Irregularities

TORONTO (CP)—A bitter debate on highways irregularities between Premier Frost and Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver took place in the Ontario legislature Monday. The unexpected spirited debate, which A. Kelso Roberts (PC—Toronto St. Patrick) referred to as a speech made by Mr. Oliver at Windsor.

Before the House adjourned for the day the premier made accusations of "perversions of the truth" and "political shenanigans."

Mr. Roberts, chairman of the legislature committee which investigated highway irregularities, said he was disturbed at the report of the speech which quoted Mr. Oliver as saying the committee had not been concerned with bringing out the truth about irregularities.

DENIES STATEMENTS

The Toronto member said the committee "diligently did its job." There was no truth in the statement attributed to Mr. Oliver.

Mr. Oliver said Mr. Roberts was attempting to defend a course of action which could not rightfully be defended because opposition members had been refused the right to call witnesses who might have given information relative to the investigation.

"The honorable member can not stand in this place and say the truth has all come out," said Mr. Oliver. "He doesn't know whether all the truth is out or not."

The premier then asked Mr. Oliver if he was aware half the witnesses were available the day after he and two other opposition members of the committee walked from a meeting.

A second bitter exchange developed later in the day when Arthur J. Reaume (L — Essex North) suggested the reason the government refused to call a royal commission to investigate the irregularities was that it feared facts which might be brought out.

PREMIER'S STATEMENT

This led to a statement by the premier which he later retracted.

He suggested Mr. Reaume, former mayor of Windsor, "get down into the sewer where he belongs" and demanded the statement be withdrawn.

"Perhaps it is that my friend prefers to get down on his hands and knees in the mud," the premier said.

Mr. Reaume then accused the government of not paying living wages to permanent civil servants. The premier then suggested he perhaps should not have withdrawn his sewer reference.

UPHOLDS PAY

Provincial Secretary W. M. Nickle then entered the fray briefly to comment that he believes civil servants in Ontario receive pay comparable to other places.

Premier Frost had said earlier the leader of the Opposition made different speeches in the legislature than he did outside. "He tells one story outside the House but when he is in the House he is as meek as Moses."

Mr. Frost said he resents Mr. Oliver going about the country accusing him of trying to hide public the truth about the matter of highways irregularities.

He said a report that the government is attempting to blame Miss Lillie Hasbechaddem, was a perversion of the truth and completely unfair.

DEFENDS PROBE

In a lengthy defense of the government's investigation the premier said public accounts should be studied in the legislature, "not at Hamilton or Stratford."

Mr. Oliver replied opposition members, as long as the liberty of speech exists in the province, will speak in and out of the House on estimates.

"We will say what we believe to be the truth."

The House finally settled down to consideration of the $175,000 000 highways department estimates for the year starting April 1.

Commons Rejects PC Motion On Appointments

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Monday voted 130 to 36 to reject a Progressive Conservative motion which would have denied cabinet ministers the right to membership on the House's estimates committee when their departments are under review.

The motion by Davie Fulton (PC —Kamloops) would have blocked a government move to name Northern Affairs Minister Lesage to the committee, which soon will begin study of northern affairs department spending plans.

The Progressive Conservative proposal found support from only one member of other opposition groups—Harold E. Winch (CCF—Vancouver East). All other CCF members, the Social Credit group and three independents voted with the Liberals.

Mr. Fulton's move was the latest involving procedure of the estimates committee, established this year for the first time. Earlier he had opposed in the committee the appointment of Immigration Minister Pickerscill as a member when immigration estimates were under review.

ARGUES AGAINST PRESENCE

He argued that the presence of Mr. Pickerscill as a member had turned every proposal made in committee into a test of confidence in the government. Ministers should appear before the committee only as witnesses.

Mr. Pickeragill said Mr. Fulton was spreading "ideas pretty subversive of parliamentary government."

The basis of Canada's system was ministerial responsibility. Ministers had to be given all the rights of private members in order to retain the necessary confidence of a majority in the Commons. That included the right to sit on committees. It was the only way in which they could be responsible for information given the committee by departmental officials.

CCF whip Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg North Centre, supported the argument of Mr. Pickeragill that each party in the House has the right to propose its own members for committees.

Mr. Winch said that argument was an attempt to camouflage the principle of the issue. It was a question of opposing the appointment of cabinet ministers to committees studying their departmental estimates. Ministers were being given the right to sit as a judge on themselves.

CCF Leader Coldwell and Social Credit Leader Lowe supported the government's stand.

Mr. Coldwell said the minister can sit in the Commons supply committee, which is a committee of the whole House. Therefore he should be able to sit on the estimates committee which was, in effect, a sub-committee on supply.

Mr. Low said the estimates committee was set up to investigate departmental estimates, not departments. The government might weaken its position by appointing a minister to the committee but it still had the right to do so.

Opposition Leader Drew said Mr. Fulton's motion is not subversive of responsible government as Mr. Pickeragill had said. It was intended to give reality to responsibility in government.

The purpose of an estimates committee should be to provide an opportunity for discovering facts about the administration.

The suggestions that opposition parties might fear Liberal retaliation in future appointments of their own members to committees was going a long way in denying government responsibility.

$5,000,000 Fire Burns Top-Secret Equipment at Avro

Preliminary Investigation Rules Out Possible Sabotage

TORONTO (CP) — A. V. Roe Company officials said today a preliminary investigation of Tuesday night's $5,000,000 fire at its Malton airport hangar has "entirely ruled out the possibility of sabotage."

The fire destroyed three of Avro's defence-test aircraft and expensive testing equipment.

Officials said it was no coincidence that a security officer accidentally saw the start of the blaze since it is part of his task to be present at all times to spot any such emergency.

Two inquiries, one by insurance underwriters and the other by department of transport investigators, have been ordered.

The blaze set back by six months the engine test development program of A. V. Roe of Canada aircraft manufacturing arm, Orenda Ltd., the country's major military

Burned in the hangar were the jet all-weather CF-100 Mark IV rocket-firing CF-105s and a Sabre, described as so new that information on it is restricted—and a converted Lancaster bomber, known as a "flying testbed."

Also destroyed were experimental engines, accessories and special handling equipment valued at $250,000 and the latest in flying instruments.

WIND SHOOK BUILDING

Fire broke out in the hangar, leased to A. V. Roe by the department of transport, while winds up to 80 miles an hour buffetted the building.

A short circuit in a switch box, followed by a small explosion, set the building ablaze. Firemen said the wind shook the hangar and it is believed the structure's wiring broke loose from the constant pulling and the stretching overnight to short in the switch box.

Three cars, owned by Avro employees and parked between the hangars, were destroyed. As a precaution, aircraft in the nearby Toronto Flying Club hangar were rolled onto the tarmac and a number were damaged when flipped over by the wind.

Avro's vice-president and manager Dennis Cather said one aircraft did four circuits of the field, remained aloft and to club aircraft at $1,000.

Ron Williams, chief Avro public relations officer, said loss to Avro Aircraft Ltd., and Orenda Engines Ltd., subsidiaries of A. V. Roe, would total $5,000,000. No estimate of the value of the hangar was available.

Williams said the companies' development programs will be set back about six months by the loss, but production would not be affected Avro production plants are not in the same vicinity.

LIBERAL URGES DEFICIT FINANCING TO REDUCE TAXES

Measure Proposed To Boost Employment

OTTAWA (CP) — A $400,000,000 plunge into deficit financing, the benefits going to income tax payers has been suggested to the government by one of its supporters.

J. W. G. Hunter (L — Toronto Parkdale) made the proposal last night as a measure to boost employment.

He said in the Commons that if Finance Minister Harris delivers next year's budget speech with a deficit in his $955-56 budget and passes the amount on to purchasers through income tax cuts, the annual deficit probably would be about $60,000,000.

Mr. Hunter spoke during an unemployment debate after Mr. Harris announced he will present his budget to Parliament April 5.

The Toronto lawyer said he has no idea what will be in the budget but, a rumor going around was that a $60,000,000 deficit is planned for the fiscal year starting June 1.

NOTHING SPECIFIC

Mr. Hunter is the third Liberal member to suggest deficit financing as a temporary-measure during the off-again-on-again unemployment debate. Others, David Croll, Toronto Spadina, and Charles Henry, Toronto East, have not proposed any specific figure, however.

The unemployment debate, which has run up six days since it began March 1, continues today, but has been given fresh impetus by Tuesday's government announcement of figures showing unemployment reached new post-war peaks in mid-February.

Split to be voted on were Progressive Conservative and CCF motions of non-confidence in the government over the issue.

Prince Charles To Get Uniform From Canadians

MONTREAL (CP) — Prince Charles will soon get a uniform his size—of Montreal Canadiens hockey sweater from four-year-old Normand Richard saying he hopes the two of them will some day play for the Montreal Canadiens in Hockey League club.

Managing director Frank Selke of Canadiens said Tuesday night that the uniform and note will be sent along with the autographed puck with which Maurice (Rocket) Richard scored the 400th goal of his NHL career last November.

Selke had previously announced the sweater was being sent to Her Majesty, who attended a game in Montreal in 1951. He had left when she was Princess Elizabeth.

The suit for Prince Charles will be identical to one already owned by Normand Richard, the Rocket's son.

Taxpayers May Hear Good News On Budget Night

OTTAWA (CP)—Taxpayers: If you keep an ear cocked toward Parliament Hill, you might hear good news the night of April 5.

That's the night expense-scrutinizing Walter Harris, new finance minister, presents his first federal budget. There's more than a suspicion that he will reduce some taxes.

The cuts—if they do materialize —won't be big, and nobody except the minister and a few close advisers will be in what direction they may strike. However, what cuts there are and what taxes aren't raised will affect the family budget in the fiscal year beginning April 1.

Mr. Harris, the 39-year-old minister who took over the finance portfolio from Walter Edwards Tuesday he plans to bring down the government's budget at 8 p.m. EST Tuesday, April 5. That's the evening before Parliament starts a 32-day Easter recess.

It will disclose how close the government has come to balancing its accounts for the fiscal year ending March 31. In his budget of last April former finance minister D. C. Abbott, now a justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, estimated for a virtual balance.

Mr. Abbott looked for a surplus of $4,000,000, miniscule against the proposed spending of $4,460,000,000. Unofficial reports are that this will be turned into a deficit of perhaps $100,000,000 by the new budget day.

For the year starting April 1, Mr. Harris has been under considerable pressure to cut taxes. He has been deluged with representations asking for a cut in the imposts on everything from personal income to automobile tires.

Wants Canadian Flag

TORONTO (CP)—Jean-Francois Pouliot, Liberal member of Parliament for Temiscouta, said Tuesday night the time has come for a "distinctive and official" Canadian flag, bearing only one emblem, the maple leaf.

Speaking to the Toronto Junior Board of Trade, he said the Union Jack could fly alongside a new national flag but should not supersede it.

"Too many English-Canadians continue to be more British than Canadian and reject every project for a standard that does not include the Union flag," he said.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synoptic: March gales are still blowing across the lower lakes region this morning. It will diminish somewhat during the day, and skies will gradually clear, as the low pressure area causing this blustery weather moves off through Quebec. Another disturbance moving across Minnesota will bring a few snowflurries to southern Ontario tonight, following Tuesday by moderate to cold weather throughout the province.

Jury of Scientists to Give Verdict On Salk Vaccine for Polio April 12

NEW YORK (AP)—April 12 is the date and Ann Arbor, Mich., the place for a jury of scientists to give the verdict on the value of the Salk vaccine in preventing paralytic polio.

The announcement will be made by Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., of the University of Michigan, head of a team which has been analyzing the results of Salk vaccine trials involving nearly 2,000,000 children.

The April 12 press conference at Ann Arbor will mark the world-wide question of whether the vaccine signals the end of polio, was announced Tuesday night by Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and Dr. Harlan Hatcher, president of the University of Michigan.

O'Connor and Hatcher gave no hint whether the vaccine protects children, or how well, but there is widespread optimism that Salk vaccinations can end paralytic polio.

The report on the tests is favorable and if the vaccine is licensed by the national institutes of health, about 28,000,000 persons, mostly children, are expected to receive vaccinations this year.

Dr. Francis has said vaccinations for all children in the first and second grades in the United States public, private and parochial schools and also some in the University of Michigan, head of the polio foundation, which will pay the vaccine.

Last year Salk vaccine was given to 440,000 children in the Iowa, Canada and Illinois-Kansas shots of useless material were given to 210,000 other children so there could be a comparison of the two. The tests have been going during the polio season. About 1,180,000, given no shots of either kind, were watched to see if they developed polio.

In some areas where the tests were made, there was no revelation whether a child getting shots was receiving the real vaccine. This will be disclosed if the vaccine is approved and real vaccine will be offered to the children who got the blank shots.

U.K.'s Newest Tank to Take Up Watch on Rhine

Every inch "a conqueror," Britain's newest tank, a 65-ton mobile fortress, is shown taking a quagmire ditch at full speed during a test in Carnarvon, England. The conqueror has a maximum road speed of 20 miles an hour and carries a crew of four. (Central Press Canadian.)

Municipalities Get $7,250,000 Gift from Ontario Govt.

TORONTO (CP) — Unconditional grants to Ontario municipalities for education, for welfare work and unemployment, relief have been announced by Premier Frost.

At a press conference Tuesday, the premier said $3,750,000 in grants will be paid immediately toward welfare and unemployment relief and $3,500,000 toward education costs.

The unemployment and welfare grants will be paid on an interim basis for 1955 pending a Dominion-provincial conference. He said, the subject of unemployment will be thoroughly reviewed at the conference.

The grants are in addition to those announced under the Municipal Unconditional Grants Act. The unemployment subsidy is based on one-half the grant paid under the act.

"This grant will be for special welfare services and special works projects such as the municipalities in their wisdom may decide upon," he said. "There is no requirement that the municipalities should in any way match the payment."

In the legislature Tuesday, Welfare Minister Goodfellow said the Ontario government is willing to match any increase the federal government might make in old-age assistance payments.

The House was discussing welfare department estimates of $35,-000,000 for the coming fiscal year. Mr. Goodfellow said: "If the federal government is still unwilling to take this step, it could, in another way, make it possible for many old age assistance cases to enjoy an improved standard of living by raising the ceiling on maximum incomes permitted under its legislation."

The provincial and federal governments now share on a 50-50 basis the $40-a-month assistance payments to persons between 65 and 70 if a means test shows they need the assistance.

Her federal government bears the cost of the old-age pensions of $40-a-month paid to all persons over 70.

Mr. Goodfellow introduced a bill which would expand the province's rehabilitation services.

Under the bill, rehabilitation of persons not covered by war service pensions or allowances and compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act. Such persons would be able to develop skills to enable them to earn a living, Mr. Goodfellow said.

Earlier in the day, Premier Frost told the legislature Canadian Combustion Ltd., had been granted Ontario Hydro contracts worth $2,096,899 in addition to its fre-viously announced contracts since August, 1948.

The firm won the contracts in competitive bidding, the premier said.

Attlee's Move Gives Bevan Chance to Fight Expulsion

LONDON (Reuters) — Labor party leaders today voted 14 to 13 to give left-wing rebel Aneurin Bevan a last-ditch chance to argue against his expulsion from the party for defying Labor leader Clement Attlee.

Ironically, the narrow vote, saving the rebellious Welshman from immediate expulsion, resulted from Attlee's unexpected decision to back away from his earlier threat.

The party's national executive then voted for Attlee's proposal to set up a special committee where Bevan may answer the party leaders he will no longer violate their unions and general policy.

Labor quarters said the narrowness of the vote means Bevan is still in grave danger of expulsion. Some Labor leaders forecast that Bevan will be unwilling to make a fully satisfactory "confession" to the party's right wing.

Bevan last week was banned from the party's parliamentary organization for failing to accept majority decisions.

The 58-year-old Welshman's chance to talk his way back into the party's good graces will come in the meeting with the special committee.

Bevan's quarrel with Attlee's moderate leadership goes back almost to the time when he quit the Labor cabinet in a clash over the high defence budget.

Since then he has openly criticized Labor's support of the German rearmament treaty and southeast Asian policy. He is a bitter critic of American foreign policy.

Soldier Could Not Stand Quiet of Camp

LONDON (AP)—The defending counsel told an army court-martial Tuesday that Londoner Denis Barber went absent without leave from a recruits' training camp because of the "deafening quiet."

The officer said Barber, 18, loved the noise and bustle of the big town and was unable to adjust to the stillness of the camp at Catterick, in remote Yorkshire.

The court-martial sentenced him to 28 days of guardhouse quiet.

FRENCH SENATE OPENS DEBATE ON PARIS PACTS

Anticipate Approval Without Alterations

By CARL HARTMAN

PARIS (AP) — West German rearmament came up for debate in the French Senate today in what the British and United States governments hoped would be the final parliamentary step in France's ratification of the Paris treaties.

Observers generally predict that the pacts to enlist West German troops in Western defence will be approved without change in the Senate vote expected late Friday. The treaties then would go to President Rene Coty for his signature. The National Assembly approved them Dec. 30.

About 20 senators are slated to speak in the debate in the Council of the Republic, as the French Upper House is called officially.

If the council accepts the treaties as they stand, the Western Allies will have lopped one of the biggest hurdles in bringing the Bonn republic into their defence alignment. Four smaller signatories have been waiting for a French decision before committing themselves on ratification.

ASKS AMENDMENT

The biggest fight is expected to develop on an amendment proposed by Senator Yvon Coude du Foresto in behalf of the French aircraft production committee. This would seek to postpone ratification until France and the Saar conclude a new economic agreement now in the works.

The complex of Paris treaties includes a French-German agreement on the Saar, proposed by man-speaking Saar. The small border industrial area has been autonomous but economically tied to France since the war.

French and Saar negotiators reached agreement last weekend on the main provisions of a future economic convention which would preserve a great deal of French economic control over the area.

Ore Train Falls Down Shaft At Timmins Mine

TIMMINS (CP)—An ore train plunged down a vertical shaft from a horizontal passageway half a mile underground in the McIntyre gold mine early today.

No one was injured. But officials said the unusual accident in one of Canada's richest mines may put 1,250 hardrock miners out of work for weeks.

Seven night-shift miners missed death by about 10 minutes. They had been hauled to the surface up the 2,800-foot shaft about 2:30 a.m. The train plunged down the shaft shortly afterwards.

Ten miners, trapped on the level below the 2,815-foot level from which the train fell, were finally reached the surface through the adjoining shaft by means of a cage, tyre and Hollinger mines. They were hoisted to the surface at the McIntyre.

OTHERS CLIMB OUT

Two other men climbed ladders up the 3,500-foot level to the 2,800-foot level and were hoisted at No. 6 shaft at the McIntyre.

M. L. Urquhart, McIntyre mine manager, said he could give no estimate on how long mine or any indication how long operations will be suspended.

Three Fishermen, Missing in Gale, Spotted On Island

Worst Storm Since Hurricane Hazel Hits West Ontario

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Central Canada counted its loss in dead, injured and dollars today in the wake of its worst storm since hurricane Hazel claimed 81 lives in a wicked sweep last October.

In many southern Ontario areas, the storm was described by oldtimers as the worst in memory. Its human toll—three were missing and five others were hospitalized—was light, however, by standards of the 1954 storm which took 81 lives in Ontario and Quebec.

Its effects were felt, too, in Quebec, clogging highways and disrupting plane schedules.

Miraculously, only eight persons were injured seriously enough to require hospital attention. Nine persons had to be rescued from their homes by boat and hundreds were evacuated from flooded homes and threatened areas.

The height of the storm in the Toronto area, a $5,000,000 fire razed a hangar at Malton, destroying three of Canada's most-advanced aircraft and extensive experimental equipment.

Today, the storm centre moved eastward, where the open spaces of James bay drained its power. Behind the centre, winds blowing to 40 miles an hour remained over southern Ontario and Quebec, most of their sting gone.

The heavy rains and snows that accompanied winds as high as 87 miles an hour had dwindled to scattered showers and snow flurries.

2 Ships Adrift, Liner Aground In British Gale

LONDON (AP)—Gales ranging up to 85 miles an hour swept the British Isles today, casting two small ships dangerously adrift in stormy seas and driving a luxury liner aground.

The 400-ton Dutch coaster Anna Henny and the 1,288-ton Panamanian freighter Agios Agapios sent distress calls after reporting themselves blown out to sea.

Later the Anna Henny managed to grip anchor only 50 yards from the reefs. Then she started with engines "full steam ahead" was reported from Ramsgate.

The Colombian ship Cuidad de Bucaramanga raced to the Agios Georgios aid and reported the Panamanian seemed to have gained control of her steering.

NO DANGER

The Norwegian luxury liner Venus ran aground in Plymouth bay, but was not believed in any immediate danger.

The 6,269-ton Venus, out of Bergen, ran aground with 60-mile winds blowing across Plymouth sound shortly after landing 248 passengers from the Canary Islands.

Predicts Bevan May Head New Labor Party

QUEBEC (CP) — Frank Owen, veteran British newspaper editor, says a split in the British Labor party would "not be without a few years" to a new Labor party, more to the left but not necessarily pro-Communist.

Mr. Owen said in an address to the English-Speaking Union of Quebec that if the expulsion of left-winger Aneurin Bevan is approved by the Labor party's national council, many Laborites will follow him.

He said Bevan is neither pro-Communist nor anti-American but "is not controlled" over his support by Communists. He described him as a radical-socialist.

Rangers on Wild Horse Roundup To Protect Grasslands in B. C.

CRANBROOK, B. C. (CP)—The open grasslands of cows and cowboy rangers, high-powered rifles riding in their scabbards, are out on the Kootenay plains in a roundup through the valleys of British Columbia's Kootenay country.

When the roundups were started, it was estimated that 5,000 to 6,000 mustangs roamed the district, damaging cattle grazing lands.

Most of the 1,500 or more horses rounded up the last 10 years have been shot. Some of the ones which carry brands have been returned to their owners.

The wild animals damage the range by pawing up new grass during when the frost is coming out of the ground.

The horses had their start years ago when settlers, switching to the tractor and motor car, began turning out their horses to fend for themselves. The animals multiplied and in time began hurting domestic stock into the wild bunch.

The carcasses of the horses hunted down by rangers go into dog feed or are sold to fur ranchers as bread.

Tweed-Marlbank Road to Become Development Project Says Member

Following persistent efforts on the part of county and municipal officials, the Tweed-Marlbank county road is to be taken over by the Ontario Department of Highways as a development project, it has been announced by Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., for Hastings East.

According to Mr. Robson work on the project is expected to commence this year, although this will depend largely on what time county engineer, W. L. Langlois has to devote on the work. It was noted, however, that the grant had been approved by the department.

Announcement that the road was to be taken over as a development project was contained in a letter from Mr. Robson to Harold Varty, deputy-reeve of the township of Marmora, in which the road is situated. The road forms only the old Canadian National Railways right-of-way.

Efforts to have the "Tweed-Marlbank road taken over as a development project started with the Hastings county road committee several years ago. Former reeves Harry Coulter and Bernard Hunt both worked hard to this end, while the present reeve, James Bateman, has made considerable effort and has been in Toronto on several occasions.

Skylight Cover Of Old Firehall Breaks Windshield

A falling skylight cover, lifted from its position on the roof of the old firehall on Front Street by high winds, caused damage to approximately $200 to a late model car this afternoon when it dropped 30 feet, crushing the top and smashing the windshield of the vehicle.

Norman Fraser, Port Credit, circulation manager of the metropolitan newspaper, had parked his car south of the old fire hall building and had crossed the street to enter a store when the skylight cover crashed onto the roof of his car.

Workmen repairing the rear wall of the old building, now owned by F. S. Pellwell, M.P., were using the fire incident and did not know the cover had blown from the skylight until police and the car owner informed them.

Northern Electric Safety Record Earns Award

The Belleville plant of the Northern Electric Co., Ltd., has been awarded a certificate of merit by the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations for operating for 1,000,000 consecutive man-hours without a lost time accident.

The record was established in the period between July 1954 and March 1955.

The all-time safety record for the Belleville plant is 3,275,402 hours covering the period from Oct. 1950, 1951, to Sept. 14th, 1953.

The new 1,000,000 man-hour accident-free record is the first achievement of its kind since loss of the previous record in 1953. A plaque recognizing the new certificate of merit will be hung in the company guard house.

J. C. D. Punchard, plant manager, was scheduled to read the citation to employees over the company's public address system this afternoon.

The citation from the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations read as follows:

"On behalf of the officers and directors of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, I am delighted to offer you and your entire organization our sincere congratulations on the splendid record that has earned for you our Certificate of Merit.

"Your experience is certainly a fine example of what can be done when management and employees co-operate to reduce and to eliminate accidents and should prove a real inspiration to other firms.

"It is our hope that this high level of safety consciousness which produced this very excellent record will be maintained throughout the months to come."

The letter, signed by R. H. Rutherford, president, was addressed to Mr. Punchard.

H. J. Rivett is chairman of the company's safety committee.

New Canadians To Be Assisted By Kiwanis Club

Belleville Kiwanis this year will help New Canadians in Belleville and district polish up their English, the club was told at a meeting by Kiwanian Ralph Graham.

The project will take the form of regular weekly social events at the Kiwanis centre, where new citizens will mingle together and converse in English.

Basically, it will be a practical application of English lessons taught at BCVS and the project stipulates that only English may be spoken at the social evenings.

Mr. Graham told the club a Kiwanis committee is now working on the project and hopes in the district to find a leader in each gathering. Larger gatherings will form a solid nucleus with these picked leaders and through them to invite others to join the social evenings.

Another project the club has on the ball is a safe and courteous driving campaign.

Any incidence of courteous driving reported to the club will entitle the driver to free parking facilities for one month anywhere in Belleville which may be arranged through the police or club members. Parking meters are excepted, while forms will be available to the public in various merchants' stores throughout the city. The city police chief will be the final arbiter on who qualifies for the monthly award.

"If we succeed in that for this district, I feel we will have done a good job for the city," Mr. Graham told the club.

Other committee chairmen reporting to the club yesterday were Stu Robb, house committee, who commented on the necessity for repairs to the club centre and Don Rose, Key Club committee.

The speakers were introduced by Bud Punchard and thanked by Harold Craig.

Following the passing of two months, William Joseph Duminie, proprietor of the Baycrest Summer Cabins, died at the city limits on the Kingston Road, died late Tuesday evening in the Belleville General Hospital.

In the death of Mr. Duminie, the city and district have lost one well known and highly respected in the community. He was born in Troy, N.Y., 71 years ago, being the son of Peter Jay and Mrs. Angus Duminie, but came to Canada as a young child and had continuously resided in the district.

Following his retirement from the confectionery business he purchased some property at Bayside and established the Baycrest Summer Cabins, which he had operated successfully for some years. He was a man of fine nature and with a kindly disposition and friendly smile and his death will be sincerely regretted by a wide circle of friends.

The late Mr. Duminie was an active and devout member of St. Michael's parish until the formation of St. Gregory's parish, and that parish, when health permitted, he took a leading part. At St. Michael's he was a charter member of the Holy Name Society and took a keen interest in that organization. He also served on the parish council prior to being a former member of the Separate School Board.

Surviving are his widow, the former Anne Marie O'Neill; one son, Douglas Duminie of the home; one daughter, Mrs. Walter (Doris) Sweetnam of Belleville; two sisters, Mrs. J. R. (Kathleen) Radcliffe of Toronto; Mrs. W. J. (Nell) Sharpe, Ottawa; and three grandchildren.

Foremen Are In Liaison Position Club Is Told

The foreman, midway between management and labor in industrial organization, is "between the devil and the deep sea although I won't say which is which", said William Salter to approximately 100 members and guests of the Quinte District Foremen's club at the YMCA, Tuesday evening.

Mr. Salter, chief of the Labor-Management Co-operative Services of the federal Dept. of Labor, was substituting for Hon. Milton Fowler Gregg, V.C., Minister of Labor, who was unable to attend the meeting because of illness in the House of Commons on unemployment.

Mr. Salter delivered Mr. Gregg's address, entitled "The Vital Influence of the Foreman in Good Industrial Relations."

He pointed out that foremen, as the "key management man" had a duty to supervise production line workers and the function of translating management problems into production realities. Because foremen are in close contact with workers they are inevitably associated with labor and its problems. "The foreman is in a liaison position," he said.

The development of Canada as one of the world's most important industrial nations was a parallel development of strong labor unions produced a lack of communication between labor and management, that has worked against the best interests of both.

FOREMAN IN CONFLICT

"The foreman is caught in the conflict between the young and old ideas," said Mr. Salter.

"The foreman must be kept in touch with policy and should take an active part in its formation. Management is becoming more and more aware of the need to consult foremen," said Mr. Salter.

Unions agreements cover all phases of labor - management relations. Foremen must know all the rules and be able to interpret them clearly and accurately to workers.

"The position of the foreman will be enhanced. Being a foreman calls for more leadership and quality today than ever before," he said.

Keeping on company policy can greatly improve labor-management relations if the foreman understands policy. The foreman can influence management and labor relations much more than other. There is no easy solution for the problem of maintaining good management - labor relations," he said.

The speaker was introduced by Alderman Frank Grandame and thanked by W. R. Freeborn, of Trenton.

Frank S. Follwell, M.P. for Hastings - Frontenac riding, was among members for Mr. Gregg's absence. W. P. Vidler, of Toronto, president of the Canadian Council of Foremen's Clubs, addressed the meeting on the work and needs of the council.

Musical interludes were provided by Miss Lorraine Dalton, Kaye tenor; Al Evans, lead; Dick Brettingham, baritone; and John Grant, bass.

Barring Under Review

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—The action of the United States in barring of six members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Can.) is under review in Ottawa, it was announced here Tuesday.

Al King, president of Mine-Mill's district 6 here, said members of Parliament had written him the matter had been discussed with External Affairs Minister Pearson, who said he would make inquiries.

Frankford Wants High School In Village

FRANKFORD — Mr. Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P., made a special visit here last Friday night in the town clerk's office in Frankford. The purpose of this meeting was to secure Mr. Sandercock's views and assistance in the establishment of a high school in the village of Frankford.

The special committee was formed on March 4th at a joint meeting of town council and school board; all members were present at this meeting and in addition, Mr. Wm. Rose, former school board member and the town clerk, Mr. J. E. Finnegan, were asked to attend. The topics for discussion at this meeting were: (1) the possibility of establishing a new high school, and (2) means of increasing school water supply.

Mr. Ralph Label, school board chairman, distributed pamphlets showing the present cost of high school education to the town, an estimate of the cost of building and maintaining such a school in Frankford and comparison of attendance records for the past year.

The new committee formed after discussion on the subjects and Mr. J. E. Finnegan appointed as chairman.

BRIEFED IN MEETING

Mr. Sandercock was briefed on the preceding meeting and its results by Mr. Finnegan and he asked Mr. Rabel to point out the following reasons for their decision to ask for the new school:

(1) Present cost of educating a pupil in Frankford high school: tuition $8.381, transportation, $2.-405.80, which totals $10,688.80, which amounts to $294 per year for a student against an estimated cost of $170.20 per pupil in the high school in Frankford.

(2) Present system has led to poor attendance records, showing 62.8 per cent from 1949 to 1955 (Frankford) with 85 per cent Frankford High School from 1937-1949.

(3) Distance from schools of students necessitates an extra two hours per day, actually giving a student eight hours away from school and in transit than average man at work, leading to lack of interest in extra activities connected with school.

The records showing larger number of students leaving school, in the Frankford district than in isolated area by present system of schools.

Now in Frankford centrally located in large area, 16 miles by 10 miles (approximate) within reach of high school.

Mr. Sandercock after being informed of the situation, observed that while he could not make any immediate promises, he would do everything possible to assist the committee in its every endeavor and would make an appointment with the Department of Education in Toronto, and accompany them.

The committee and Mr. Sandercock agreed on a date of March 30th for possible interview in Toronto.

Reserves Judgment In B.C. Libel Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judgment was reserved here Tuesday at the conclusion of a libel suit brought against Vancouver province editorial cartoonist Eric Nicol by eight men who served on a murder trial jury in 1953.

Mr. Justice Harold McInnes said his decision will be handed down at a later date.

Eight of 12 assize court jurors who convicted Leonard Thomas Gash, 19, of the murder of Frank Pilsch are seeking punitive damages from The Province and Nicol.

They claim Nicol's column on capital punishment, published on March 20, 1954, reflected on them and that they suffered as a result.

City's Share Of Unconditional Grants $30,159

Belleville's share of the unconditional extra grants to municipalities announced Tuesday by Premier Leslie Frost will total $30,-159, Hastings County will receive $102,000.

The additional grants are part of a province-wide disbursement totalling $7,250,000.

The gifts, in the form of direct cash grants, will be distributed to local councils immediately. There are no strings attached to the grants. Local councils can spend the money in any way they see fit.

More than half of the gift to municipalities ($3,750,000) will be in the form of a special grant equal to one half of the basic unconditional subsidy payable under the Municipal Grants Act' which went into operation in 1953.

Premier Frost in announcing the grants, said they were being made at this time to assist municipalities with much needed municipal works and to relieve increased welfare charges because of unemployment.

The new grants, said Premier Frost, raise the province's contribution to municipalities during the current fiscal year to $185,000,000. March 24th, to St. Charles' Church, Rev. Father Cronin will celebrate Interment St. Charles' Cemetery.

Mother's Gift of Sweep Ticket May Bring Daughter Fortune

TRENTON — (Special) — The happiest people in Trenton today are L.A.C. and Mrs. Garth Lapp of 60 Division street.

They'll be keeping their fingers crossed until Saturday because they hold a ticket on Tudor Line, considered to have the second best chance of winning the Grand National Classic.

Yesterday Mrs. Lapp, a beautiful 21-year old native of Vancouver Island, British Columbia, got the surprise of her life when she opened a telegram from Dublin advising her that she was the holder of ticket MQ 48377 under the nom de plume "Hopin". It stated that in the event her entry placed out of the first, second or third money she would be paid 500 pounds sterling or the equivalent of $1400 in Canadian currency.

Until Mrs. Lapp, the former Ina Murray was married last June she worked as a teller in an Imperial Bank in Victoria, B. C. Two years ago she purchased sweep tickets but never had any better luck than winning a $5 hockey pool.

Before Christmas Mrs. Lapp received the lucky ticket in a letter from her mother on the west coast. Mrs. Murray knowing her daughter had an interest in the sweepstake tickets bought one for her and sent it along as a gift. "Mother chose the appropriate nom de plume," Mrs. Lapp revealed.

TECHNICIAN AT STATION

L.A.C. Lapp is an instrument technician at the Trenton Air Station. He was a truck driver before joining the service in 1952. His ambition is to become a barber after he completes his tour of duty. His wife insists that part of the winnings be put aside to pay for her husband to learn the trade.

Mrs. Lapp thinks that a dream she has always had will come true. She hopes Tudor Line will finish in one of the first three places and she will be able to buy a ranch on Vancouver Island.

Mrs. Lapp also insists on offering her parents half of whatever amount they win. "I don't know whether they'll accept but I feel I'm obligated because they bought the ticket and sent it to me" Mrs. Lapp said.

By strange coincidence Mrs. Lapp unmindful of the ticket she held on the Irish race was discussing

Rotary Annes Entertained At 'Ladies' Night'

TRENTON. (Special)—The wives of Trenton Rotarians were entertained by their husbands last night at a dinner in the Quinte way Hotel. Chairman of the program Kenneth J. Couch pointed out that husbands and wives were gathered to celebrate what Rotarians consider two very important occasions. First the annual Rotary Ladies' Night and second the anniversary of the forming of the first Rotary Club in Chicago.

President Floyd Stringer in his remarks welcomed the ladies. Claire Campbell proposed the toast to them. Rotary Ann Agnes Minisly replied to the toast.

Visitor Tom Bata accompanied by his wife Sonya gave an account of the many different Rotary clubs he had visited since the last time he was in the Bahama and Trenton communities.

The musical portion of the program featured soloist Carolyn Gundy and pianist Elina Ritchie of Toronto. Dance teacher Barbara Diment's presentation drew long

Police Blotter

Clothes line thieves were active in the city last night, with a Church Street woman complaining that several articles of underwear had been stolen from her line.

There was little police activity reported and only one minor auto accident was investigated. Damage of slightly more than $150 was caused in a rear-end collision on Canniflon Road. Kenneth Clarke, of Corbyville, had slowed to turn into a service station north of the C.N.R. tracks when a following vehicle, driven by James A. Hoskin, Plainfield, was unable to stop in time and struck the rear of the Clarke auto.

and loud applause.

FORCED OFF ROAD

An officer from the Brighton Provincial Police detachment is investigating a claim by a truck driver that a car there forced him to take the ditch and wreck his truck west of Smithfield on No. 2 highway this morning. The tractor trailer carrying a heavy load left the travelled portion of the highway plowed along the shoulder and jackknifed before it upset. Poles carrying telephone wires were cut off and the long distance service to Brighton is being maintained on only one circuit. Police have questioned the driver of the car responsible for the mishap.

WILL SUPPLY SAPLINGS

The Ontario Government has undertaken a tree planting project, sponsored by the Trenton Kiwanis Club.

Saplings will be supplied to the club for Boy Scouts and High School students in Brighton, Glen Miller, Batawa, Carrying Place and Trenton to plant on Public Utilities property south of the telephone road in Murray township when the ice water which that supply the town are situated.

Jim Moon, president of the local gun club and the treasurer and chairman of the project Mel Mountenay, will supervise the planting.

Urges Railways Get More Leeway In Setting Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — A royal commission has recommended that the railways be given more freedom in their method of setting "agreed charges" freight rates.

The one-man commission of Hon. W. F. A. Turgeon, which last year investigated demands that the railways' actions be restricted on these rates, has instead told the federal government the rail carriers should be given more leeway.

The recommendations reject an Alberta government demand that regulation of the railways be tightened so far as agreed charges affect that province's freight tolls.

The commission's report, turned in to the government earlier this month, calls for parliamentary legislation to implement recommendations. It has not yet been considered by the cabinet.

A PROTEST

The royal commission was set up largely because the Alberta government complained that the railways were using the agreed charge technique to destroy the effect of the Parliament-established "1 1-3 rule".

This rule stipulated that points between the Lakehead and the Pacific coast were not to be charged more than 1 1-3 above competitive freight rates between eastern Canada and the west coast.

The railways got around this by negotiating between East and West special low rates given individual shippers in return for a guaranteed annual proportion of their business.

Chicago Moves Fast to Set Up Seaway Port Facilities

By RUSSEL LLANE

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago is moving rapidly to make the most of an enhanced seaport potential expected with completion of the deepwater St. Lawrence seaway during 1958.

Negotiations for issuance of $25,000,000 in revenue bonds for initial development of Lake Calumet harbor by the Chicago regional port district are under way.

Maxtin M. Cohen, general manager of the port district, said in an interview that the sea cargo handled at Chicago, about 150,000 tons last year, is expected to jump above 1,000,000 tons during the 1959 Great Lakes shipping season.

It would mean some 400 to 500 ocean-ship arrivals during the first full season after the St. Lawrence seaway improvement under the joint Canadian-American program is completed.

Chicago's present ocean shipping is limited to traffic in small freighters of approximately 1,500-ton cargo capacity by the 14-foot channel depth of the present waterway.

The St. Lawrence channel improvement on which the United States will spend $105,000,000 and Canada $130,000,000 will provide clearance for vessels of drafts up to 27 feet.

However, pending deepening of the present connecting channels in the Detroit and Mackinac straits area, draft limitations for Chicago traffic—that is, how deeply the loaded ship rests in the water—will be limited to 21 feet for Chicago-bound ships and 25 feet for those heading toward the sea.

Cohen said that despite limitations at the Lakes Michigan-Huron and Huron-Erie connecting channels, Chicago would be opened to a vast fleet of medium - sized freighters carrying 7,500 to 10,000 tons.

Ships making the long inland voyage in many cases would discharge some cargo at lake ports along the way. Those leaving Chicago with 7,500 tons could add to their outbound cargoes at American ports on Lakes Erie or Ontario, or at Canadian ports.

PLAN FINAL OLD HOME WEEK

The citizens of Iroquois are planning an Old Home Week for this coming summer. It will be the present village's last such festival because Iroquois, and parts of surrounding Matilda township, will be inundated as part of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

The celebration, gaiety and revelry associated with Old Home Week will be overhung with sadness at Iroquois. Backdrop for a host of pleasant memories will be the certainty of Iroquois' impending demise.

Old Home Weeks are civic ventures usually designed to unite former residents with their friends in a carnival atmosphere to celebrate the community's growth or to commemorate a significant event in the community's past. Old Home Week in Iroquois will, in effect, be a wake with the celebrants acting as undertakers.

Love for one's home is not for the lumber in the roof that keeps out the rain, but for the bonds of family love that keep tribulation out and give joy and contentment within.

Affection for one's community is not for its brick and stone or for its trees and avenues. Rather it is for the kindnesses of neighbors and friends. One of the greatest blessings of friends is that they afford in time of bereavement. To some extent that is the comfort which Old Home Week will bring to the residents of Iroquois.

Love for one's home is for things. They need old friends and associations to give them reason for revival and to keep them bright.

The quiet St. Lawrence village with the fierce-sounding name, wedged between the turbulent river and a turbulent highway, has watched the rising tides of commerce on each until now that commerce decrees that it must be engulfed.

Old Home Week in Iroquois, while it will be a time for taking leave of what used to be, will also be an occasion for celebrating the birth of a new Iroquois farther north. Perhaps better festival could mark the end of one era and the beginning of a new one, than Iroquois' proposed Old Home Week.

REACTION SHOWS PASSING OF TIME

The release by the United States of documents concerning the Yalta conference between Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill has stirred up a host of controversies.

These controversies reflect various national viewpoints.

There is little profit in any attempt to discuss these matters in the limited space available in the editorial columns of any newspaper.

Those who see events in sharp black and white may endeavor to allot praise or blame and may accomplish their task in a minimum number of words.

But those who regard the world as being composed of a series of varying shades of grey, who believe that there is almost always something to be said both for and against any given course, would need a book to deal adequately with Roosevelt's attitude at Yalta.

There is one point, though, which serves to illustrate the great change in public opinion in the western democracies since the Yalta meeting.

Among the critics of Roosevelt are prominent Germans. That is not surprising. But if, at the time of Yalta, anybody had suggested that Roosevelt should show more consideration for the Germans he would have been the focus of highly suspicious glances, as suspicious as those which are now levied at concessions Roosevelt made to Stalin.

It is difficult for many of us to realize that ten years have passed since the end of the war. But here is the proof. Only time could bring such a change in public opinion.

NO HELP TO HIS SEX

Crowley, Louisiana, better do something about City Judge Edmund M. Reggie.

His latest whack has bad judgment to rule that a husband is entitled to kiss his wife and chew tobacco at the same time.

Judge Reggie may regard this as a blow for the rights of the common man and there may be some members of the male sex who know so little about women as to applaud the decision.

But a wife who has just been kissed by a husband with a big chaw of tobacco in his cheek is like a stick of dynamite with a burning fuse.

His honor has no legal right to blow up. But she is going to do it anyway. Some of the smarter tobacco-stained wives are going to devise ways of doing it and still staying within the law. For instance, one of them might invoke a legal issue of a wife's right to kiss her husband after she has cold-creamed her face for the night.

There are many more wives with cold cream on their faces than there are husbands with a plug of tobacco in their cheek.

The situation has all the earmarks of a sticky mess for husbands everywhere.

The Canadian Commons, once again, has heard a plea to print the political affiliation of all candidates on the ballot. . . . This might very well tell voters who candidates stand for but it would be of little assistance in telling voters what candidates stand for.

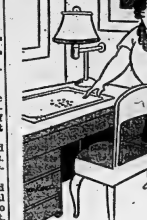
SHAVING MUG

There was a mug upon a shelf
That bore my father's name.
I never had one for myself
Because too late I came.
But, in the days of long ago
On every barber's wall
The shaving mugs stood row by row
For patrons one and all.



I thought that men were widely known,
And all had reached the top
When they had mugs to call their own
In some one's barber shop.

I used to read the names aloud
While sitting in the chair,
And always I was very proud
To find my father's there.

I wondered as I silent sat
The while he clipped and shaved,
If I'd deserve a mug like that
When I should grow a beard.
But not Since I was born too late
Such fame I never knew.
Whose shaving mugs went out of date
Before my whiskers grew.

Parachute from Ground

(British Aircraft Society Release)

Parachuting to safety even from zero feet — for years this has been an unattainable dream of pilots taking off for low-level bombing or ground-strafing missions. Now the dream is coming true.

A few days ago a deserted airfield in Oxfordshire was the scene of the first trial of a new British lightweight ejection seat. A 400 mph jet-fighter was chosen for the tests, and the new seat, complete with dummy pilot, was fitted in the rear cockpit.

Squadron Leader Fifield, test pilot of Martin-Baker, the firm which designed the new seat, climbed into the front cockpit and taxied out to the start of the runway. A thousand yards away a green Very light soared into the air and the pilot pushed his twin throttles wide open.

* * *

The plane leapt forward, and as its airspeed indicator touched the hundred knot mark, with the aircraft hurtling down the runway, not yet airborne, the ejection seat was fired.

There was a puff of smoke from the cartridge, throwing the seat high in the air, and instantly the parachute snapped open, the seat fell away, and the dummy pilot floated gently to earth. Observers were convinced that had the dummy been a human pilot from a crippled plane he would have escaped without injury to life and limb. Another step forward in the development of parachuting had been effectively demonstrated.

The new lightweight seat weighs 68 pounds, which is only two-thirds of the weight of a standard Martin-Baker ejection seat. A similar successful ejection off the runway using a standard seat was recently demonstrated to senior officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force. Last month two officers from the French Air Force's flight test centre in Algeria escaped from successful ejection from a plane flying only 40 feet above the airplane.

During all of these trials the parachute has been fully developed with the dummy still at least 20 feet from the ground, so that the rate of descent on touch-down was no higher than for a normal drop from altitude. As far as is known no other ejection seat can equal this performance. The reverse parachute is used during the war required height for successful operation.

When a pilot wishes to bail out he pulls a small protective blind over his face and at the same moment the seat takes charge. First he is shot out of the plane by explosive ball, by an ejector cartridge. A line-operated trip flicks open miniature parachutes which slow down and steady the seat in the correct attitude.

Another time switch unfastens the seat harness and releases the pilot's main 'chute to develop. The braking action of his 'chute lifts the clear of his seat, which falls away below him.

Movie Seats Increasing

(Wall Street Journal)

If everyone decided to go to the movies at the same time, there would be a waiting line of 42 persons for each theatre seat in the United States.

That's a queer two people short. er than what have been standing in line waiting for tickets, the Commerce Department figures. The department figures that if Belleville Conservatory has taken a look at the growth of theatre attendance lately, it would find a free world.

The place to go to get into a movie the fastest is either Australia or New Zealand, the bureau said. In those two countries there's an average of one seat for every 7.5 persons. That's the highest ratio people ahead of you: in Great Britain, 12 people; in France, 16 people; and in Italy, 20 people. The average is one seat for every 22 persons.

Here in the U.S. the waiting line would be 14 people long; in Canada it would be one person shorter and in South America there would be one seat for every 200 persons.

Over-all, the survey estimates 108,537 motion picture theatres capable of seating 67,745,451 persons were operating in 120 countries and territories in January 1. That's 2 per cent more theatres and 3 per cent more seats than on the line date in 1953, the last time such a survey was made.

Most of the mass movie-going movement would be treated to American-made films, the report said, though in a few areas local films were popular.

But despite the lower percentage of feature film showings abroad, U.S. motion picture companies made a record $200 million in foreign countries last year, the department for the one in his patience.

Canadians Not Book Worms

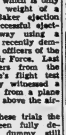
(Fredericton Gleaner)

There are only 8,000,000 books or less than half a book per head of population, in the nation's public libraries, and in a host of observations, the overwhelming majority of them are not to be found in the library shelves, whenever we have browsed around, and not in circulation.

Libraries, by and large, purchase books regularly that are popular or will be wanted from time to time as references. Therefore, in fact, we have a book per capita works out to far less in terms of actual readers.

Then there is wide variety in reading habits. There are those who read a novel a week, those who book a month, but they read and digest it, get much of the good out of it, and there are others who take out books by the half-dozen, but only glance at them, can be little the wiser later.

All of which leaves us to ponder on the low level of literacy that stands. If we are a literate people, then the public libraries must go into current literature such as magazines and newspapers, and not be content with the old, so long as we are informed and entertained.



Yet books, the store houses of knowledge, should have a bigger place in our daily life. The statistics would, at least, the lure of education and research. And until they do, we should not rest content.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

MAKE YOUR PEAK A MESA

Maybe I'm feeling a little cocky today, about health and longevity, I mean, because for the past few years I have been telling you frankly, I have been worried. You see, some three weeks ago I caught intercostal neuralgia or maybe radiculitis — darting pains here and there in the trunk with tenderness and sharp pain on movement. While the thing lasted I found I couldn't do my morning rolls — in fact I was afraid to try, and that made me feel pretty decrepit. But everything's jake again. I'm back on regular schedule, and feeling just a little sorrier for the poor souls as decrepit that they dare not try to somersault . . . do forward rolls on floor or ground.

Dr. Brady

Another reason for my cockiness, I believe, is "that all my teeth (some of which were inserted by my dentist) seem to be in perfect functional condition — all working full time to maintain good digestion, good nutrition, good health. (I was going to say good looks but that's relative, and the best possible personal appearance, vite and longevity.

But I'm not just worrying. If I know anything about the subject, to oneself, depends on nutrition, these things are attainable only through the everyday use of good teeth.

Except the third molars (wisdom teeth), from one to all four of which about one-half of us molycoddles in America no longer need (we select food that does not require mastication), for every tooth lost and not immediately replaced with a functionally efficient denture you must subtract from one to two years from longevity and by the same token hasten the onset of physical degeneration, premature old age and infirmity.

The term "physical degeneration" in the preceding sentence may not mean much to the casual reader. But if you have more than ordinary interest in nutrition, health, good looks, vite and the prolongation of youth and life, you may find some extracurricular reading profitable, particularly Nutrition and Physical Degeneration by Dr. Weston A. Price. Your public library may have it.

Every living thing, plant, animal, man, grows and develops up to the peak of perfection—and having attained that peak begins immediately to decline, degenerate, to falter, slow down, to disintegrate—to die. How long after one reaches the peak before one's decline becomes evident first to everybody and not just oneself, to oneself, depends on nutrition,

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Talk is a passion, a greed, a hunger with some people. I indulge it as ravenously as do the loquacious people for long rides in bus driver friend of mine thinks we should add to word yakomaniac and logomaniac. He says:

"We have dipsomaniacs and kleptomaniacs," he says. The dipsomaniacs have all kinds of clinics and hideaways where they can be treated for dipsomania. The kleptomaniacs have a great organization of store detectives and police watching for them, and they can be sent to jail when caught, or put under control of their bankers. But what's being done for the yakomaniacs?

"Why aren't there clinics for yakomaniacs, where they could be sent to learn how to keep their mouths shut?"

I suggested to the bus driver that he must have had a bad day on the bus.

"Awful," he agreed. "There are three yakomaniacs on my run. Two middle-aged women and one elderly man. When I see them waiting at the bus stop, I have a wild impulse to drive right past, even if the bus is half empty."

"But you always pick on you!" I checked.

No, not every time. They get on the bus, yakking. They have been yakking at whoever may have been in the house when they left it, and then they board the bus and glance, with feverish eyes, over the passengers, looking for a nice victim who has a vacant seat alongside. If there is no seat to their liking, they squat down behind me, an old friend of theirs, and start yakking at full speed."

"Why don't you rig it, some way," suggested, "to get them sitting together? They don't all get on at the same bus stop, I suppose?"

"No, no, and they don't often happen to catch the same bus. But even if they did, they would never sit together. They're like chess maniacs can spot one another a mile off. They avoid one another like poison."

"You'll just have to be rude to them," I submitted. "Snub them."

"That wouldn't do any good," said the bus driver. "They never hear what anybody else says."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

BOOMERANG

There is an unlikely story of the Australian or Australian tribe of bushmen who was given a great feast upon his retirement. There was much drinking, dancing and speech making. The chief's young successor received the old chief with a shiny new boomerang. And the story is that shortly afterwards the old chieftain died from eye-exertion trying to throw away his old relic.

There are a lot of us trying to throw away old boomerangs and not succeeding very well. And what of us who passed our youth before World War I are deeply conscious of the fact that we live in a new world. And we are not exactly happy with the new world. In many ways it is better than the old, but in many ways it is worse. At any rate it leaves us with a lot of old boomerangs on our hands and we have a decided tendency to keep trying to throw them away.

To be specific, there is the hatred and contempt we of the new world have for the old. We have thrown away the old standards of honesty, thrift, and self-reliance. We have substituted for them a new set of standards which are based on the theory that the world owes a living to everybody, and that the government should provide it. We have thrown away the old standards of morality and substituted for them a new set of standards which are based on the theory that anything is right if it is fun.

We have thrown away the old standards of courtesy and substituted for them a new set of standards which are based on the theory that the world is full of fools and that we are entitled to tell them so. We have thrown away the old standards of reverence and substituted for them a new set of standards which are based on the theory that there is nothing sacred.

We have thrown away the old standards of patriotism and substituted for them a new set of standards which are based on the theory that the world is full of suckers and that we are entitled to take advantage of them.

We have thrown away the old standards of sexual morality and substituted for them a new set of standards which are based on the theory that sex is a natural function and that we are entitled to indulge it as we please.

We have thrown away the old standards of industry and substituted for them a new set of standards which are based on the theory that the world owes us a living and that we are entitled to get it with the least possible effort.

We have thrown away the old standards of thrift and substituted for them a new set of standards which are based on the theory that we are entitled to spend all we make and to borrow all we can get.

We have thrown away the old standards of self-reliance and substituted for them a new set of standards which are based on the theory that we are entitled to be taken care of by the government.

We have thrown away the old standards of individual responsibility

Half Proceeds Fashion Show Goes to Community Centre

One hundred and thirty - three ladies attended the March meeting of the RCAF Women's Auxiliary in Breadner School. Mrs. Lola Wright presided at the meeting.

After the minutes of the February meeting were read by Mrs. Dorothy Ring, an interesting report was made of a meeting of representatives from local groups in Middleton Park. This report resulted in a decision to divide the proceeds from the Annual Fashion and Variety Show between the Middleton Park Playgrounds, and the Trenton Community Centre, which starts its drive for funds on April first.

TREASURER'S REPORT

The Treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Catherine Cochrane, and in the absence of our treasurer, Mrs. Cochrane gave a comprehensive report of monies raised during the 1952 to 1954 period. Stormy Weather In U.S. Blamed For 28 Deaths

CHICAGO (AP)—Violent early spring weather—much of it wintry —struck staggering blows across wide areas in the eastern half of the United States Tuesday. Property damage was estimated in the millions of dollars and the stormy weather was blamed for at least 28 deaths.

Travel was slowed, both on the highway and in the air. Power service was disrupted.

Blizzards whipped across midcontinent areas. Rain, sleet and strong winds buffeted large areas of the eastern seaboard, tearing down buildings. Floods harassed some parts of the south. A tornado struck in a village of northern Ohio, injuring four persons.

Winds, which were of gale force in midwest sections, diminished during the night and southwesterly winds were expected to send temperatures above freezing today. The blowing snow, with drifts ranging up to more than a foot in some areas Tuesday, kept many roads blocked and thousands of cars stalled.

The wind storms which lashed four states — Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio—caused widespread property damage. The national board of fire underwriters said losses may exceed $1,000,000 in each state.

Heavy freeze damage to the early fruit crop was reported in Oklahoma, northern Texas and southern Illinois as the cold air extended southwestward.

A windstorm which hit Princeton, N. J., was described "like a tornado." A speeding New York Central train at Watertown, N. Y., plowed through a 20-by-40-foot roof which was blown off a shed and dumped on the railroad tracks. No one was injured.

A section of a roof of a sheet metal plant at Cortland, N. Y., was lifted into the air by the wind. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

The Buffalo, N. Y., area was raked by gale winds from Lake Erie. Huge ice jams were reported in the Niagara river and a huge mass of ice plunged over Niagara Falls, piling up in the river gorge.

Minor Hockey

Booth Radio climaxed an uphill series with three goals in the 3rd period last night to edge the favored Northern Electric squad 4-3, capture the series 12-11 and the city championship of the midget division.

Northern won the first game 7-4 but Booth's fought back to tie the series with a 4-1 victory over the week-end. They started slowly again last night and were behind 3-1 in the third period but Austin, the hero of the previous game, tallied twice to knot the count at 3-3. Norm Rushlow netted the deciding tally on Boomhower's pass and Northern's aces, Bill Foster and Bob Wannamaker, were rolled on a couple of great chances to tie it once more.

Ab Wright fired the winner's initial goal and picked up two assists while Brant also assisted on one of Austin's tallies. Bob Wannamaker netted Northern's first goal, unassisted, Foster equalling the feat and later rushing Wannamaker's pass to up the score to 3-1.

Northern drew the only penalty of the game, a tripping sentence to Fuller.

Mayor Had Dream

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton says she dreamt of being married to an archbishop.

The spinster mayor confided to the board of control Tuesday that she had the dream Monday night.

"I dreamt that I was being married to an archbishop, a widower, in Christ Church Cathedral. . . . You boys (the controllers) were all there and the archbishop turned to me and observed: "I thought this was going to be a church wedding—not a civic affair."

Carrier Boys Given Puppies

Gary Tremaine and Richard Bedford of Belleville

Robert Chambers, Tweed

The hearts of three young Ontario intelligencer carrier boys were made glad last week when they became the proud possessors of six weeks old puppies the gift of Mrs. Smith of the Belcrest Nursing Home on the Marshall Road.

The original intention was that four young Intelligencer carrier boys were to receive pups but one of the puppies died. Winners of the puppies were decided by drawing the boys' names out of a hat.

Two carrier boys to receive puppies were Gary Tremaine and Richard Bedford of Belleville, while the third was Robert Chambers of Tweed.

Gave Evidence To Keep Child

NEW YORK (AP)—Red-haired Virginia Dee says she told authorities about her call-girl career and links with Mimi P. (Mickey) Jelke after a warning that otherwise her child would be taken away.

Miss Dee, 23, was the second witness put on the stand by the state in presenting its case against Jelke, being tried for the second time on compulsory prostitution charges.

Another state witness, Richard Short, a convicted procurer, was on the stand and had testified briefly Tuesday when the trial was recessed until today.

Miss Dee told about a meeting in Jelke's apartment where she said an associate of his arranged to get her sex dates for a 30-percent cut of her $100 fee.

She said she tried to hide her story when first questioned by assistant district attorney Burton B. Roberts after she was arrest in 1952. She said Burton then told her that "if I didn't talk, my child would be taken away from me."

SHE PANICKED

In answer to further questions by Deputy Counsel Peter W. Herz, Miss Dee said she loved her child, then four months old, and panicked by the idea that she might lose her.

While some of the members turned beans and others smocked and embroidered, a short business discussion took place.

Edward B. Lally Discusses Loss of Hearing at P.T.A. Meeting

At the March meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of St. Michael's High School on Monday, the speaker, Mr. Edward B. Lally, Managing Director of the National Society of the Deaf and the Hard of Hearing, stressed the differences between the public attitude towards the physical disability of hearing loss, as contrasted with other disabilities.

"There is little dramatic appeal on behalf of the deaf, or the hard of hearing, because the disability is neither visible one as in the case of blindness, or amputations, nor is it a killing one as in polio, cardiac or cancer.

"Essentially the loss of hearing at any age presents serious problems in that such severs 'the bridge to human relations,' in that it cuts the ordinary lines to communication through spoken language, making education a special problem in early years.

"Early discovery and pre-school help can do much in the way of offsetting the educational disadvantages with which the deaf and hard of hearing meet. The best way to attack the problem is, of course, by measures of prevention in which the role of the otologist is of paramount importance.

"When hearing loss occurs in the life teens or in adult life, it induces special problems of individual adjustment, as well as the hearing loss so frequently met with in later years."

Mr. Lally stated that the rehabilitation of those with hearing loss to be successful must rest upon a medical basis and be regarded by family physician, otologists and the public health nurses as the keystones to hearing rehabilitation with the society and co-operating agencies as following-up along non-medical lines.

Mr. Lawrence N. Parker, assistant managing director of the society outlined the service of the society as—the services are designed to aid in the solution of problems arising from a loss of or lack of hearing. The problems cover all age groups from infancy to old age and may involve difficulties facing the parents of pre-school children.

Education adjustments of elementary school children, provision for competent medical therapies, basis in any rehabilitation program, counselling as to vocational training, re-training in adult life where indicated, aid in placement on school leaving, common sense measures to effect personal adjustment arising from a gradual, sudden, total or partial loss of hearing in adult life, referral to, and for co-operation with other specialized services, in the cases of multiple handicaps, or personal problems, federal, provincial and municipal departments of health and welfare, the National Employment Service, and many varied voluntary agencies.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. J. Gallagher. Mr. J. Murphy expressed his appreciation to Mr. Lally and Mr. Parker on behalf of the members.

A musical program, which followed, included a violin duet by President Mr. Brown and son, Herbert; a humorous reading by Mary Elizabeth Lally; a vocal solo by Marilyn Mulvihill, accompanied by Mary Jo. Cannon; piano solo by Pauline Lally, which was very much enjoyed by all.

The meeting was closed by Very Rev. L. B. Gavin.

The regular meeting of the C.W.L. of Holy Rosary was held recently with president, Mrs. Eves, in the chair and 14 members in attendance.

Father Michael opened with the league prayer after which he spoke briefly on the sufferings of Christ and said "that although Christ was God, we must never forget that he was also truly man like unto us in all things, except in sin, and that His divinity did not lessen those sufferings but it anything increased them."

Correspondence was read on a "Lending Library" opened in St. Michael's and an invitation to attend a retreat starting July 1st in Notre Dame, Kingston.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE BROKE UP HER SON'S MARRIAGE...NOW SHE HATES HERSELF

One of the most tragic letters I have ever received comes to me from a boy who, now much older and far wiser than she was some years ago, admits that she deliberately broke up her son's marriage and, bitterly remorseful, wants to know how, at this point, she can make amends.

Here is how she tells the story: "My only son (and child) married a very nice girl.

"That I was very jealous of her because my son loved her so much, so I began telling him lies about her until I had him back home with me. Since then, his wife has been working, which she would not have had to do if I had kept my mouth shut. It has been five years since this happened, and I know now I have meddled once too often.

"I know my son sees his wife, and that he still loves her, but he thinks I need him, so he won't leave me. I am well off so I do have him sign his property and everything he has to me. But you know, too, that my son is not well, and I can't help thinking it is because of the things I have done.

"What can I do other than to pray and ask God to forgive me, for I am getting old, and what will happen to my son when I pass away? I know his wife doesn't know all the things I have done, or she would have divorced my son, but I have never heard of her complaining. But she has spent the lonely years, I realize now.

"Should I go and tell her all I have done, and tell my son the truth, which is that I want to see them together again before I pass on?

"I know what an old fool I have been. Where was my mother-head?"

This is, indeed, a bitterly sad situation, but I believe with all my heart that it is within this mother's power to set it straight. Moreover, she has thought the matter through and arrived, by herself, at the one right way to do it. I am sure no one else could think of a better way.

It will be an agonizing experience for her to go to her son's wife, and to her son, and tell them what she has done to their lives. But it would be far more agonizing still, if she went on hiding it and living with her guilty secret. The only way she will ever achieve any peace of mind is for her to do exactly as she now sees is right, and clear away, as best can be done at this point, the whole dreadful mess.

Her letter makes me believe that her very sincere remorse will give her the courage to take this hard step, and I suggest that she do it this way:

Let her tell her son that there is something of vital importance she wishes to say to him and his wife together, and ask him to bring his wife to her home. Then let her tell the two of them the truth, from the very beginning, and make it very plain that she is now deeply anxious to do everything in her power to bring them together again.

It is obvious that she has a son who feels his responsibility toward her; in fact, he overdid this responsibility when he put his mother ahead of his wife. As for the wife herself, the mother admits she is a very nice girl; that she is still loved by her husband and that she has been very understanding." I would say, therefore, that these are two fine young people, who, at the first shock of hearing the mother's story wears off, would be inclined to forgive her.

It may well be, that with everything out in the open, the three would finally come close enough together to live under the same roof with all hopefully cooperating to create a home full of love, tolerance and understanding.

I hope to hear again from this mother that this is what has come about.

TRAINS DELAYED

CHICAGO (AP)—Trains of the New York Central system's Michigan Central service were running late today because of a tugboat accident that disabled a bridge over the Calumet river. New York Central officials said it would be two to four days before normal operations across it could be resumed.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

A 5 O'CLOCK IS AN AFTERNOON WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a heated argument we are having about wedding plans, please answer this question: Is a 5 o'clock church wedding considered an afternoon wedding or an evening wedding? — Artine M.

A 5 o'clock wedding is an afternoon wedding. A wedding after 6 o'clock is an evening wedding.

HOUR OF CEREMONY DETERMINES ATTIRE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The large, formal wedding is to beat the Country Club, which is some distance from the church. This will mean that the reception will probably be from about 5:45 to about 7:30. The groom-to-be and the best man think the men in the wedding party should wear formal day attire. Several of the ushers maintain that the men in the wedding party should wear formal evening attire ("tails") to be correctly dressed for the reception. Who is right, please? — G.V.M.

The groom-to-be and his best man are right. It is the hour of the ceremony . . . not the hour of the reception . . . which determines the type of attire that should be worn. The 5 o'clock church wedding . . . therefore daytime attire is correct for the men in the wedding party: formal daytime attire for the formal daytime wedding.

STILL MARRIED, HE INTRODUCES GIRL AS HIS "FIANCEE"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me if it is at all correct for a married man who is attempting to get a divorce, after many years of legal separation from his wife, to introduce the woman whom he intends to marry, an unmarried girl, as his "fiancee"? — R. R.

Indeed it is not at all correct for this man to introduce this girl as his "fiancee." For him to do this is crude, is extremely bad taste . . . . and the girl, if she has any sense of propriety, would resent being put in this false position indicated by this word. After all, to the world she can't be his "fiancee" while he is still married to someone else.

FOOT DEFECTS IN CHILDHOOD

There is many a woman hobbling along on aching feet, suffering from all manner of pedal ills, who would have been foot loose and fancy free today if her mother had seen to it that her feet were properly fixed in early childhood.

During growth a little girl may need new shoes every few months. She must reach the age of ten before the arches are fully formed. During all this time the size must be correct, shoes must give proper support. Stockings should be amply long so as not to cramp the toes.

Callouses, blisters, eyes, corns can be caused by thick, heavy or outgrown shoes. Neglected, these troubles can also result in poor posture. The child will not enjoy play or outdoor exercise, so growth may be retarded. Children's feet should always be measured for size by competent clerks at dependable stores. The shoes the child wears determine the condition of her feet in adulthood.

Playing basket ball or tennis in shoes designed for sports is all right, say specialists, but wearing them as a matter may lead to serious disabilities. Active boys and girls require freely, firm and tensile shoes, because their soles are impervious to air, get hot and SOGGY with moisture, increase danger of infection.

For general wear, sturdy oxfords with flexible leather soles and uppers are best. A child should have several pairs so there can be frequent changes.

A periodic examination by podiatrists will unearth any troubles that may be on the way. The parents then should see that the child receives professional attention.

Women's Activities

HYLSTONE — The Women's Association of Hylstone United Church held its March meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Ray Slemon, on Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was opened by Mrs. Stewart. Scripture reading was Acts 4: 8-16. The roll call was answered by paying membership fees. A short period of business was conducted.

Program consisted of the following: reading, "Forgive Us," by Mrs. Chester Mekilejohn; piano solo by Mrs. Clarence Thomson; reading, "He Will Never Be Rich," by Mrs. Wilfred Spencer; reading, "Don't Despair," by Mrs. John Stewart and reading by Mrs. Lily Anderson.

Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Thomson. Program committee will be Mrs. Bob Spencer and Mrs. Ellis Jones.

Mr. Chester Mekilejohn has donated a coffee table which he has recently made for sale in aid of the Woman's Association.

Automatic Oven Dishes for Two

As Told to Mary Moore by Jane R.

You talked me into it kids. You talked me into repeating Jane R.'s oven menus and recipes.

After January 5th when the recipes appeared entitled "Career Wife Gives Automatic Oven Dishes for Two" I had so many requests for copies of it that I made hundreds of them—and all have been mailed out to those of you who wrote to me asking for them. I am still receiving requests for that article, so it is high time I repeated the whole business and thanked Jane R. again.

Be good kids and clip it right now if you are a career wife or if you have an automatic oven or if you belong to a family of two or even if you think you might fit into one of those categories soon. It's a honey.

CHICKEN CASSEROLE

(Courtesy Jane R.)

Chicken pieces (as desired), 1-2 small green pepper cut in strips, 2 medium tomatoes quartered, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 cup flour, 3 tablespoons salad oil, 1-4 teaspoon marjoram, 1 bay leaf, 1 cup chicken bouillon or wine, 1-2 can sliced mushrooms. Mix salt, pepper and flour together. Put in paper bag. Add chicken pieces and shake until well-coated with flour. Heat oil in frying pan and brown on all sides. Cool and refrigerate until morning. Next morning put chicken in casserole, add salt, marjoram, bay leaf to chicken bouillon and pour over chicken. Arrange tomatoes, green pepper strips and mushrooms over chicken. Cover; set in oven for 1 hour cooking time at 350 deg. Fahr. Good with corn on the cob and salad.

COUNTRY SAUSAGE WITH BARBECUE SAUCE

(Courtesy Jane R.)

Cut the desired length of sausage in about 3-inch lengths, but do not cut or shape into patties. Brown good and dark in frying pan. Drain on paper towels and chill in refrigerator until morning. Next morning pour the sausage to marinate the following barbecue sauce: Mix together 1-3 cup catsup, 1 cup water, 1 1-3 teaspoons salt, 1-3 teaspoon tabasco sauce or any hot sauce, 1-3 teaspoon chili powder, 1-3 teaspoon mustard, 1 tablespoon brown sugar. Bake for 2 1-2 to 3 hours at 325 deg. Fahr. Do the same with Spareribs. Cut into serving pieces and brown, I have found the fat from the sausage that one-half the recipe for sauce is enough for the sausage, as sometimes it is a little bit greasy by the time the sausage is cooked, so I don't serve the sauce, but when using the sauce for ribs use the full recipe.

SWISS STEAK

(Courtesy Jane R.)

Cut about 3-4 to 1 lb. round steak into serving portions. Pound flour, salt and pepper into same. Brown in frying pan. Chill and refrigerate until morning. Place in casserole and pour sliced onions and some chopped celery over top. Pour a small can of steak sauce with sliced mushrooms in it over and the same amount of water. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for about 2 1-2 to 3 hours. (Note: The Steak Sauce is 13c per tin.)

HAM AND POTATO SCALLOP

(Courtesy Jane R.)

Two slices smoked ham 1-2 inch thick; 6 large potatoes, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 1-2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 cup tomato juice; 1 1-4 cups milk, shake of paprika. Cut ham in pieces for serving. Place in greased baking dish. Pare and slice potatoes 1-4 inch thick over the ham. Melt butter, stir in flour, then tomato juice and milk, and cook stirring, until thick. Season with salt and pepper and pour over potatoes and ham. Sprinkle with paprika. Cover and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-2 hours. (For 2 use only 1 slice ham and 2 potatoes.)

NOTE FROM JANE R.

"The foregoing are based on the theory that by browning the meats they are partially cooked and can thus sit unrefrigerated in the oven all day until the oven turns itself on . . . might say I am a pressure cooker fan. . . try to conserve vitamins . . . put small potatoes to bake in their jackets with the Swiss steak and Spareribs meal, but it doesn't take long to pressure cook potatoes on arrival from the office. Dinner still gets on the table in better time than if the main meat course were not cooked."

Known wants to add that the new 2 1-2 quart size pressure cooker now available is smaller than anything else formerly marketed and is easy to handle, big enough for a family of six and I couldn't cook without mine.

Kate Aitken—"Your Good Neighbor"

"IN THE SHOWROOM, THE FIRST THING THAT STRUCK ME ABOUT THE '55 PONTIAC WAS ITS BEAUTY. I was impressed by its long, low look . . . and the way the chrome highlights glistened and gleamed. Expect Output Of Maple Syrup Will Be Down

MONTREAL (CP)—Sap is running and Quebec sleighs equipped for sugaring-off parties say it's a sure sign of spring.

But provincial government officials are more concerned with this year's maple syrup output than with the coming of spring.

The trade and commerce department reported production is expected to be below the 1954 figure if the sap continues to flow at its present pace.

The department said Quebec maple trees yielded 2,134,000 gallons of syrup—worth $9,800,000—in 1954.

The sugar content of this year's sap was about one per cent compared with the normal content of two or three per cent. This, said the department, could reduce the yield.

The first call, "sap's running," echoed from a weekman at the Morgan arboretum of Macdonald College at nearby Ste. Anne de Bellevue.

Plastic pails are being used experimentally to replace the traditional aluminum buckets. Producers reported these are labor saving because the amount of sap in the transparent bags can be seen from a distance.

Retail prices for the best syrup are expected to remain the same as last year—between $5 and $6 a gallon.

Prince Edward Island May Get TV Station Soon

If granted, they would bring to 39 the number of CBC and privately-owned television stations in Canada. Twenty-five now are on the air and five more will be later this year.

The public hearing here also will consider applications for radio stations in Lindsay and Smiths Falls, Ont.

Key Contestants for Control Have Different Personalities

By WILLIAM FERRIS

CHICAGO (AP)—What executive qualities are necessary to run a great merchandising firm?

Judging from the personalities of the two key contestants for control of Montgomery Ward and Co., there isn't any pattern. Two men could hardly have more dissimilar backgrounds.

Dewell Avery, 81, Ward's chairman, has been a leading Chicago executive for the last half century. The 32d of a wealthy Michigan lumberman, he got his first job with a gypsum company.

When a bunch of little gypsum companies were merged by J. P. Morgan and Co. into United States Gypsum, Avery became an executive with the new company. He was made president in 1905, had a remarkable record and was brought over by Morgan to run Ward's in 1931.

Louis E. Wolfson, who is challenging Avery's leadership at Ward's, was born in St. Louis in 1912. When he was 14 months old, the family moved to Jacksonville, Fla. His father was a Russian immigrant who ran a successful junk yard.

COUNTING MILLIONS

In 1932, on a borrowed $10,000 young Wolfson founded the Florida Pipe and Supply Co. He has been piling up the millions since. His companies include Merritt-Chapman and Scott, Devoe and Raynolds and Capital Transit of Washington, D.C.

Avery is described by his friends as a man with great charm, quick at repartee and able to produce ripples of laughter among assembled stockholders.

Wolfson is the deadly serious type. Humor and witticisms are not his line.

Wolfson announced his intention of overthrowing Avery's control of Ward's last August, pointing toward the annual stockholders' meeting April 22. This ambition has produced what is rapidly becoming the biggest and bitterest financial battle in years.

These have been some of the most telling developments:

1. A ruling by a federal circuit judge in Chicago that Ward's method of electing directors is illegal. Out of a nine-man board of directors, three are elected each year. It's known as a "stagger system." Ward's has appealed this ruling to the Illinois Supreme Court.

This point is extremely important to Wolfson. If the stagger system is upheld, the best he can do this year is get three members on the 12-member board. However, if he did get three he would oust Avery, who is one of the three up for re-election.

If Avery is defeated, it's conceivable he could recover directors might resign and let Wolfson take control.

2. A boost in the regular quarterly dividend rate on Ward's stock. The company now is paying 75 cents a share quarterly, compared to 50 cents previously.

Wolfson has called this a "political dividend," which the clean implication is the pay out brought to rustle up a few votes for Avery.

BUY UP SHARES

3. A proposal by Wolfson that if elected he will recommend that Ward's buy up to 2,000,000 shares of stock from shareholders at book value. Inasmuch as book value is around $33 to $34 a share, and one can buy the stock at around $20, this offer is not without some appeal.

4. Purchase of $2,000,000 worth of Ward stock by the central states welfare fund, a fund of the AFL Teamsters' Union. This union is headed by Dave Beck and is conducting an organizing drive among Ward workers.

The stock can be voted at the annual stockholders meeting. At around $20 a share, $2,000,000 will buy 25,000 shares of Ward's common stock. It is a sizable voting stock in a company in which the average stockholder owns less than 100 shares.

LIBERAL URGES CENTRAL CANADA

Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) renewed the opposition attack Tuesday, charging the government has shown "complete evidence of irresponsibility" by not proposing any measures to meet the situation since the debate began.

Unemployment had become "a stark, ugly fact" with more than 600,000 jobless, Fleming said, "deliberately deserting their families to qualify their dependents for relief payments."

NEW TERMS

Dealing with farm product exports, Trade Minister Howe said at the House opening that Canada will make representations to the United States if U.S. import barriers on some Canadian farm commodities are continued after existing curbs expire this year.

Under revised terms of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade the U.S. has been granted waiver rights to restrict any farm imports threatening U.S. farm price-support programs.

The Commons defeated, on a vote of 183 to 21, a bill sponsored by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) which would have stripped secrecy from the income tax dealings of corporations. Revenue Minister McCann said the government may amend the Income Tax Act to ensure that tax returns may not be produced in criminal court cases.

Another indication of future legislation was seen in the Commons committee on elections, which approved the principle of extending the federal franchise to wives of servicemen living abroad with their husbands.

Commons proceedings also touched on foreign policy when External Affairs Minister Pearson said at the House opening that the government will support "any reasonable proposal" to enforce the Korean armistice terms or limitation of arms buildups in North and South Korea.

But the Maritimes braced today for a new outburst as another storm centre moved up from the northeastern states. The weather office at Halifax said a mixture of heavy rain, snow, freezing rain and ice pellets accompanied by strong winds would hit all Maritime districts today.

In the West, the Prairie provinces had typical March weather—overcast skies and temperatures near or below zero—while the interior of British Columbia was cold with light snow.

SWEPT FROM BRIDGE

Susan Wooley, 5, was drowned in a creek at Port Credit, 10 miles west of Toronto, when she was toppled from a foot bridge by the wind.

Three fishermen—Fred Fuller, 49 his son Everett, 23, and John Schiller, 18, all of Kingsville—were missing on a storm-swept Lake Erie, somewhere off Leamington, 30 miles away at Windsor.

Two others—muskrat trapper Leo Launon of Mitchell's bay and an unidentified cottager from Long point—were unaccounted for in lakeshore communities near Chatham.

Five men aboard a tiny fishing vessel battled high waves in Lake Erie in an effort to reach Port Burwell, northwest of London. Bonfires raged on the rain and snowlashed shore of Lake Erie during the night in hopes of guiding the Sincoe to haven.

Radio contact, broken for four hours, was renewed at midnight at a time when the men were almost given up for lost. The boat had tried to make Port Burwell from 30 miles out but buffeting winds forced her back.

FISHERMEN'S PRAYERS

Aboard the Sincoe were Harold Young, its captain, and crew members John Wilson, Gorden Messecar, John Sakovich and Gordon Rockefeller. The Sincoe was believed in possible danger of foundering.

At Leamington Tuesday night, seven fishermen were admitted to hospital suffering exposure after two fishing boats were caught in Lake Erie.

Provincial police said Carl Fraser and Lloyd Molotte of Kingsville managed to swim 400 yards to shore after their boat overturned and sank while they tried to reach safety on Point Pelee, 19 miles south of Windsor. The men were lifeless.

The men aboard a 28-foot fishing boat were taken to hospital for observation when they were forced to beach their craft near Leamington. The men are John Jullen, his son Ken, Bill Reynold, Harold Brown and John Phoblon, all of Kingsville.

TRAPPED IN HOUSEBOAT

At Bayfield, 30 miles northwest of London, eight men were rescued from two fishing vessels which were blown in an ice field north of the harbor mouth. A group of men on shore put a boat out across the ice and rescued Charles and Malcolm Toms and Ken Brandon from one boat and John Lindsay, George Poole, George Telford and Edward and Willard Sturgeon from the other.

Police and firemen rescued elderly David Martin, who was trapped in his houseboat at Wallaceburg. The houseboat broke loose from its mooring and drifted on the Sydenham river.

Winds gusting up to 87 miles an hour lashed six-foot waves over hundreds of lakeshore cottages and homes along Lakes Erie, St. Clair and Ontario. Three homes were washed into the Detroit river. Two cottages were swept away at Long point, in Norfolk county, and many of the remaining 200 cottages there were in danger. But no one was hurt.

TRAFFIC BLOCKED

Heavy rain, which turned to wet snow, struck many areas in Southern Ontario, making highway traffic extremely hazardous at best and impossible in parts of the southwest.

In Toronto, high waves along Lake Ontario spilled over onto the Lakeshore boulevard and it was blocked to traffic until the winds died down. Streets were treacherous as a thin coat of snow fell over the city.

In the Toronto suburbs, where hurricane Hazel struck hardest, police reported little trouble. Rivers rose for a while, then subsided, and no threats of damage were reported after midnight.

Damage was heaviest in the Windsor and London areas. One provincial police official said damage in Essex county could run "anywhere from a half million to a million dollars."

Mitchell's bay, eight miles south of Wallaceburg, suffered its worst flood in 25 years. Waves from Lake St. Clair spilled over banks and dikes and forced evacuation of many of the community's 300 residents.

At Sarnia, the waterworks pumping station feeder line was knocked out. Wind peeled off the steel roof of the London Salvage Co. building in London, sweeping it across the CNR tracks, and toppled a wall under construction at a shopping centre.

In the Chatham district, where residents rated the storm the worst in Kent county's history, cottages were ripped from their foundations and carried inland or out to sea. A blinding blizzard stopped traffic.

More than 400 residents at Erieau, near Chatham, were evacuated when giant waves smashed a protecting dike. Cottages and barns were swept away by the torrents from Lake Ontario.

TRANSFORMER BLOWS BUS

ORILLIA (CP)—An army bus from Camp Borden skidded on a slippery turn Monday and snapped a hydro pole, allowing a heavy transformer to crash through the vehicle's roof. Only three persons were in the bus at the time. None was hurt.

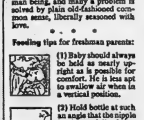
Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was starting his 2nd cup of coffee this morning, and ma said, Pop, didn't you promise to cut down, William?



Well yes, He's have'd it at the usual time, pop said, and ma said, What shall we have to eat, silly?

How about some nice cood, tastefully flavored? pop said, and ma said, Joe, I might of known better than to ask you, when I want a suggestion for something different. By golly, that's a challenge, and I'll rise to meet it, pop said. Let's have Russian string beans. You cook them 4 or 5 hours in plenty of unsalted water, he said, and then drain them what's an idea. Why are they called Russian? pop said.

Because you cant get any satisfaction out of them, pop said, and then he said, I got a swell idea an idea. We'll have Frenchi pees, Frenchi fried potatoes and shredd of lettuce. But that still leaves the meat course unprovided for, she said.

Then I'll provide for it, pop said. Let's have Italian confetti. You take long mackerony and stuff them and chicken into the hole with a darning needle, he said, and ma said, Oh such a man, but I'm glad I asked you, William, because now that you mentioned Russian. I'll make Russian beef. It's made with strips of tender fillay, and it's cooked very lightly with sour cream and mushrooms and a dash of port wine. I forget what it's called, she said.

I'll call it good, pop said. Which it was, being swell.

A bit apprehensive about the arrival of that beautiful bundle of joy? That's understandable! Many a new mother will tell you how trying too hard. It's helpful to remember that when you relax, most tasks are lightened, and when you put forth a serene manner, it increases baby's serenity. Remember too, that baby is an adaptable human being, and many a problem is solved by plain old-fashioned common sense, liberally seasoned with love.

Feeding tips for freshman parents:

(1) Baby should always be held as nearly upright as is possible for comfort. He is less apt to swallow air when in a vertical position.

(2) Hold bottle at such an angle that the nipple is always full of formula — another simple precaution against excessive air-swallowing.

Orange juice is usually recommended as soon as baby is well established on formula. Important facts to remember about Gerber's Strained Orange Juice: It is made from tree-ripened oranges, selected for uniformly high vitamin-C content, and rich, natural flavor. It is specially processed to remove most of the peel oil which insures easy digestibility. Carefully pasteurized for baby's protection, too.

New babies usually meet solid food for the first time in the form of cereal. There are good reasons for the popularity of Gerber's 3 Cereals — Mixs, Barley, Oatmeal, Wheat and Mixed Cereal. They're famous for blend, body, flavor, texture, and extra-smooth, pleasant-feeding texture. Pre-cooked and ready to serve, with milk, formula or other liquids. Last but not least, Gerber's 3 cereals are fortified with iron, calcium and B-vitamins; offer an abundance of energy-giving calories. Gerber-Ogilvie Baby Foods Limited, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Mumby, Tommie and Ronnie, Mrs. Stella Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Heath, Don and Carl and Mr. and Mrs. Walt Reid and Geordie spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fitchett and Ross in Campbellford. It was the occasion of Jimmie Mumby's birthday.

WELLINGTON

CGIT, W.I. Members Hold Meeting, Present Fine Program

WELLINGTON—The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the town hall on Tuesday evening with Mrs. Ellis, vice-president in the chair.

Mrs. Ellis opened the meeting by first welcoming about 60 members including 30 CGIT girls and their leaders, Mrs. Hugh East, Mrs. McKenzie, Mrs. L. Bryant and Miss Martineau.

Thank-you notes were read from Mrs. Mildred Way, Mrs. Deane, Mrs. Teskey and daughter Mrs. Vanluven and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall. It was decided that all outstanding bills be paid.

The Scout banquet which was to be held on the 1st of April, has been postponed until the 22nd of April. The Holstein banquet will be held during Easter week.

Mrs. S. Tripp gave her report on Citizenship and Education and Mrs. Beatrice Blakely reported on community activities and public relations.

The birthday box was boosted by four ladies who were celebrating their birthdays in March.

Mrs. William Jackson read a letter she had received from the Institute's little girl in Greece, thanking the W.I. for the lovely box of clothing received. She also sent a handmade dolly for which tickets were sold. Mrs. McKenzie held the lucky number.

Mrs. J. Callow and Mrs. Yourt were selected as hostesses for the month of April. This brought the business part of the evening to a close.

PROGRAM

The program was then handed over to Mrs. Hugh East as the CGIT girls had prepared it.

Mrs. Leonard Bryant gave an outline of the work the CGIT girls do, and told how the Rev. and Mrs. Robbins started the CGIT here in Wellington, 34 years ago. They had nine members that first year, with Mrs. William Daniels, (then Miss Margaret McNeil), as president. She said that the CGIT was in interdenominational group and a four square affair. Mrs. Bryant said that the girls were there to help so that if any church or organization needed any help at any time to always be sure and call on them.

At the time of "Hurricane Hazel" they collected and sent canned goods to the needy and sewed diapers on behalf of the WMS; collected money for various organizations and are now dressing a doll for the Hospital for Sick Children.

Mrs. Bryant gave an enlightening and interesting view of the CGIT which was much enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. East called on Gail Ellis, who rendered a solo "Ireland Must Be Heaven", accompanied by Carol Marvin at the piano, and Wellington's own ballerina Nell Halloran, who gave an excellent show of ballet dancing with Carley Cleave at the piano.

The Brimley twins, Margaret and Marilyn sang a lovely duet, "When Irish Eyes are Smiling", with their grandmother, Mrs. F. Brimley Sr., at the piano.

Mary Marvin and Margaret Head rendered a piano duet "Gems from Melody Land."

A trio, Catharine Foster, Clarabelle McFaul, Carol Pearrall sang "Mr. Murphy's Chowder" with Carley Cleave at the piano.

A tap dance was nicely done by Barbara Dick, with Carley Cleave at the piano and last but not least, a sextet of girls Donna Elliott, Ilona Bryant, Carol Marvin, Darlene Elliott, Beverley Alyea and Carley Cleave with Evelyn Wright at the piano sang, "Calvary Bay" and as an encore, "Let the Sun Shine In".

All the girls singing "Taps" brought a most enjoyable program to a close. There are certainly a lot of talented young ladies in the CGIT group of which the leaders and everyone are proud.

The ladies, assisted by several of the girls, served refreshments and a social time was spent by all.

The Women's Institute would like to thank the leaders and the girls for such a splendid evening and hope they will all come again soon. The girls are having a tea on April 18.

Cape Breton Island Centre Of World Says Best Booster

By RAE CORELLI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SYDNEY (CP) — When Gordon Eiman speaks of Cape Breton his eyes light up, he gestures forcibly for emphasis and likely as not will say in a tone that brooks no argument:

"Cape Breton island is the centre of the world."

He means just what he says. That is why he has landed—temporarily, at least—in the driver's seat of the most ambitious industrial development program this industrial island of 185,000 persons has ever seen.

The plan will take form in the shape of the Sydney Industrial Development Co. Ltd., incorporation of which is being sought in the Nova Scotia legislature.

Eiman and a group of wealthy associates will attempt to find out what $500,000 in guaranteed capital can get in the way of new industry for a region whose traditional enterprise, coal, is sorely threatened by sagging markets.

SIDCO's financing is simple. Its backers each have agreed to put up $2,000 of their own money. In this way, it already has amassed $130,000 and Eiman says the total soon will reach $150,000.

The 30-year-old Glace Bay native says arrangements have been made to get guarantees for a further $350,000, making $500,000 in all.

After incorporation, SIDCO will launch a national newspaper and magazine advertising campaign for ideas. Each will be investigated by a special five-man committee headed by laundry owner Murvale B. Vale and a 60-per-cent favorable vote of SIDCO's board of directors will put capital behind the man with the idea.

"We're not interested in assisting any enterprise that will compete with existing industry," Eiman said. "But we'll back any other venture that proves its soundness."

A half-dozen overtures have been received already.

"We want to diversify our industry," Eiman said. "But we're not solely interested in large industry."

The Dominion Steel and Coal Corp., dug 5,000,000 tons of coal in Cape Breton island in 1954 and its Sydney steel plant turned out 630,000 tons of steel products. Foreign orders have strengthened the steel business but coal is shaky.

Eiman started out selling automobiles 33 years ago at 17 and still runs a car showroom and garage. He also is president of the Isle Royale Hotel, the city's best, owns a bus company, and is a past president of the Sydney board of trade whose membership he drove from 35 to 500 in a hard-driving campaign.

"I'm also president of a gold mine but it's not worth much," he added ruefully. "Then there's park commissioner—I'm that, too."

SIDCO's birth occurred last fall shortly after Eiman bottomholed secretary Walter Raleigh of the New England council at a meeting in Halifax and learned the six states had attracted $75,000,000 worth of industry employing 27,000 by using the same approach of self-help.

Early April 17th, Belleville's telephone system will be changed from "Manual" to "Dial" operation.

Meanwhile, by means of an ingenious miniature dial system, now installed at The Belleville Utilities Commission Office at 277 Front Street, it is possible to watch, step by step, just what happens when you "dial" a number.

You are cordially invited to drop in, any time during business hours to see this "almost human" mechanism at work. A competent demonstrator will be glad to explain the "inner workings" to anyone interested.

Please drop in — you'll be more than welcome!

Red Wings Trounce Leafs 7-4; Habs Blank Bruins 2-0 In Opening Games

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

WE HOPE . . .

Let's see, a win tonight will make the count 2-1 and a victory here Friday night will square the series. Then the Memos and Goodies can start from scratch and bangtail it out in a best-of-three series. That is just plain mathematical thinking—and we're making no bones about it. It could happen—and if the Memos dig deeply into their hockey war-bags and come up with the brand of hockey they are capable of playing, it should be that way.

But art a use. There's a spot of news this morning that isn't cheerful to say the least. One of the bulwarks of the Memos' defence, Rob Macy, was missing from the practice Monday night. It was reported he had pulled a muscle in the game in Kingston the other night, and there is a possibility he won't be available for duty tonight in Kingston. But don't take that for granted. Any guy with the intestinal fortitude of a Rob Macy will be out there short of a broken leg. It is hoped the injury is not serious and the potent Rob will be back in his accustomed position. If not, it will be a serious blow to the Memos' chances of pulling this series out of the fire.

Just what Coach Boucher would do under these conditions we are not in a position to conjecture. It is certain he would have to do some shuffling, but how we are not going to second-guess. If such is the case and the Rob is out for this all-important tussle, we can blame Ole Lady Luck for keeping her shining countenance on those pesky Goodyears.

This column has not been too lavish in its praise of Boucher over the season. Frank is the quiet, almost modest type, not given to tossing himself in the publicity glare. In fact he has been so quiet that he has been a target for needle-talkfest one night, as friend Devine will substantiate.

But we will say and this in the Cornwall setup, that a constant study of scoring and defensive potentialities of the club roster by the coach resulted in an all-over equality of attack and defence. Take a look at the seven-game series which showed but one or two points difference in the scoring records of the Memos' three front lines proved this.

Any coach is subject to criticism, and Boucher is no different from the rest. We have heard fault found from time to time with his methods in searching out the weaknesses of referees and bleacher umpires. However, the facts prove that Boucher has done a good job. He brought the club to a place of honor in the face of strenuous opposition and defeated the Cornwall Colts, which a lot of experts still believe was the best club in the group. He has instilled a lot of fighting spirit in the club as has been proven—and if he can pull this series out of the fire his cup of joy will be overflowing.

Tonight's the night that tells the story. If the Memos lose, they face the herculean task of winning four in a row, possible, but not probable. If they win, it might be the spark that could send them to a series victory. But those Goodyears from Roddenville are better than stolen loot and with the glimmer of the group title starting to sparkle the distant horizon they're going to be harder to beat than a dinosaur's eggs. But they can be beaten—that's for sure—and don't be surprised too much, to see the Memos turn the trick tonight.

SOFTBALL

President Cy Barriage, of the Belleville District Softball Association, will head a strong delegation to the OASA annual conclave slated for Fairborough, April 8 and 9. Vice-president Jim Agnew and "Mac" Carson, along with the proxy are the accredited delegates and these, no doubt, will be augmented by several other representatives of the city and district organizations. While these will not actually vote they will have the privilege of verbally supporting or criticizing various subjects brought before the convention body.

President Barriage is starting off on the right foot. Apparently aware that much important work is to be done before the opening ball "Play Ball" and realizing it can only be done in meetings, he has called another district association get-together for Sunday next. And it is imperative that a large turnout of those interested be on hand. Only through mutual concern can anything be done. And it is important both in softball, baseball and other summer sports, that spade work is done at least some time before actual play gets under way.

Softball enjoyed a highly successful season last year, and while no championships were brought to the association, several teams went to the finals or advanced to a respectable spot along the playdown trail. With another good organization at the helm there is no reason why 1955 should not be even better than last year.

Toronto's Lumley No Puzzle For Detroit Sharpshooters; Irvin Pulls Goalie Gimmick

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Mystery cleared away and an alarming slump in effectiveness seemingly righted, Montreal Canadiens today took on new confidence that they can turn back the Boston Bruins.

In the opening game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals Tuesday night, Canadiens came up with a solid defensive display and dumped the Bruins in a 2-0 white-washing on second-period goals by Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and big Jean Beliveau.

The mysterious "something new" promised by coach Dick Irvin materialized when he sent two goalies, working in relays, to face the Bruins' shots. It was a stunt he has pulled before in Stanley Cup play. Jacques Plante, regular netminder and rookie Charlie Hodge were shuttled into and out of the game.

With this innovation for the fans to chatter about, the presence of Montreal's ace goalie, National Hockey League president, was almost a mid-climax.

FEW BOOS

There was only mild, scattered booing for Campbell, whose suspension of Maurice (Rocket) Richard had the fans in such a dither last week that their riotous outbreaks ended a game scheduled game Thursday with Detroit Red Wings.

Large police details were again assigned to the Forum, their number estimated between 200 and 300. Those stationed outside, about 50 feet apart, stood in a driving snowstorm.

Inside the building both uniformed and plainclothes police were placed at all exit points and scattered throughout the crowd. Ten police ranged themselves in front of Campbell's box. They stood in the main promenade, one the ice-surface level, their faces turned toward Campbell and away from the game.

As on Saturday night, no standing-room tickets were sold.

ARRIVED EARLY

There wasn't a ripple when Campbell took his seat two minutes before the game started. There were a few boos and shouts of "Boo Campbell" after the first period.

No attempt was made to molest him at any time. When he mixed with the spectators in leaving the Forum he was preceded by two policemen and followed by two more.

Booing of Hal Laycoe, the Boston player Richard attacked March 13, came in bursts—the first chorus coming from all over the rink. When he was spilled once with a solid bodycheck by Jean Beliveau, the booing changed to elated cheering.

The hard, close-checking game and the dozen penalties, evenly divided between the two teams, brought only one flare-up. Leo Labine of Boston and Bert Olmstead of Montreal engaged in a slugging match in the final minute of play and were each given major penalties of five minutes and ordered to their dressing rooms by referee Bill Chadwick.

MORE ASSURANCE

The game was tightly played but not roughly so was by far the rule rather than a wide-open style.

Canadiens were more effective and played with more assurance than they did Saturday night in Detroit against the Red Wings and were shellacked 6-0 in the game that decided the first championship.

They had an edge in offensive play and the dangerous shots that Plante and Hodge were called on to handle were fewer than those tossed at "Sugar" Jim Henry in the Boston net.

While maintaining a strong defensive stand of their own when Boston pressed, they made nine minus two men for 48 seconds — Canadiens capitalized on Boston penalties in the second period to score both goals.

A partly screened, low shot by Floyd Curry skimmed into the Boston net from the blueline at 6:23, and at 12:35 Beliveau deflected another shot by Curry past Henry.

Boston had 16 shots to handle; Hodge only four. Jim Henry faced 25 shots, including the two that got by him.

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings played a "bad" game but were still good enough to overwhelm Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday night in the opening game of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

In a dull, undramatic contest, Red Wings trounced the Leafs 7-4 at Olympia Stadium to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven semi-final series.

Maple Leafs offered little resistance and the game was played at a loose, wide-open pace—a perfect setup for Detroit's sharpshooters.

Dutch Reibel and Gordie Howe scored two goals apiece as the Red Wings riddled Goalie Harry Lumley from start to finish.

"We haven't played that bad in a long, long time," said general manager Jack Adams after the game. "I hope that this was the bad game to get out of our system."

TWO EACH

Each team scored twice in the first period—Vic Stasiuk (and Reibel for Detroit and Brian Cullen and George Armstrong for Toronto.

Glen Skov and Reibel tallied second-period goals to break the game wide open for Detroit. Skov scored on a jab shot, while Reibel whipped in a partially screened 30-footer.

There were five goals in the free-wheeling third period. Howe scored two goals apiece as the Red Leadsay got the other.' Sid Smith and Ted Kennedy scored for Toronto.

The crowd was announced as 12,190, somewhat smaller than usual because of the day-long storm which whipped Detroit.

FORMER TIGER DIES

HAMILTON (CP) — Arthur B. Wilson, 67, lineman with the Hamilton Tigers football team from 1912 to 1918, died Tuesday in hospital. He was playing wing on the Hamilton team which won the Grey Cup in 1913. Mr. Wilson operated a wholesale fruit business until 1950 when he retired.

Dutchies, Soo Open Senior Series Tonight

GUELPH (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, stricken by influenza, start their attempt for a second all-Ontario senior A hockey championship in three years when they meet Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds here tonight.

The game is the first of the best-of-seven final. The winner of the series will move into the eastern Canada Allan Cup final. The Dutchmen won the cup in 1953-54.

Keith Woodall, the netminder who helped them to that victory, will again be in the Kitchener nets. Woodall retired from regular play after the Allan Cup victory but was forced back into action when Dennis Brodeur, the regular goalie, was injured.

Coach Bobby Bauer, 41 with virus pneumonia for the last week, will probably miss the first two games. He is ordered after a medical checkup Tuesday to take up the first game.

Another doubtful starter is left-winger Charlie Brooker, who has been out with the 'flu for some days.

A foot injury to Joe Scherrer will force Dutchmen to go with only three defencemen but Bob White, up from the Kitchener-Waterloo Canadian Soo OHA Junior A, will be dressed and used in a utility role.

The Greyhounds, Northern Ontario Hockey Association champions, had an early practice at the Guelph Arena Tuesday and coach George O'Flaherty refused to make any predictions beyond forecasting a tough series.

Canadian Swimmers Get 2nd Chance To Go After Elusive Gold Medal

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Canadian swimmers got another chance today to go after an elusive gold medal at the Pan - American Games.

Led by Virginia Grant, a six-foot Toronto girl, Canada qualified three swimmers for the finals of the women's 100-metre free style and the men's 100-metre backstroke and entered a duet in the synchronized swimming.

Miss Grant, 17-year-old runner-up in the 110-metre free style swim at the Empire Games last August summer, and 16-year-old Helen Stewart of Vancouver faced a strong field in the women's free style headed by Shelley Mann of Arlington, Va.

Miss Mann broke the Games record in winning her qualifying heat last Saturday and Miss Grant also finished first in another trial. The American girl was clocked in 1:07.1. Miss Grant in 1:08.4.

Ted Simpson of Vancouver was among the eight finalists in the men's backstroke and the Canadian pair of Eila Lindell and Louise Wright entered in the synchronized swimming. The Canadian girls are 20-year-old Montrealers who performed at the British Empire Games in exhibitions.

STILL NINTH

With the games heading into the homestretch in the point competition, Canada remained in ninth place in the unofficial team standing with a total of 34 points.

Tuesday night despite shivering weather, a crowd of 5,000 viewed Irene Macdonald of Hamilton, who turned in a solid all-round performance to capture fourth place in the women's three-metre diving competition.

The 21-year-old Miss Macdonald, third in springboard diving at the 1954 British Empire Games, scored three points for Canada in finishing behind three Americans.

In the preliminary heats of the men's 200-metre butterfly stroke, two Vancouver swimmers, Simpson and Bob Gair, finished first and seventh respectively and were eliminated.

The Dominican Republic captured the baseball championship Tuesday night defeating the Dutch West Indies 13-8 to wind up with a record of six wins and two defeats. The United States was second with a 5-3 record.

U.S. clinched the women's basketball round-robin by chalking up its seventh straight victory, beating Chile 62-20.

Argentina won the soccer championship with a record of five victories and one tie and Mexico took the women's volleyball tournament.

May Use Profits For Minor Sport

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature's committee on government commissions Tuesday voted unanimously that Ontario athletic commissioner L. M. MacKenzie be permitted to use the profits earned by his office for promotion of sport among youngsters.

MacKenzie reported to the committee-Hon. Earl Rowe earned $14,774 last year.

Two months ago, MacKenzie appeared before the committee to outline his duties, mainly the control of boxing and wrestling in Ontario and the distribution of $10,000 month of the equipment among youth athletic groups.

He said then he could use much more than the $10,000 given by the legislature and that he believed his office earned more than it cost. The committee asked for figures and when MacKenzie presented them Tuesday, the committee voted unanimously to allow him to use the profits for promotion of sport and athletics.

Canadian Swimmers Get 2nd Chance To Go After Elusive Gold Medal

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Canadian swimmers got another chance today to go after an elusive gold medal at the Pan - American Games.

Led by Virginia Grant, a six-foot Toronto girl, Canada qualified three swimmers for the finals of the women's 100-metre free style and the men's 100-metre backstroke and entered a duet in the synchronized swimming.

Miss Grant, 17-year-old runner-up in the 110-metre free style swim at the British Empire Games last summer, and 16-year-old Helen Stewart of Vancouver faced a strong field in the women's free style headed by Shelley Mann of Arlington, Va.

Miss Mann broke the Games record in winning her qualifying heat last Saturday and Miss Grant also finished first in another trial. The American girl was clocked in 1:07.1. Miss Grant in 1:08.4.

Ted Simpson of Vancouver was among the eight finalists in the men's backstroke and the Canadian pair of Eila Lindell and Louise Wright entered in the synchronized swimming. The Canadian girls are 20-year-old Montrealers who performed at the British Empire Games in exhibitions.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery
Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (retraction) (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases when doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous research institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing rectal tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H.* The price is only $1.19 a tube including an applicator, the same to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember — if not entirely satisfied — your money will be refunded promptly.

Toronto Marlies Whip Teepees 6-3, Take 2-1 Lead in Junior A Finals

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Toronto Marlboros seem to have no qualms about playing on the road. In fact, the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff records would indicate that the Dukes enjoy it.

Tuesday night the Marlboros, led by centre Billy Harris, defeated St. Catharines TeePees 6-3 before a standing-room crowd of 4,000 fans here. The victory gave them a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven OHA Junior A final. The winner will advance into the eastern Canada Memorial Cup final.

The victory was the eighth for Marlboros in 10 playoff games. Five of the games were won away from home.

Harris, who scored two goals and two assists for the Dukes Tuesday night, was the top Marlboro sniper all season. The diminutive centre is one of the best stickhandlers in the league, had 68 points during the regular schedule, 10 more than anyone else in the league's scorers. His 37 goals were fourth best in the league and he had 39 assists besides.

CULLEN GOT TWO

Other Toronto marksmen were George Gosling, Gerry Aldcorn, Gary Collins and Ron Casey.

Barry Cullen scored two for St. Catharines with Cec Hoekstra getting the other.*

Both teams were under new coaching Tuesday night and will be again for the fourth game of the series in Toronto tonight. The regular coaches—Turk Broda of the Marlboros and Phil Watson of the TeePees—were suspended for two games as the result of the wild brawl in Toronto during the third game of the series Sunday.

Joe Primeau, who had coached Stanley Cup, Allan Cup and Memorial Cup teams, filled in for Broda. Eddie Bush, coach of Guelph Biltmores this season, handled the St. Catharines club.

With the arena police force doubled, the game was free of rough tactics and there was no threat of a recurrence of the flare-up which resulted in 29 five-minute major penalties and 23 10-minute misconducts in Toronto Sunday. Only nine minors were handed out — five to Marlbores—and the TeePees scored all three goals while the Dukes were playing shorthanded.

Record Entry For Peewees

GODERICH (CP)—Guy Emmerson, secretary of the Goderich Rotary Club's peewee carnival week, announced Tuesday that a record 60 entries have been received for the biggest minor hockey series in the world." The series is held here during Easter week.

This is the sixth year for the peewee tournament which has attracted teams of 12-year-olds from many parts of Canada.

Clubs are coming from Winnipeg, Hornepayne, Timiskaming, Kingston, Toronto, Galt, Welland, London and Collingwood.

The Winnipeg team has challenged Goderich to play for the east-west trophy which Winnipeg won last year. The host team has accepted.

Richard Fan Cables Queen

MONTREAL (CP)—A cable to the Queen asking Her Majesty to intercede on behalf of Maurice (Rocket) Richard was sent Tuesday by a Montreal Canadiens hockey fan.

Managing director Frank Selke of Canadiens said Tuesday night he knows the fan and his name but preferred not to release it. He said the cable asked Her Majesty to request Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League to reinstate Richard.

The Rocket was suspended by Campbell because of a rampage he staged on Boston Garden ice March 13.

Selke said with a grin: "Wouldn't it be funny if the Queen didn't see the cable herself and intervened among the royal household secretaries acted on it in good faith and called a report to Mr. Campbell."

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—There are many new managers in the American League this spring, but the one who probably is in the hottest seat is the former great shortstop, Lou Boudreau. Marion is taking over Chicago White Sox, a club which figures to be a contender. But Lou got off to a "no" previews shots at the managerial job, with St. Louis Cards and St. Louis Browns, but this is his first good team. He will be marked for criticism if the Sox do not do at least as well as they did under Paul Richards last season.

He said he was fully aware of this when we found his catching duties cut down a bit of third base. We asked him what he felt he had picked up in the skills of handling a club which he might not have had two years ago, when the Browns collapsed on him.

MUST MAKE DECISIONS

"If you mean in handling a team during a game, nothing," Marty said. "You learn all that when you're a player . . . Of course, you're supposed to do it from a different angle as a manager, and it's a job to learn to make the decisions, just like any other job.

"But the most important thing about managing a ball club is to knowing how to handle the individual players, to get the most that can be gotten out of each man on your roster.

"I don't have too many personal problems with this team, because it has a nucleus of hard-playing veterans who love the game and are going to give you all they've got every day—men like Minnie Minoso, Jim Rivera and Nellie Fox."

Bisons, Hornets Take Openers In American Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Young Ken Wharram, Buffalo's brilliant centre, and veteran goalie Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh Hornets stole the show as the American Hockey League's 19th Calder Cup playoff got under way Tuesday night.

The 21-year-old Wharram collected all three goals—including the winning one at 7:30 of a sudden-death second overtime period as Bisons edged the defending champion Cleveland Barons 3-2.

Mayer, in his fifth season with Pittsburgh, recorded a shutout as Hornets, the regular-season titlists, turned back Springfield Indians 3-0.

Each game was the opener in the best-of-five semi-final series. The teams resume the playoffs Thursday with Buffalo still at Cleveland, while Pittsburgh again is host to Springfield.

Mayer said Cleveland had played more than 77 minutes when Wharram scored the tie-breaker from close range while Hornets were a man short. The goal was scored at the 5-minute, 30-second mark. Cal Francis, who took over as Cleveland goalie after rookie Ray McMeekin retired with a knee injury in the opening minutes of the third period.

Mayer made only 23 saves against Springfield as Hornets disposed of Indians' defence. Bob Hassard put Pittsburgh in front 1-0 in the second period and rookie Jack Caffer added the clincher later in the same stanza.

Flyers Protest Games Venue

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa District Hockey Association is protesting to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's decision to have Ottawa Flyers play all their Allan Cup games against Moncton Hawks in the Maritime city.

"We have taken the matter up with George Dudley, the CAHA's secretary-manager," said ODHA secretary-manager Cecil Duncan Tuesday night. "We definitely will appeal the order which has cost us thousands of dollars in opportunity to see at least a couple of Allan Cup games."

The Maritime Senior Hockey League representatives currently lead the ODHA champions 3-0 in games in their best-of-seven series. With the third game scheduled for Thursday night, there would be time for a CAHA change of mind.

Training Camp Notes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chuck Dressen, the manager who walked out on a pennant with new figures Brooklyn Dodgers would have won the National League flag again last season if he had been around. And this person, says he, they'll do it even though he's still not with them unless they break their arms.

Dressen, back in the major leagues after sitting out the 1954 season at Oakland, now bosses Washington Senators in the American League. But his faith still is with the Brooks.

"They should win it easy," said Dressen Tuesday. "They've got all the stuff they need. A lot depends on the pitchers, of course. They're there and you've got to get it out of them."

EDGED BROOKLYN

And with those compliments out of the way, Dressen and the Nats proceeded to nudge Brooklyn 6-5 in a 10-inning exhibition game.

Boston Red Sox got going late, breaking a 1-1 tie with four eighth-inning runs to beat Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1.

Cleveland held Chicago Cubs to two hits, but walks and errors gave the Bruins a 3-2 decision.

Cincinnati Red Legs got to Bob Tiefenauer for four runs in the ninth, but couldn't catch St. Louis Cardinals, who scored five on five hits in the last two innings for a 7-6 victory.

Rain washed out the Milwaukee-Philadelphia, Detroit - Baltimore games. The other clubs were not scheduled.

Souchak Wins Golf Tourney

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Big Mike Souchak of Durham, N.C., fired a 69 Tuesday to go with his 70 Monday for 139 and first money in the $10,000 Seminole pro-amateur golf tournament.

His individual score was good for $1,800 and his share of the pro-am money was $1,750 for a total of $3,550.

Souchak teamed with Ray W. Heffernan, Worcester, Mass., and Alfred G. Kay, Chester, N.J. Their best-ball scores were identical—32-43—125.

Peter Thomson, British Open champion from Melbourne, Australia, took second money in the pro division with 70-70—140, worth $1,000.

Football Bell Rings Clans To Meeting

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Commissioner Bert Bell Tuesday summoned members of the National Football League executive committee to a special meeting in New York Monday to discuss the current dispute with the Canadian football league over player contracts, and to consider a 1955 NFL schedule.

Bell announced that the meeting will get under way at 10:30 a.m. at the Hotel Warwick. He did not indicate how long it might last.

The NFL executive committee is composed of one representative of each of the 12 member clubs.

An NFL spokesman confirmed that the discussion of relations with the Canadians was at the request of the Detroit club. The Lions' Monday afternoon temporary court order seeking to restrain quarterback Tobin Rote from going to Hamilton to the Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four.

Bell said last week, when the Dublinski case apparently torpedoed the league's standing truce agreement with the Canadians on player contracts, that from now on it's "every club for himself" in scrapping for players. He indicated the league would not seek to prevent NFL clubs from retaliating for Canadian player raids.

Trent Valley Hockey

MARMORA — In the fourth them. The teams now have two game of the four-of-seven series to declare the champions of the northern section of the Trent Valley League, Marmora; nosed Campbellford out by the score of 5-4. It was a tight and exciting tussle and the fact that fifteen penalties in all were awarded is an indication of some roughness in the second and third periods.

At the end of the first Marmora led on goals scored by K. Trumble and Lavender, K. Trumble and Brown assisting the latter, while Campbellford had not scored. Wilson on a solo effort outwitted the Marmora goalie at 7.40 in the second, but Mantle registered on Jones' assist and Jones scored unassisted so that Marmora went into the third period with a three-goal lead.

Paramuik beat Nelson at 7.30 of the final session on assists from C. Trumble and Smith. This stung Campbellford on to further aggressiveness and a minute from each other Herrington scored two goals from assists in turn by Stevenson and Payne.

The scoring at 17.40.

Campbellford pulled Nelson but this failed to produce another counter and Marmora was unable to get the breakaway that might have produced another goal for them.

Pep, the aging Hartford, Conn., veteran weighed 130½, Titone 127½.

Pep used combinations effectively in the no-knockdown fight. It was Willie's 128th victory in 135 pro bouts.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You hear some bridge experts talk learnedly of sign-offs. What they refer to are bids that warn partner to let the bidding drop in that spot. But do not be misled by the name.

A sign-off warns but does not order partner to pass. If partner has anything more to show he should bid again despite the warning. Rules take care of all such situations. Easily.

Your south partner opens the bidding with a heart when you have this north hand:

♠K 7
♥J 9 6
♦K 7 5 3
♣A 8 4 2

The bidding starts off like this:

South	North
1 Heart	1 No-trump
2 Hearts	?

Almost any master player or teacher will tell you that the heart rebid by south is a sign-off. So it is, if you like the name. But it should not sign you off with the hand you hold.

Unless a jump bid has been made, neither partner is forced to bid again if either has assisted or rebid a suit or said no-trump. So, no forcing bid existed from the time you bid no-trump.

When partner rebid hearts he showed a rebiddable heart suit and a slam hand. Your no-trump admitted three no-trump tricks and denied support for a heart suit that was bid only once.

But the whole picture changed when south rebid hearts. Now you have support for hearts and a total of four tricks in assisting it. So, you have enough to go to four hearts.

Sign-offs may be needed signals for players who do not have a sound basic opening bid. But they do not apply as a real stop for those who know their partner is a sound opener.

Brakes are useful for those not truthful.

Dana Andrews Against Practice Stars Doubling as TV Salesmen

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Dana Andrews today levelled a blast at the practice of having stars double as TV salesmen.

That, he said, is one of the reasons he has a hand-off policy for television.

"I think an actor should act," he reasoned. "He shouldn't be forced into the position of selling products. But if you do TV, the sponsor often makes you throw in a pitch for what he's selling. I think that lowers an actor's dignity."

He cited one distinguished actor who played host for a beer series and had to savor the product on TV. Another fine actor has to rhapsodize over a certain soap. "They make themselves look silly," Andrews said.

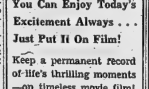
I wondered if testimonial ads, which Andrews and nearly all stars submit to, don't amount to the same kind of commercializing.

"There's a difference," he declared. "There you get a direct tie-up with a picture you are selling. It's a way of advertising movies. You are merely lending your name and face.

"But at least you haven't got to extol the product. That I refuse to do."

Andrews sees the solution to the public's entertainment needs in pay TV.

"Television simply can't afford to put on top entertainment," he said. "It just isn't commercially possible. If a half-hour show gets over a $40,000 budget, it gets pretty shaky financially."



There's another element to Andrews' anti-TV stand. For a top star, it offers no financial advantage, he said.

"I can get $10,000 a week working in the movies," he explained. "Most of the top TV shows don't pay that, and you end up working more than a week."

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, March 24, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Patience! All others may not feel up to par today. You can do much to maintain harmony and smoothness and thereby profit by clear thinking. More personal satisfaction this also.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — You may feel enthused, ambitious; have the urge to do big things. First! But don't go to extremes. Take time to think before moving. Then when ready, do with a will and right concern.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Should find mostly friendly aspects smiling your way, giving cheer to favorite causes. Be alert, ready, and know what you are about. Watch disposition, it can be ruling factor today.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Your innate industriousness and honest ambition a great team to pull you over possible rough spots. Keep all good assets harnessed, pulling together; you'll gain good results.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Influence not overly encouraging, especially when sudden or drastic changes in well planned ideas misfire. Don't invite the unclearly spectacular; hold to sound methods of action.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Opportunities, activity, vigor are in your atmosphere. If taken advantage of with good common sense (and using your God-given talent and capability sky) you will make creditable showing.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Any aggressiveness where it may cause dissention is false. But aspects will be helpful to good deeds, and worthwhile accomplished by wise, clever management and action.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Mild rays in your sector, but other good influences nearby can be transcended to your benefit if you think and act constructively, as you so well can. Look on the bright side.

November 23 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Vibrations warn against taking foolish chances with money or other valuables. Hold on to possessions, don't hasten away the stable for the unknown.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Day offers friendly aspects for you who will give extra thought and effort to whatever your honorable endeavor. Consider health, relaxation after work or chores, always worth while.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — May be unexpected news, happenings that confuse or disturb you unpreparedly. Sing calmly, analyze well before acting and save time, energy, money. Remember the "fifth in line."

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Moderately encouraging for interests that can stand the test, run close inspection for value, worthiness. Your good nature coupled with your well handled talents will make this day count. You born today: Your ambition is usually tempered with convincing steady gait, a most valuable twosome for marked success when properly applied. With originality of thought and enough caution to restrain undue changeability and restlessness you can go through real obstacles to top achievement. Are gifted to a position of trust. Often too modest to show your true worth; can be relied upon in difficult situations. Don't be gullible, especially to flattering persons. Out 11th port; artist; Andrew W. Mellon. Amer. financier, statesman.

Birthdate of: Wm. Morris, English designer, craftsman; innate cleverness a chance.

IT MAY BE YOUR LIVER

If Who's not worth living

It may be your Fruit

Life's a feast if taken up to two years of Fruit-a-Tive. If your liver is sluggish you're in for misery. If your liver fails you're finished. Fruit-a-Tives is the only medicine in the world made from fruit juices. Fruit-a-Tives is the fine tonic and laxative for your liver. You feel fine when your liver is right

Both Questions Answered In Affirmative

OTTAWA (CP)—Should Canada's estimated 3,000 drug addicts be forcibly detained for treatment? And what of corporal punishment: Should it be abolished?

Witnesses appearing Tuesday before parliamentary committees considering proposed revisions in Canada's Criminal Code answered in the affirmative on both questions.

RCMP commissioner L. H. Nicholson, whose men enforce Canada's narcotics laws, told a Senate committee that compulsory detention and treatment of addicts is the only sure means of stamping out the illegal drug traffic in this country.

VOLUNTARY PLAN FAILS

Dr. C. A. Roberts, chief of the health department's mental health division, and Kenneth C. Hossick, head of that department's narcotics control division, both agreed that compulsory treatment in special centres should be tried.

Dr. Roberts said latest reports on the voluntary treatment system being tried in the United States indicated it was not very successful since most addicts dropped the cure after a short time.

Commissioner Nicholson said addicts should not be released from treatment centres until they are known to be on the way to rehabilitation. Then they should be given suitable employment far from the place where they "lived while addicted. Care and supervision should be continued to make sure they had permanently licked the habit.

ABOLISH WHIPPING

Meanwhile, before the Senate-Commons committee on capital and corporal punishment, the federal commissioner of penitentiaries recommended virtual abolition of corporal punishment.

Parliament should eliminate the whipping as part of court sentences, said Maj.-Gen. R. B. Gibson, but should keep it as a last resort to severe discipline in penitentiaries. It should be used only when necessary to protect other penitentiary rules, attacked fellow prisoners or guards, rioted or destroyed government property, but only if all other means failed.

The lash was not a deterrent from crime for, to be effective, it had to be applied soon after conviction. Threat of a lengthy penitentiary term was a better deterrent than a short term with a whipping, distasteful to both the whipped and he whielder of the lash.

Windsor Council Wants Bigger Education Grants

SARNIA (CP)—A proposal from Windsor city council that a delegation of Ontario legislators attend sessions of the Ontario legislature to urge increased government grants for education purposes was supported unanimously Tuesday night by city council.

The Windsor recommendation was that the government should pay an education grant equal to 50 per cent of the total cost to the municipality.

Council also voted to prepare a resolution for consideration at the next meeting urging the government to adopt some yardstick other than per capita assessment for the establishment of education grants.

APPROVE FLUORIDATION

MICHIPICOTEN, Ont. (CP)—The council of this tiny mining municipality Tuesday night accepted without a dissenting vote a health board proposal to fluoridate the water supply. On the recommendation of medical health officer Dr. F. G. Pearson, the matter was not put to a plebiscite, but was decided at a special public meeting of the council. The meeting was well advertised, but only two ratepayers attended and one of those left before a vote was taken. Michipicoten has 1,100 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Egypt Protests Canadian Truce Chief's Report

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Egypt prepared a strong protest today against the Canadian report made last week by the United Nations Canadian truce chief.

An Egyptian spokesman said Ambassador Omar Loutfi would voice his government's complaint at a meeting of the security council this afternoon (1 p.m. EST). Israeli representative Abba Eban also was expected to speak.

The report dealt with the Feb. 28 clash at Gaza in which 38 Egyptians and eight Israelis were killed. The truce chief, Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Ottawa, blamed Israel for the actual attack but said continued Egyptian infiltration across the Israeli border was a major cause of Holy land tension.

Israel was said to have been peeved at Burns' report in that it presented at the council meeting last Thursday. An Egyptian spokesman said: "It is a report Hasaan read Tuesday night that the Egyptian delegation heard Burns' report in utter amazement."

The Egyptians had expected a strong condemnation of Israel. They resented especially that Burns had little to say about the Gaza clash itself except to report that the Egyptian-Israeli mixed armistice commission had found Israel to blame.

Neither Israel nor Egypt is a member of the security council. Some of the members, including the United States and Britain, have been working privately on a resolution censuring Israel and calling for closer border supervision. No resolution is ready yet, however, and may not be until after another meeting or two.

TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW
Watermain and Sewer Construction

TO ALL PROSPECTIVE SUBDIVIDERS OF LANDS IN THE TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW WHO MAY BE REQUIRING WATER AND/OR SEWER SERVICE.

Please be advised that Council have decided, after due consideration, to require all Petitions for watermain and/or Sewer Construction to be filed at the Township Office not later than April 15th, 1955. If it is the wish of the Petitioners that the work be done in 1955.

The reason the above decision has been made is that the preparation of plans and profiles, the securing of the necessary approvals from various government departments and local authorities, and the passing of By-Laws takes about two months, and, all this, of course, must be done before the actual work can start. It has been found that where the commencement of the work is delayed beyond July 1st, construction continues into the winter season, with the result that frost action on the new fill in the trenches causes undue settlement in spring heaving and makes the maintenance of the roadway almost impossible.

The co-operation of all those concerned is hereby requested.

E. M. DAFOE,
Clerk-Treasurer.

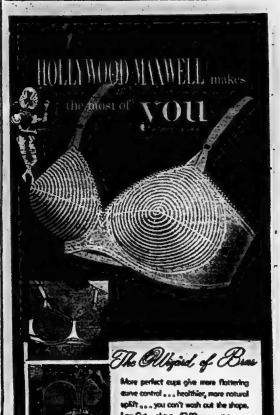
New Tribe Found in Papua 'Friendly, Likeable, Handsome'

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters)—Australian explorers today reported finding a new tribe of aborigines in the remote Star mountains of Papua.

The natives had no little contact with civilization that they were astonished to find explorers really had feet under their heavy jungle boots.

The findings were announced by the Australian Broadcasting Corporation on the basis of reports from an Australian government patrol similar to one which last year reported finding a tribe of fair-skinned natives in an uncolored valley in the interior of New Guinea.

The government team, of two Australians and native guides, said the new tribe was the "most friendly, likeable and handsome" one yet encountered by Australian exploration teams.



The explorers were surrounded by hundreds of the tribesmen who sang, yelled and danced greetings and eagerly ran up to hug the Australians.

The tribesmen live in tree houses with separate entrances for men and women. In fertile valleys they carefully cultivate rich gardens. Warfare among them is virtually unknown.

The area in which they live is almost completely inaccessible, sealed off from the outside world by terrifying peaks of jagged limestone.

Britain Welcomes Eisenhower's Call For 'Big 4' Talks

Foreign Office Says Plan In Line With Eden's Speech

Council Rules Alaska Church Not Red-Owned

SITKA, Alaska (AP)—There may be the makings of a new Russo-American crisis in a decision made here Monday night by the city council.

The council was asked:

Who owns the land on which the city offices and a Lutheran church are located, Russia or the United States?

The question was asked apparently in all seriousness by officials of the church in an attempt to clarify their tax status. The land was not included in the federal survey of transfer to the U. S. in 1867, when the territory was purchased from Russia.

The city fathers agreed unanimously, notwithstanding the survey oversight, that the lot was U. S. territory.

It was not explained how the church officials planned to remit taxes to Russia had the decision gone the other way.

Committee Plans Visits to Prisons To Hear Stories

OTTAWA (CP)—One Senate special committee on narcotics will become a travelling investigational body in a role akin to that of a royal commission.

Its first trip will be to Vancouver, hub of drug addiction in Canada. Hearings will start there April 18 and may last a week. Visits will be made to Calgary, Edmonton and to the Westminster penitentiary and three of the witnesses themselves will be interviewed.

Later the committee plans a visit to Kingston Penitentiary to see how addicts among the 86 women prisoners are handled. Still later—probably during the next session of Parliament—the committee will visit a big addiction treatment centre at Lexington, Ky.

Committee Chairman Senator Thomas D'Arcy (Irish-Catholic, Antigonish, Nova Scotia) describes these unusual plans Wednesday, said the committee will go into every phase of drug addiction in Canada. He figures the investigation will spill over into the next session.

A PRECEDENT

In deciding to travel, the committee is setting a precedent for such Senate committees. Witnesses usually are called to Ottawa. On the part some committees of the Commons, such as sub-committees of the Commons agriculture committee, have travelled from place to place.

Senator Reid's 21-man committee, set up this session to go into the whole question of the narcotics traffic, received Senate consent Wednesday to travel. It is free to place to place as it sees fit. This means it could travel in or out of Canada if and when it considers necessary.

The chairman said the broad-based scope of his committee can be likened to that of a royal commission inquiry. Travelling will permit it to hear wider representation that could be done by simply calling witnesses to Ottawa.

"There will be no whitewashing of our report," he added.

TWO SISTERS DROWN

HULL, Que. (CP) — Two little sisters were drowned Wednesday in Brewery creek in the eastern outskirts of Hull. Victims were: Nicole, 6, and Jeannette, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grenville, who recently moved into a new apartment building near the creek.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis—A weak disturbance crossing the Great Lakes is giving some light snow and drizzle to the southern part of the province this morning. Skies will clear in most regions by afternoon, however, as colder air moves in behind the disturbance and Friday is expected to be mostly sunny and colder throughout the province.

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain today officially welcomed President Eisenhower's call for exploratory East-West talks once the Germany rearmament treaties are ratified.

A foreign office spokesman pointed out, in line with the American president's proposals Wednesday, that Foreign Secretary Eden, in a speech to Parliament 10 days ago, also called for such talks after ratification of the Paris treaties.

The treaties are expected to be approved by Saturday by France's upper house, the Council of the Republic. This is the last major hurdle to ratification by all the countries involved in the plan to rearm West Germany within the Atlantic alliance.

In reply to questions, the foreign office spokesman said Britain envisaged that four-power talks after ratification should be at the foreign ministers' level, but preparation for them would be needed.

NO DATE

Britain had no "target" date in mind for such talks, but said that arrangements been made for a meeting of the U. S., British and French foreign ministers.

The spokesman said four-power talks could be held only after "some preparation and when "a suitable agreement has been made." In other words, Britain wanted some evidence beforehand that such talks would be likely to achieve "satisfactory results."

Throws Knife After Fur Coat Disappointing

TORONTO (CP) — Police arrested Richard Silvestrini, 23, a domestic, Wednesday after frightened clerks in a downtown fur store called in to say a woman was in a violent rage. They said she had thrown a butcher knife at the proprietor.

The enraged woman told police she made a special trip downtown to buy the knife so she could "carve up" the man who sold her a fur coat, which, she said, wasn't any good.

She said she paid $110 for the coat and found it unsatisfactory, so she took it back to the store and demanded her money back. When it was refused, she took him to court, but the case was dismissed.

Before police hauled Miss Silvestrie off to jail on charges of carrying an offensive weapon and threatening, the proprietor gave her back her $110.

CHARGE EMPLOYER

TORONTO (CP) — A summons has been issued Wednesday charging Nathan Cohen, proprietor of an east-end plant, with "wilfully attempting to obstruct the course of justice." The crown attorney's office laid the charge after a woman juror, Mrs. Alice Eaton, complained Cohen told her she would be fired because she was absent from work while on jury duty.

Ice Nearly 30 Feet Deep Clogging Lower Niagara River Causing Jam

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— The worst ice jam in 17 years clogged the lower Niagara river today, and United States Army engineers said there isn't much they can do about it.

The army Wednesday tried to blast the stuff loose at the mouth of the river but said nothing could be done until the ice breaks up under its own pressure.

Massive floes piling along the shoreline have splintered wharfs and boathouses, causing thousands of dollars of damage.

Meanwhile at Fort Erie, 16 miles south of here, where Lake Erie flows into the Niagara river, the heavy ice packs have shifted and are running constantly down the middle of the river.

ADULTERY STILL SOLE GROUND FOR DIVORCE

Senate Defeats Bill Adding Other Clauses

OTTAWA (CP) — Adultery remains the sole legal ground on which nearly every Canadian seeking divorce must rely.

The Senate Wednesday defeated by a vote of 37 to 28 a bill that would have added cruelty, incurable insanity and desertion for three years as legally-accepted reasons for Canadian courts to grant divorces.

At present adultery, in the eight provinces that have divorce courts is the sole ground except in Nova Scotia, where cruelty also is recognized.

Parliament itself handles divorces in Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, which have no divorce courts. The grounds on which those marriages have been dissolved have been almost exclusively adultery.

AFTER LONG DEBATE

Since the bill was introduced Feb. 23 by Senator Walter Aseltine (PC—Saskatchewan), the Senate has spent most of its time debating it.

Closing the debate Wednesday, Senator Aseltine urged senators to "keep, religiously, the sanctity of their vote. The measure would not bring an open-door divorce policy.

"We are not in favor of the practices of Reno, Nevada or Hollywood, many of whom divorce and marry just for publicity purposes" he said.

"What we are asking for is a sane, reasonable law . . .

Almost a score of senators spoke in the extended debate and most of them supported it, arguing that Canada is the only country which has adultery as sole divorce ground and that there should be a modernization in keeping with the times.

Gale Prevents Liner Sailing

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — A mile-and-a-half gale today prevented the liner Queen Mary from leaving for New York.

The Queen Mary has 845 passengers on board and another 210 are to join the ship at Cherbourg, France.

The gale also lashed the rest of the coast of Great Britain. Strong winds carrying rain caused inland floods. In the Midlands, cold spots temperatures were above freezing.

In Plymouth harbor the Norwegian luxury liner Venus remained inside the breakwater after a second attempt to refloat her on high tide failed.

The ship, which was to have left on a pleasure cruise to Madeira, Italy and Spain, was driven by a fierce gale which whipped the coast Wednesday.

GARAGE BURNS

MITCHELL (CP) — A $30,000 fire Wednesday destroyed a large garage-implement shop at Carronbrook and drug-like, a snow plow, jeep and tractors. The building was owned by Conservation contractor Robert Clarke. Cause of the blaze was not known.

Ontario to Get Health Plan When Time Right Says Frost

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost federal government would contributes to such a plan is conjecture.

says Ontario will have a government-sponsored health insurance plan when the time is right.

The premier, speaking in the legislature Wednesday during consideration of health departmental estimates, said it is unlikely the federal government would contribute to a health insurance plan until it is established on a national basis.

"The question is not one, however, of whether health insurance will come but when. That is the only question is: When is the right time for it?"

He said the province at present faces heavy education costs and it would be unwise, particularly with the federal-provincial conference pending, to add the province's share to an additional large outlay without further consideration.

A comprehensive public hospital care plan would probably cost well in excess of $150,000,000, and the comprehensive physicians' services plan an additional $75,000,000," Mr. Frost said.

As a result, a hospital insurance scheme would cost an estimated minimum total of $190,000,000 if present services and wages, and professional fees did not increase.

Such an expenditure calls for the raising of funds far in excess of the taxes now employed in the province.

The premier said whether the

"So far they have not undertaken to finance any portion of the cost of the hospital insurance plans operating in the three provinces, and it is unlikely they will make any contribution until health insurance is established on a national basis."

The premier's prepared statement followed a review by Health Minister Dymond.

Dr. Phillips said no one could be more "forcibly impressed" by expansion of hospital facilities since the end of the Second World War. Since 1947 the province paid more than $30,000,000 toward new municipal hospitals.

"We hear from the opposition that this government is not doing enough for municipalities," Dr. Phillips said in referring to grants by municipalities for hospital purposes.

Comparing amounts paid by municipalities and by the province, he said in 1946 the province paid only $1,000,000 and municipalities $3,000,000 in grants; in 1953 the province paid $10,300,000 and the municipalities $5,200,000.

He said 37 new hospitals had been established since 1947 and the capital grant system was started by the province, to be followed a year later by a similar federal government scheme.

West and Neutrals Suggest 'Big Four' Talks Through UN

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— Some Western and neutral diplomats suggested today that the Big Four powers could begin preliminary talks at the United Nations after the Paris parliaments of West German rearmament are ratified. These Westerners, who declined to be quoted by name, pointed out that the UN is the only place in which both the Western powers—the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union—maintain permanent high-ranking representatives in continual contact at the Paris international organization's headquarters. They replied that the Soviet boycott of the Korean conflict were two East-West crises whose end was sparked by talks initiated by the UN.

The four powers' UN representatives are Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. delegate who sits with President Eisenhower's cabinet, Sir Pierson Dixon, Britain, Hesrl Hoppenot of France and Arkady A. Sobolev, Moscow's new delegate.

Western delegates generally agree that the time is ripe to talk about a conference on world issues, but in the UN or anywhere, until their final ratification of the Paris agreements to rearm West Germany.

President Eisenhower at his press conference Wednesday made clear that Big Four representatives of lesser rank would have to "do the spadework" in preparation for the chiefs of state would meet in a new conference.

UN delegates said they believe the Big Four representatives in the UN would be working on the agenda, talks, preparing for later meetings of their foreign ministers and then of the chiefs of state.

Russia Makes New Proposal For Reduction of Armaments

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda says Russia has made a new proposal for the banning of nuclear weapons, reduction of conventional armaments and international inspection to ensure compliance.

The Soviet Communist party organ says the proposal was made to the five-power United Nations disarmament subcommittee in the disarmament talks now being held in London. The five powers represented are Soviet Russia, the United States, Britain and France, the major atomic powers.

As explained by Pravda, the plan largely parallels the proposals Russia put before the UN General Assembly last fall, except that it goes further in that it envisages creation of a control organ to guarantee that the measures agreed upon are carried out.

The plan calls for all countries to sign a convention agreeing to arms reductions in two stages:

1. A 25-to-50 per cent cut in conventional arms and destruction of all atomic, hydrogen and other "mass destruction" weapons within six months of the signing.

2. A second 50-per-cent cut during the ensuring six-month period. The signatories would agree not to produce mass destruction weapons.

Pravda casually outlined the plan in an editorial denouncing allegations by Secretary of State Dulles that Russia has refused to accept the Western powers of using the London talks "as a screen for concealing" an intensified armed drive and atomic war preparations.

Pravda says Russia's disarmament control plan would call for the establishment of a control organ empowered to carry out inspections.

"The international control organ or key staff inspectors permanently in all countries signing the convention, and these inspectors in functions allotted them would have at any time free access to all objects of control."

The article does not specify whether this control board would come under the authority of the UN Security Council where Russia has veto power.

Oppose Using Ontario Grants To Reduce Taxes

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Nathan Phillips faced a "revolt" in city council today over his proposal to use the city's provincial government grant from the province to reduce taxes.

The mayor and Controller Ford Brand made the suggestion Wednesday.

Today the other members of the council—including Controller Dorothy Parlee—put and said the money should be used to give relief to the city's ratepayers.

Alderman Alex Hodgins said, "Reduction of taxes at this time of production will utterly destroy any further argument we can use with our provincial and federal representatives."

"How can we ever go up again to Premier Frost and ask for aid for unemployment relief?"

Must Move From Danger Area

KITCHENER (CP) — Residents of 10 suburban Bridgeport homes were told by the police commission Hazel Booths were told Wednesday night their properties will be purchased by the provincial government and they must move from the danger area.

At a special public meeting attended by 75 of persons involved, Reeve Lincoln Kuntz said the village council has been ordered by the government to buy the properties within an amount yet by an appraiser and raze the damaged houses.

The reeve said it is hoped to have the 10 houses razed and moved close to the Grand river, before the next fall floods.

LAST CANADIAN SOLDIER IN KOREA HOME BY SPRING

Other Commonwealth Troops Also Leaving

OTTAWA (CP)—The last Canadian soldier in Korea likely will be home by late this spring.

Informants said Wednesday the government definitely plans to withdraw remaining Canadian forces in Korea soon.

Arrangements for the withdrawal now are being completed with the United Nations command and countries with forces in Korea. Their troops probably will be pulled out as well, informants said.

It was understood that no exact date for the withdrawal has been set but that it will be in the next few months.

Informants said the United States, which in effect is the United Nations command in Korea, has raised no objections to the Canadian withdrawal. It appeared that the two U.S. divisions would pull out of Korea for the time being at least.

CANADIAN UNITS

Canada now has one infantry battalion — the 2nd battalion Queens Own Rifles—a few auxiliary troops and one destroyer, the Sioux, in Korea.

The bulk of Canadian forces in the far East—the 25th Brigade—left fall when the 6,000-man 25th Brigade was cut down to 1,200 soldiers and two destroyers were ordered home.

The 25th Brigade, in fact, has passed into Canadian Army history. It has been renamed the 6th Brigade and its headquarters now is stationed at Camp Borden, Ont.

The Queen's Own was to have been relieved by the 1st Battalion, the Black Watch, based at Aldershot, N. S., but this plan was shelved while the Commonwealth defence chiefs discussed a complete withdrawal.

French Senate Opens Debate On Paris Pacts

PARIS (AP)—Two half-hearted proponents of the Paris agreements on West German rearmament today led off a general debate in the French senate that is expected to be the last major obstacle to their ratification.

Yvon Coude du Foresto, a member of a Centrist party, and Marcel Champeix, a Socialist, both urged the senate, or Council of the Republic, to approve the agreements as the best that France can obtain at this time.

Almost all other senators are listed to speak before the final vote can be taken, probably some time Saturday.

While some hitch is always possible, Premier Edgar Faure's pact accords will be endorsed by the senate. They have already been approved in the National Assembly.

Coude du Foresto said he would have preferred the European army treaty, which was abandoned, but "I believe we must accept the Paris accords as a lesser evil."

Graham's Converts Pass Thousand Mark

GLASGOW (AP) — Another 317 souls made their "decision for Christ" Wednesday night as Billy Graham's great revival crusade wound up its third week.

The record for decisions has passed 1,000 in Scotland, said Jerry Beavan, the American evangelist's executive secretary. "We never had such early success so early in a crusade."

Labor Member Convinced Winnie Not Too Old to Carry On as P. M.

LONDON (Reuters)Prime Minister Churchill amused the House of Commons today trading jibes with a Labor member trying to draw him into saying something about his reported imminent retirement.

Richard Stokes, complaining of government delay in making a decision about accommodation in the houses of Parliament, asked Churchill how much longer they were to wait "before we can have an assurance we shall have a decision before he himself retires as prime minister."

Churchill gave such hard-hitting replies during question-time today that later one Labor member, Arthur Woodburn, asked "where the Conservatives got the idea that the prime minister was too old to do the job, after today's performance."

Four Men Elude Graveyard Waters Of Lake Erie

Mountainous Waves Wash One Crew Member Off Tug

PORT BURWELL (CP) — Four men eluded the graveyard waters of Lake Erie's treacherous north shore Wednesday after enduring a night of horror aboard their steam-battered tug.

A dozen fishermen and farmers who pitted their strength, skill and courage, against the merciless beating of giant waves brought the four seamen from the fishing boat Cisco to shore.

One seaman, John Wilson of Port Dover, was swept overboard by the raging waters at the height of Lake Erie's worst storm in 30 years.

The survivors, Capt. Harold Young and crew members John Sikovich, Cecil Rockefeller and Gordon Messecar, all of Port Burwell, were rescued from their foundering craft 12 miles off shore. Clear creek, 40 miles southeast of London, Ont. They were taken to hospital at Tillsonburg Memorial Hospital for exposure and shock.

SURVIVORS TELL STORY

They had stuck to the lurching ship for more than three hours after Wilson was swept aboard but as the captain steered course for shore, the Cisco, caught in the trough, they spent 33 hours on the ship.

Wilson, the fifth crew member, was carried overboard the night before.

The storm, the fifth crew member, was carried overboard the night before.

The challenge of the storm was taken up by fishermen and farmers who braved the mountainous waves of fortitude to pluck the men from the brink of death. The drama was played out before hundreds lining the bluffs, among them the wives, and children of the men on the pitifield vessel.

The story of the 32-foot Cisco started in the violence of the storm which struck the area Tuesday.

The 70-ton Cisco set out from Port Burwell early Tuesday morning to lay nets. At 9 a.m. the winds suddenly increased and sent the vessel scurrying around the craft. She was 30 miles out.

Capt. Young headed for shore but the journey was slow. Wilson was on deck at the helm when the mountainous waves thundered down on the craft. Then, later in the night, a huge wave swept over, isolating the tug from shore.

CARGO

Capt. Cisco began to list as water spilled below decks. The 600 pounds of fish, she carried in the hold shifted, causing her to list further.

The skipper headed for Port Burwell harbor but was driven back. Throughout the night watchers on shore flicked their lights guide the Cisco in. Hope faded when radio contact was lost about midnight. At 5 a.m. Wednesday, Capt. Young decided to beach her.

Woman Attacked

TORONTO (CP)—Police said a burly, white-haired man attacked a young woman on the street early today.

Miss Edna Wayne was approaching the house of a friend after leaving a taxi when the unidentified man grabbed her around the neck and said "don't scream. I've a knife".

Police said Miss Wayne's screams frightened her attacker away.

CNR to Operate Longest Diesel Run in America

MONTREAL The longest single diesel locomotive run in North America — 3,930 miles — will be established on April 24 with the introduction of the Canadian National Railways new service "Super Continental", S. Dingle, vice-president of operations of the system, announced here today.

The diesel locomotives hauling the "Super Continental", which will slash more than 14 hours from present schedules, will operate from Toronto to Vancouver without replacement. Engine crews, too, will change at regular division points along the trans-continental route.

Big A-Bomb Test Again Postponed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—There was no nuclear shot today. Testers said a big, 500-foot tower blast, delayed by weather conditions since Monday, will not be attempted until Friday at the earliest.

The underground blast was the 38th in the series.

The underground explosion, set off by an atomic demolition device, produced a dirty cloud of radioactive dust. The device was one of the tiniest nuclear explosives yet devised, and the miniature explosion rose to only 13,000 feet.

The device was believed to be less than one kiloton in power. A kiloton is equal to 1,000 tons of TNT.

There was no report of any radioactivity fall-out outside the test site.

Dr. G. V. Faulkner Dies Suddenly In Montreal

Scion of a distinguished Hastings County medical family, Dr. George Vermilyea Faulkner, 257 Bridge East, died suddenly in Montreal on Wednesday. He was in his 67th year.

Dr. Faulkner suffered a heart seizure and expired in his room in the Mount Royal Hotel.

Dr. Faulkner's sudden passing marks the end of a colorful military and medical career.

He came from a family that was rich in medical lore that dates back to the American civil war. A relative bearing the family name was a surgeon-general in that conflict, while there is a Faulkner hospital in Montreal, made possible by a distant member of the family.

His grandfather, Dr. George W. Faulkner, practised in Stirling and Belleville. His paternal uncle, Dr. Dan Faulkner, was a well known Belleville physician. His father, the late Dr. Albert Faulkner, was born and died in Stirling and practised in this city for a long time before he was appointed Minister of Health in the Hepburn government.

BORN IN FOXBORO

Dr. George Faulkner was born in Foxboro and received his early education there. He graduated from the Belleville Collegiate Institute. Following the family tradition he entered medicine at McGill University and after graduation interned in the Royal Victoria Hospital. He was later associated with a chest clinic in Montreal for a time and did work on silicosis in Northern Ontario mining areas. He then carried on general practice for a year in a small town near Hamilton.

Came the war and the young doctor emerged at the end of a one-half years with a distinguished military record. He joined the British army as an infantry private.

His commission, and his medical ability became known after he attended a sick comrade. He transferred to the Indian Army Medical Corps with the rank of captain. His outstanding work with native and British troops behind the Japanese lines in Burma is well known here. He organized the first British hospital behind our Japanese lines when he was associated with the late General C. C. Wingate and Orde Wingate Chindits.

CAMPAIGN SUCCESSFUL

Good Neighbors Build Solidly For Friendship

(This is the fifth in a series of articles on Rotary International written by Harold F. Mott, past president of the Belleville Rotary Club. Rotary International is celebrating the 50th anniversary of its founding this year.)

By H. F. MOTT

In April of last year, Rotarians from all but one of the twenty-one republics of the American hemisphere gathered at Sao Paulo, Brazil. Occasion was the annual observance of Pan - American Day, the anniversary of the Pan-American Union.

Dedicated to the cultivation of good neighborly relations between nations of the same region, the Pan-American Union and its development as the Organization of the American States holds a unique, universal interest, for all countries have the problem of getting along with their neighbors.

An expression of this interest is found in the Charter of the United Nations which not merely approves the existence of such regional arrangements, but urges parties to any international dispute "first of all" to seek a solution through them. (Article 33).

BASIC PRINCIPLES

Certain basic principles for good neighborly relations have emerged from the sixty-five years of experience in hemispheric solidarity. First, and most basic, principles is non-intervention. Proclaimed originally in the Monroe Doctrine as a defense against aggression from outside the hemisphere this principle is now applied to relations between the nations of the hemisphere as well. Essentially it requires neighbors to respect each other's territorial integrity and self-determination. The situation in Guatemala late last year was an acid test of non-intervention.

Then there is the corollary principle. In the event of an armed attack against any of them, states are obligated to assist in repelling the aggression. Enshrined in the treaty of Rio de Janeiro (1947), this same principle was applied to the unique present circumstances of Europe in the North Atlantic Treaty and of Asia in SEATO. Besides recognizing each other's individuality and privacy, good neighbors stand shoulder to shoulder in an emergency.

CULTURAL EXCHANGE

Year-in and year-out, the work of the Pan-American Union is based on the third principle which might be called cultural exchange. Good neighbors help each other, teach each other, enrich each other's lives by association and pagin was completely successful.
